BREEZY WEEZEY raced SUNNY HOSTESS into defeat on the turn and drew clear to win easily. GREEN PASTURES was clearly best of the others. COUNTERPARRY lacked a rally. WITH FEELING was taken up entering the stretch. FANCY LADY showed nothing.

SCRATCHES: Smoothly, Kaveen, Buralda, Gleeful Miss.

BIM BOUT set the pace under rating and needed only mild encouragement to turn back the mild challenge of ON-AND-ON and steadily increase his advantage. The latter held a menacing position from the start but lacked a late response despite strong pressure. OURS failed to menace the top pair.

TROILUS, under steadying restraint while closest to the early pace, wrested command and rapidly established a clear lead on the final turn, then was urged only intermittently in the late stages. OPEN VIEW, unhurried through the early stages, was under strong pressure in an effort to reach the leader soon after entering the stretch but was no match. FIRST LANDING attained a menacing position early, had clear sailing throughout but was without a response. RARE RICE showed an even effort, as did EASY SPUR. MOONY showed nothing. SCOTLAND was always far back. MANASSA MAULER was outrun. RICO TESIO was never a factor. KURASIA attained command from his inside position without need of rushing, remained in front for about six furlongs and stopped to a walk.

Tenacious Snares Orleans Handicap

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—Tenacious, gunned into a running fury at the head of the stretch, outclassed his field to win the $62,500 New Orleans Handicap Saturday.

The five-year-old son of Challedon, the decided choice of the 17,150 fans at the Fair Grounds, had a four length spread over Pete's Folly at the wire. Hare Raising took show.

Tenacious, owned by the estate of Joe W. Brown who died two weeks ago, toured the mile and one-eighth in 1:50.1.

The victory was a repeat showing for Tenacious, who edged Oh Johnny in last year's renewal, and again clinched the Fair Grounds handicap title.

Tenacious, ridden by Ray Broussard, returned $5, $3.20 and $2.80.

Broussard made no mistake with the trim brown speedster and kept him in the middle of the 10-horse pack while Hare Raising and True Verdict set a torrid early pace.

At the head of the stretch, Brousard had Tenacious in the middle of the track and went to the whip when Pete's Folly came through with his stretch burst. Tenacious answered with another burst and was pulling away at the wire.

Gator Mermen Win Easily

Dave Calkin, Florida captain, won the 220-yard and 440-yard freestyles. He equalled the Southeastern Conference record of 2 minutes 15.2 seconds in the 220.

Bowie Test To Sabotage

BOWIE, Md. — (AP) — Fred J. Thompson's Sabotage got through along the rail in the $20,000-added Southern Maryland Handicap at Bowie Race Course Saturday to gain a two-length victory over Honey's Tiger.

Honey's Tiger was a nick in front of Tinkalero in the seven-furlong test which was witnessed in warm weather by a crowd of 21,475.

The mutuel handle of $1,846,567 was the largest of the meeting.

Sabotage paid $12.80, $7.40 and $4.20; Honey's Tiger $12 and $6.20, and Tinkalero $2.80.

At Ormond

Glick, Bell Duel For Title

The 22-year-old college senior, victor in last year's tournament, defeated Mrs. Carol Cudone of West Caldwell, N.J., 2 and 1 in an 18-hole semifinal match played over the Ellinor Village Country club course in raw, damp weather.

In the other match, Mrs. Maurice Glick of Baltimore upset Medalist Marge Burns of Greensboro, N.C., 4 and 3.

Miss Bell and Mrs. Glick, often in the semifinals but never before in the finals, meet today in the 36-hole title match.

Mrs. Cudone ran into trouble on the third hole when she drove her tee shot into an unplayable lie and had to take a penalty stroke. She had simillar trouble on the next hole and finally conceded it.

She pulled her game together afterward but never was able to overtake Miss Bell who was four up at the turn.

Mrs. Glick won the first two holes in her match with Miss Burns and was two up at the turn. Playing in her 12th tournament here, Mrs. Glick took the 13th to go three up and closed out the match on the 15th when she sank a 15-foot putt.

Miss Burns said she was hitting the ball well but couldn't make her putts.

Gulfstream Next Goal For Terrang

ARCADIA — (AP) — Terrang, who cost his Texas owners $75,000, more than paid himself out Saturday in winning the $145,000 Santa Anita Handicap.

Terrang earned $97,900 for his owners, paper magnate Laurence Pollock and oilman Roland Bond of Dallas, in Saturday's race. Since they bought the horse two years ago, he has won $340,735.

It will be up to Trainer Carl Roles where Terrang races next. But Pollock said he thought it would be in the $100,000 Gulfstream Handicap.

Terrang Outlasts Favored Hillsdale: Wins 'Santa Anita'

ARCADIA, Calif. — (AP) — Terrang, a 6-year-old veteran of racing, captured the $145,000 Santa Anita Handicap in a thrilling stretch duel with the favored Hillsdale Saturday.

As a crowd of 57,000 roared with excitement, Jockey Bill Boland drove Terrang to victory and the $97,900 winner's net share of the purse for his owners, Laurence Pollock and Roland Bond of Texas.

The time for the mile and one-quarter winter time classic was 2.00 flat, shy of the track record of 1.59 4-5 set by Round Table last year.

Hillsdale, the odds on favorite paid $2.90 and $2.50, and Royal Living $4.20.

Hillsdale went into the race the winner of seven out of his last eight starts and the crowd played him to win to the tune of $192,812.

The Indiana-bred gamester, a 4-year-old, carried 113 pounds, three less than Terrang, the third choice in the betting.

It was a photo finish but it was apparent at the finish line that Terrange had beaten the Hoosier favorite. The margin was half a length and Royal Living, ridden by Manuel Ycaza, was almost three lengths behind in the third spot.

Jockey Tommy Barrow broke Hillsdale out of the gate first, but a lightweight, Ballyrullah, quickly went into the lead and another lightweight, Royal Clove, with Willie Shoemaker aboard, closed in.

As the field of 13 ran down the track before the grandstand the first time George Taniguchi had Ballyrullah in front by a length and a half, with Hillsdale dropping back to the fourth position.

Barrow let Hillsdale loose going down the backstretch and at the far turn he caught Ballyrullah. Terrange remained close behind.

Hillsdale drew out by a length and a half entering the stretch, but then Boland sent Terrang into a hard drive.

The windup bore out one pre-race contention. Hillsdale's main problem was the distance. He is essentially a sprinter. The mile and one quarter against a horse like Terrang was too much.

Delany Romps In 4:07.1

NEW YORK —(UPI)— Ron Delany, the durable dandy from Dublin, pounded blithely to his 30th consecutive indoor mile championship in a slow 4:07.1 in a special invitation event in the IC4A Track Championships at Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

Delany, chalking up his 36th straight indoor triumph, took the lead with two laps to go just after Hungary's Istvan Rozsavolgyi dropped out, and won by eight yards over Phil Coleman of the Chicago Track Club.

Bill Dellinger of Oregon and the Air Force barely failed to catch Coleman for second while Germany's Paul Schmidt was a badly beaten fourth.

Delany's time was only slightly better than the 4:10.1 in which Peter Close of St. John's captured the college mile.

The spectators gave Delany a big hand but it was a shade less than that which they gave a paunchy grey-haired spectator who galloped around the track during the freshman medley relay, completing more than a half lap before being escorted to the showers by a patrolman.

The only record in the early events went to Ed Moran of Penn State who won the 1,000 yard run in 2:09.6.

Tops for Season

Baxley Hits Record 640; Edison Wins

Visiting Miami Edison's basketball team defeated North Miami High, 81-67, Saturday night, but the Raiders couldn't stop Tom Baxley from setting a record Dade County point total.

Baxley dropped in 25 points, including 11 against Edison reserves in the final period, to bring his season total to 640 for 24 regular season games. Bernie Butts scored 615 for Hialeah in 21 regular season games, a record for only one week.

Although the total point leader, Baxley finished runnerup to Butts in the average department. Butts averaged 29.6 points per game, Baxley 26.6.

Edison had little trouble with the Pioneers. The Raiders, behind Ronnie Poh's 21-point outburst, grabbed a 44-22 halftime margin. The gap was 68-37 early in the fourth period before Coach Carl Eagle called off his blitz unit.

Poh finished the season with 471 points, a reported Raider record.

NYLON ZIPPER TRAVEL BAG

With each purchase of a Jarman "Flagship Style" — a top value in itself — we will give one of these handsome official American Airlines zipper bags. Made of rich royal blue Nylon, this 14-inch bag offers many possibilities: for overnight trips, for fishing and camping, for picnics and other outings, to mention only a few. You cannot purchase one of these bags anywhere. It is a prestige item, as well as a practical one, which you get with your "Flagship Styles" purchase.

You'll feel the difference in these Jarman shoes

STYLES AS MODERN AS AMERICAN'S NEW JET FLAGSHIPS

Our Jarman "Flagship Styles" are lighter, softer and more flexible than "old style" shoes — so much so that you feel a desirable difference the moment you slip them on. You see a difference, too, for these are handsome shoes for the modern man on the move (even the modern "man on the moon," in light of their jet-age styling and out-of-this-world comfort). We invite you to pay us a visit and let us show you these fine shoes, designed to give more smartness and comfort per step, priced to give more value per dollar.

Miami's Industrial Face Is Ready For 10th Public Showing

Products to be displayed for a 10-day period range from airplanes to jalousies and from pet supplies to birthday cakes. Admission is free.

More than a quarter-million persons from all parts of the country are expected to view the showcasing of locally-made products.

Sponsored by the City of Miami and Dade County, the exposition is designed to aid those industries already here, to lure new firms to South Florida and to show residents and visitors that this is more than a tourist center.

Greater Miami already leads all large metropolitan areas in the nation in the rate of growth of its manufacturing industries, according to the U. S. Department of Commerce.

The area has had a 300 per cent increase in industry in the past year. With more than 2,500 plants, Greater Miami has become the industrial center of Florida, with twice as many manufacturing employers as Jacksonville, the former leader.

Approximately 200 firms will display some 5,000 products at Dinner Key, according to Otis Dunan, head of a committee that planned the exposition.

In addition, the Air Force is sending a comprehensive missile and space equipment exhibit to be shown in one wing of the auditorium. The exhibit will detail man's age-old attempts to conquer space.

Maj. Gen. Alvord V. P. Anderson, Jr., commanding officer of the Air Force Materiel Base at Warner Robins, Ga., will be the principal speaker at the kickoff luncheon at the Dupont Plaza Hotel. He will present special awards, at that time, to six civic leaders, as yet unnamed, who have contributed to the area's industrial progress within the past year.

Fifteen per cent of the exhibitors at the exposition will be firms which have recently been established in the area.

"This is an encouraging sign," said Dunan. "It proves that industry is keeping up with the rest of the community in its growth."

John S. Gassaway, managing director of the show, said Saturday there is booth space still available for exhibitors wishing to show their wares.

Many of the manufacturers will be putting products before the public for the first time. Sea View Industires, Inc., for example, will premier a V.I.P. screen - type room which can be added to any home.

Another firm, Tropical Asphalt Products Corp., will show pastel-colored aluminum roof-coatings for the first time in the area. Liberty Aviation Co., Cessna distributors, will urge manufacturers to use light planes for business trips with a Skylane and a 175 model as its booth exhibits.

Still another local firm will introduce a new tick dip designed to make "Rover" a healthy dog. The new product comes from Veterinary Specialty Co.

For Stamps and Beer Cans

The Atom That Saved $1 Billion

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Sheet metal workers couldn't get along without it. Brewers and bakers use it. The amount of glue on your postage stamps was determined by it.

"It" is the "industrial atom," not to be confused with the military atom or the atom that runs nuclear power plants. It is only 12 years old, but in its short life it has saved more than a billion dollars.

Some of the industrial atom's exploits were related to the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee by George B. Foster, vice president of the Industrial Nucleonics Corp. of Columbus, Ohio.

Industrial use of radioactive materials, byproducts of the atomic energy project, started a dozen years ago and has been booming ever since.

Instruments employing these so-called radioisotopes are now used in thousands of processes to provide more accurate measurements and automatic controls than were ever feasible before.

With about 4,000 measurement-control systems now in use, savings are estimated in the neighborhood of 300 million dollars annually in raw materials alone.

The Atomic Energy Commission has estimated total savings at half a billion a year and has predicted savings of a billion annually in the near future.

Foster told of one steel mill which saves $600,000 a year with a thickness gauge which cost only $56,000. A watch manufacturer uses a similar gadget to roll alloys to 126 millionths of an inch in thickness. The average human hair is 20 times thicker.

Tire makers and the plastics industry are among others served by the industrial atom. The Federal Bureau of Engraving & Printing uses it "for measurement and control of the amount of glue applied to postage stamps."

It also controls the amount of water in fruit juice concentrates and the amount of dough in "cracker lines." It monitors machines which pack food in cans.

Breweries are using radiation beams in "inspection-rejection systems" to see that beer cans are filled to just the right level.

Mutuals Popular

NEW YORK —(UPI)— The popularity of mutual funds in 1958 continued in the initial month of 1959. Purchases of investment company shares in January amounted to $223,516,000, compared with $152,037,000 in December and $131,605,000 in January, 1958, according to the National Association of Investment Companies.

Stamps Find New Areas

NEW YORK —(UPI)— The trading stamp craze, generally limited to retail customers, is moving into the wholesale level.

County Fair Packing Corp., big meat packer and processor, will give its processed meat wholesalers, jobbers and retailers, trading stamps for their personal use starting tomorrow.

Herbert R. Haun, vice president in charge of County Fair's wholesale division, said this is probably the first use of the trading stamp idea at the wholesale level.

Orders must total $20, $50, $100 or multiples, he explained. Such orders will earn 200, 500 or 1,000-stamp certificates, respectively.

In addition, Haun said, wholesalers can earn 1,000-stamp bonuses for each $100 their orders exceed the corresponding year-ago week. New jobbers and wholesalers will get the bonus for each $100 that their orders exceed $500 a week.

SAO PAULO —(P)— Twenty-five Brazilian-made jeeps are being shipped to Chile as the first exports of Brazil's growing auto industry. They're made by Willys Overland of Brazil.

A Young Man and a Success Story

Big Business in Plastic

By JAMES RUSSELL
Herald Business Editor

Igloos and tepees worth thousands of dollars are emerging from a 22,000 square foot plant in the bustling industrial area of Hialeah.

They are made by a company that started with a two-man operation in a tiny work area less than two years ago and now does $750,000 worth of business in a year's time.

The igloos are the slang name the Air Force gives to the big coverings that shelter its camera and communications equipment at Cape Canaveral and other missile centers. They're made of reinforced plastic, a material that looms big in Greater Miami's industrial future.

EUBANKS

Young Eubanks came here some three years ago as a willing refugee from the north, where as a manufacturers representative for plastics firms he found the going too cold for his liking.

"Also," he says, "I felt that I could make a go of a plastics business of my own in Miami."

After spending some time looking things over here, Eubanks set up shop on 36th St. and hired Edward Cahen as his sole helper.

When Cahen showed up for work the first day, he looked around and said, "This is a business?"

"Well, I hope to make it one," replied Eubanks.

One of the first items they made was a plastic dog house. Then came trim panels for station wagons, window frames for C-46 airplanes and garden tools for do-it-yourself gardeners.

Business was so good they moved out to Hialeah in greatly enlarged facilities. They made spray tanks for crop-dusting helicopters, lightweight auto trailers for sports cars, and radio and battery cases.

The firm made 630 tepee-shaped Tacan shelters and several hundred plastic trays—the kind housewives use for serving coffee.

Three igloos were turned out in the past week for Cape Canaveral and more will be made in the months ahead.

Why does the Air Force need these camera covers?

"The slightest change in temperature affects the cameras when they're photographing a missile rising into the sky. The plastic covers are the best thing made for insulating and protecting them," Eubanks says.

He says plastics are a good thing for Miami, too.

"This is the kind of light industry that, if well financed and properly engineered, can help itself and help the area's business progress."

Auto Industry

Machines Do the Jobs Of 1 in 5

DETROIT —(UPI)— A machine now holds the job of one out of every five workers employed in the auto industry in 1953, according to figures from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics and the Automobile Manufacturers Association.

The figures show that the auto industry reduced the number of employes needed to turn out about the same number of cars by almost 18 per cent during the five year period to 1958. Continuing reductions during the past year have reduced even more the number of employes needed to build a given number of cars.

This trend is due in part to "automation" of car plants and in part to simple increases in mechanization and production skills.

If the auto industry followed strictly the formula of Henry Ford for dividing up the gains created by lower production costs among the investors, the consumers and the workers, it would be more easy to figure out the benefits.

But everyone agrees this formula is not being followed.

Auto industry officials have repeatedly said labor costs are draining off the lion's share of the benefits of the trend.

Why Stocks Hit That New High

By JOHN G. FORREST
The New York Times Service

NEW YORK — The stock market this week soared again to a historic high.

By the end of the week, however, there had been an erosion of prices.

The United States for its part reacted with the strong stand that it would not back down "one inch" on the Berlin impasse.

* * *

On the domestic front Wall Street was not particularly happy about a decision of the U.S. Supreme Court regarding levying taxes on business. The high court ruled that states had broad powers to tax an out-of-state corporation on that portion of its net income derived from activities within that state.

This, it said, applies even though those activities "are exclusively in furtherance of interstate commerce."

It also ruled that a state could collect a property tax on raw materials imported by a manufacturer and stored by him for immediate use at a plant within the state.

The stock market was at its strongest on Tuesday, the first day's trading of the week. Volume expanded to 4,340,000 shares, the largest turnover since Jan. 15. The volume of trading in February rose to the highest level for the month since 1930.

* * *

He warned that those who advocated deficit spending were "against healthy growth in America." The President scored advocates of government spending as a stimulant to economic expansion.

Top leaders have suggested a 5 per cent expansion in the economy by more government spending.

A price rise in steel can be averted this year, the President contended, if steel workers' wage demands were kept to a level measured solely by increased production.

On this subject, Roger M. Blough, chairman of the United States Steel Corp., said recently that a strong inflationary threat was posed by the wage increase the United Steelworkers had said they would seek this year.

* * *

The union was advertising that it was interested in a "billion-dollar bundle," which it said would benefit the nation with increased sales and profits.

"Why not spread it around to the nation's 65,000,000 gainfully employed," said Blough, "and let's go on a real inflationary bender while we're at it?"

The Steelworkers Union did not take Blough's remarks in passing. On Friday David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers, said the union would ask for an extended work leave for members, including a three months vacation with pay every five years. He added this might be a major objective in the union's contract discussion this year.

Meanwhile, orders for steel are soaring, partly in anticipation of labor difficulties.

Automobile manufacturers and other big users of steel are competing for supplies. Output a week ago rose to a new high point, within striking distance of the production record of 2,525,000 tons turned out in the week of Dec. 17, 1956.

The estimate of operations for this week was 87.6 per cent of capacity, the highest rate since the week of Feb. 18, 1957, when the rate was 97.8 per cent.

28 Pct. Rise For Renault

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Renault of France reported boosting its 1958 vehicle production 28 per cent over last year to an all-time record with exports jumping 46 per cent.

The sixth largest car producer in the world manufactured 367,673 automobiles, 41,512 trucks, and 21,551 farm tractors for a total of 430,736 vehicles, compared with 317,443 in 1957.

Farouk? He's Just a Joe

MILAN, Italy —(UPI) — Ex-King Farouk of Egypt has started the second round of a battle against the "Farouk chocolate."

The portly exiled monarch lost the first round some time ago when a civil tribunal ruled that an Italian firm in nearby Lodi had a full right to call a brand of chocolate "Farouk."

The ex-sovereign had asked the court to order the name changed.

The company argued that Farouk was "just another name" as common in the middle east as Joe in the West.

Farouk did not give up. His lawyers have appealed the ruling to a civil court of appeal in Milan.

Expansion Planned By City Gas Co.

A five-million-dollar expansion program has been announced by City Gas Co., which serves 15,000 customers between Kendall and Hollywood.

The company plans to extend its 500 miles of pipeline into recently-developed areas in Dade and Broward Counties, and to boost its gas output, General Manager S. W. Langer said.

City Gas, the largest independently owned pipeline system in the U.S., will require five years to complete the expansion program, Langer said.

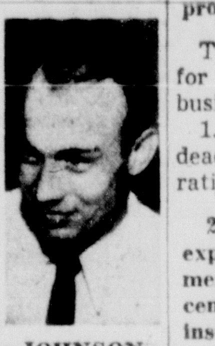
New Miami Theme:

Buddy, Can You Borrow a Dime?

By STAN JOHNSON
Herald Business Writer

Small investors are being attracted to the commercial finance field in Miami by the lure of interest rates which can go as high as 30 per cent.



JOHNSON

So fierce is the competition for higher interest rates that some factors and financiers report they are running short of borrowers.

A banker says it's not uncommon these days for one of the area's august financial institutions to pay a commission to someone who brings in a reputable and well-secured borrower.

New factoring and financing firms are opening ofifces here to take advantage of an apparently unlimited supply of investment money which comes from retired people living along the Gold Coast.

The lenders come in all varieties. They may be pensioners with a few thousand dollars to invest or wealthy capitalists with millions.

In each case, they are people who want a larger return on their money than can be obtained from annuities, savings accounts, stocks, bonds or first mortgages.

* * *

Small investors can easily get interest rates of from 7 to 15 per cent for loans to commercial borrowers.

On short-term contracts loans, which are not covered by the state's 15 per cent limit on simple interest, a rate of 2 per cent per month is not unusual. That can add up to 30 per cent a year when so-called "loading charges" are included.

The upsurge in factoring and financing has been helped by the growth of Miami's manufacturing industries, the professionals say.

Two other reasons are given for the growth of the financing business:

1. Greater Miami has fewer deadbeats and a better credit rating than it used to have.

2. Banks, which might be expected to handle most commercial loans, have been concentrating on more profitable installment loans.

* * *

Herbert Gruber, president of General Capital Inc., one of Miami's most successful factoring firms, says the Gold Coast's improved credit standing is attracting large amounts of northern capital, too.

His firm bought $30,855,394 worth of accounts receivable last year, nine million dollars more than it bought the year before. It also has begun financing imports and exports.

Although General Capital gets most of its funds from banks and other large lending sources, it also is getting some investment money from the little fellow.

The company has issued and sold almost one milion dollars of 7 per cent preferred stock, and $750,000 of 8 per cent debentures.

One of the newest financing firms is Cantor-Robbins-Rudolph Corp., established by J. A. Cantor, Robert M. Robbins and Sidney J. Rudolph.

Rudolph said his company will act as broker in arranging loans to Florida businesses and industries. The firm is South Florida correspondent for Joseph Talcott Inc., a large New York factoring company.

"We're not interested in small investors," said Rudolph. "Our lenders are people with large amounts of investment capital."

* * *

Two firms which are interested in small investors are J. P. Lord, Inc. and Inter-City Finance Corp. They offer to pay one per cent per month, or 12 per cent per year, for loans of $1,000 or more.

The lenders get promissory notes in exchange for their money.

Jerry Musin, president of J. P. Lord, said his company uses the borrowed funds to buy into going businesses which it hopes will yield large capital gains.

Present investments include a cemetery, a couple of leased filling stations, apartment houses and a small chain of drive-in hamburger stands.

Because of restrictions imposed by Florida laws, these corporate borrowers must repay their loans within a year.

No Inflation For Dresses

TALLAHASSEE —(UPI)— A fashion day speaker at Florida State University said women's clothing has the least inflated prices of practically anything on the market.

Miss Ruth Jackendoff, New York, director of the Department of Economics and Statistics of the Wool Bureau, said clothing prices have increased least of all compared with the consumer price index.

She said men's clothing is about eight per cent higher than a decade ago, and women's clothes cost about the same as they did in 1948.

Southern Study

NEW YORK —(UPI)— The Ford Foundation said it has made a $250,000 grant to Duke University for an economic study of problems involved in accelerating the growth of the low-income southern states.

Saving Bond Purchases Spurt Here

Savings bond purchases in January spurted to the highest levels in three years in Dade County, South Florida and the state, H. Hood Bassett, chairman of the Dade County Savings Bonds Committee, announced.

Citing Federal Reserve branch figures, Bassett said investments in the small denomination Series E and H savings bonds in Dade County alone amounted to more than $1,538,000, a 64 per cent jump over December, 1958, and a 24.9 per cent increase above January, 1958.

In South Florida, savings bonds purchases during January gained 356 per cent in Collier County, 219 per cent in Martin County, 180 per cent in St. Lucie County and 138 per cent in Hendry County. In Central Florida, large counties showing substantial gains included Volusia, up 57.9 per cent and Orange (Orlando), up 42.8 per cent.

Overall sectional gains for January were: South Florida with a $2,919,000 total, up 36 per cent; Central Florida with $3,381,000, up 17.7 per cent; North Florida, $1,300,000 and up 7.4 per cent.

Grand total for the state in January was $8,076,000, a 23.7 per cent gain over January, 1958.

Used Plane Lot a Lively Place

NEW YORK — (UPI) — A used airplane lot advertising liberal trade-in allowances is proving to be a lucrative offshoot of the space age.

Its operator, 31-year-old Frederick B. Ayer, however, hardly fits the description of the grounded second-hand car dealer. His operations and plans are considerably loftier.

Ayer, who quit Harvard at 18 "from boredom," deals in a wide variety of piston-engine aircraft from light two-seaters to four-engine commerical transports.

The rangy and suave executive said he has closed two deals totaling $7,500,000 for 30 American Airlines' Convair 240s for resale to domestic "feeder" lines, foreign airlines and for conversion to executive transports.

Ayer said the price tag on these Convairs for sale to airlines is $250,000 while those refurbished for executive use run to $385,000.

The air-borne executive suites sport couches that convert into beds, a board room, VIP chairs and "two inch" carpeting.

He said a big potential market for the company that bears his name exists in South America, where local airlines are eager to buy tuned-up used planes. However, Ayer conceded he has run into some trouble in arranging financing with Latin American governments.

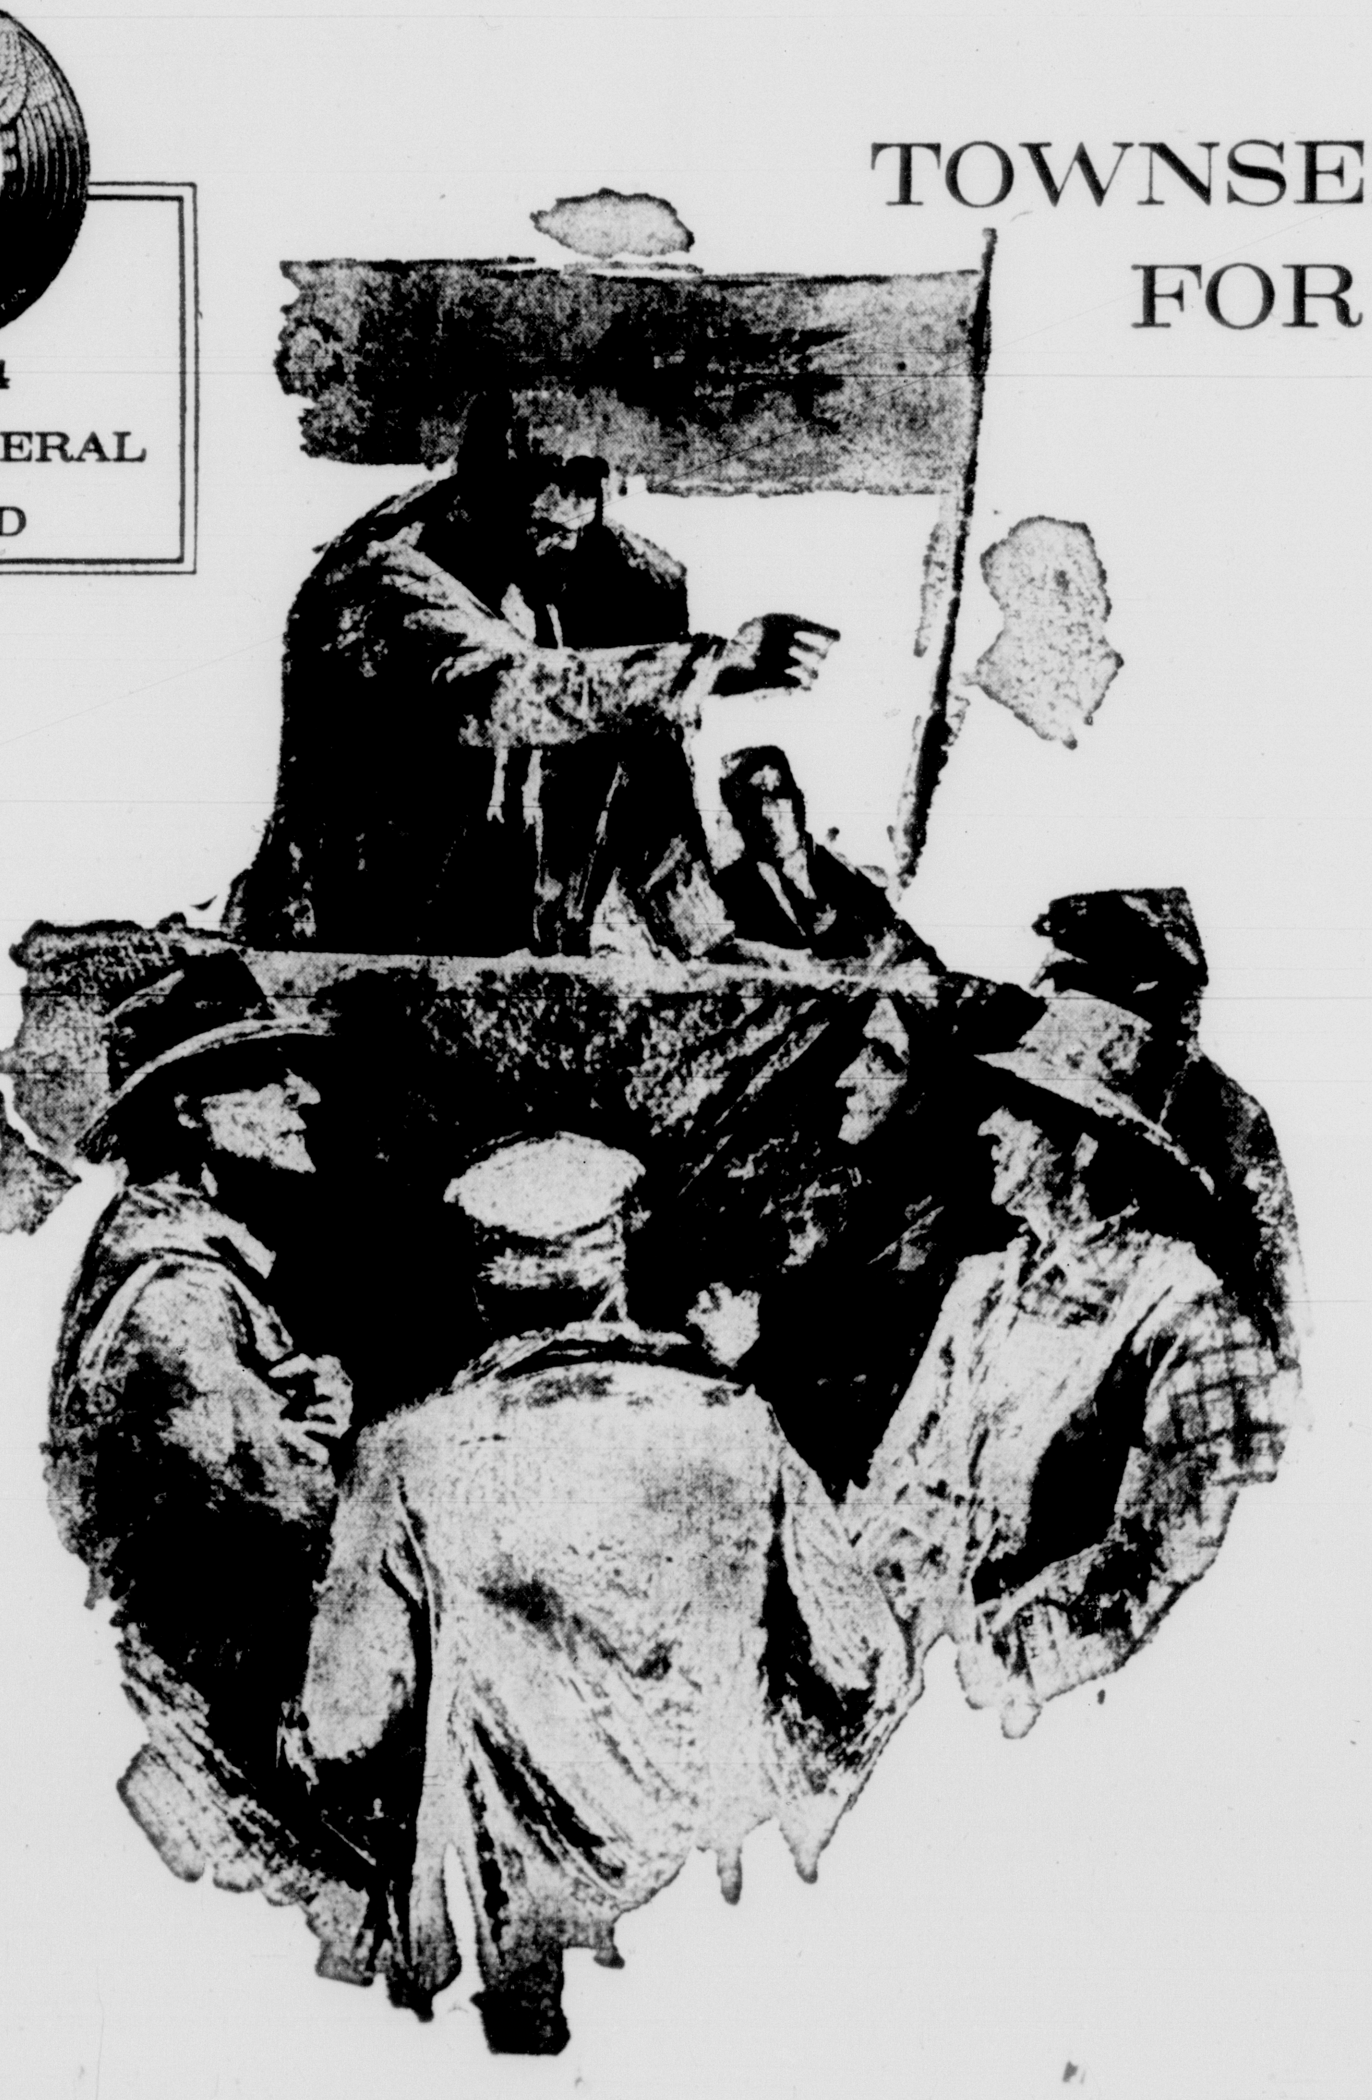
TOWNSEND CRUSADED FOR $200 A MONTH


1934 was a critical year in the Great Depression. While President Roosevelt battled with the nation's economic problems, many starry-eyed visionaries peddled their special panaceas guaranteed to cure the country's financial ills.
Out in California, Dr. Francis E. Townsend was making headlines, crusading for the Townsend Plan. His idea was for the government to give $200 a month to everyone 60 years old or over... provided the person spent the money within 30 days and thus kept it in circulation.
Townsend 'Share-Our-Wealth' Clubs sprung up like mushrooms. More than a thousand were organized in 1934. Newspapers editorialized; congressmen were flooded with mail; elderly citizens clamored to climb aboard the Townsend bandwagon. The Townsend influence gradually waned after Congress enacted in 1935 the Social Security Act with its old age benefits based on earnings before the age of 65.
In the year that the pros and cons of social security were hotly debated, Chase opened its doors on Miami Beach. It was in 1934. Dollars were scarce and some people said the time was not ripe for creating a new financial institution. But the founders knew that genuine security is built by men and women who plan their future on the fundamental principles of thrift and personal independence. They also knew that they were founding an association not for a day, but for all time.
Chase Federal grew . . . branched out . . . has provided upward of 124 million dollars in home loans. Our faith in Greater Miami and our achievements over the years lead us to look ahead to a future filled with promise, continued progress and growth.

A White Elephant Takes Color, Bids For Convention $$

By JAMES RUSSELL
Herald Business Editor

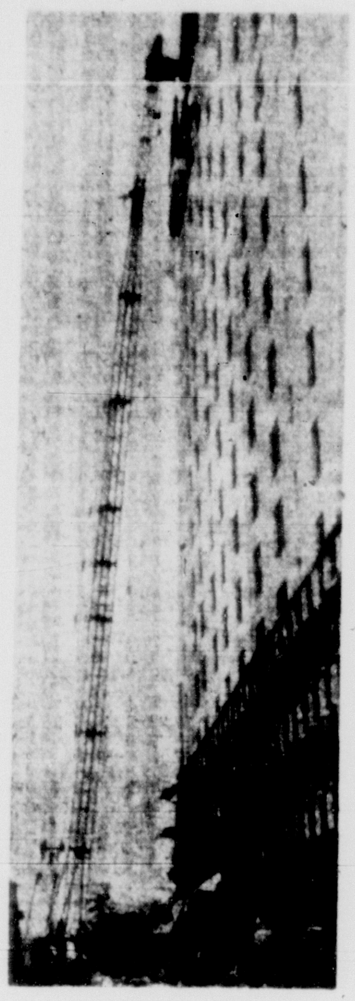
That's R. L. (Bob) Othling's theory and he's betting a three-million-dollar hotel renovation job on it.



The Everglades
. . . with 170-foot crane

Othling is vice president and general manager of the Everglades, which a short while ago was regarded as one of downtown Miami's biggest white elephants.

The hotel is now undergoing extensive and expensive changes intended to make it a prime target of convention-goers from all over the nation.

Statistics show what a big business conventioning has become in recent years. Last year, more than 10 million delegates went to 20,000 conventions throughout the U.S. and spent one and a quarter billion dollars while attending.

"To get conventions," says Othling, "you need to have everything the delegates need under one roof."

The old Evergaldes had little more than rooms, baths and a restaurant under its roof. But after the big renovation is completed in a month or two, it will have a big convention hall seating 2,000, eight other meeting rooms, parking facilities, four cocktail lounges four restaurants including a supper club, and a rooftop swimming pool 18 stories up.

Instead of waiting for conventions to come to the hotel, the hotel is going after them A sales team will be at work every day of the year trying to lure conventions to the Everglades.

This isn't a new idea at all but it's been successful for others. The Americana Hotel in Bal Harbour keeps a full-time 26-man sales force scouting the nation for convention business.

The result: The Americana in 1958 was the scene of 150 conventions including the National Governors Conference and the Investment Bankers Association. It has 50 million dollars worth of convention business on its books through 1965.

"In this age of jet air travel," Othling says, "Miami is as close as any other American city for convention-goers."

Vaughan B. Connelly bought the Everglades in 1957 for two million dollars, then borrowed money from Jimmy Hoffa's Teamsters Union to help make up the three million being poured into renovation work.

When the job is finished, the hotel isn't going to look a bit like it did a year or so ago — either inside or out.

The guests will be different, too. In recent years the hotel has catered largely to permanent and semi-permanent readients.

Now, Othling hopes, the place will be constantly filled with Elks, Lions, professional societies, labor unions — any big outfit having a convention.

In 1958: $300 Million in Mowers

Grass Cutters Take Root

NEW YORK — (UPI) — The lawn mower industry is cashing in on suburbia's pride in the green patch.

A record $300 million in grass cutters — from push models to the effortless gas-powered rotary — were moved into garden sheds across the nation last year.

This is more than a 240 per cent increase from sales of just under $90 million in 1950, notes William H. Nolan, marketing executive for Moto-Mower Inc., one of the nation's top producers in the field.

Twenty years ago the industry was a middling enterprise with scant growth potentials. Today its mighty sales gyrations are giving makers their most optimistic outlook in many years.

Nolan attributed this resurgence to several factors. The exodus to suburbia shortly after the war started demand ballooning, he said.

"Over the years increases in personal incomes, leisure time and interest in yard care did their bit to sharpen the industry's sales ascent even further," he added.

This year sales are expected to rise another 4.9 per cent to a record 3,750,000 units from 3,635,000 in 1958.

Nolan estimates there are some 15 million mowers in use today and that another six million would saturate the market. However, he added replacement demand is fast enough in this field to "keep our sales charts humming."

He said 70 per cent of the people who bought mowers last year were those who previously owned one. The influx of first owners is still "predictably steady," he added.

Ten years ago, Nolan noted, the industry consisted of 30 to 40 manufacturers. Today some 300 firms are turning out mowers, and the list keeps growing, he said.

Headed for Earning Gains of 40% to 180% in 1959

ONE of the best profit-making steps you can take is to invest in companies headed for sharply higher earnings. Although total corporate earnings in 1959 are expected to rise about 20% above 1958, selected companies are expected to do much better. The still-undervalued stocks of these higher-earnings companies are likely to be the stand-out market performers over the months ahead.

In a timely Research Report, UNITED forecasts profits for 52 Higher-Earnings Companies and especially selects 7 stocks to buy now for 1959 investment profits.

7 Selected as Best Buys Now

Here are specific recommendations, carefully appraised on a price and value basis, where product prospects, sales trends, and operating margins point to substantial earnings gains in 1959. Prices of these 7 stocks range from 28 to 52. One especially attractive issue is still selling 48% below its 1957 high. Earnings in 1959 are expected to reach $2.75 a share, compared with the loss reported in 1958. Early resumption of cash dividends is expected on this $29 stock.

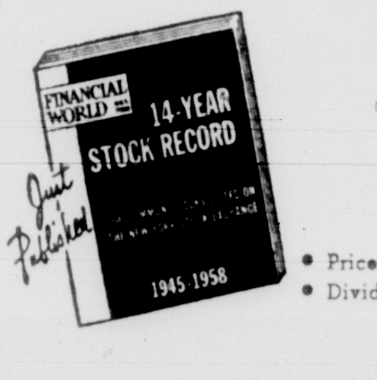
INVESTOR'S 1945-1958 STOCK RECORD
for Comparing Stock Values

See how each stock fared in poor years as well as good years before you make an investment decision in this market. The best way to judge the present status and value of stocks you own or consider buying is to compare their performances of past years.

You can't determine a stock's current value unless you have its earnings and dividend record of previous years; and you can't compare past current prices with former prices without an accurate record of the hundreds of stock splits over the last fourteen years.

HERE YOU HAVE THE 14-YEAR RECORD of More than 1,000 Active Stocks on the N.Y. Stock Exchange



1945-1958 EACH YEAR'S
• Price Range • Stock Splits
• Dividends • Earnings*

*1958 Earnings as available up to Publication

Nowhere else can you find more quickly, more easily, or at lower cost, each Stock's Per Share Performance Record over 14 years—essential facts and figures you require to invest more wisely, more profitably, particularly in this uncertain period.

THIS BOOK can be indispensable to your investment success in the months ahead.

What's Ahead for STEEL STOCKS?

THE THREAT of a strike hangs heavy over the steel companies. But is this a detriment or a boon? In anticipation of a work stoppage, steel users are building up inventories. The industry's operating rate has climbed above 80% and is still rising. Steel company earnings are likely to reach near-record levels in the first half of 1959. But what of the second half?

Has this profits upsurge already been discounted by the stock market? Or are there still good values left among the steel equities? The latest edition of The Value Line Investment Survey analyzes the current status of the steel industry, with particular reference to the excellent first-half earnings in prospect and the possibility of a strike at mid-year. It concludes that there [illegible] of the steel industry [illegible] can be expected, and where future growth potentialities have not yet been fully reflected in the market place. It selects 4 issues which are especially interesting relative to all other stocks for Probable Market Performance in the Next 12 Months.

A copy of the latest edition of the Value Line Survey, covering the steel stocks as well as leading issues in the Mining and Metal Fabricating industries, will be sent to you at no extra charge under the special offer described below. With this issue before you, you can see at a glance the latest developments affecting each of 26 steel stocks, including The Value Line's Rankings and objective measurements of value for each. If you own or plan to buy any of these stocks, you can help protect your capital in the coming year by taking advantage of Value Line's findings in time.

A Special $5 Introductory Offer*

You are invited to receive, at no extra charge under this special offer, the current 80-page edition of the Value Line Survey with analyses of the Steel, Mining, Non-Ferrous Mining & Fabricating industries. Included are full page Ratings and Reports on 64 leading stocks. Your Stock Market Chance May Come in Next 10 Days!

Here's How To Be Ready for Action

If you are interested in profits—the kind of rewards that come only once in a long, long time, this may be your opportunity. We at DOW THEORY FORECASTS are completely agreed that:

(1) The next 3 months offer splendid profit possibilities for those who plan now for it.

3 NEW STOCKS TO BUY NOW

It is our business to constantly study the performance of hundreds of different issues, and pass this information on to our clients. We have just discovered 3 NEW STOCKS that we think promising enough to add to our recommended lists. Just look at these summaries:

(A) A low priced situation still under $25 and paying nearly 5% dividend.
(B) An outstanding growth situation that may soon reinitiate stock dividend payments.
(C) A stable issue yielding approximately 4% and possessing real appreciation possibilities.

SIMPLY MAIL COUPON BELOW

All 3 are sent to you with appropriate revelation at NO EXTRA COST, along with our 30-Day Trial Subscription to DOW THEORY FORECASTS for only $1. No salesman will call. Your dollar back if not delighted. Simply mail dollar with coupon below and everything will be rushed to you by return mail. Offer open to new trial subscribers only.

31 "CHOICE" STOCKS
Our Stock Service Digest included in 30-Day Trial, gives you the 31 stocks most widely recommended by 14 other advisory services. Also a list of 30 "Low-Priced" stocks.

My Smartest Investment of all was the Five Bucks

From a Barron's reader

Like many other men, I was a hit-or-miss investor—who too often missed. One day I saw a Barron's ad in the paper, and it made sense. So I sent in $5 for a trial subscription.

I remember the first issue I got, because it made me change my mind about a stock I was going to buy.

Since then, every issue of Barron's has given me information on industries and on a number of companies. Barron's tells me how they are doing and where they are going—the information I've got to have to pick good investments instead of lemons.

That's how Barron's has helped me increase my capital. You can't read it without becoming a better judge of investments.

And my smartest investment of all was the five bucks I paid for Barron's itself.

This story shows how Barron's serves its readers. There's no other business or investment publication like it. It is written for the man who makes up his own mind about his own money. It is the only weekly affiliated with Dow Jones, and has full use of Dow Jones' vast, specialized information in serving you.

A trial subscription—17 weeks for only $5—brings you:

Everything you need to know to help you handle your business and investment affairs with greater understanding and foresight . . . the investment implications of current political and economic events . . . the perspective you must have to anticipate trends and grasp profitable investment opportunities.

See how important Barron's can be to you in the eventful weeks ahead. Try it for 17 weeks for $5 (full year $15). Just tear out this ad and send it today with your check for $5; or tell us to bill you. Address: Barron's, 392 Newbury St., Boston 15, Mass.

PARIS—The austerity decreed by the Fifth Republic does not extend to color. In fact, it has the effect of releasing it. By cutting down on elaborate embroideries and beaded effects and esoteric silhouettes, the national austerity program has induced Paris designers to think more about pure color.

With joy they have embraced a beautiful singing coral, a bright intense blue that some call gentian and others "bleau de Chine" (Chinese blue), a Bengal pink from India, a Persian lilac and turquoise. They looked for gold tones in oranges and ripe apricots, and searched the sea for new nuances of green.

The impact this year is in color and in printed fabrics with built-in design. A floral printed dress needs no other decoration, nor does it have to assume startling silhouettes to be noticed. Hence the appearance of beautifully imprinted sheers and taffetas for after 5.

* * *

Who can discourage a flower in Spring?

Guy Laroche has a short evening dress of green taffeta imprinted with big, full-blown orange roses. It was bought by the most exclusive store in New York, which means that it is going to move in social circles in America. Pierre Cardin's flower-printed evening coats are highlights of his collection.

Soft floral-printed mousselines are everywhere. Dior shows them with skirts short, full and round, with layers of the mousseline curled back like heads of cabbage upside down.

* * *

And of course there is never a month or a year that pure black isn't being dreamed of and toiled over in the workrooms of the Paris dressmakers. Imagine Balenciaga not creating in black, or Castillo, or Yves Saint-Laurent, or Chanel.

* * *

Shoulder straps, when they exist this year, are usually as narrow as baby ribbon. One white evening dress at Dior is held up with white satin ribbon exactly like lingerie straps. Cardin uses none, preferring a draped effect around the shoulders. The bateau neckline and the general fondness for bows on the shoulders and for berthas tend to eliminate shoulder straps.

Nina Ricci's designer, Jean Francois Crahay, is the most ardent exponent of the covered-shoulder look. His fichus envelop the figure from elbow to ears and are made firmly a part of the dress by passing through a slot in the wide belt.

Thrift Shops Are Good Moneymakers

By ELEANOR DIXON
Herald Club Editor

EVEN WEDDING GOWNS are sold at local thrift shops. Not every day, but once in a while a gown like this one (victim of a broken romance) turns up in a thrift shop window. So do fur capes and coats, sets of encyclopedias and other fascinating bits of merchandise.

It's possible to buy a man's cord suit for $2 or a mink cape for $125 if you know where to shop and don't mind second hand clothes.

These treasures can be found in four local thrift shops run by women's organizations to raise money for welfare projects:

Women's Corps of the Cancer Institute at Miami's Budget Spot at 3035 NW 7th Ave.
This and That Shop of the Women's Fellowship of Plymouth Congregational Church, at 3155 Commodore Plaza, Coconut Grove.

Strangely enough, some thrift shop customers are people who could afford to buy new clothes.

"Our wealthy customers say they can get a $100 dress here for $10, so why should they buy a $25 dress in a regular store," says Nora Nark, the kindly storekeeper of National Council of Jewish Women's thrift shop.

One woman, who was making a trip to Russia, bought a fur coat there. "I guess she figured she wouldn't need the coat in Miami, so why spend a lot of money?" said a council spokesman.

"We have customers who buy their wardrobes here for vacation trips," says Mrs. Frances Bennett who has managed the Junior League shop for 26 years. "They feel it's a challenge to fix up a dress or suit."

The cancer group's store has customers who buy clothes and household goods to give to the needy.

* * *

MOST THRIFT SHOP customers, though, are poor people who need clothes at low, low prices. Cotton blouses for 35 cents, shoes for less than a dollar.

"Families with four and five children can outfit their children very nicely for $10," says Mrs. Nark. "And you can't measure the happiness that goes into their homes when the children feel well dressed."

Mrs. Bennett knows of one Negro family with 12 children who grew up on thrift shop clothes.

You see all kinds of people in the shops. The cancer group shop's clientele is mostly Spanish speaking people.

In the Junior League shop, college girls try on the cocktail dresses and evening gowns in the better dress room, called the "French salon." Here you find a lace evening gown for $12, a peau de soie cocktail dress for $35 and an assortment of furs.

"We sold a mink cape last week for $125 and now we have some lovely Russian sables," says Mrs. Bennett.

"We never have enough household goods," is the wail of all store managers. "People will discard an old dress but they hang on to a toaster 'til it's worn out."

* * *

SALES TECHNIQUES are much the same — customers can browse all they like, there's no pressure to buy. The word gets around about new merchandise and the regulars come in every day.

The shops are operated in the same way. Each sponsoring club has a paid person on duty and volunteers take care of sorting merchandise and marking prices.

Yearly profits from the shops amount to about $10,000 for the Junior League's shop and $6,000 apiece yearly for the cancer group and the Jewish women's shop.

Merchandise is collected through the members and their friends.

Council of Jewish Women has a Carton Day party each year (it's March 20 this year, in the Saxony Hotel) to honor the donors. Each guest gets a party ticket for a carton of merchandise for the shop and each of the seven divisions of the Greater Miami Section, National Council of Jewish Women, has a chairman in charge of picking up members' merchandise.

The Junior League has a coffee where admission is a bag full of merchandise. Women's Fellowship of Plymouth Congregational Church sends out monthly appeals for merchandise in its news letter.

Money for cancer research comes from the Budget Spot. A medical missionary in Southern Rhodesia, Africa, is supported by the churchwomen's store, as well as church school scholarships and mission needs.

Senior citizens, blind children and new Americans are helped through the Council of Jewish Women's shop.

Junior League uses its money for the Friendly Visitor program for senior citizens, co-sponsored by Welfare Planning Council; for the Museum of Science and Natural History; and for an educational television program for elementary school children.

'Mother' Julia Tuttle To Be Honored

Julia Tuttle
. . . Miami's 'mother'

Miami's "mother" — the late Mrs. Julia Tuttle — will be honored by the Miami Woman's Club at a forum luncheon Tuesday in the clubhouse, 1737 N. Bayshore Dr.

Mrs. T. T. Stevens, a past president of the club, was named chairman of the program when she protested last summer that Mrs. Tuttle hadn't been given proper tribute.

On Tuesday, R. B. Gautier will describe the life of Mrs. Tuttle who first came to Miami in 1873 and later settled her two children and household goods in the officers' headquarters of Old Fort Dallas.

She persuaded Henry Flagler to extend the FEC railroad to Miami and gave him 100 acres for a railroad terminal and hotel.

Mr. Gautier is a former state senator and a native Miamian. Honor guests at the luncheon will be the grandsons of Mrs. Tuttle — Harry Tuttle and Leonard Tuttle, and their wives.

Dr. Ronald Wilson, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church, will give the invocation and a male quartet from Miami Edison High will sing. Mayor Robert King High also will participate.

LIVING IN LAOS

They Soaked Vegetables in Disinfectant

By HELEN WELLS

Herald Society Editor

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE to spend 18 months in the Kingdom of Laos, Shangri La of French Indo-China? Barbara and Bob Frink and their 2½ year old missy, Duana Andrea, did just that and found it a real adventure.

Barbara Walker

They came home a few weeks ago and are staying with Barbara's parents, the F. A. Walkers at their home on SW 42nd St. until they find a home of their own.

The brown-eyed, dark-haired baby is a charmer in four languages. She speaks and understands French as well as she does English and also knows a few phrases in Laos-ise and Thailand-ise.

Bob Frink headed a group of Radar and Associates engineers who were making a survey of Laos prior to mapping out a highway system. This will open up the remote and backward country to the outside world as well as to its own people.

At the moment the only transportation in Laos is the airplane. The country's Mekong River is navigable in spots but disappears almost completely in places in the dry season. The highway job is being done for Laos with financing by the International Cooperation Administration. Training native technicians is an important part of the job.

PERSON TO PERSON

Duana was only ten months old when the Frinks set out for Laos. They had never been to the Orient before and they found living conditions difficult to say the least.

For instance, there were three kinds of electricity, none sufficient to heat up a toaster without a booster. Vegetables had to be soaked in chlorinated water before cooking; water boiled and filtered for drinking and for bathing Miss Duana.

Laos is surrounded on two sides by communist countries, namely, China and Vietnam. The Japanese occupied it during World War II. The Frinks lived in the modern capital, Vientiane, which is practically on the opposite side of the world from Miami.

The Frinks have brought back hundreds of color slides and movies from Laos, plus all sorts of curios including beautiful brass candlesticks and other objects of native craftmanship.

Bit of History

HERE TO DELVE into the naval and maritime records of the Revolutionary War was Rear Adm. E. M. Eller of Washington, director of Naval History. While here he checked with the Historical Association of Southern Florida. And did you know that the territory of what is now Florida was Loyalist during the Revolution?

Work, But Fun

"IT TAKES A LOT OF WORK . . ." says Irene Clifton. She was speaking of the huge house in Chicago, her family's old home, which she and Orrin bought from the estate.

Irene is practically commuting between Miami Beach and their home on Sunset Island I and the Windy City. She's tearing out walls, re-modeling and having a time, but she says the house will be beautiful when finished.

Red and White Theme

SPECTACULAR DECOR at the University of Miami Citizens Board-Trustees dinner at the Americana on March 11 will be red and white. The Hotel is sending to New York for red tablecloths and napkins. With these there'll be white flowers and tapers, white menus embossed with the gold seal of the University and gold lettering.

Among hosts are S. D. Weisshuch, attorney who worked with the late Dr. Bowman Ashe, founding president of the University; Dr. and Mrs. John Oliver LaGorce who are entertaining Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor; Judge William E. Walsh, first president of what was then called the board of regents, and Mrs. Walsh.

Party for the Races

GULFSTREAM Track-By-The-Sea, is dusting off its moth boats, getting out its Turf club and polishing up its boxes for its opening on Wednesday.

Maryanne Donn

Pretty Maryanne Donn, wife of Gulfstream v.p. Jimmy Donn Jr., is entertaining at a luncheon party in the Turf Club and box party after luncheon. Laura and Fred Hooper are expecting six luncheon and box guests.

Myrtle and Tony Gocking are having a small luncheon and box party. Which reminds . . . Myrtle has a real problem . . . or is it? She is allergic to silk, so is having to buy a new wardrobe of linen and cotton!

Helen and Al DeCozen, Turf Club members, are racing their Short Brook Farms (New Jersey) horses and are entering their Miracle Moose for the $100,000 Florida Derby on April 4th.

Miracle Moose's sire, Crafty Admiral, won the hundred-grand Gulfstream Handicap, not once, but twice, something no other racer has ever done. So watch out for Miracle Moose.

17 New Members Chosen

University Club, a downtown luncheon club for degree-holding businessmen, recently extended membership to 17 additional Miami and Coral Gables residents.

They are James L. Armstrong, Ben Battle, Jr., David N. Blount, Alfred B. Carter, A. W. Corbett, David C. Eldredge, Vincent T. Hall, Jack L. Meyer, John W. Watson, William S. Wightman and Thomas D. Wood of Miami.

Zionist Leader Is a Visitor

Mrs. Ezra Shapiro, national chairman of constitution and by-laws of Hadassah, will be in Dade County this week to meet with the Miami and Miami Beach Chapters of Hadassah, the Women's Zionist Organization of America.

Mrs. Shapiro

Mrs. Shapiro comes from Cleveland and is a former national vice president of Hadassah. She is active in several Jewish organizations, including the Bureau of Jewish Education and State of Israel Bonds, and has attended five World Zionist Congresses as a Hadassah delegate.

Members of Miami Chapter will hear Mrs. Shapiro speak at 1 p.m. Monday in the Carpenters' Hall, 151 NW 37th Ave. at a "Prelude to Spring" program.

Her topic will be the Hadassah Medical Organization. Other features of the program are a skit, "Federation Presents," and a ceremony honoring life members. Mrs. George A. Simon is chairman.

Mrs. Shapiro will speak to members of the Miami Beach Chapter at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Algiers Hotel on Youth Aliyah—the movement to rehabilitate refugee children in Israel.

Her talk will follow a 10 a.m. board meeting and a noon brunch, and this portion of the program is open to the public. There also will be a musical program.

New Residents Organize a Club

Mrs. William L. Wagener, 242 Camilo, Coral Gables, is the first president of the newly organized Hi-Neighbor Club. Mrs. R. E. Bond, 2615 Cardena, is the secretary.

The club was organized among new residents of Coral Gables by Mrs. Maire C. Johnson, 234 Camilo Ave., and has 48 charter members.

FRENCH AMBASSADOR'S PARTY 'MANIFIQUE'

Humphrey Cuts a Mean Rug

Senator Hubert Humphrey Talks with his Hands

. . . in conversation with Mme. Herve Alphand

WASHINGTON, D.C.

DEAR HERALD READERS:

"Ooh-la-la!" said U.S. VIPs at the French Embassy the other night. "C'est magnifique!"

Ambassador Herve Alphand and his beauteous Nicole tossed a dinner so studded with officialdom it's a wonder it didn't die of stuffiness midst the stifled yawns of its so important guests.

But that prim and presumptuous party piffle known as protocol that bamboozles most hosts into seating the same high rank next to the same old high rank — was foiled for once . . . The rank was scattered among four tables for 12 and seated next to the press and other peppier types.

But what really injected the champagne into the party was the arrival of a hot, three-piece combo which began beating out the rhythms during dinner.

Every senator there — Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, Albert Gore of Tennessee and John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky — was on the floor pronto . . . Said Senator Cooper, "Hubert is the best dancer among the presidential candidates."

Believe me, Senator Humphrey, who has always been noted for his fast brainwork instead of his footwork, can really cut a rug! He is shot with rhythm, and can twirl to any kind of music . . .

For your info, he promised to give a dance if he gets into the White House. There hasn't been one there now for more than six years.

Central Intelligence Boss Allen Dulles answered the call of the dance music, so did the State Department's brainy trouble-shooter Bob Murphy . . . Towering Lord Hood of the British Embassy swept Mrs. Albert Gore onto the floor, and Deputy Secretary of Defense Donald Quarles sashayed with the Secretary of the Treasury's wife Ollie Anderson.

All this was going on during munching of a delectable dinner and gazing at such chef-d'oeuvres on the wall as Matisse and Vlaminck paintings . . . The chef d'oeuvre of the menu was the first course —"Crepes aux fruits de mer Jeannette."

I don't know who Jeannette is, but the crepes were as thin as crepes Suzette only this time they were wrapped around filet of sole and covered with a marvelous cream sauce.

The French Embassy kitchen is so well equipped that, when it was discovered Mrs. Wiley Buchanan was celebrating her birthday that night, an order was quickly given, and 45 minutes later a freshly baked cake inscribed "Joyeux Anniversaire" was brought in!

Gayest person there was the host who had a whirl on the dance floor, entertained his guests with amusing impersonations, and gave a solo vocal rendition of "La Mer" without losing one iota of ambassadorial dignity.

Hot News in Cool Office

ADMIRAL Lewis Strauss, whose confirmation as secretary of commerce was a hot topic this week, keeps the coolest office in Washington . . . I was invited down there to have lunch with the former very controversial boss of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Inside the beautiful paneled office the temperature was about 55 degrees! There was a small fire in the fireplace, but it was offset by a wide open window on the coldest day of the year. The Secretary doesn't like steam heat, does better work in chilly surroundings, he said.

We had a charming lunch, by the fire fortunately!

Admiral Strauss said he quit the AEC "to give it a surcease from sorrow," and it worked. After he removed himself as a target, the AEC had a six months "honeymoon" under John McCone.

Does he think the AEC is being well run now? He does. After all, he picked each of the commissioners himself, and also the chairman.

Ceylonese Rock 'n' Roll

VICE PRESIDENT and Mrs. Nixon squeezed into the Embassy of Ceylon with about 1,000 other people for the Buddhist wedding of Ambassador Gunewardene's daughter Irangani to Dr. Neville Rajapaksa.

Not all of the thousand were meant to be there for the ceremony, just the reception, but a USIA hookup for broadcast purposes blew the fuses and all the lights went out, delaying the ceremony for about 45 minutes.

It was so dark where the Nixons were waiting that Gwen Cafritz congratulated the wrong woman — Lady Corea, wife of the Ceylonese Ambassador to the U.N. — on the acquisition of a new son-in-law . . . And Lady Corea wears two diamonds in her nose.

Later, when the hordes cleared out, some of the younger embassy types did a Ceylonese rock 'n' roll, only they didn't call it that. . . We think we know all about the beat-feet department, but you should have seen the snappy swinging and stepping of this number the Ceylonese learned from the Portuguese 500 years ago!

Flower Arrangements With Religious Theme To Be Demonstrated

Twelve flower arrangements with a religious theme will be made by Mrs. Ruth E. Mullins, DeLand, at a Wednesday meeting of Shenadoah Garden Club.

Mrs. Mullins is the author of six lectures on Biblical quotations interpreted by flower arrangements, to be published in book form.

This demonstration, starts with the annunciation and ends with the resurrection.

She will begin her program at 10:30 a.m. in the home of Mrs. Edward J. Allen, 851 NW 14th Ct. This is Mrs. Mullins' first appearance in Miami. She is a member of the Florida Federation of Garden Clubs state board and past president of the St. Lucie County Federation of Garden Clubs.

Song and Dance For Anniversary

Italian American Club will celebrate its 29th anniversary at a 7 p.m. dinner dance Saturday in the Biscayne Terrace Hotel.

Mayor Robert King High will be guest of honor and Mrs. Irene Patti Swartz will sing. Mrs. Betty Nuta is ticket and reservation chairman.

Short Cut Saves Housewife Miles

ST. PAUL, Minn. —(UPI) — A housewife with four beds to make every day can save more than 11 miles a year if she adopts an improved method of bed-making.

Mrs. Marian Melrose, of the University of Minnesota, Extension Service, pointed out that 40 feet of walking can be saved by starting at the head of the bed, completing one side, then going across to the other side and working from the bottom to the top of the bed.

Sport of Kings Has Its Queens, Too

A 'sure-thing' bet at Gulfstream Park's opening Wednesday is that the racing world is not just a man's world. It's becoming a woman's world too. Women are not just spectators in the Sport of Kings, but are taking active roles behind the scenes

SALLY MERRILL puts Capeador through his paces in early morning workout at Gulfstream Park. Sally often works three horses a day, a stint some exercise boys find arduous.

The once-masculine Turf World of thrills and spills has been invaded by women. These women have carved unusual careers for themselves in the behind-the-scenes phases of thoroughbred racing.

Sally Merrill

Take Sally Brown Merrill, for instance. One of the few licensed women trainers in the country, petite Sally has had her share of thrills, and spills. Her first summer as an exercise boy, in New Jersey, she took a spill that caused a broken collarbone and ribs and some torn ligaments.

Sally, who weighs only 105 pounds, can laugh now at the uphill battle she fought to convince trainers that she could handle their expensive, headstrong race horses, most of which weigh about 1,200 pounds.

She spent four years as a summertime "exercise boy" and wintertime student at Duke University. Upon graduation from Duke, she taught English for a while, but remembering the thrill of flashing hoofs pounding down the homestretch, she decided to teach young horses instead of human beings.

She's now married to Frank Merrill, the nation's leading trainer in 1958 (171 winners) and several times leader at Gulfstream Park. The Merrill household includes a nursemaid for year-old daughter Kimberly who is still sleeping soundly when her parents leave for the race-course each dawning.

A Winner On Canvas

ARTIST ANN COLLINS, known nationally for her portraits of thoroughbreds, rode Indian ponies, bareback, until she was 16. Ann grew up on the Trinchia Grant, a 287,000-acre expanse in Colorado inhabited except for the Collins family only by Taos-Pueblo Indians, and a roaming herd of 250 buffalo. Mr. Collins managed the vast timber tracts on the Grant and Ann's mother taught in the Indian school.

After receiving a Fine Arts degree at Syracuse University, Ann headed straightway for Saratoga and her first commission from a famous sportsman, the late Col. E. R. Bradley.

Since then Ann has captured on canvas the beauty and grace of many of the greatest racers of our time. The list includes the mighty Citation, Discovery, Tom Fool and Needles, winner of the 1956 Florida Derby.

Her favorite commission was to paint Wilwyn, the English horse which came to the States and won the International. She went abroad to paint him at his owner's stud farm.

Miss Collins recently completed a portrait of the speedy Chit Chat which is nominated for Wednesday's Armed Handicap at Gulfstream. She is now working on a study of Clem, a leading contender for the $100,000 Gulfstream Park Handicap which will be run March 21.

Her 'Thoroughbred' -- A Sewing Machine

IN GULFSTREAM'S STABLE AREA there's a little trailer with a large sign—"Racing Colors." Inside, there are so many bolts of rainbow-hued satin one wonders how petite "Mom" Schuling manages to find room for her almost perpetual-motion sewing machine.

"Mom" always has a smile and words of encouragement for youngsters starting as jockeys. She never mentions the hazards of a saddlesmith's career, though she knows them too well.

But "Mom" still sees in her memory a crumpled mass, clothed in vivid silks which she made, lying in the homestretch of an Ohio race course. That's where a forest of flying hoofs wrote "finis" to another eager lad's burgeoning career — it was a lad named Schuling.

* * *

Hoof Prints And Pictures

RESOURCEFUL Miamian Miriam Jones parlayed a love of racing and her ceramic hobby into a unique product sold nationally. Miriam makes colorful ceramic ashtrays from real-life clay imprints of the hoofs of famous racers such as Nashua, Swaps and Needles.

Another clever gal is tiny Jean Edwards. Jeannie trains her camera lens on many a sweaty, prancing thoroughbred in the winner's circle. She enters that sancrosanct area proudly wearing an Official Press Photographer badge — the only girl at race tracks to rate one.

SEAMSTRESS 'Mom' Schuling designs and makes the meticulously-tailored satin jackets that the jockeys wear. There is no duplication in the racing silks which are registered.

ARTIST Ann Collins puts finishing touches on one of her thoroughbred paintings. Ann prepares preliminary sketches of her subjects in half-hour sessions at the stables. As horses in training are all keyed up, it's difficult to get them to pose even for a half hour. It takes a number of sessions to complete a portrait.

Five Chapters Arrange ORT Day Celebrations

Five local chapters of Women's American ORT (Organization for Rehabilitation Through Training) will celebrate ORT Day Wednesday.

The organization's aim is to make war refugees self supporting by teaching them trades and skills.

Greater Miami Chapter will see the film, "Mellah," at an 8 p.m. meeting in the Deauville Hotel. Miami Beach Afternoon Chapter has a tea in the home of Mrs. Samuel Rose, 1570 Biarritz Dr. with Mrs. Samuel Pollack, regional vice president, as speaker.

Fashion show and coffee and the film "Eliahu's House," are on the program for North Dade chapter at 8 p.m. in the Golden Gate Motel.

South Miami Chapter has a cocktail party in the home of Mrs. Eugene Fleischer, 5251 SW 64th Ave., with Mrs. Ruth Lazarus as speaker.

Anglers' Club Party Fetes World Fairs

By GWEN HARRISON
Herald Columnist

It's that time of year again . . . Key Largo Anglers' Club members from all over the country will be heading for the club aboard their yachts early this week . . . the club's annual gala officially starts Wednesday and winds up next Sunday with the incoming commodore's morning-after-the-night-before champagne and cocktail party . . . on Saturday night the big costume ball is held . . . this year the theme is World Fairs and the decorations for the club's lawns, generally spectacular, will be that and more . . . they'll be startling . . . incoming commodore this year is Mundy I. Peale of Republic Aviation.

Among the many yachts sailing for the club early this week will be the All Alone which is on charter to Mrs. Edward S. Moore, former owner of the Big Pebble . . . among her guests aboard will be Mr. and Mrs. Niles Trammell . . . aboard their yacht Onika the Benson Fords will have Mr. and Mrs. John Millas and the Edward Strohs, both of Grosse Pointe, Mich. . . . a group of steel biggies will be with H. K. Intemann, president of Union Carbide, aboard his yacht Fan-T-Sea III . . . they are Clark King of Pittsburgh, Logan Johnson of Middletown O., and Edwin Broden of Philadelphia . . . Leslie Edgecomb, Philadelphia steel magnate, will have aboard his yacht Silver Dawn his daughter Helen and guests Mr. and Mrs. William Meinel . . . Charles Gibson of Palm Beach will have four guests with him aboard the yacht Sally Forth . . . Bruce Forbes, of the magazine of the same name, and his wife, will have as their guests aboard the yacht Highlander Dr. and Mrs. Robert Adair of Lorain, O., and the Charles Maynes of Bloomfield Hills, Mich. . . . with the Dan Van Cliefs of Esmont, Va., board the Stormy II will be Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilhelm.

These are just a few of the expected 300 members and guests who will spend the early part of the week competing in tournaments, from tennis and skeet shooting, to bonefish and gulfstream fishing, and attending meetings and each other cocktail parties, winding up in hilarious-to-exotic costumes on Saturday night . . .

Cloth Hats: Popular For Men Who Travel

By BERT BACHARACH

FASHION: The cloth hat, which got a big fashion boost from Rex (My Fair Lady) Harrison, continues to grow in popularity. Handsome, well-groomed Tony Marvin — seen on all the Arthur Godfrey TV shows, and star of his own daily radio program — wears a new porkpie version in a smart pepper-and-salt tweed pattern. It's a fine hat for sportswear and travel, and it is moderately priced.

Popular Cloth Hat
. . . worn by Tony Marvin

HELPFUL HINTS: Throat irritations from too much smoking or smog may be eased by gargling with a half-teaspoon of baking soda in a half glass of water . . . Sometimes year car visor doesn't provide enough shade. You can have an extension by slipping a large manilla envelope (folded to fit and secured by a rubber band) over the unhinged end . . . Good way to get loose hair out of a brush before washing it — use the notched edge of an old safety razor (without the blade, of course).

DRESS TIPS: After taking off a tie, and before putting it on the tiebar, give it a good stretch. That will straighten the resilient lining and it will be in better shape the next day . . . With the lightweight shoes now in vogue, it's more important than ever to use a shoehorn.

'Eve in a Jewelled Eden'

By MARY GOODFELLOW
Herald Columnist

PALM BEACH — Whispers of a bad season were the subversive witch craft hissed out by disappointed realtors and night club owners here. For the weather surpassed any brochure and entertainment this season was confined to behind the high walls of stately mansions and private clubs.

Perhaps we are growing older — for the deliciously lazy days under the orange bright sun by a turquoise pool — the chatter of the evening cocktail — the sumptuous dinners — and a melodious terrace whirl sent us in early retreat to our foam pallet.

We were Eve in a jewelled paradise.

Touching our Aladdin's lamp under the midnight stars we boarded Henry Mercer's yacht "Blue Jacket" and whispered "bon soir" to the century old Salem sailor boy carved on the masthead. At daylight the engines started to churn, and poking our head through the porthole, a passing hungry pelican almost nipped our nose. Florida's golden coastline gradually slipped away 'till the tall while structures looked like a view of ancient Greece on the Aegean Sea.

We showered in the luxurious Italian tiled bathroom with its push-button head (no pumping here) and dressed in fresh shorts, came up the mahogany paneled softly carpeted stairway to the main deck.

The lounge was in pale monotones, and while we were inspecting a plaque of the "Weatherly" (our host's sailing "12" which competed for the America's Cup at Newport last year) a soft-footed steward announced breakfast.

We loved the regal bearing of this handsome woman and the warmth of her blue eyes. Make-up was superfluous on the bronzed skin, and her silvered hair was piled neatly high.

Arriving at Lou Wasey's tight little millionaires' island of Cat Cay, we docked beside Arthur Pew's "Mercury" and from then on in hospitality was spelled with a capital H.

Luncheon by the pool of the Mercers' "Westward Ho" brought forth tanned and relaxed friends. We tardily congratulated Stanley Hope on his appointment as president of N.A.M. (National Assoc. of Manufacturers). Mrs. Hope looked divinely cool in coral linen.

Mrs. Cl[illegible]e Weede (Anaconda Copper) and Mrs. John McCome (Atomic Commission) came in golfing togs.

Sparkling Julie Pew saved our day in a wet suit, by sending her Arthur back to the English Shop to pick up our undelivered red pants. This wonderful couple gave us a bang-up dinner at the club's "Top Side."

* * *

BUZZING-PALM BEACH . . . The Ben Javits celebrated their 33rd wedding anniversary in the garden back of their house — under a striped tent with some 200 well-wishing friends . . . A beaming Ben said it was just as much fun looking forward as backward, and dove-eyed apple-cheeked Lilly looked pretty as a picture . . . At Mrs. Joseph Regenstein's beautiful ocean front mansion we met her house guests, Dr. and Mrs. William C. Menninger.

We tried to appear super sane talking to this great mental health psychiatrist whose foundation at Topeka, Kansas is world-renowned.

At the Palm Beach Towers we dined with Paramount's Barney Balaban who spoke of his industry's cultural exchange with Russian films. We all know the impact that American movies have had in the foreign market, and feel sure the Soviets will benefit in seeing more of our way of life. We were bewitched by singer Julie Wilson's "Witchcraft" and all the men, including Edward Everett Horton, envied Fred Waring as he untwined svelte Judy from her jealous-green boa.

ENGAGED?

Monday Is Story Deadline

Monday noon is the deadline for engagement and wedding stories to be used in the Sunday paper. Information must be in The Herald women's department by MONDAY NOON.

Engagement announcements are printed in SUNDAY papers only. Stories of Weddings that take place on Saturday are printed in the Sunday paper.

For weddings that take place during the week, the stories will be printed the day after the wedding, whenever possible. Deadline for these stories is noon of the day preceding the wedding.

We publish only those weddings for which we receive information and picture before the wedding.

We ask prospective brides to decide whether they wish their engagement or wedding picture published. We print only one picture — whichever you prefer — but will use both engagement and wedding stories.

Celebrity Parade

Recently a few celebrities have been telling us that the scandals in Hollywood are exaggerated, that at heart show people are just like the rest of us, everyday and humdrum. Dick Shawn doesn't think so.

To begin with the American public isn't afraid of notoriety. They rather welcome it. A star with scandal in her background isn't hissed off the screen by any means. On the contrary it generally means bigger box office receipts.

"Then look at the whole setup. A housewife married to a coal miner or to a clerk may have a yearning for another man or a desire to break up her marriage. But she can't board a plane and fly to Palm Beach or the Riviera. She simply hasn't the money.

"So she sticks it out somehow and the average marriage rocks along.

"In Hollywood at the first hint of trouble the star, being a human being, may wish to get out of the whole thing. She can escape to any spot on the globe, it's only a question of where.

"Not always she, of course. Men are just as temperamental. Add to that the fact that stars are generally attractive people or people wouldn't pay to look at them. Physical attraction plus unbounded money and you can understand how easily people run off the rails.

He Had No Talent

THERE DOESN'T SEEM any doubt about Shawn's own marriage to the girl back home in Buffalo, N.Y. Any couple who will travel with three small children under four must be pretty keen to be together.

They're all here while Dick is appearing here at the Coconut Grove Playhouse in the musical "Where's Charley?" which continues through this week.

Dick is the University of Miami boy who left college in his freshman year to take a talent test. Up to then he didn't have any talent, at least so he thought.

Sisterly Kiss Is Bestowed on Adam Shawn, 4 Months
. . . Wendy is 3; older sister Amy is 4

"I was majoring in physical education," says the 6' 1", 190-pound hunk of man. "Theater was furthest from my mind. I was the only one in a class of 15 to fail in public speaking. Scared to get up before people."

Now he speaks to 40 million or more via television, has played New York theaters, has appeared in night clubs in New York, Las Vegas, London and even Glasgow where the Scottish sense of humor is reputed to be nonexistent. Dick didn't find it so.

Actually it's hard to describe Shawn's work. He didn't think he could dance until he took dancing lessons, or that he could sing until he took singing lessons. Today he does both. But that isn't the half of it.

* * *

Fit as a Fiddle

GENERALLY SPEAKING, his is a comedy routine but he doesn't have any writers. He thinks up the jokes himself and keeps away, more or less, from topical humor. He kids trends, not people.

He can't tell exactly how he puts his acts together. Dick says he sees something that strikes him funny or pathetic and he winds it into a skit and there you are. It sounds easy but his is the perfection of a timed technique.

"You can't buy an act," says Shawn. "That's where a lot of people make a mistake. Put out $10,000 for somebody else's idea and then it's a flop.

"Of course, your own are too, sometimes, but I try them out on the people bit by bit, one joke at a time, so to speak, till I see they're in the mood."

He likes night club work. Says it's the only freedom left to the actor. "In television there are 1,000 restrictions and besides your viewers are miles away.

"Only in a nightclub do you get that intimacy with the audience that is the life and breath of an actor."

Shawn takes it all in his stride. Admits he could never do commercials for the cigaret people because he doesn't even smoke.

Council Divisions To Hear About National Convention

New Division Plans Election

Newest division of Greater Miami Section, NCJW, meets at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Park Lane Cafeteria, 2155 SW 22nd St.

The new division, yet unnamed, is composed of college girls, young married and young working women. The Wednesday meeting and election of officers is open to such young women. They also may call Mrs. Arthur Gilberg, 1609 NW 10th Ave., for information.

Unique Outdoor Flower Show Attracts Amateur Gardeners

Something new in flower shows is the outdoor show to be held Thursday through Sunday, co-sponsored by the Ixora and Riverside Garden Clubs.

"Everything Under the Sun" is the theme. All exhibits will be held outside — just south of the auditorium in Bayfront Park — and all materials will have to hold up under the sun's rays for four days.

The show is being staged by the two clubs in connection with the Southern Lawn and Garden Show in the auditorium. It will be open to the public, for a small admission fee, from noon to 9 p.m. each day.

It is a standard show, approved by the Florida Federation of Garden Clubs, and according to Mrs. Henry W. Michaels, general chairman, it serves as a "practice run" for gardeners who plan to exhibit in the Metropolitan Miami Flower and Garden Show in April.

All amateur gardeners may enter exhibits and the show will be judged by accredited flower show judges.

All the classes are geared to the "sun" theme, including one class "Sun Gets in Your Eye," where the arrangement must incorporate a pair of sun glasses.

Mrs. Frank Nichols is co-chairman of the show; Mrs. M. S. Farrar is chairman of the judges and Mrs. E. K. Ballard Jr. is ticket chairman.

Good Smells, Poor Nutrition

ALVA, Okla. — (AP) — Mrs. Eva Wood, head of the home economics department of Northwestern State College, says those good smells coming from the kitchen can mean the family is going to get a meal not up to par with nourishment.

She says the good smell comes from cooking meats and vegetables in too much water, which takes away much of the vital food values.

'My Hair Is a Mess— Hubby Is Ashamed'

'I Can't Manage My Hair'
. . . Mrs. 25 wrote to the Glamor Clinic

Sweetheart Coiffure Is Easy
. . . most important, hubby likes it

By ELEANOR HART
Herald Glamor Clinic

When a husband stops paying attention to his wife because he doesn't like her hair style, it's time to "do something."

In the case of Mrs. 25, we suggested a hair stylist — simple, but effective.

Mrs. 25, mother of two preschoolers, is just that, 25 years old, weighs 103, is 5 feet 1¼ inches tall. She wrote:

DEAR GLAMOR CLINIC:

I have a problem that has been causing dissension between my husband and myself. No matter how hard I try, I can't manage my hair. I have had three permanents in less than a year and none of them has taken.

You may think this statement strange, but my husband has actually refused to go out with me, even when we get a baby sitter, because he is ashamed to be seen with me.

MRS. 25

Needless to say, Mrs. 25's husband is no "longer ashamed."

"But he does worry that my hair won't stay like this," she laughs. "However, I'm very careful — wear a hairnet to bed every night and just brush and place it in the morning."

Glamor Clinic

This is possible because Mrs. 25's baby fine hair does have some natural curl. The lack of body, says the Glamor Clinic hairstylist, who cut, shaped and styled her hair, is due to lack of protein . . . "probably a diet deficiency. But it can be improved through proper diet and special protein hair treatments."

Where To Buy?

Call FR 9-3826 after 9:30 a.m. today. After 24 hours, write to The Miami Herald Shopping Service, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

To make up for this body deficit, he set her hair with beer. No, he would not attempt to give her a permanent until the quality of the hair has improved.

But he shaped her unruly black hair and styled it in a flattering Sweetheart version (the latest coiffure adopted by the National Hairdressers Association).

Mrs. 25 recalls that she lost all her hair when she suffered virus pneumonia as a young girl. But, she's at a loss to explain the protein deficiency although she does admit to imbibing in "coffee only" at breakfast time.

A working mother, she says she just doesn't have time to eat properly then. But a soft boiled egg or two would help up that daily protein intake.

Mrs. 25 also was concerned about learning to apply make-up.

"Now I can handle my eyebrows," she says, which are curly and difficult. "The make-up artist showed me how to brush them down, apply the pencil above and then brush the brows back up so that the penciled line is not obvious."

Her skin is dry, and a beauty oil, containing almond and olive oil is suggested for application at night.

Women with extra dry skins may use the oil lightly under make-up, too, thus giving themselves a day-long beauty treatment.

To make her nose appear smaller, the artist mixed eyebrow pencil with a basic liquid foundation shade and applied to each side of the nose. Rouge on the lower part of her cheeks softens the hollows.

In applying lipstick, she should lift the curves of the mouth and widen the upper lip to help detract from the center of her face, "the problem area," the make-up artist explains.

"I realize that learning to apply make-up properly takes practice," Mrs. 25 says. "And I am practicing."

For you see she has a very important engagement coming up — a dinner and movie date with that favorite man — her husband.

To learn who styled Mrs. 25's hair and applied her make-up, call Herald Shopping Service.

Miami Girls Are Busy at Smith

Events on Rally Day range from musical satires written, directed and produced by members of the college's three upper classes, to formal commemoration exercises at which the seniors wear their caps and gowns for the first time.

High in Protein

...Cottage Cheese...

Low in Calories

Cottage Cheese, Vegetables Stuffed into Tomatoes Accordion Fashion
... a cool salad with flavor, texture and color contrast

By JEANNE VOLTZ

Herald Homemaking Editor

Cottage cheese is popular with South Florida food shoppers. We've made no formal survey, but we expect these are some of the reasons.

Cottage cheese is a natural for busy cooks. It is ready to eat spooned from its carton. Its delicate flavor has high appetite appeal. It is easily digestible and nutritious.

Cottage cheese is a top source of protein at pin-money cost. A half cup of cottage cheese provides about as much protein as a medium serving of fish, poultry or lean meat or three eggs.

Cottage cheese is a weight watcher's delight. A half cup of creamed cottage cheese contains only 120 calories, just 108 in a half cup of uncreamed.

It combines with so many foods — with fruit, vegetables, meats or eggs for salad. For new flavor cottage cheese in salad is pepped up with bottled steak sauce, horseradish, chives or onions, capers, ginger, catsup or Worcestershire sauce.

For dinner it goes on baked potatoes, low calories substitute for butter. And we know a Mother who now and then serves a different protein-rich breakfast, cottage cheese with milk and honey.

Cottage cheese serves many menu purposes for Lent.

Salad generous with cottage cheese can be main dish. A macaroni casserole with cottage cheese is supper-in-a-dish. Cottage cheese gives a main dish boost to delicate pancakes, sandwiches or miniature pizzas in these recipes.

Cottage Cheese-Macaroni for Hearty Supper
... bakes in casserole with tomatoes, bit of onion

Anchovy Cheese Tomato Accordions

4 firm ripe tomatoes
1 8-ounce carton cottage cheese
4 tablespoons chopped anchovies
1 cup diced celery
1 teaspoon finely chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Lettuce
Whole anchovies for garnish (if desired)
Mayonnaise

Wash tomatoes and cut off a thin slice from the stem end. Stand upright on cut ends and make 4 deep slits with a sharp knife, from front to back. Combine cottage cheese, anchovies, celery, onion, salt and pepper. Fill slits with cheese mixture. Arrange on lettuce. If desired, garnish with whole anchovies. Serve with mayonnaise. Makes 4 servings.

Cheese Sandwich Barbecue

2 eggs
⅓ cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
Few grains pepper
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
2 cups cottage cheese
12 slices buttered bread
Butter or other fat for frying
Barbecue sauce (your own or bought)

Spread cottage cheese on 6 slices bread. Top with remaining bread slices. Dip both sides of sandwiches in egg mixture quickly. Fry in butter until golden brown on both sides. Serve at once with hot barbecue sauce. Makes 6 sandwiches.

Pint-Size Pizzas

1¼ cups canned tomatoes
1 6-ounce can tomato paste
½ teaspoon garlic salt
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1½ teaspoons oregano
½ cup milk
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
2 cups packaged biscuit mix
2 cups (1 pint) cottage cheese
¼ pound Mozzarella or Muenster cheese, grated

Mix together tomatoes, tomato paste, garlic salt, salt, pepper and oregano. Add milk and butter to biscuit mix. Stir quickly and vigorously with fork until dry ingredients are just moistened.

Knead gently a few seconds. Divide in 6 pieces. Pat out on cooky sheets into 6-inch circles. Pinch up edges to make slight rims.

Spread cottage cheese on circles. Cover with tomato mixture. Sprinkle with Mozzarella or Muenster cheese. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) 15 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate, (350 degrees) and bake 10 to 15 minutes longer. Makes 6 individual pizzas.

Macaroni with Cottage Cheese

8 ounces macaroni
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1 1-pound can tomatoes, strained
1 onion, finely chopped
1 egg, beaten
2 cups (1 pint) cottage cheese
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
⅓ cup fine dry bread crumbs

Cook macaroni in boiling salted water until tender. Drain. Melt butter in saucepan, stir in flour and cook, stirring, about 5 minutes or until flour is lightly browned. Remove from heat and add tomatoes, onion, egg, cheese, salt and pepper. Place macaroni in greased 2-quart baking dish. Pour tomato mixture over macaroni. Top with bread crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) about 40 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Cottage Cheese Pancakes
... served with sour cream or warm chili sauce

Cottage Cheese Pancakes

1¼ to 1½ cups milk
1 cup packaged pancake mix
1 medium onion, finely chopped
½ green pepper, finely chopped
2 cups (1 pint) cottage cheese
Sour cream or chili sauce

Add milk gradually to pancake mix, stirring until blended. Do not overheat. Batter should be rather thin. Stir in onion and green pepper. Drop by spoonfuls on hot, lightly greased griddle. Bake until golden brown on both sides.

Spoon cottage cheese on center of each pancake. Roll up, fasten with wood pick. Serve at once with a spoonful of sour cream or heated chili sauce over each serving. Makes 12 to 14 pancakes.

Losing Weight?

A report issued by the American Medical Association, studies of 20-pound weight losses showed men more successful at dieting than women, but offered no explanation.

Where loss of 40 pounds or more is concerned, results are even greater in favor of the male, said Dr. Albert Stunkard a psychiatrist, and Mavis McLaren-Eume, a nutrition expert, in the AMA publication, Archives of Internal Medicine.

Dieting has been magnified, "to the proportions of a national neurosis" by recent publicity, they said.

They said there were indications, that people go on a diet now because of worries about their health more than about their appearance.

Hunting Sea Shells Beats Watching TV

By MARY ENGLISH
Herald Columnist

I think children in South Florida learn to enjoy simple pleasures.

Children can get great joy from being awakened in the morning by the sound of the birds singing. At night when they go to bed their nostrils are filled with the scent of orange blossoms or gardenias blooming in their own yards.

I believe they gain serenity from walking along the beach looking for shells. My children often play a game of searching for faces in the blue clouds.

Your South Florida Child

* * *

THEY DON'T MIND carrying clothes out to hang on the line when they can bask in the warm embrace of a friendly sun.

It is still a matter of wonder to them when we are caught in a cloudburst and they take off their shoes to wade back to the car.

An hour later, they marvel that no traces of rain can any longer be found on the streets or sidewalks.

They are hungrier in the daytime and sleep better at night than they do anywhere else. They study hard at school and they play hard at home.

There is never time to be bored. How could they be bored with all the evidence of nature's miracles that surround them?

* * *

"MY CHILDREN went to summer day camp when we lived in Pittsburgh," a mother tells me. "They had more expensive clothes and we bought a new car every year.

"Here my husband's job depends upon seasonal employment. He averages about half the salary he did in Pittsburgh.

"But his health is better, the children are free from viruses and other ailments. They live outdoors.

"They don't NEED day camp here. There are so many FREE activities all summer long. When they aren't at the beach, they are taking shell craft, woodwork, or free dancing and drama lessons at the playground.

"We don't have to DEVISE ways to entertain them here. There's more to do than we have time for."

Mailbag:

DEAR MRS. ENGLISH:

We moved here from the Middle West in the height of the season two years ago.

The first few months were awful. I wouldn't want to relive them.

No one was friendly. We were still treated like tourists, instead of new residents. Everyone was bent on "rooking us."

We bought an inferior second hand car for a couple of hundred dollars more than market price. Within two weeks, we had the windshield wipers fail, the brakes go bad, and trouble with the exhaust pipe.

The used car dealer we bought it from refused to make any repairs or to give us a better car.

We bought a guaranteed second hand TV set from a supposedly reputable outfit and within a few days we had no picture. They refused to make good.

In all instances, we had to pay repair charges almost large enough to have bought new items.

We know the real people here now and we are part of Florida living. Our neighbors mostly are transplants like ourselves who have been through similar experiences.

But why do business people with responsibility and influence in a community give the whole section a black eye by their greed for the almighty dollar?

NEW..the MOST EFFECTIVE SAFE REDUCING TABLETS EVER AVAILABLE without prescription

Now Lose Weight Without Will Power! U.S. Health Authorities Release Amazing Doctor-Approved Ingredient for Sale to Public.

"Wonder" ingredient acclaimed by thousands of doctors, many after personal trial on themselves and their wives. Curbs appetite without will power. No hunger pangs! No special diets! No habit-forming drugs! Excess pounds disappear with amazing new automatic appetite control regulator!

For the first time, a weight reduction aid formerly permitted only on doctor's prescriptions, has been released for sale direct to you, by the U. S. Department of Health. As a result, millions of people who found it impossible to take off unattractive fat and found it even harder keeping it off . . . now can do so with ease and utter safety!

As any doctor can tell you, ugly pounds of excess weight actually melt away when your body is forced to use up its surplus fat. You can now accomplish this quickly and joyfully with Curb-wate tablets because they contain Controlene* the magical doctor-approved "wonder ingredient" which curbs your craving for fat-making calories.

You not only can GET thinner, but STAY thinner as Curb-wate tablets continue to control your appetite, control your hunger, control your weight. Quickly and marvelously. You can lose AUTOMATICALLY . . . your own eyes, your own scales, your own mirror will show you that you lose 5 pounds, 10 pounds . . . and many pounds more if you wish . . . through the automatic appetite regulator, Curb-wate tablets with Controlene.

FIRST DAY—The moment you start taking Curb-wate tablets something grand starts to happen. The scale tells a magic tale as Curb-wate curbs your appetite automatically.

SECOND WEEK—As fast as humanly possible Curb-wate helps you come down, down, down. Your figure becomes exciting to look at.

FOURTH WEEK—In a few short weeks you must look slimmer and trimmer . . . you must win compliments and praise from your friends . . . or you may return Curb-wate for complete refund.

U.S. doctors' tests show how easy it is now for people to lose excess fat. For the first time, Curb-wate tablets with Controlene (phenylpropanolamine hcl.) are available to you without doctor's prescription. In thousands of clinical tests this automatic weight-controlling ingredient has proved its value. For example:—

One woman lost 25 pounds in 30 days. Right from the start — within the first ten days — she simply did not want to eat excessively, because her appetite was under control.

Another woman who said she had an enormous appetite after the birth of her child, lost 20 lbs. in less than 2 months WITHOUT ANY SPECIAL DIET WHATEVER.

LIFE EXTENSION

There is abundant proof that Curb-wate with Controlene does control appetite and brings a weight loss automatically — that is through effective automatic appetite regulation. So lose no time, get Curb-wate tablets with Controlene. Start at once to lose weight, within weeks, you can amaze your friends with a lovelier figure. You'll feel more alive, and what's more important you may actually be extending your life.

MELT AWAY YOUR STORED-UP FAT
INSURE YOUR ATTRACTIVENESS & HEALTH

No matter what you've tried before—whether it be pills, diets, slenderizing treatments, baths — remember what every doctor MUST tell you — that you will lose weight ONLY when your body uses up the fat that is stored up in your hips, thighs and other parts of your body. Begin today using Curb-wate with Controlene. You'll never regret taking this first step to a beautiful, attractive body . . . with greater assurance of a happier LONGER life.

EAT WELL . . . FOODS YOU LOVE

With Curb-wate tablets, you lose weight as fast as it's humanly possible to do so . . . yet you can enjoy eating to the utmost. Curb-wate tablets do not kill your enjoyment of good food, but they stop that terrible craving for OVER-eating. Today, doctors know for certain that the one general cause of over-weight is OVER-eating. So your weight goes down automatically when you prevent over-eating. Thus Curb-wate with Controlene brings attractive weight loss . . . and you don't need will power!

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE
You must be pleased with Curb-wate or your money is refunded without question. You must be happy with your loss in weight . . . and the easy way you lose it. Every Curb-wate tablet contains Controlene*, Nutrition Product's name for the wonder ingredient phenylpropanolamine hydrochloride.

Ancient Jugs Create Unusual Print
. . . by Israel's Maskit

By BEVERLEY WILSON
Herald Fashion Editor

The noon luncheon show will include new creations from Israel's designers — the houses of Lola Beer, Lilly Schleiffer, Maskit, Aled, and Matzkin.

Jordan Marsh is coordinating the show, which will also feature originals by Paris' Balenciaga, Cardin, Chanel, Heim, Lanvin-Castillo and Guy Laroche — all made from Israeli fabrics.

The French-Israel collection is being presented for 1959 Sponsors of Israel Bonds, as part of the 1959 Inaugural Conference.

Mrs. Jan Peerce, wife of the tenor, will come to Miami to serve as show chairman. Admission is by purchase of minimum Israel bond of $1,000 for 1959.

Six Career Girls Tell What They Spend on Clothes: $150 to $1,300

By MARY MILLER
Budget Consultant
Mercantile National Bank of Miami Beach

Ask several working girls how much they spend on their clothes and the first thing you will find out is that they don't know.

Money Clinic

The second thing you will learn is that whether they spend much or little, they go in for quantity. All have clothes closets that are far from empty — some of them full to overflowing!

At least, this is the information that emerged from questioning office workers.

All six said they do not keep a written record of their clothing expense and could only guess at what they might spend in a year. Their guesses range from $150 to $1,300 a year. (Their salaries range roughly from $50 to $62.50 a week.)

Five of the girls are unmarried, and all but one of them live at home. The sixth is a young divorcee with two children.

* * *

NONE OF THEM allows herself an average weekly or monthly sum for clothes—all buy as they need.

The number of office outfits they have ranges from 10 to 37. The number of party dresses runs from 5 to 20.

One of the six does not set a top limit on what she will pay for her clothes. Of the others, the high for an office dress varies from $10 to $25. For a party dress, the high limit ranges from $25 to $100.

The average price the girls pay for shoes ranges from $8 to $20 a pair. The number of pairs that they own runs from eight to 25. One of the girls owns a fur wrap — "paid for by me and in 90 days," she wrote proudly. Another owns a fur-trimmed cashmere sweater. Otherwise, no furs in their wardrobes.

* * *

HERE ARE some close-up glimpses of the girls, under fictitious names:

1. ANNE. Take-home pay $41.95. Lives at home and parents help with her support. Spends about $200 a year on clothes, and feels that this is about the minimum anyone could get by on. Has nine pairs of shoes, 15 office outfits and five party dresses. Pays an average of $8 a pair for her shoes and has nine pairs in her closet right now.

2. CLARICE. Take-home pay $49.80. Lives with her parents and is partially supported by them. Spends about $300 a year on clothes. Feels that it's a minimum amount.

3. BETTY. Take-home pay is $46.55. A divorcee, the sole support of herself and two children. Spends about $150 a year on clothes for herself and knows it's the minimum. (More about Betty next week).

4. DONNA. Take-home pay $49.80. Lives at home but supports herself completely. Spends $1,250 a year on clothes. Admits that she spends more than she should or needs to and says a career girl can be well dressed on much less.

5. EDITH. Take-home pay $49.80. Does not live at home. Completely self-supporting. Last year, when her take-home pay was $64.40 a week, she spent about $1,300 on clothes. Feels that she spends about the minimum needed.

6. FRAN. Take-home pay $53.97. Lives at home. Parents help with her support. Spends about $1,200 a year on clothes, but feels a career girl can be well-dressed on less than that.

* * *

One girl who lives with her parents, and is partially supported by them, spends $300 a year. Two others, getting the same pay and supporting themselves completely, spent $1,250 and $1,300.

Evidently clothes are more important to them, and they are willing to make sacrifices in other directions.

Of the six, Betty is in a special situation. She and her entire budgeting problem—not just her clothes expenditures—will be discussed in next week's MONEY CLINIC.

If you want help with a family money problem, write for a money clinic questionnaire, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to The Miami Herald Home Money Management Service, Unit 4, P. O. Box 630, Miami.

Tailors Say a Man Needs 4 Suits a Year

By MIKE MORGAN
Herald Staff Writer

To be really well dressed a man should buy at least four new suits a year.

Andrew Cefaretti

And if you're going to be a truly elegantly garbed male n 1959 your pants won't have any cuffs.

Also there will be fewer pockets on your clothes.

But you will cock a derby athwart your head when you don that new $450 vicuna suit.

These are a few previews of proposed male habiliments (at custom tailor prices they're habiliments) that will be discussed and inspected by the nation's best tailors and designers of men's clothing.

Dressed in a conservative blue sports jacket ($200) and a pair of dark trousers ($65) and matching equipment at matching prices, he discussed men and their clothes.

It's the Custom Tailors Association that launches most of the changes in male clothing styles — and sometimes the association performs too well.

It strived for years to make the double-breasted suit a nasty word — and succeeded. When the fellows tried to reinstate the DB suit a couple of years ago they couldn't get that campaign off the needle.

"We introduce proposed styles to see what will happen—sometimes they go and sometimes they don't. Radical changes don't come in men's clothes like women's," said Cefaratti.

"After all a man really doesn't worry about what his neighbor or friends wear as a woman does. He just doesn't care about the pant line each year."

HOW COME no cuffs?

How come fewer pockets on the jackets?

"It gives a man a slimmer, trimmer appearance—no bulging pockets. In fact, we suggest doing away with breast pockets on all jackets—business, sports and formal."

So where will a guy stash his stuff?

"He will have more inside pockets—and the bulge will be flatter. Also, he probably won't carry as much junk around. Most men load their pockets with three times as much stuff as they need."

One all-white sport jacket that will be shown is made without any outside pockets.

What's more, the tailors are going to try and sell the idea of shawl collars on all types of suits.

There has been more demand for vests.

But what about the type who wants a flower in his lapel—or cuffs on his pants.

"Ha!" ha'd the professor of the needle. "A man should never go with style if it makes him feel uncomfortable — he should go with his own personality."

One last fashion note. Now you can buy a Vicuna suit — that is you can if you've got about $450.

At Fort Lauderdale.

THE CONTINENTAL LOOK for men was exhibited in New York for the American Institute of Mens and Boys Wear Inc. Styled in Italy, the business suit at left features a shorter jacket, narrow lapels and pockets that slant backwards. The dinner ensemble at right has a cutaway front and braid on the coat sleeves. No cuffs on either pants.

Thank Your Wives, Men, For This

The average American husband is better dressed than the husbands of any other country—and he can thank the average American wife for this fact.

The odds are eight in 10 that if you are a married man, and whether your suit cost 30 or 300 clams, your wife helped pick it out.

Maybe she even picked it for you without your help.

Thus speaks a man who knows a pretty good odd in the clothing stakes when he sees one. He's Chauncey Hunter, executive secretary of the Custom Tailors and Designers Association of America.

Hunter is in town helping set up the convention of the Association which opens today.

Says Hunter:

"Men mostly wear what their wives want them to—even though they may not realize it.

"Even with the expensive custom tailors, where it costs you $200 and up for a suit, this is true. Possibly this class buyer won't bring his wife to a tailor—though many do—but a great number ask for swatches of cloth to take home to get the frau's opinion.

"I'll tell you something else," he said, but only after taking a nervous look around, "there hardly is a woman who doesn't think she has better taste in men's clothing than her husband.

Sullins Alumnae Are Organizing

A newly formed alumnae group here is the Miami Chapter of Sullins Alumnae, organized with the help of the president of Sullins, William T. Martin.

Mrs. Rosalie Sholtz, 13 Star Island, Miami Beach, is president of the chapter and will hold a meeting of its officers Tuesday night in her home. Mrs. Mallary J. Griffin, 715 NE 92nd St., is secretary.

Sullins is a two year junior college in Bristol, Va. Former students may contact Mrs. Griffin about membership in the chapter.

Make Scents

The heat of the bulbs will waft the scent upward when you turn on the lamp and your room will be subtly scented.

Israel Bond Group To Honor Foreign Affairs Minister

When the Israel Bond Organization honors Mrs. Golda Meir for her 30 years of achievement on Israel's behalf, it will be honoring one of the world's highest ranking women cabinet officers.

It also will be honoring a former Milwaukee school teacher, for Mrs. Meir, Israel's dynamic minister for foreign affairs, was educated and taught public school in the Wisconsin city before going to pre-Israel Palestine in 1921.

Golda Meir

The tribute dinner in her honor will be Saturday, March 7, at the Fontainebleau Hotel. The dinner will be a part of the 1959 Israel Bond Inaugural Conference March 6-8 at the hotel. About 1,600 Americans and Canadians will attend the dinner. Admission will be the purchase of $1,000 or more in Israel Development Bonds.

MRS. MEIR'S CAREER as a leader in Palestine began in 1928 when the Histradrut — the General Federation of Jewish Labor — named her secretary of the women's labor council.

Since that time her achievements have included work with the Pioneer Women's Organization in the U. S.; work with the British government's war economic council during World War II; helping to found the Voice of Israel and becoming acting head of the Jewish agency's political department, upon imprisonment of its male members.

In her continuing work to help Israel achieve statehood, Mrs. Meir narrowly missed death by bullets twice.

Once a fellow passenger in her car was wounded and once a shot fired through her office window missed her. And she once disguised herself as an Arab woman to set out for a meeting with King Abdullah of Jordan.

MRS. MEIR was one of the 37 signatories to Israel's Declaration of Independence in 1948, and was appointed minister to Russia that same year. The following year she was named minister of labor, a post she held until named to her present post in 1956.

She has made many trips to the U.S. both to speak before the United Nations assembly and to help raise money for her country's work in economic development and absorbing the influx of refugees.

She introduced plans for construction of 30,000 housing units, construction of new roads and reforestation, which Israel carried out.

Of Mrs. Meir's fund-raising work, Ben-Gurion once said, "Some day when history will be written, it will be said that there was a Jewish woman who got the money which made the State possible."

Too Tall Children

"In this climate youngsters of 9 can quickly shoot up to be basketball players," explained Mrs. W. S. Milsum, wife of the manager of a great rubber plantation.

"The belief that we ship our boys and girls to England for superior education is not entirely correct," said Mrs. Milsum, "The schools in Malaya are excellent. We send our children to England so that they will not grow too tall."

British parents in Malaya have agreed that it is unfair to children to let them grow abnormally tall.

Student Play Was a Fantasy

By DIANE LE FEVRE
Herald Correspondent

The Clown and His Circus, a three-act fantasy for children, was Barry's second student production of the year.

Barry

Diane Le Fevre

Directed by Mary Crowley, senior speech and drama major, the play was presented Saturday afternoon in the college auditorium.

Student productions are required of the members of the drama department's play production class.

Miamian Ann Lewis appeared as Dodo, the clown. The circus menagerie included Cinny Dodd as Charlie, a lion; Mimi Reich as Pauline, a donkey; Cletus Durcan as Ginger, a monkey; and Jackie Malagon as Harold, a rabbit.

Sponsored by the junior class, the contest raises money for the Junior-Senior prom in the spring and provides a day of leisure for the candidate gaining the most votes.

The number of candidates per class is in proportion to the size of the class's membership.

Senior candidate is Carol Murray; juniors are Terry Barry and Martha Brogniez. Sophs chose Ann Lewis and Beatriz Leal, while the freshmen picked Judy Meshod, Mrs. Mary Anne Mueller and Linda Bevilacqua to represent them in the contest.

FSU Campus Politicians Start Their Campaigns

By BUCKY CANON
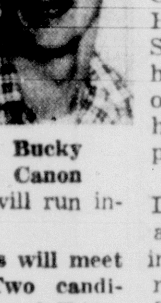
Herald Correspondent

TALLAHASSEE — Campus politics are creeping into the limelight at Florida State University as the date for the spring election of student body officers approaches.

FSU



Bucky Canon

The election, to be held April 7, will be the first campus-wide one since early fall.

Candidates will seek 12 offices. Most will run from the campus' two political parties — the Student and Collegiate. A few will run independently.

Party conventions will meet late this week. Two candidates, Jim Apthorp of Tallahassee and Mattox Hair of Live Oak, have already declared their ambitions for the student body presidency.

Meanwhile a new group calling themselves "The Independents" have interjected themselves into the political arena.

Composed of students not associated with fraternities or sororities, they plan to hold their own primary election and back the winners in their race for office. While not a political party, they may prove to be an important factor in the election.

FSU has not been troubled by any Greek-non Greek political fracas in the past few years.

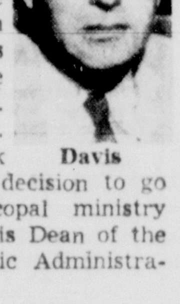
TWO LONGTIME FSU administrators announced they would leave the university at the semester's end.



Davis

Dean Charles Davis will become president of Winthrop College in Rock Hill, S.C., next September. He has been Dean of the Faculties here for the past two years.

Dr. Wilson K. Doyle this week announced his decision to go into the Episcopal ministry next June. He is Dean of the School of Public Administration.

Both men came to Florida State in 1947.

FSU held a "Religious Emphasis Week" last week.

Members of the Inter-Faith Council, the Chaplain's office and various student religious houses cooperated to make the week a success.

Will Bermudas Be Banned? Big Question at Gatorland

By FRED FROHOCK
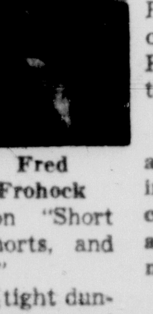
Herald Correspondent

GAINESVILLE — To Bermuda or not to Bermuda?

Miamian Mary Stainton stepped into the age-old UF Bermuda shorts controversy last week as she headed a special Women's Student Association clothing committee to re-open the problem.

U of F



Fred Frohock

Last year, the W.S.A. voted to allow coeds to wear comfortable shorts on campus for the first time in the history of the University.

However, the regulations accompanying the new privilege have been broken incessantly, according to the W.S.A. These included a ban on "Short shorts, Jamaica shorts, and elastic sport clothes."

Also, "slim jims" (tight dungarees), pedal pushers and slacks were prohibited, except in certain restricted areas.

Last year's lifting of the ban on Bermudas was announced as a trial move, to be withdrawn if abused. The Administration was doubtful at that time if Bermuda shorts were appropriate dress for coeds.

Now, after repeated warnings throughout the year to coeds to conform to the regulations, the W.S.A. is reconsidering the situation.

The special clothing committee, under Miss Stainton, will conduct an opinion poll of dormitory women.

The findings of the committee will be reported to the W.S.A. council, the final authority on voting for or against Bermuda shorts.

* * *

BANNER PARTY formed on campus last week to oppose the already organized Campus Party, and immediately labeled the opposition a "power group."

Announcing that their presidential candidate was Joseph Ripley, the new group also challenged the Campus Party to a public debate between the two top candidates.

"We intend to guarantee a two party system so the independents will have a choice," stated Ron Caccitore, Banner Party co-chairman.

Blair Culpepper, Campus Party presidential candidate immediately accepted the debate challenge: "I will accept the opportunity to present the platforms and campaign issues at a student gathering."

* * *

DEBATING also made news at Tallahassee this weekend.

The UF Debating Team journeyed to the state capital for the FSU Invitational Debate Tournament.

The national debate topic was used in all debates: "Resolved: That further development of nuclear weapons should be prohibited by international agreement."

Gifts Aid Stetson Building Program

By SUSAN BEALL
Herald Correspondent

DELAND — Gifts and pledges totaling more than $500,000 have been received by Stetson University in the last three months for its building program.

Stetson

Susan Beall

Dr. J. Ollie Edmunds, president, made the announcement following a meeting of the University's board of trustees here.

These gifts are in addition to others received for faculty salaries and recurring operating expenses.

At the university's 75th anniversary convocation in November, the trustees and a group of civic leaders laid plans for a long-range development program designed to provide $6,000,000 for new buildings and a substantial sum of additional endowment for the University during the next five years.

Of the total announced by Dr. Edmunds, nearly a quarter of a million dollars has been subscribed by individual trustees. Included also is approximately $150,000 recently contributed by the Florida Baptist Convention.

Among the buildings planned for Stetson are a new library, science center, men's gymnasium, school of music building, fine arts center, chapel, building for the school of business, an infirmary and additional facilities for outdoor recreation.

* * *

THE STETSON baseball team is entering the fourth week of practice in preparation for the opening home game March 12, with the Camp LeJuene Marines. Head Coach Carl Johnson reports he is well pleased with the showing of the team in its early practice games.

With only three returning lettermen back, all-state second baseman George Borders, first baseman Larry Stowe, and pitcher J. L. Tyra, the Hatters face a tremendous rebuilding program.

Omicron Delta Kappa, the men's leadership honorary of the campus, founded the Green Circle as a step toward the development of campus leaders during the first two years of the student's college experience.

Among the freshmen tapped for The Green Circle is John Davis of Miami.

* * *

DR. WILLIAM HUGH McENIRY recently announced students on the Dean's list and Honor Roll. Undergraduates who carry a normal load of at least 15 hours and earn a quality point ratio of 2.5, qualify for the Dean's List.

Elizabeth Frix, sophomore from Miami, made a record of all "A" grades. Carolyn Miller, also of Miami, was among those on the Dean's List. Included on the Honor Roll was Judy Hohman, Coral Gables.

UM Sets Aside Week To Stress Religion

By SHARON NELTON
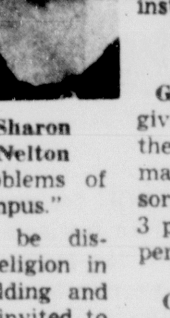
Herald Correspondent

The University of Miami focuses its attention on religion this week with its annual Religious Emphasis Week.

U of M



Sharon Nelton

"Let There Be Light" is theme of the week, which gets underway tonight with a kickoff banquet at Wesley Foundation. All religious groups, as well as other organizations, are taking part.

Baptist Student Union plans a supper and two conferences on "The Problems of Religious Life on Campus."

There will also be discussion groups on religion in the Panhellenic Building and speakers have been invited to talk in classrooms. The Joe and Emily Lowe Art Gallery's current exhibit on religious art ties right in, too.

Dr. E. Morton Miller, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, is overall chairman of the week.

A special event that fits in with RE Week is the dedication of the Wesley Foundation Upper Room to Dr. William H. McMaster, professor of religious education emeritus. The dedication will be Friday evening t 7:30.

The Upper Room has long been a special project of UM's Methodist students, faculty and alumni.

Gifts to the room include a three dimensional picture of The Last Supper, specially woven draperies, a 15-foot hand made communion table and special lighting and ceiling effects — all of which the students have helped make or install.

GIRLS INTERESTED in giving service are invited to the rush tea of Gamma Sigma Sigma, women's service sorority. The social begins at 3 p.m. Wednesday in the Upper Lounge.

Only women students who are sophomores or above and have a C plus average may become members.

The group recently elected new officers. They are Ellen Zuckerman, president; Phoebe Gordon and Susan Dunkel, vice presidents; Debbie Marcus and Arlene Cohen, secretaries; Anita Nissell, treasurer; Lorraine Caminiti, advisory board chairman; and Joyce Fortgang, historian reporter. Mrs. Louise Mills is Gamma Sig adviser.

GAMMA ALPHA CHI, women's national professional advertising honorary, is entering a contest. And in so doing, it is asking UM students also to enter a contest.

Members of the honorary will be complete with other GAX and Alpha Delta Sigma (men's advertising) groups all over the nation in setting up a publicity program, and have decided on a contest as their project.

The students' part of the contest is to fill out the entry blanks that come out in The Miami Hurricane, student newspaper, next week. Contestants simply have to identify a number of slogans and trademarks of national advertisers. The winner gets a dinner for two and two tickets to the movies.

The contest runs March 6-12.

The competing advertising organizations will be judged on the bases of initiative and originality, amount of work involved, group participation and effectiveness of project. The national group winner receives $100 plus a trophy.

Vandy Will Hear a Concert By Famous Kingston Trio

By BARBARA JONES
Herald Correspondent

NASHVILLE — The Kingston Trio, Tom Dooley's champions, will be on the Vandy campus March 12. The Trio recently gained its fame with the records "Tom Dooley" and "Coplas." The former has caused a historic uproar. Dooley was an almost forgotten Blue Ridge mountaineer hanged for murder in 1868.

But since the song hit the top sales chart, his grave in North Carolina has been restored and steps are being taken to get him an official pardon.

A FEW of the Greek organizations have already elected their new sorority and fraternity officers for the spring term. Among the Floridians elected to new positions are: Jerry Powers, Miami, president of Phi Delta Theta; Mickey Morrow, Deerfield Beach, house manager of Phi Delta Theta; Pat Haggard, Coral Gables, senior Panhellenic representative.

ANNUAL Miami Triad, hosted by Sigma Chis, Beta Theta Pis, and Phi Delta Thetas, had last weekend filled with rounds of parties climaxed by a formal dance Saturday night. The Sigma Chis started off with a combo party Friday night and a champagne party before the dance Saturday night.

Kappa Sigs had a unique combination — a cocktail party followed by roller skating at the Hippodrome on Saturday night.

MISS SOUTHERN

Who Won The Title?

By BOB McKENZIE
Herald Correspondent

LAKELAND — As Founders' Week approaches at Florida Southern College, the big question is: Who was elected Miss Southern?

Among those in the running were Effie Lou Hopper, Coral Gables, Phi Mu's candidate; Vivian Vann, Miami, Senate's candidate; Norma Moor, Pompano Beach, representing the Southernettes; and Mary Lou Cunningham, Fort Lauderdale, sponsored by Kappa Delta.

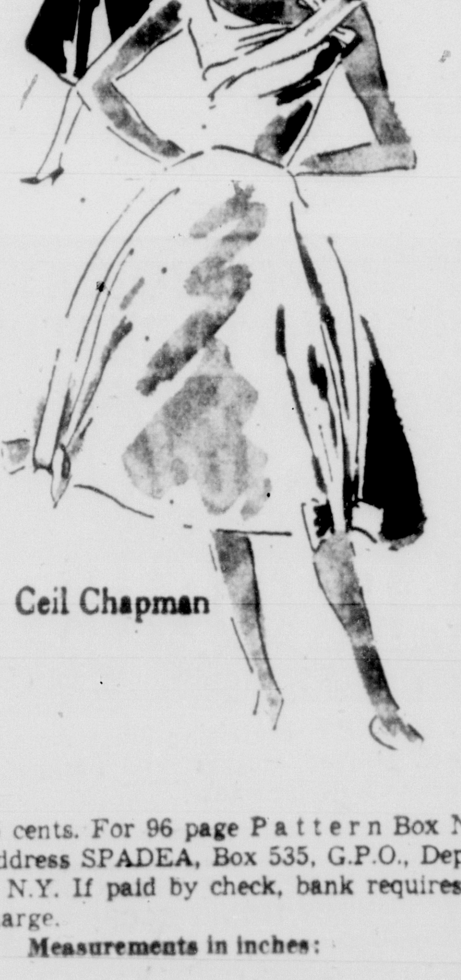
Miss Southern's identity will be kept a secret until the night of the coronation during Founders' Week.

Cadets Named To Honor Roll

Mike Collins and Tom Godzwon were among cadets named to the Dean's scholastic honor roll at Kemper Military School, Boonville Mo. The announcement is based on the last grade month of the first semester.

Mike is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Collins, 82 Bal Cross Dr., and Tom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lon Godzwon, 6751 SW 125th Ter.

Chapman Uses Tailored Bows On Party Frock



THE QUEEN of party dress designers, Ceil Chapman, here cuts the bodice in one with the shoulder strap, which is on the bias and overlaps a bow. The two-piece flared skirt has imaginative hem interest: at either side the bottom of the skirt is folded into double box pleats, with a tailored bow passed through the box.

SIZE 12 requires 2¾ yards of 50 inch material for dress with self bows and ½ yard of 39 inch material for lining.

TO ORDER Pattern No. 1369, state size, send $1.00, add 5 cents postage. For Ceil Chapman label, send 25 cents. For 96 page Pattern Box No. 15, send $1.00. Address SPADEA, Box 535, G.P.O., Dept. M-6, New York 1, N.Y. If paid by check, bank requires 4 cents handling charge.

San Juan Drama Fete in Red but Miami's Yellen Won't Quit

By WILLIAM KENNEDY
Special To The Herald

SAN JUAN, P.R. — Barry Yellen, 23-year-old impresario of the San Juan Drama Festival here, has discovered that most people would rather laugh than think. The cost of the lesson: roughly $12,500.

Yellen, son of Miami Beach businessman Salem Yellen, 7950 Tatum Waterway Dr., moved into the seventh week of an eight-week season last week with a show which recently concluded a successful run on Broadway — William Inge's "Dark at the Top of the Stairs." The San Juan production stars Miami Beach-born Kim Hunter.

The festival has been well received, but not by enough people. Even with a Broadway success such as "Dark," Yellen is not overly optimistic about the boxoffice.

The play is the fourth drama of the Festival, and all three which preceded it — "Look Homeward Angel," "Country Girl," and "Shadow and Substance" — lost money.

Three comedies, however, did well. "Harvey," starring Joe E. Brown, and "Seven Year Itch," with Eddie Bracken, made money. "No Time For Sergeants," would also have been a financial success except that Yellen yielded to Puerto Rican tradition and let the city of San Juan crown the queen of its annual carnival at the theater where the festival is being held.

The coronation took place on Saturday night, when boxoffice is biggest and spelled the difference between profit and loss for the week.

Total losses to date in a festival which will eventually cost about $85,000 have reached $12,500.

Even with bad luck in the two final plays, "Dark," and "Two For The Seesaw," which is still running on Broadway, Yellen feels his losses will not exceed $15,000. He is not dispirited.

"No matter what we lose," he said, "we'll be back next year."

Financial troubles have not been the only bugaboo in the festival. Yellen fractured a bone in his heel while gallantly stepping aside to let one of his leading ladies, Nancy Coleman, pass him on a ramp to the stage. He fell into the orchestra pit.

Also Yellen had signed Sir Cedric Hardwicke to play the lead in "Shadow and Substance," but the actor exercised an "out" clause in his contract to do a Broadway show, "Majority of One," which opened last week on Broadway.

Ethel Waters, who was to do "Member of The Wedding," went on a diet to lose 100 pounds, and her doctor would not let her leave Los Angeles.

Yellen also agreed to post a $10,000 bond to take Ferrer's Broadway show, "Edwin Booth," to New Haven, Detroit, Baltimore, then to San Juan, but when he asked for security he was told his only security was "Mr. Ferrer's word." Yellen dropped Ferrer.

Currently Yellen is involved in a controversy with actress Eva Gabor. He says Miss Gabor reneged on her contract to do "Blithe Spirit." Yellen asked her for the usual remuneration of one week's salary ($1,500) for failure to fulfill a contract got a reply from the actress' lawyers which he felt was unsatisfactory, now has the case before the council of Actors Equity.

Another difficulty has been in the brief rehearsal time — generally one week — in which the actors have to learn roles frequently brand new to them.

In "Country Girl" experienced actor Leon Ames dropped several lines and rattled co-star Nancy Coleman, who dropped an entire scene.

Veteran thespian Leo G. Carroll commendably handled the talky role of Canon Skerritt in "Shadow and Substance," but missed many lines. He wound up in the final tragic scene whispering to the chuckling corpse of his co-star, Helena Carroll: "What the hell do I say next?"

In spite of the difficulties, the festival has been a good one. It drew loyal and enthusiastic (if not widespread) support from many theater-starved residents of San Juan. And it has been professional throughout, from the sets to the supporting players.

With the festival now drawing to a close, Yellen, whose ambition is to do a play on Broadway, has been casting about for something to do next. He thinks he has found it: A drama festival in Anchorage.

Beach Bartender Is Now Captain of Havana's Tourist Police

IF YOU'VE been wondering whatever happened to Johnny Shea, who operated a bar on Miami Beach some time back, you can find him in Havana, Cuba, where he is a captain of Tourist Police after getting the equivalent of a Purple Heart in action with Fidel Castro . . . And we're wondering whatever happened to the Havana-Deauville gambling casino. Its name wasn't on the list of casinos extending invitation to Americans last week. Could it be that its special casino entrance for the "Cubano in the Street" held up a permit?

Larry Schwab, son of the famed Broadway producer who lived here until his death, is to direct "You Hurt, I Cry" as his first theatrical film. He got his start here at the Music Circus which his father co-sponsored . . . Four downtown theaters in Cincinnati have enrolled 5,000 people over 65 in a Golden Age Club which entitles them to reduced movie admission prices.

There have been several embarrassing and costly show opening conflicts lately. So we are tipping impresarios planning openings for April 6 that that's the night of the Oscar Presentations telecast . . . Gore Vidal, a recent check-in at the Blue Marlin motel in Key West, which is Tennessee Williams' home port, is helping Williams with the "Suddenly Last Summer" film script . . . London and Elector recording artist Bob Ellis will lend his baritone to the Miami Civic Symphony Orchestra next Sunday night at the Beach Auditorium,

'Swiped' Title, Convicts Admit

RECENTLY, in our unorthodox reading habits, we added the Avon Park Dopester to our must list and in commenting on its content noted that it too had a "Nite Life" column. In the current issue is an acknowledgment from Editor Bob Linz. In part it reads: "Didn't mean to swipe the title of your piece. As you will observe Pal Joey (a pen name) has changed it (his column title) to 'Nite-Owling,' we hope you enjoy it. Beginning with this issue please notice that we are now known as Avon Park Correctional Institution." That's right, the Dopester is produced by the inmate body! Gee, fellers, "Nite life" is in the public domain and we "swiped" it from some other source. We think Joey has a better title in "Nite-Owling." Title of our novel manuscript is "Strictly for Joey." Hope Joey doesn't mind.

SAND IN OUR EARS—By Leon Fields, in Mammy's: "He's got so little guts that the telephone company lists him in the yellow pages" . . . At the Embers, by Helen Lee, the interior director who tints the nail on her pointing finger differently than the rest of her fingers: "I still don't think Admiral Vee's seventh place finish in the Widener was any reason for them to change the name of the Admiral Vee Lounge to the Orchid Club. We all have off days." . . .

Russia Wants 'Lili,' 'Caruso'

DO YOU KNOW what pictures Soviet Russia has requested in its exchange deal? "Lili," "The Great Caruso," "Roman Holiday," "Marty," "The Old Man and the Sea" and "Oklahoma!" You mean they only go for mid-westerns . . . Nat Kahn, of the Havana Riviera, wired that first weekend of gaming there since Fulgencio Batista fled drew nice crowds, with "major biz done by Riviera Copa Room." . . .

"Sleeping Beauty," the wide-screen feature at the Sheridan Theaters is getting a big play from the birthday partying young-uns . . . Mrs. Groucho Marx will be in "The Big Circus"—as Eden Hartford.

Time does turn backward in its flight. Art Wood of the Herald ad department says his 18-month-old son scooped a goldfish out of the aquarium the other day—and ate it. In my generation they didn't do that till college days! . . . Burl Ives has etched an album of "Drinking Songs." His Nips. Joe E. Lewis might do a similar series called "Post Time!"

'Drunkard' Spurs New Drammer

THE BACK ROOM on Coral Way at 28th Ave. has been so successful with "The Drunkard" that a like comedy called "Rebel's Revenge," or Chicanery on the Chattahoochee, is to be put in production. Auditions will be given at 3 today by Director Mel Pape. "Rebel's Revenge" deals satirically with the Civil War and actors who can double in variety acts are needed. It will eventually alternate with "The Drunkard" at the Back Room. Incidentally, "The Drunkard" now has portable scenery which allows it to play "road engagements."

SPOTTED IN SPOTS—Tycoon Dan Topping getting take-home service from Fu Manchu's . . . Former cabinet member Charles Wilson applauding the "Sky High" revue at Latin Quarter . . . Fay Spain, leading lady of "Al Capone," at Joe's Stone Crabs, only a few tables away from head G-Man, J. Edgar Hoover . . . Sylvia Porter, the financial writer, at Tony Sweet's in Bay Harbor.

Confidentially . . . They're Saying . . .

THAT the Miami Beach council may be fighting Metro's right to set liquor sale hours because beach hotels are about to petition for extension of current 2 a.m. curfew . . . THAT Sam "So You Want a Mortgage" Cohen may inherit a big interest in another VIP (Very important palace) to add to his Deauville-Casablanca-Sherry-Frontenac etc. hotel empire . . . THAT Miami buses may have fluorescent lighting by 1960 . . . THAT the plot of "The Remarkable Mr. Pennypacker" which has a man maintaining two families in different cities isn't particularly strange, on the Havana-Miami axis . . . THAT by not-too-assiduous shopping you can pick up a $1,000 Cuban peso for $400, F.O.B., Havana . . . THAT 79th St. Causeway, right close to WCKT, is to get a Food Fair.

Theater to Be Refurbished

Cameo to Shine For 'Anne Frank'

By GEORGE BOURKE
Herald Amusement Editor

Wometco Theaters will do a complete overhaul and refurbishing job on its Cameo Theater on Washington Ave. and 15th St. Miami Beach, in anticipation of the opening there on April 1 of "The Diary of Anne Frank."

New projection and sound equipment will be installed and seating arrangement will be improved.

Sidney Meyer, co-owner with Mitchell Wolfson of the Wometco Theaters announced Saturday that the Twentieth Century-Fox film production of the story about a Jewish family harbored from Nazi arrest for over a year by a Dutch couple will be shown exclusively at the Cameo on a reserved seat schedule for possibly a year. Price scale will run from $1.99 to $3.30.

Abe Goodman, advertising executive for Twentieth Century, stated that "Anne" will show only in New York and in Los Angeles prior to the local opening, which may have Director George Stevens and Millie Perkins, its star, in attendance if their current work permits.

In a phone interview from his Hollywood home, Stevens told reporters that in making the film he had retained the "basis of the play and the content of the book" and translated them to film terms.

Meyer, who was present during the filming of background exteriors in Amsterdam, Holland, stated that Anne's father, Otto Frank, the only survivor of the once happy family is donating all his royalties from the play, book and picture to the erection of a youth center on the site of his family's former hiding place.

Goldwyn To Film Huck Finn

By THOMAS M. PRYOR

The New York Times Service

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Mark Twain's "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" will be the first picture to be produced by Samuel Goldwyn Jr. for Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer. The studio had been contemplating filming the story as a musical since 1950. It was to have been produced by Arthur Freed.

Goldwyn plans to do a faithful dramatization of the American classic, but has not yet determined how important music might figure in the picture. He did concede, however, that he has been strongly impressed by the several songs composed for the contemplated musical interpretation by Alan J. Lerner and Burton Lane.

Goldwyn said he would like to take advantage of the songs, but had not yet decided on the emphasis that would be given music. In any event, his first casting problem is to find a new boy, approximately 14 years of age, to play the title role.

The Mark Twain novel, published in 1884, previously was filmed by Paramount as a silent picture in 1920 and as a talkie, when sound was still a novelty, in 1931.

SEA-LEVEL SEQUENCE from "Up Periscope," a tale of the submarine service presents James Garner and Andra Martin in a gay moment. The romantic action color film opens on Wednesday at the Carib, Miami and Miracle Theaters.

Spring Arts Festival

Tip to Hobbyists: Entries Open in Beach Arts Fete

Invitations and entry blanks are now being distributed city-wide for the Spring Arts Festival to be conducted this month by the Miami Beach recreation department.

All events will be held at the Ocean Front auditorium, 10th St. and Ocean Dr.

Events scheduled include the art exhibition from March 9-11, the "World of Music" program March 16, the third annual Hobby Show March 22-24, and a presentation of the American folk opera by George Gershwin, "Porgy and Bess," Monday evening, March 30.

Hobbyists and collectors are invited to show their work. Musicians will participate in the "World of Music" program and the opera. Admission is free.

Lowe Loaning 11 Paintings To New Hialeah Gallery

Eleven paintings from Lowe Gallery's permanent collection will make up the first exhibition at a new show place, the Palm Springs Bowling Lanes art gallery, 750 W. 49th St., Hialeah.

The gallery, in the restaurant part of the building, opens this afternoon. It may be visited daily from 9 a.m. to midnight.

Nine oils, a lacquer, and a watercolor will be shown. The Mosha Matusovsky watercolor and Ann Mittleman lacquer have not been shown previously in Miami.

'Princess' Ballet Returning

The Florida-made full-length ballet "The Princess," premiered last December at the Royal Poinciana Playhouse in Palm Beach, will be given five new performances March 23-28.

Violette Verdy of the American Ballet Theater, who created the title role for the premiere, will return in March to repeat her performance. Ten-year-old West Palm Beach dancer Claudia Cravey will again dance her role of the Princess as a child.

The musical score was composed by Italian-American pianist-composer Mario Braggiotti, and the libretto was by Jo Anna, who conducts the Imperial Ballet Studios in Palm Beach. The dancer-teacher also directed the choreography.

Producers were Frank J. Hale and Paul Crabtree of the Royal Poinciana Playhouse, who presented it under the auspices of the Academy Royale Theater, an organization established by Hale for the training and development of talent in the fields of ballet, music and drama.

Frankie's Visit Pays Peanuts--After Taxes

INCREDIBLE Frank Sinatra moves into the Fontainebleau Tuesday. The biggest money maker in show business won't wind up with much more than a bag of peanuts when he adds the huge salary Ben Novack's paying him to the couple of million he'll make this year from movies and other activities. Taxes, and taxes.

James Durante Tony Martin ... Sinatra's competition

During the next week or so, Frankie will get plenty of drawing power opposition from Jimmy Durante at the Latin Quarter and Tony Martin at the Eden Roc . . . It's good news that "Newcomers of 1928" at the Deauville caught on so brightly that the show was held over. It closes Tuesday night.

The United Order of True Sisters, Inc. holding a dinner dance tonight at the Carillon for indigent cancer patients at Variety Hospital Clinic.

It was noted that when Tony Sweet said he'd take a raincheck, when ordering a round of drinks for guests, a new waiter reported that the bartender didn't know how to make one. For the record, Phil Kaufman, of the Luau, invented a drink he calls a "Raincheck." The recipe: Rub the rim of a chilled champagne glass with orange peel, two dashes of bitters, one third orange curaco, one ounce of Southern comfort, shake, strain, and top with champagne.

That Star Is Harry's Boy

THERE'S NOTHING so heartening as pride in the achievement of your children. At the moment Harry Manushaw, treasurer of the Dania jai alai fronton, who's delighted at the great season there, is even happier about the achievements of his 6-foot-7 son, Harry, Jr., one of the brightest lights of the best basketball team the University of Miami has ever had.

Moose Krause, athletic director at Notre Dame, vacationing with his wife at the Monte Carlo. The Irish will stay at that hotel when they come here to play the University of Miami in 1960.

Only a year ago Pepe, who's making a hit with his record mimicry, in the Lucerne's "Havana Mardi Gras," was a hotel dance instructor . . . Buddy Carle and his Nu-Tones a clickeroo at the Rocking M.B.

Wonder if even as great a star as Tony Martin could pack 'em in at one place as long as Charlie Farrell has at Gray's Inn . . . There's more French glamor than dressing in Lou Walters' "French Dressing" at the Carillon . . . George Hines stages his Wednesday "Hawaiian Nights" at the Golden Gate with the same deftness as when he ran the show at the Lexington in New York . . . Sam Sterling celebrates the 11th birthday of the Embers.

* * *

Kofoed's Ideal Meal . . .

MY IDEA of a great meal. Oysters on the half shell (Mike Gordon's), Spanish bean soup, (Don Julio's), Roast beef (the Americana's Gaucho Room) mixed salad (Al Fortini's dressing at Gallagher's), French pastry (De Continental) . . . Next night a magnificent all-Italian dinner at Leone's in Hallandale . . . Then, all-Scandinavian smorgasbord at Old Scandia in Opa-locka . . . The fourth night stone crabs, hashed brown potatoes and cole slaw at Joe's.

MADE - IN - MIAMI production of "Wild Women of Wongo" will have simultaneous world premieres today at the Palm and Dixie Drive-ins and the North Miami Theater. John Walsh and Jean Hawkshaw are featured in the color film which is coupled with "Sins of Lola Montes."

'Triple Play' in Pre-Miami Showing at Palm Beach

It's Sinatra and Chevalier Week, Folks; Hume Cronyn, Sammy Davis Open Too

Cronyn and Tandy
. . . 'Triple Play' combo

By GEORGE BOURKE
Herald Amusement Editor

Return of last season's cafe boxoffice champ, Frank Sinatra, to the Fontainebleau La Ronde Room; the pre-Miami opening of Hume Cronyn's "Triple Play" at the Palm Beach Royal Poinciana Playhouse, and a one-night, private-for-hotel-guests show by Maurice Chevalier at the Deauville Hotel Cavalcade Theater head the list of coming attractions for South Florida this week.

In addition there will be Sammy Davis Jr.'s opening at the Eden Roc Cafe Pompeii on Wednesday, the same night on which Arthur Lee Simpkins will add his lyric voice to the Lou Walters revue at the Carillon Hotel; Tony Martin's Cavalcade date on Thursday night; the opening of "Guys and Dolls," featuring Joan Bentley and Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom at the Musicarnival at Palm Beach and Julius La Rosa's opening on Friday at the Diplomat Hotel Cafe Cristal.

Sinatra will be supported by the comedy team of Betty Kean and Lew Parker at his Tuesday night opening. It was chiefly because of Sinatra's wall-stretching date at the Fontainebleau Hotel last year that the La Ronde Room was enlarged.

Of some interest is the fact that Sammy Davis, who will be working in competition with Sinatra at the competitive Eden Roc next door, has until recently been one of Sinatra's close Hollywood buddies.

A novelty event of wide interest will be the 11th annual Harvest of Harmony of the Society for the Preservation of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America at Dade County Auditorium on Friday and Saturday nights. Many of the nation's top quartets will compete, including The Confederates from Memphis, and the Midstates Four of Chicago. Local groups will include the Shortcuts, the Sun Tones and the Tropic Notes.

"Triple Play," which comes to the Coconut Grove Playhouse on March 9, will open Monday night at Royal Poinciana Playhouse in Palm Beach. The "triple" consists of one act plays by Sean O'Casey — "Bedtime Story" and "A Pound on Demand" — a one-act play, "I Spy," by John Mortimer and a reading of Anton Chekhov's "The Harmful Effects of Tobacco."

Jessica Tandy, Francis Compton, Biff McGuire and Helen Seamon complete the casts for the three one-acters.

Elsewhere on the legit stage circuit the news is that Ruth Foreman will reopen Studio M Playhouse sometime this spring.

Prior to any actual presentations, however, it would appear that Miss Foreman plans to push an extension of her current Dramatic Academy and Pied Piper Playhouse speech and drama school operation by the organization of a Studio M Summer Workshop. Auditions for acceptance are being held at the academy on Godfrey Road.

"The East Side Matchmaker" has been selected by the theater group of the Flagler Gardens Jewish Community Center for presentation at the center on March 7, 8, 14, 15, and 22 and at the Miami Beach High School Auditorium on April 4.

Waring Signs Miami Girl

Veronica McCormick, young Miami singer who recently won the "Jeanie" contest at White Springs, will appear with Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians on three programs next week. The March 4, 6 and 7 performances will be at Jacksonville, Daytona Beach, and Orlando.

The appearances are part of the award to the contest winner. Miss McCormick also won a $500 scholarship for further study.

Easter A Time Of Hope

Therapy, paraffin baths, special shoes, meters and scopes mean little, as such, but they're all necessary for those special steps to come about.

And it takes money. That's why the Easter Lily ball is one of Greater Miami's oldest invitational charity events. This year's ball, the seventh, will be Tuesday at the Surf Club.

Funds from previous balls have helped purchase a second building for the Crippled Children's Society and added to the building and equipment fund of the new Rehabilitation Center, which offers treatment to handicapped children and adults.

Number of treatments has tripled in the past five years. The Easter Seal sale asks donors to double their donations. And those who attend this year's Easter Lily Ball will donate funds, too, to help buy needed equipment for the Rehabilitation Center.

'Immune' Milk: Medical Miracle?

A Los Angeles woman, bedridden for years with rheumatoid arthritis, last summer decided to try something new. She drank a quart of milk a day. Less than a month later she was out on the golf course, practicing to break 100.

A Minnesota man who suffered choking hay fever attacks every ragweed season began drinking milk by the quart. Ten days later he was free of hay fever symptoms. He didn't even sneeze.

The common denominator in these and other experimental cases is antibody or "immune" milk, the discovery of two University of Minnesota professors. It could some day protect man against most, if not all, infectious diseases and allergies, possibly even against cancer reports an article in the March issue of Better Homes & Gardens magazine.

Moreover, it will be surprisingly cheap.

Immune milk is the same milk you find on your doorstep or on the grocery shelf, with the single addition of a new immunizing agent.

The findings thus far are more than just promising, the magazine says. They are, as scientists say, "conclusive in principle." Final proof will depend on much more experimentation.

Mrs. Tommy: Portrait of a Matriarch

This is the first of a series of articles about Our Wonderful Women. These are women in all walks of life who have accomplished much, but who have shunned the limelight. Some of These Wonderful Women are the wives of outstanding men. They have stayed in the background while helping their husbands get ahead.

For the first story, Herald Staff Writer Jean Wardlow and Photographer Ray Fisher went deep into the Everglades to visit with a Seminole matriarch, carrying on a centuries-old tradition of her people.

Mrs. Smallpox Tommy, Dade County's Oldest Seminole Woman

By Jean Wardlow
Herald Staff Writer

Mother love knows no race. And although Dade's oldest Seminole woman, Mrs. Smallpox Tommy, never had any children of her own, she has reared several in the old and traditional ways of the Indian.

"She loves children," a Seminole told us as Mrs. Tommy continued to sew bright strips of cloth into an apron—one strong brown hand deftly turning the material; the other, periodically giving the wheel of the old sewing machine a fierce twirl.

She sat on a high, weathered-looking table which ran the width of her palmetto-covered chickee, one shoeless foot tucked under her, the other dangling at the table's side.

Her whole body bent toward her work, for the many strands of beads, which she daily winds around her neck, prevented her from simply looking down.

"Whose children does she care for?" we asked the Seminole who had taken us on the 20-minute airboat ride into the Everglades to the two islands which comprise Mrs. Tommy's village.

"Sometimes mother dies. Sometimes man dies and mother has too many children to care for. She takes children into her own village."

* * *

Age Amused Her

HE ANSWERED as much as he could without asking the Seminole matriarch, who continued serenely with her work. When he did, he ducked his head under the chickee roof and spoke respectfully to her, for this was her village.

"Seminole woman is boss in her village," he had said, explaining the matriarchal society. And he might have added that she's treated with great respect, for although he was related to her, he took no liberties of informality.

When they spoke together, it was a long exchange in Seminole. Often, she would chuckle in a high-pitched voice. Her words were few; the young man's many. And through it all, her machine whirred.

Sometimes she'd look curiously at us with a sidelong glance. Like the time we asked how old she is. She couldn't understand age, and it rather amused her. Years of her life are like the seasons—they come, they go, they are made the best of. But you do not count them.

"She doesn't know," our Seminole friend told us. "But it was a long time ago. She must be in her 80's. She says that she knows she is the oldest Seminole woman here (Dade County) . . . I don't understand where she was born. She says it was up Snake River." Mrs. Tommy had waved her arm to encompass the Everglades area.

* * *

He Bought Beads

MRS. TOMMY and her husband were married at a ritual Corn Dance. "Her family arranged the marriage," our friend told us. "Her uncle asked her if she would marry Smallpox Tommy." No, she didn't have to marry him, even though her family asked it, Mrs. Tommy replied.

"I decided it was good thing to marry Smallpox Tommy. So he started buying me beads," were her words.

Our friend explained that once the marriage is arranged by the families, "Seminole man begins buying things for the woman, things they will need for the home."

After their marriage, they moved away to make their own village and to prepare for their family. But there were no children. So Mrs. Tommy has reared others'.

She has outlived one of her "children." Another lives with her family on the Brighton reservation. There are two living in her village now—a young girl with dark solemn eyes, and a handsome boy whose energy seems tireless.

* * *

'Girls Are Easier'

WHAT DOES THIS SEMINOLE "MOTHER" teach her children? Basically, the same thing you teach yours: prepare them to assume responsibilities of marriage and lives of their own. Specifically?

She will teach the girl to run a village, to look for high ground when choosing a village site; how to plant corn and potatoes, banana trees and sugar cane.

She will show her how to cook in a huge blackened kettle over an open fire which seldom dies; how to prepare bulbs of the "elephant ear" plant so that it tastes much like a potato; how to grind and store corn in huge jars and half-gallon garbage cans which are her canisters.

She will show her how to make a milky solution from grits or corn. This is their "milk" and, with water from a well they dig, is their beverage.

Mrs. Tommy also will show the young girl how to raise and dress chickens, which run freely in the small village of four chickees, four people and one hog. And, in case the young girl's village consists of two islands as Mrs. Tommy's does, she'll teach her to use the graceful dugout canoe.

Mrs. Tommy's 'Pantry'
. . . garbage cans store food

"It is easier to care for the girls," Mrs. Tommy said in her high, thin voice with lips barely moving. "The boys will not listen so well."

Men teach the boys. They are taught to hunt ("Deer very few any more") and to fish. To build canoes and chickees, to dig for water and to learn well from the medicine man.

* * *

Serenity and Peace

MANY BOOKS will tell you that no Seminole child is ever punished because of the Indian's non-interference view of life. But don't believe it.

A strong hand is judiciously applied upon occasion. Or a pin prick is used—just enough to draw blood. Or even a sudden dousing with a bucket of water.

Mrs. Tommy's two "children" have no English names, nor will they have until they have more contact with the White Man's world which is still such a mystery to Mrs. Tommy.

"She hears stories, like I used to," the Seminole said. "But she doesn't know what to believe . . . Yes, she knew when we had a war, I think, because once when a blimp flew over she ran and hid in the bushes until it got dark."

She has been to Miami, all right, but not often, and not until she was middle-aged. And the last time, she became ill on "the White Man's fish," was forced to go to a hospital and has refused to return to Miami since.

It's no wonder. Her world is one of serenity and peace; one of earning and understanding. Entering her village is like entering another lifetime.

As we were leaving, Mrs. Tommy called to the Seminole boy. She had something for him. This time it was a quarter, not sugar cane. The boy was going back into another world.

Stains? Hoop 'Em Up!

By JEAN WARDLOW

Here's a bit of hoop-la for removing stains. It's always easier if you can jack up the stained area some way so that you can work on it without the other 45 yards of dress getting in the way.

How To Keep Formulas Warm

A FORMER MAINE resident, Mrs. M. C. of Miami, has travel problems.

"We were married in Maine and moved to Florida two years ago and are expecting our first child in August.

"We plan to go home to visit in the Fall, but don't know the first thing about traveling with a baby — how to keep formulas warm and about the diaper problem, etc. Please help me!"

You mothers who have traveled with babies — no easy chore, you know — will probably have many helpful tips for Mrs. C.

What Is This Fruit?

WE DON'T USUALLY tackle problems of the great outdoors, like identifying fruit and all that jazz. We don't have that much confidence in our basic botany.

But we roped in the help of Herald Farm and Gardening Editor Nixon Smiley to help Mrs. A. S. of Miami Beach. And we might add that Mr. Smiley is weary of naming a fruit by description only. He likes to see a sample so that he's sure that he and you are talking about the same thing.

But, to the problem.

Mrs. S. wants to know the name of the fruit which looks like a peach and tastes like a sweet potato. She wants to buy a tree. She also wants to know what to ask for.

"I met a person in a supermarket eating one, but when I asked her the name . . . she did not know."

Mr. Smiley thinks that it's the canistal or egg fruit. A friend who has such a tree growing in her yard says that she eats the fruit as is, or it can be used in fruit salads although, because of its consistency, it will not cut easily into cubes as a peach or mango.

Be sure to see a tree in fruit before you buy, Mrs. S. This may or may not be what you had in mind.

* * *

And to Mrs. M. E. R. of Vero Beach, I have given Mr. Smiley your letter to answer in his Inquiring Gardener column. He's just the one to tell you how to prepare your soil. I'd be inclined to say add one beaten egg.

The Chrome Is Dull

Mrs. O. of North Miami Beach wants to know what she can do to restore the shine to her porch and lawn furniture.

"The webbing is still good," she writes, "but the chrome is dull and gray and speckled . . . What can be done? . . . Is there a paint for it?"

Come now. Let's help her to do away with the speckles. Who wants speckles anyway?

Mrs. E. U. R. of Key West recently arrived here from hula-hula land. And she's been used to doing a lot of fine Hawaiian cooking.

Her problem? "Where can I get fresh ginger root for cooking. Powdered ginger just doesn't make my good Hawaiian and Oriental dishes taste the same."

Ginger root, anyone?

Now It's Stagedoor 'Janes'

Lo Hardin, stage manager for the hit musical "West Side Story," hasn't yet encountered a single man-about-town waiting at the stage door with bouquets and bangles.

"Instead we have about 60 young girls beating on our stage door," he lamented, "and you know what they bring? Home-made cookies and hand-knit scarves."

"West Side Story" is a love story set against the rivalry of two teen-age street gangs, and the cast consists of 12 girls and 30 boys — all young and blue-jeaned.

"They make a lot of noise," he admits. "But mostly they just hero-worship. The boys themselves don't let them get close; actors love attention — but at a nice safe distance."

How Do Children Act When They're 'Normal?'

What is normal behavior for an elementary school child?

Members of Sabal Palm Elementary PTA will hear a child psychologist, child psychiatrist and a psychiatric social worker discuss this subject at an 8 p.m. panel meeting Tuesday in the cafetorium, 17101 NE 7th Ave.

Panelists are, Dr. Esther Hartman, psychologist, Dr. Steven Wright, psychiatrist, and Robert Segal, psychiatric social worker with Jewish Family Service.

Program is open to the public.

They'll Hear About College

Dr. Richard Chambers of the University of Miami school of education will answer students' questions on college at an 8 p.m. Tuesday meeting of Hialeah High School Parent - Teacher - Student Association.

Dr. Chambers will answer questions submitted in advance by the students. Then three Hialeah High graduates who are now freshmen at the UM will tell prospective freshmen their views of college life. Tehy are Ed Baxter, Sandy Tierce and Bill Dunstall.

HIP-HUGGERS are a new fashion fad swiped from Elvis Presley and his followers. The tapered pants for girls come up hip-high just as the cool cats among male rock and rollers wear theirs. Our model sports one of the earliest varieties of the Hip-Huggers to reach Miami. The pants are a sturdy cotton; tailored shirt is extra long, to meet pants snugly at the hipline. One word of caution: be sure you have the figure for them before you make a public appearance. Extra poundage is fatal with this silhouette.

French Navy Gives Up Watch

PARIS —(WNS)— Members of the French Navy Department have complained about the spring fashion showings in Paris.

But last week the Griffe dressing-room windows were curtained. In Navy blue.

GOIN HALL

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

To Sad and Perplexed, the 67-year-old woman who says her life is useless—How mistaken you are! I live among the senior citizens here in Florida and what a want-to-live group we are.

Sure, we all have our ailments, but do we want to give up? No, sirree. This is really the best time of life, particularly if one is enjoying good health. We are free and on our own.

I belong to a club of women who are in their early seventies. We are always having something to celebrate — this one's daughter's marriage, birthday, graduation, etc.

We eight to ten women meet three times a week at different homes. We play cards, discuss current and personal events, then serve refreshments.

Form a group and do as we do. One woman who was in our group is near 80 but she left us to remarry, as she is "keeping company" with a man.

Be thankful you have had the joy of bringing up your family, Sad, and have seen them married. Now, go ahead and enjoy yourself.

I have a severe heart condition, but I am not ready to give up.

BETTY

No Life Is Without Purpose

DEAR SAD, PERPLEXED:

Many feel useless and without purpose at 67, but I know people a full 20 years older who are neither useless nor purposeless. They are not self centered, but active in helping others without any thought of self benefit.

I know one woman who is able to get about very little, but her emotional balance and mental outlook are heartening to all who come in contact with her.

If we attend more to our inner attitudes, regardless of age, and work to achieve a state of compassion, courage, trust, vision and understanding of ourselves and others, we have purpose and are useful.

What we are is of the utmost importance to the world.

I believe that to take oneself in hand and grow to feel constructively and think clearly, wisely and compassionately, and act accordingly, is of far greater use than cooking a meal or making a bed.

No life is without purpose and effect, but we can determine if it be for ill or for good.

NELLIE

Make Yourself Wanted, Needed

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

"The world is so full of a number of things, I'm sure we should all be as happy as kings."

Sad and Perplexed should go to church, join the ladies' circles . . . they need her because she has maturity and experience. But she must make herself wanted and needed.

There are garden clubs, libraries. There is baby sitting to be done.

Please, never give up, Sad. The battle is lost only when one stops fighting. I am in my early forties but I am preparing for my retirement now and have been for 20 years!

Remember Robert Browning's words: "Grow old along with me . . . The best is yet to be."

LOOKING FORWARD

Be Active In Church Work

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

I am 68 and have never felt that my life was useless. I have been a widow nearly four years, care for a five-room house. I do all kinds of church work, teach an adult class, lead Wednesday night Bible study when my turn comes, sing in the choir, serve on committees for the women's group and give talks.

If Sad and Perplexed would take an active part in church work, I am sure God will bless her as He has me.

HAPPY AT 68

Loving Nature Is Never Starved

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

I am too busy to read your column, much less write, as a rule! But Sad and Perplexed's letter caught my eye.

A healthy man or woman can always find lending an ear or a hand as moral support to friends and neighbors. Get a cat, dog, bird or fish. Plant a friendship garden. Grow vegetables and flowers to give to people.

A sympathetic, humorous and loving nature is never starved out of this world.

C. J. L.

I've No Time For Brooding

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

If Sad and Perplexed lives in Miami, tell her to come to 243 NE Fourth St. and join the Three Score and Ten Club as a junior (the 60 to 70 age bracket). Each Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, from 2 to 4 o'clock, there are entertainments put on by members. I've no time for brooding and my closest family is in Pennsylvania.

She Needs Others' Prayers

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

Sad and Perplexed's letter provoked me. Then I read Down But Not Out's letter and thought how wise you were to put hers after it.

How can anyone say they hate to grow old and that life is useless unless they make it so? Did Sad expect to keep her children with her forever? Why doesn't she try to help someone like Down But Not Out?

I too have had my heartaches and pains, but when I read Down But Not Out's letter I'm ashamed to think that I complain.

I lost my only child, a son, 23, in World War II, and thought life had ended. I was a widow but friends were kind and helped me through.

Nine years ago I married and life began again, but two years ago I had a double operation, lung and stomach, and was grateful there was no malignancy. The doctors said it would be two years before I would be well, but the two years are up and the pain is so intense, I can hardly bear it at times.

Still, I try to be grateful for the patience of my husband and wonderful friends. When I have a good day, I try to repay them by entertaining at dinner.

Everyone tells me I try to do too much, but why should one just take and never give of themselves? Those who do are the sad and unhappy women like Sad and Perplexed.

She needs the prayers of others to help her. Growing old is normal and I don't think it takes courage. Just grow old gracefully and enjoy what blessings one has.

Certainly anyone with children has the greatest blessing God gives to us.

DORIS (Ft. Lauderdale)

If Sad and Perplexed lacked inspiration before, she certainly has it now, thanks to the above. I guess the statement that I like best is Nellie's, "What we are is of the utmost importance to the world." . . . May all of us remember it, and try to live up to it.

Eleanor Hart.

Palm Beach Still Remembers Lavish Stotesbury Parties

By HELEN VAN HOY SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

Mrs. 'Stote's' Gown
. . . worn by Mrs. Logsdon

PALM BEACH — Memories of the famous Stotesbury birthday parties are stirred at this time of year. (The birthday date was Feb. 26).

Those were the parties at which the famous financier, Edward T. Stotesbury, always played a smart rat-a-tat on the drums, recalling that he was a drummer boy in the Civil War.

Climax came when he sang, "The Old Family Toothbrush that Hung by the Sink." As time went on his voice became weak and quavery, but the guests always joined lustily in the chorus.

The parties started first at dinner at the Breakers Hotel long before El Mirasol, the big Mizner-designed house, was built. As the list of guests grew longer, the parties became luncheons, and finally became teas and cocktail parties at El Mirasol. In later years they were attended by 1,000 to 1,200 people.

The birthday events and other lavish parties given by Mrs. Stotesbury, acknowledged social leader of Palm Beach, are recalled by Lillian (Mrs. E. E.) Logsdon, who was Mrs. Stotesbury's friend and secretary for the last 16 winters Mrs. Stotesbury lived.

She remembers how carefully all these parties were thought out, how conscientiously Mrs. Stotesbury planned to seat only congenial people at the same table.

The butler, the housekeeper, and the entire staff were carefully instructed in every detail. The parties seemed to flow along by their own momentum, but Mrs. Stotesbury had an iron hand in a velvet glove.

"She was the most thoughtful woman who ever lived," says Lillian — "truly a great lady."

Mrs. Eva Cromwell married the widower Stotesbury in 1912, and Mrs. Logsdon has her wedding dress, willed to her by Mrs. Stotesbury. Mrs. Logsdon modeled it at a YWCA Cavalcade of Palm Beach benefit in 1939 a few months after Mr. Stotesbury died at the age of 89.

A $1,000 Patou model, it is of off-white panne velvet (now yellowed to soft gold) made with draped hobble skirt and train, and trimmed with real lace and sable.

The sable had deteriorated so it was removed for the Calvacade. On her ears, Mrs. Logsdon wore the diamond and pearl earrings that had once belonged to the Czarina of Russia and presented by Mr. Stotesbury to his bride, and around her neck was a three-strand necklace of priceless pearls. (Mrs. Stotesbury was famous for her pearls.)

She also wore a diamond bracelet. Her hair was dressed in the style effected by Mrs. Stotesbury and a New York reporter wrote that tears coursed down Mrs. Stotesbury's cheeks as Mrs. Logdson swept by on the arm of Jimmy Cromwell.

Canned Foods Disappear at A Great Rate

COLUMBUS — (UPI) — Americans open and use about 400 million cans of food weekly, according to Extension Marketing Specialists at Ohio State University.

The experts said labels and brand names act as your window of inspection when buying canned goods.

The label, it was pointed out, should list contents in order of amount contained; legal name of product; packer's or distributor's name and address; net weight of contents; style of pack, water, syrup and so on.

The specialists said canned foods should be stored in a cool place. Best quality will be maintained if they are used in a year's time.

Red Cross Reception

Dade County Chapter of Red Cross is inviting 800 volunteers, their families and friends, to a recognition ceremony at 8 p.m. Wednesday in chapter headquarters, 5020 Biscayne Blvd.

At this ceremony, stripes and chevrons will be awarded to volunteers who have given more than 100 hours of service through this United Fund agency last year.

Service bars, to be presented by Mrs. William Cox, chairman of volunteers, include ten 15 year bars, twenty-five 10 year bars and thirty three 5 year bars.

After the awards are presented, board member Mrs. Henry Balaban will sing. She is the former Marie Lawler.

Crown Jewel Replicas Vied with Real Gems

By MARGOT SANBORN
Herald Columnist

Replica of Britain's Most Valuable Crown
. . . examined by Lady Headley of Scotland

NASSAU — Maybe someone will invent a ballistic missile to enable society columnists to get from one end of the island to the other and back again, all in one piece and all in one evening!

One of the biggest and most important of the evening's parties — but by no means the only elegant one — was the gala dinner, fashion show and jewel exhibit at the Fort Montague Beach Hotel.

Here replicas of the British Crown jewels and others of the world's most famous diamonds and other gems were displayed for the benefit of Ranfurly Home for Children. The event was under the patronage of His Excellency the Governor Sir Raynor Arthur and Lady Arthur.

We offer a deep bow to the charming chairman Francise (Mrs. Frank) Christie and her top echelon cohorts for the brilliant success of the affair. The place shone like a Maharajah's treasure chest, what with the flashing jewels of the beautiful women plus the display of the gems in replica.

Among those with him were financier J. F. C. Bryce and Mrs. B (she's the former Josephine Hartford of the A. & P. mint, and sister of Huntington Hartford); blonde Evelyn Barnes, swathed in a stunning pale blue lame sheath (long dresses prevailed); young Dublin and Nassau barrister Ralph Seligman.

Dudley Witting, sartorially perfect in a pale blue dinner jacket, and his vivacious Eira were the center of a gay table which included Olive and Barney Black and pretty Marylou Tapley (who hinted she may become a duchess soon).

At the Governor's table were Sir Roland Symonette and Lady S., Carl and Eunice Livingstone, Frank and Francise Christie and Peter Wilson, who winged over from Andros Town for the occasion.

Roger and Monique Tyler he's (U. S. Consul) also hosted a large table. The John Colquhouns were there with their house guest Lady Headley of Scotland.

* * *

OUR INITIAL destination was the cocktail party Sophia and Curson Dobell threw at Chickcharney, their home on Camperdown Heights, for their house guests the Robert Lords from Armonk, N. Y.

Among the interesting guests were Brooke Claxton and Mrs. C. (he's former Minister of Defense of Canada, now president of Metropolitan Life Insurance of Canada) and Lois and Alan Butler (former Board Chairman of De Haviland Aircraft) who got sand in their shoes and bought a home on Harbour Island.

Next stop was Isley Lodge, to dine with the Richard Oliphants. Handsome Cmdr. James Dugdale (he was A.D.C. to the Duke of Windsor) was there without his scintillating Sara. She's expecting a papoose.

The entire party whisked to Liz and Howard Teagues' (her pop is the fabulously wealthy Elbert H. Neese of Beloit, Wis.) new home Teague House where one of the plushiest hoop-de-dos this season was in full swing.

Cradle of Miami's Horse Set

By REGRET
Herald Columnist

While Old Mr. Sun can be credited with wooing and winning most of our winter visitors, another motive draws a goodly crowd to these shores. Sun or no, the horsy set in a tradition of dedication makes an annual pilgrimage to Hialeah.

Winners' Circle

They buy homes, bring down their yachts, take apartments or reserve hotel rooms — any plan that will put them a breeze away from the thoroughbreds. To them following the races is like dressing in the morning — they would never think not to.

It's a family tradition, owning, breeding and racing thoroughbreds, a tradition as old as the south itself. Its cradle is Kentucky and its formula the famed blue grass.

And the traditional family reunion, celebrated annually in an aura of nostalgia and festivity, (May 2 this year) is the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs in Louisville.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Combs II are part of that tradition. The Combses own Spendthrift Farm near Lexington but spend part of each winter here for their horses are entered in the Hialeah meet.

Spendthrift itself goes back to the last century when Mr. Combs' great-granfather Daniel Sweigert had 125 acres. Since the Combses acquired that acreage in 1937, they have added parcels from surrounding farms until today they claim roughly 1,200 acres.

The farm lies in the heart of horse country. Dixiana, owned by Charles T. Fisher of Detroit, is across the road. Maxwell Gluck's Elmendorf Farm is nearby. Up the road is Greentree Stable owned by Jock Whitney and his sister Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson. Beyond it the is the C. V. Whitney farm.

The main house at Spendthrift dates back to around 1798. It's a spacious, comfortable white clapboard structure which its builder Hector P. Lewis named Cherry Grove. The Combses re-did it for their own needs, turning it into a perfect specimen of white columned Georgian colonial.

* * *

COME THURSDAY before the Derby, the Combses' guests arrive, filling the six bedrooms and the stone guesthouse which was once the gatehouse on Elmendorf Farm.

Regular guests are Jockey Club members John C. Clark and Daniel G. Van Clief and their wives. Mrs. C. Michael Paul used to stay with them when she was Mrs. Charles Ulrich Bay, and Elizabeth Arden Graham was a regular until she acquired her own Maine Chance Farm.

Churchill Downs is a two-hour drive from Lexington, and for their guests, friends and guests of friends Mr. and Mrs. Combs charter an air conditioned bus. They install a bar and a house boy to tend it, plus box lunches of fried chicken and beaten biscuits for everyone. Guests get out at Cherokee Park on Louisville's outskirts for a picnic if the weather is fair, lunch in the bus at Churchill Downs if it's rainy.

After the races they bus back to Lexington, usually all having dinner in one of the Lexington homes

Little tables dot the shady lawn beside the house. A huge tent spans one end of the garden. Uniformed servants carry trays of tall drinks.

Corn fritters, cheese croquettes, country sausage, creamed chicken, stuffed tomatoes, tiny hot biscuits—all these offer their rich aroma to the fresh spring air. Here is southern tradition.

Mr. Combs

Mrs. Combs

"Special preparations for Derby Weekend? Well, we have to reserve a box, and the bus. I guess that's all," says Mrs. Combs casually.

Many another hostess might worry for weeks ahead about how many hams to lay in, how many chickens to order, at what exact minute to serve the first course, whether the hall flowers look exactly right.

Not Mrs. Combs. Spendthrift Farm cures its own hams, raises its own chickens and runs its own dairy. Not a week passes that the Combses do not have guests, so the house and Mrs. Combs are geared to them.

"I take it very casually, I'm afraid," says the smooth-skinned grey-haired hostess whose warmth makes visitors even to their clubhouse box at Hialeah feel at home, be they old friends or strangers.

Women's Clothes Are By-Passed By Inflation

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — (UPI) — A fashion Day speaker at Florida State University provided women with another excuse for buying new clothes this year.

Ruth Jackendoff of New York, director of the department of economics and statistics of the Wool Bureau, said women's clothing is the least inflated of almost anything on the market.

She said new dresses and accessories for the ladies cost about the same as they did a decade ago, but pointed out men's clothing costs have risen eight per cent since 1948.

And she noted that other prices were greatly increased. Food costs were up 19 per cent in the same period, and rent was up 39 per cent.

'How Can I Break Off Romance With Fiancee?'

DEAR ANN LANDERS:

I've been engaged (without a ring) to a girl for almost a year. For the past six months I've known I don't love her enough to marry her. She is highly emotional, very sensitive and when she turns on the tears I die.

I've spent almost a week writing a farewell letter, but somehow it doesn't come through. I want to be fair and I think the news in the mail would be much easier on both of us.

I'm not a punk kid, Ann, I'm 24 and a senior in law school. If someone came to ME with this problem I'd probably have a ready answer, but when the problem is your own, it's not easy to be objective. Please help me.

—J.N.

I hate to call you a coward, but if you can think of a better name I'll buy it.

If you've been engaged "without a ring" (whatever THAT means) you owe it to the young lady to tell her in person that it's all off. Don't hide behind a 4c stamp. And spare her the grisly details of the new love.

The More Girls, The Merrier

LONDON — Mrs. James Morrison, 47, has given birth to her 20th child in England. Fifteen of her offspring are girls.

"I'm very happy, because the future will be more of a woman's world than anything we've known in the past," she commented.

Every Member Enters Show

The theme of Mt. Sinai Hospital Garden Club's flower show, "Command Performance," can be taken literally. All members are required to enter an exhibit in the show to be held Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Seymour Rubin, 850 Lakeview Dr., Miami Beach.

'What Do I Do With My Rings?'

DEAR AMY VANDERBILT:

"Please advise me if a divorced woman removes her wedding ring and diamond before the divorce or if she can continue to wear them. Also, if she remarries, can she accept the second set of rings?

"If there are children (ages 12 and 14) involved in the second marriage and they are not formally adopted by the second husband what sort of title do they use for him? Please advise me also where I can get more information on the lagal status of a divorced woman as to everyday questions.

—W. S., Tulsa, Okla.

Uusually after divorce a woman removes her wedding ring and her diamond (although she may choose to wear the diamond in some other setting). If she remarries she may, of course, accept the second set of rings. Often children involved in a remarriage call the new parent by his first name, especially if their own father is living.

There is a Perma book, called "Your Legal Advisor For Home and Business" by Samuel G. Kling, which is available where paperback books are sold at 35 cents. It covers the question of divorced people's status.

Reason Enough For a Divorce

ROME — (WNS) — Italian businessman Luigi Baldero dreamed that the numbers 16, 57, 5 and 61 would win the lottery. Next morning he left $1.50 with his wife with instructions for her to play the numbers.

Sure enough, they won and Baldero rushed home expecting to collect $35,000. But Mrs. Baldero had decided that gambling was evil, so she had spent the $1.50 at the beauty parlor instead.

Baldero is now asking for legal separation from a wife who will not be a partner to his dreams.

Why Not Take the Bus?

No car, no date. Is that your rule? It's not that of this week's Herald Teen Panel, which alternates at various Dade county high schools.

Boys didn't know how girls would feel about it. Girls didn't know just how to let the boys know. Today groups of Greater Miami's top teens got together on the problem. Here's what they had to say.

By JEAN WARDLOW
Herald Staff Writer

No car, no date? Don't let it keep you home just because the four wheels you ride may not be your own.

This is a teen problem which has been going on for some time now. Girl have complained. Boys have too. But they just haven't got together about it yet.

Their opinion: It's nice to have a car for a date. But if you don't, don't sit home dateless and mope. Neither the boys nor girls feel it's necessary. But up until now each side just hasn't known how the other side felt.

"There are some boys who don't have a car who feel they shouldn't go out because of it," complained a popular Jackson girl. "They feel they should stay home instead of asking a girl to go out when they can't take her in a car."

She folded her arms defiantly and said, "I think it's silly, they're keeping a lot of girls home just because they think this way."

Other panelists chimed in immediately. It was something they had been thinking about for a long time, you could tell.

"I remember when I was in the 10th grade," a good looking North Miami High boy said. "I didn't have my license yet, naturally, and I was really crazy about a particular girl. She was really popular and a lot of the fellows who asked her out had cars.

"I wanted to ask her for a date, but I didn't just because of that. I felt funny about it then."

He added thoughtfully, "I realize now it was silly because she was certainly a nice girl and wouldn't have hesitated because of something like that.

"But a lot of fellows feel like that."

* * *

Makes a Guy Feel Terrible

ABOUT NOT HAVING a license, another boy added, "Some guys' parents won't let them have one right away. I think it's terrible for a girl to make him feel funny about it.

"Sometimes you'll ask a girl for a date and as soon as you tell her you won't have a car she says, 'Oh, you WON'T?' That really makes a fellow feel terrible, like it was a crime or something."

A girl from North Miami High said, "I think kids are spoiled about things like that. But look what happens when you go away to college. Some places won't let you have cars for a while. And those kids make out all right on dates.

"I don't think boys should feel that they're absolutely necessary," she added. "We don't mind taking the bus sometimes or walking." Other girls nodded agreement.

* * *

'We Walked To The Party'

A POPULAR North Miami High boy said, "I've been on a couple of dates where we walked to a dance (informal) or to a party. And we really enjoyed it."

And he added, "It's my opinion that people who don't have cars are a lot better off sometimes."

And if it's a formal or something special, there's always the old double-date routine (the OTHER fellow has the car) or taking the parents' car.

Of course, it's always plushier to have a car for a date, the panelists agreed. But it's not as essential as oxygen, as some would have you believe.

Behind the Scenes At Miami Parties

THEY DIDN'T GO HUNGRY at a cocktail buffet given by Ann Van Sciver and Olive Wofford at Ann's home in Miami Shores. This table is a sample of the buffet served at large buffet dinners which include hot and cold dishes, salads, and just about anything your heart desires.

NOT PRETTY BUT UTILITARIAN is the garage where, along with the boys' bicycles, the huge folding table is used for mixing salads.

CHRISTENED AND LAUNCHED IN STYLE was Maude and William L. (Mac) McKnight's new 85-foot houseboat, Scotchie III. To give an idea of the liquid refreshment served, here is a picture of the bar set up beside the streamlined yacht. Everything from champagne on down the scale was offered the 200 guests.

Lenten Prayer for Today

'If You Will Grant Me Three More'

By JIM BISHOP

In the Old Testament and the New are some of the most inspired prayers left as legacies to spiritually starving mankind. Some readers will be moved by one prayer, some by another. My personal selection for the greatest of these prayers from the Bible was used daily by my grandmother, Mary Murphy Bishop, and it consists of four words: "Thy Will be Done."

In Christmas week of 1898, three of her children died of diphtheria. When the undertaker and his assistant carried the three white caskets into the house, Grandma came into the room, looked down on each little face impassively, dropped to her knees and lifted her arms to heaven and said, "They Will be Done."

She did not weep. As an afterthought, she said, "If You will grant me three more, I will name them after these, Margaret, Mary, and James." She was granted two more daughters, and she kept her promise. Then her husband died, and she was left with four children. She said the four words again.

It is possible that the prayer would not have meant as much to me had I not heard the story of courage which goes with it. However, I prefer to think that this is not true. Its complete resignation would have appealed to me in any case.

Hannah was the mother of the great Hebrew prophet Samuel. Her song is recalled in the "Magnificat." Hannah was one of the two wives of Elkanah who lived near Shiloh, and being without child she wept before the priest Eli at the temple in Shiloh and prayed.

"And she was in bitterness of soul, and prayed unto the Lord, and wept sore.

"And she vowed a vow, and said, O Lord of hosts, if thou wilt indeed look on the affliction of thine handmaid, and remember me, and not forget thine handmaid, but wilt give unto thine handmaid a man child, then I will give him unto the Lord all the days of his life, and there shall no razor come upon his head."

And the Lord remembered her . . . "she bare a son and called his name Samuel, saying, Because I have asked him of the Lord."

—I SAMUEL 2:1-10.

People-to-People Tour Of Mideast Planned

* * * * * *

Americans of all walks of life are planning to leave May 15 for a month-long tour of three Arab nations, Israel and Turkey to promote a more favorable atmosphere for U.S. objectives. Billed as "an adventure in citizen diplomacy," lawyers will meet with Mideast lawyers, engineers with engineers, doctors with doctors, and so on.

By MILT FREUDENHEIM
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

NEW YORK — A people-to-people citizens mission to the strategic Mideast has been announced here by the American Friends of the Middle East (AFME), a non-profit, nonpolitical organization.

Freudenheim

Private American citizens representing service organizations, businesses, churches and professions will meet with their counterparts in eight major Mideast cities on a month-long tour.

Visiting three Arab nations, Israel and Turkey, the Americans will try to promote "a more favorable atmosphere" among Mideast peoples for consideration of U.S. objectives and aspirations.

They will be briefed by key U.S. diplomats and by government officials of the various countries. But their main mission will be in meeting private citizens of the region who have similar interests and backgrounds.

The trip is billed as "an adventure in citizen diplomacy." The plan is for American lawyers to spend time with fellow Mideastern lawyers, engineers with engineers, doctors with doctors, and so on.

The group will split up for friendly meetings and visits to homes and businesses. Individual members will be guests of leading citizens in five countries.

Public discussion meetings in each city also will be held with American and Mideast speakers discussing and replying to audience questions on issues that have proved upsetting to U.S. good relations with the area.

The "citizen diplomats" will pay their own expenses. They will leave May 15 for Cairo, the United Arab Republic; Beirut, Lebanon; Damascus, U.A.R., Amman and old Jerusalem, Jordan.

Then they are to pass through the Mandelbaum Gate in divided Jerusalem to Israel, where they also will visit Tel Aviv. The trip concludes June 15 after visits to Ankara and Istanbul, Turkey, and Athens, Greece.

Plane's Loss Irks Canadians

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

OTTAWA, Ont.—Has Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, who preached nationalism to win political power, sold Canada's independence down the river?

FLAHERTY

Diefenbaker favors reliance instead on American missiles in Canada's defense bulwark. And this stand, says opponents, means he's put this nation's destiny more firmly than ever in the hands of the U.S.

Diefenbaker's decision was the toughest he has had to make since he became premier nearly two years ago.

It has thrown some 20,000 men out of jobs in an area where his Conservative Party enjoys solid popular support.

It threatens the existence of the Canadian aircraft industry.

Canada has already sunk about 400 million dollars in the Arrow and the Iroquois engine, designed to power it.

Design and production were the job of A. V. Roe Canada, Ltd., a branch of a big English aircraft firm which the former Liberal government induced to come to Canada to form the nucleus of a Canadian aircraft industry.

About five Arrows have been produced and are now flying. Work started about 1953.

Meantime, according to Diefenbaker, the manned bomber, which the Arrow was designed to meet, is becoming less menacing. Intercontinental missiles must be countered with missiles, not manned interceptors.

So instead of the Arrow the government proposes to buy missiles from the U.S. It will equip them with nuclear warheads which will be under the control of the U.S. and accept American financial help in the improvement of the existing radar system.

Air Force and air industry authorities say the Arrow is the most advanced plane in existence. While its speed performance is treated as a secret they claim it can break all records when it is fully operational.

It was a product of which Canadian designers were proud.

It had become a key industry in an area which elected Conservative members to the House of Commons at the recent election. During the campaign Diefenbaker called for more governmental support to the development of advanced manufacturing industries in Canada.

There is no other aircraft business for the Avro plant. So the community is disturbed and unions are talking of organizing a march on Ottawa to protest the cancellation of their jobs.

These facts made the decision to halt Arrow production difficult for the Diefenbaker government. If an election were in the offing, it might bring about Diefenbaker's downfall.

In the long pull, however, the government will probably get away with a move which runs counter to its basic policies.

After all, it is a recognition of the double fact that the defense of North America is a single problem and Canada's partnership with the U.S. has now become indissoluble.

Chaucer Sells High

The manuscript, on 308 leaves of vellum, was written about 1450. It is the work of two professional scribes. It is known as the Brudenell Chaucer Codex since it has been in the possession of the Brudenell family at least since the late 16th Century.

Kraus and another wealthy New Yorker, James Flemming, battled it out for the Codex on the floor of Sotheby's auction rooms. Their bidding opened at $2,240, and other bidders soon dropped out.

All told, some 240 medieval manuscripts and early books came under the auctioneer's hammer. They fetched a total of $136,822.

A HOUSE that lives inward instead of outward is the one designed by Alfred Browning Parker for the Graham Millers of Coconut Grove. Court containing patio and pool is core of this inward living pattern.

Miami Sets the Pace

By Kay Murphy

Herald Decorating Editor

LET THE SCIENTISTS struggle with the problem of outer space. It's the problem of inner space that plagues the homeowner.

Inner space is of the utmost importance to those who prefer urban to suburban living. Acre estates are a rarity within the city limits.

KAY MURPHY

Settling for a smaller plot means "jostling" the neighbors on either side if the most is to be made of site dimensions. That's why it's so important to organize that inner space. It has to be geared to living inward instead of outward.

Because the home designed by Alfred Browning Parker for the Graham Millers stresses this living inward pattern, House Beautiful magazine has chosen the Miller home at 3990 Leafy Way, Coconut Grove, as its pacesetter home for 1959.

This living inward, the magazine feels, is the pattern for the future. When there are no sweeping vistas of landscape outside your home, then an indoor vista must be substituted—unless you like to live in a series of strictly utilitarian "cells."

Patio Is Part of Home

AN INNER COURT supplies the vista in the Miller home. It fills in the elbow of the L-shaped structure housing the living and sleeping quarters.

The court is not a separate entity. Parker treated it as an integral part of the house. The piers which

It's Bigger And Better

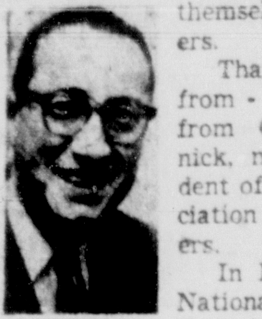
THE HERALD'S Home Section has been recognized as the best in the country. Now it's fast becoming known as the biggest, also. One section couldn't hold all our news and features this week, so we had to spill over into the Sunday Magazine. On Pages 4-G through 9 you'll find a story about the Realtors' national president coming to town, a column about the latest gadgets that make living easier, and a page of pictures that will give you an idea what your home is worth on today's market. Don't miss Part II.

LIKE EVERY other room in the Miller house, the master suite opens onto the court. Suite is linked to the children's rooms by a hall that also overlooks the court. While the court serves as a cooling device, the house can be closed up during "dog days" and air conditioned. There's central heating, too.

How High Can VA Interest Rate Go?

By Frederic Sherman

Herald Real Estate Editor



SHERMAN

IF THE BANKERS in this country don't come through with adequate mortgage money when the VA interest rate goes up to 5¼ per cent, they will brand themselves as real gougers.

In Miami Beach for a National Housing Center directors meeting, Mitnick was free and easy, completely relaxed in his room at the Fontainebleau Hotel. Unlike many national presidents of trade associations, he isn't jittery about not having a staff of press advisers hovering over him to guide answers and deflect questions.

* * *

Sure to Go Up

IT'S A CERTAINTY the VA interest rate will jump a half a percentage point. President Eisenhower has requested it and the staunchest friends of the veteran acknowledge that inflation and the tight supply of money make it impossible to get investors interested in 4¾ VA mortgages. It doesn't do a veteran any good for the government to guarantee a mortgage if the banks and insurance companies won't buy it.

Mitnick realizes this is the same argument that got the VA rate up from 4 per cent and then from 4¼. But he says 5¼ is the limit.

"That's a real fine return on your money when you consider the government is backing it 100 per cent. If the money fraternity tries to discount 5¼ VA mortgages, then the bankers deserve to have the government step in and provide direct loans."

* * *

Veto Lies Ahead

THE COLLINGSWOOD, N.J., builder is confident this will be one of the greatest years for the industry if the omnibus housing bill becomes law. But there's speculation that the House and Senate will produce a measure so far beyond the limits of the Administration budget that President Eisenhower will be forced to veto it.

Mitnick says there is no reason for a veto. But he adds, "If Ike does veto it, he should be overridden." And Mitnick is certain he would be.

"If we don't get a housing bill this year, the VA program will remain dead. The urban renewal program will remain inadequate. Housing for the elderly will be next to nothing. Also hurt badly will be the trade-in program which offers the promise of a step-up in quality for millions of American homeowners."

* * *

Recession Cure

"We put up an additional 285,000 homes last year because of it," he said. "Remember that we were deep in the recession last Spring. It takes one man a year to build a house so we put an extra 285,000 men to work directly. Also, it takes one man a year to manufacture the building materials in a house. And it takes one man a half a year to provide the utilities for a new house.

"That means more than 700,000 men had jobs last year because of the emergency measure—picking up 14 per cent of the unemployed."

All that was done with the special assistance money that propped up mortgage prices for builders in the $13,500 bracket. Mitnick says a 5¼ per cent VA rate will make special assistance funds unnecessary this year.

"But if that VA increase gets knocked out of the bill, then we will have to try for standby legislation for special assistance," he cautions.

* * *

Vital to Florida

IT WILL BE another week before it is certain what will happen to this housing bill that has been denounced by the White House as a "budget buster." The Home Builders Association is opposed to the public housing section, but is going along with it.

Sen. George Smathers knows that three out of seven Florida workers depend directly and indirectly on the homebuilding industry. In this week's newsletter from his Washington office Smathers says: "The housing bill is an investment in America's future. It should not be cut. The home building program is far too important to be lassoed or hog-tied now. I believe we can cut our budget in other places, particularly the water and fat in foreign aid where a total of $3.9 billion is proposed for next year."

Grove Home Sets Pace For Nation

In northern homes, the pool could be eliminated in the court and the area used instead as an indoor garden or greenhouse.

The patio-pool court is ideal for Florida living, especially when a family likes to swim as much as the Millers do. Even the youngsters—Marty, 9, who's her mother's namesake, and Janie, 6, are "water babies." That's why there's no shallow end to the pool. A guard rail's up, though, when the Miller small fry entertain friends.

* * *

Touch of Traditional

SUB-TROPICAL PLANTS make an indoor garden of the patio surrounding the pool. One plant "container" seems out of character, however—unless you know the millers. It's an antique wooden cradle.

Before the Millers moved into their pacesetter house, they were traditional-minded where a home and its furnishings were concerned. They lived in a guest house on the Brickell Avenue estate of Mrs. Miller's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Thomas.

Parker and Miller, an attorney, have been friends for years. And Miller decided long ago that if and when he built a home for his family, Parker was the man to design it.

The Millers found the transition from a traditional background for living no trouble. "The kind of entertaining we do is for a shorts and shirtsleeve crowd," says Mrs. Miller. "We never stand on formality."

The Millers find it easier to pursue their varied interests in the more relaxed atmosphere of a contemporary dwelling. They like to read — and reread their favorite books. Row after row of bookshelves were installed to accommodate their library.

They like to play chess. A small coffee table was designed with chessboard top for this purpose. Miller plays both piano and organ and both instruments were included in the living room furnishings.

Mrs. Miller is active in women's groups, particularly the Junior League. She's now president. This means hostessing committee meetings occasionally. And in her new home she can do it with little effort.

* * *

The Kitchen Can Disappear

WHILE SHE LOVES everything about her contemporary house and its contemporary furnishings—it's the oversized kitchen that pleases her the most.

"Al (Parker) had heard me complain long and loud about how small the kitchen was in our other house. He decided to give me one that's almost as big as the living room."

The kitchen is only slightly smaller—370 square feet compared to the 500 in the living room.

While it was designed to function primarily as an open kitchen, folding panels attached to the island housing refrigerator and freezer and additional panels adjoining the pass-through counter can be utilized to screen parts of the kitchen or make it entirely disappear from the rest of the house.

Every appliance needed for woman's work — cooking and the laundry — is stocked in the kitchen. And for once, Mrs. Miller has more than enough storage space.

* * *

Screen Dome Spills Pattern

SOMETHING DIFFERENT always distinguishes the architecture of a Parker house. The "skylight roof" is among this home's distinguishing features. Instead of stretching screen straight across a framework of wood or metal to keep leaves and insects from drifting down into the court, Parker designed a flat-topped dome of screen supported by a pyramid of X-beams.

This illusion of reaching for the sky is a dramatic device that adds depth to the dimensions of the dwelling.

The dome brings in light which is reflected off the pool. Since all rooms open onto the court, there are no dark corners in the house. And the dome's interesting design makes a pleasing pattern in the pool waters.

Twin roofs are linked to the interior lighting system, too. They're separated by "bands" of clerestory windows that filter in natural light overhead during the daytime. The second roof built at a lower level extends inside to form a ceiling trough that hides the artificial lighting required at night.

* * *

Play Room for Children

THE CLERESTORIES made it possible to install other windows at a higher level — this insuring the family of more privacy.

The 11 piers that surround the court serve another purpose besides structural support. Parker designed them to supplement the routine storage space included in the blueprints.

Everything from luggage to linens and from stereo to swim equipment is stored in these piers, which are finished off inside as meticulously as the rest of the house.

Parker is one of those architects who considers children people, too. To give Marty and Jane more play space, both bedrooms can be opened onto the hallway leading from the master suite to their sleeping quarters—all they have to do is push back the folding doors—and they're pushed back most of the time.

Toy chests were built in under the hall windows that overlook the pool. Tops can be used for games—or the youngsters can drag out the sleeping pads and curl up for their naps.

The two girls have enough storage space now but there's a recessed area in Marty's room that can be closed off when more is needed. Meanwhile chest of drawers suffice.

* * *

Cypress Panels

REINFORCED concrete, steel, cypress and glass are the chief structural materials in the Miller home built by contractor Albert Hallquist at an estimaated cost of $51,500. There are 3,100 square feet in the house. Lot is 125 by 125 feet.

Cypress panels all interior walls, except for tiled bath areas. Floors are terrazzo except in the children's rooms where oak is the flooring material. Louvered doors or folding wood panels close off all openings, except for windows, of course.

Most of the contemporary furnishings are dramed in walnut. And the color scheme is composed of colors that complement the mellow tones of this wood: turquoise blue, a sharp yellow-green and a neutral beige. The blue and green soften into pastels in the children's rooms, however.

Oven's In the Round

PITTSBURGH — The shape of the future in cooking may be the sphere; the material will be aluminum.

These are the predictions of industrial designer Greta Magnusson Grossman, embodied in a spherical aluminum oven, designed for the "forecast" collection of the Aluminum Co. of America.

Mrs. Grossman's oven is a forerunner of ovens to come, a wholly new concept in a preparation, warming, and holding unit for tomorrow's buffet or patio. Its portable lightness and attractive appearance promise to free the oven from its permanent location in the kitchen.

Heat source for the oven could be the conventional calrod electrical resistance unit, newer methods such as infrared or quartzlight, or one of the techniques of tomorrow, such as solar, ultrasonic, or induced heat. Its design is particularly suited to cooking by radiant heat.

The designer describes it as "an oven you can broil and bake in, a secondary oven that can be used at the table. It is round, consisting of two half-spheres circulating around each other. When open, the shelves are fully exposed — a safeguard against finger burns. Its base is a 'four-pod.' The carrying handle also serves to turn the outer shell, opening or closing the oven."

Prototype of the oven was made by Alcoa laboratories in New Kensington, Pa. The two hemispheres comprising the body are drawn and spun aluminum; the base is welded formed sheet; the handle is a casting; and the shelves are woven aluminum wire.

The exterior parts could be finished by any technique and in any color desired. Production models would employ an insulating medium, such as spun glass, between the inner and outer surfaces of the hemispheres.

Immediate advantages of the oven are in its appearance and portability. Alcoa engineers feel that the spherical cooking chamber is at least as efficient as the conventional rectangular oven shape. Future evaluation tests may prove the sphere superior in cooking efficiency.

Greta Magnusson Grossman's career began in Europe. In 1933, she won second prize for furniture design from the Swedish Society of Industrial Design, the first woman ever to win such an award.

Most of Mrs. Grossman's work has been for the furniture industry. Her talent has been represented in the lines of 16 of America's leading furniture houses.

The oven incorporates her feeling that a design "must be right to use." She contrasts this with the many contemporary designs, which, she says, "try to be too many things for too many people."

A design that is functionally honest, Mrs. Grossman feels, "never becomes obsolete." With the oven, she achieved a design that she believes is, "both ultimately functional and pleasing to the eye."

Concrete Blocks Can Solve Your Erosion Problems

If you have a sloping yard and the ground erodes every time it rains, you can help solve this problem by stacking concrete block in tiers on the slope.

Single-core or double-core block are the most popular varieties of new-type concrete masonry units for stacking on a sloping surface. These units can be obtained from any concrete products manufacturer.

To get permanent protection against erosion, you should make a shallow excavation and set the block firmly into the ground, either side by side or in random fashion. Then fill the cores with top soil or gravel to bring them up to grade level.

The block cores make ideal planting "beds" for flowers, shurbs or ivy. Brightly colored gravel, packed in alternate cores, will add interest to your garden.

WE URGE YOU TO COMPARE

The leading builders in Miami have all exclaimed amazement at the values offered in these homes. Before buying any home — check the square foot to dollar ratio of the house you are buying.

No other subdivision can offer these values. This is one of the few tracts of land purchased by a developer before land values skyrocketed in Dade County. These values are passed on to our house buyers rather than to speculative builders.

France's Answer To FHA

By PAUL GHALI
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

PARIS — "A man's house is his own kingdom." So goes a French saying.

GHALI

Every Frenchman cherishes the same dream—to own his own home, however humble. Now, due to President Charles de Gaulle's new "save and credit" system a Frenchman will soon be in a position to buy himself that home, or build one if he prefers.

Under one of the latest of DeGaulle's 300 ordinances, any Frenchman with savings of between $800 and $2,500 can become a homeowner.

Here's the way the system works: Savings, placed in a special "proprietors' fund," are automatically doubled by a long-term loan from the government and increased by 3 per cent yearly interest. Thus, if you have $2,000, it automatically becomes worth $4,000.

With this in hand, the Frenchman becomes eligible to request another long-term loan this time from France's Land Bank, the "credit foncier." The one condition is that he needs the money to purchase a house or apartment and that the purchase is approved by the state.

He will have 20 years to repay the "credit foncier" loan and an indefinite time — as long as it took him to save the initial sum of money he put into the transaction — to repay the state.

GOLDEN BOY is Tom Quinn of Fitchburg, Mass., one of 30 workers assigned to gold plate Georgia's Capitol in Atlanta. Gold for the job is mined near Dahlonega in North Georgia.

KEEP AN EAGLE eye on the eagle as an Early American motif in home furnishings. Here it's incorporated in a lamp base. Eagle has a metal finish and "roosts" on a cherry wood cylinder. Shade has tortoise shell design. Westwood of Paterson, N.J., makes it.

Plastic Age In Building Lies Ahead

CHICAGO —(UPI)— The "plastic age" in architecture is almost upon us and sales of construction plastics alone should amount to $2 billion by 1966, according to Felix N. Williams, vice president of Monsanto Chemical Co.

This would be equivalent to last year's total sales of plastics for all purposes, the Monsanto executive said.

He said last year's volume of construction plastic and resin products was over $500 million, or 3 per cent of total building materials sales. His 1966 sales forecast for these materials would amount to about 10 per cent of projected building material sales in that year.

Old and New To Be Offered At Home Show

Devices which have lightened household drudgery for the last 100 years will go on display at the 14th annual Miami Home Show, opening March 29.

The Home Maker's Museum at the Dinner Key Auditorium, will feature the granddaddy of the modern kitchen cabinets, an early 18th century sewing machine, ancient spinning wheels, looms, stoves, churns, cooling devices.

The home show, presented by the Miami Board of Realtors, will be open free to the public from 2 to 10 p.m. It will run eight days, March 29 through April 5.

Persons wishing to display some 19th century labor-saving device should contact Roger Herndon, 1517 duPont Building.

There is no entry fee, and a prize will be awarded the owner of the item which is judged most interesting and unique.

The Home Maker's Museum will be a contrast to the rest of the home show, which will display the most modern conveniences put out by more than 120 firms.

Tile Your Door To Still Noises

(Readers with questions on the maintenance and repair of the home may receive answers by addressing The House Doctor, care of The Herald. Please limit letters to one question and enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.)

ACOUSTIC TILES WILL SOUNDPROOF A DOOR

METAL TRIM PROTECTS AND DECORATES TILES
FELT WEATHERSTRIP IS USED AT BOTTOM.

DEAR MR. BAUM:

I rent a room in my home to a young couple; very nice people but not always as quiet as they should be. Their quarrels frequently run far into the night. Their room is across a narrow hall from my own. Perhaps there is some way to make the doors more soundproof so they can conduct their fights without disturbing me. Mrs. W. S. W.

ANSWER — The story of a woman who would rather sleep than listen to another couple engage in a domestic brawl taxes the ability to accept the implausible as fact, but no doubt too much of that can become wearisome just like the time I lived upstairs over an accordion player whose repertoire consisted of hillbilly music. I overcame the problem by moving to Boston.

You can soundproof the door to your room by a method often used in doctors' offices to squelch the town's most productive source of gossip. This is to cover one face of the door with acoustic tiles to absorb the noise.

The tiles are the same types that are attached to walls and ceilings to lower the noise level in a room. They are placed on the side of the door toward the source of noise, which, in your case would be the side facing the hall.

Tiles should cover as much of the door as possible. Usually, three vertical rows are necessary. One row is placed astride the centerline of the door and the other two rows are trimmed as necessary to fill in the remaining area. The usual method for attaching the tiles is with small wood screws through the perforations in the corners.

Once the tiles are in place, a stock metal trim can be tacked to the door around the edges of the tiles to protect them from damage. In some instances, it may be necessary to bevel the edge of the tile around the hole that is cut for the door knob so as to allow finger space to turn the knob.

On panel doors, it will be necessary to fit pieces of plywood within the panels so as to form a level surface for attaching the tiles.

Weatherstripping the door will add to the soundproofness of the installation. For the sides and top, the best and easiest material to use is a coil of cylindrical sponge rubber with a tab protruding from the circumference. The rubber is pressed firmly against the door and fastened in place with small tacks through the tab. For the bottom of the door, use a type weather stripping that consists of a brass strip attached to thick felt. The felt should press against the threshhold when the door is closed.

How to Repair Asphalt Tile

DEAR MR. BAUM:

I have moved into a house where the floors are covered with asphalt tile. Several of the tiles are damaged and should be replaced. How is this done? P. G.

ANSWER—First, you must get tiles to match those that are damaged. Then, borrow or buy a gasoline blowtorch or a propane gas torch. Heat the damaged tiles but be careful not to set them ablaze or you will have more damage or repair than you bargained for. Use an old wood chisel or a sturdy putty knife to pry the old tiles from the floor. They come off easily when hot.

Now all you have to do is to turn the torch on the old cement on the floor to soften it slightly, then drop the new tile into place. You should have a few extra tiles handy because of the possibility that you will damage one or two sound tiles while attempting to remove the bad ones.

Four Quick Answers

QUICK ANSWERS to some queries from constant readers:

M. A. R. — Vinyl asbestos tile is tops for covering a concrete slab. Perhaps the workman used the wrong adhesive which could account for your trouble.

Mrs. J. L. — Special paint that does not crack is available for awnings. Some small paint stores may not have it yet.

Mrs. C. M. — Use the yeast for making home-made rolls. It is wasted when used for a septic tank.

J. O. W. — Yes, we know that carbon-tet is poisonous. That is why we suggested its use for carpenter ants. Our inquirer wanted to kill the ants—not bathe them.

* * *

Sand Finish Is Cheaper

DEAR MR. BAUM:

Why did the builders put sand in the paint that they used on the walls inside my new home? It certainly is a nuisance when it comes to washing such walls. Mrs. L. B.

ANSWER — The painter did not add the sand to the paint. The wall was given that rough sand finish when it was plastered. This was done because this finish costs much less than a smooth finish.

* * *

Make Builder Do It Right

DEAR MR. BAUM:

The specifications for my new home call for termite shields, but the builder is omitting them. He says that the treated lumber makes them unnecessary. Is this true? I. C. P.

ANSWER — An improperly installed termite shield is worse than none at all. Even one that is correctly made does not give assured protection, but it does force the termites to build their shelter tubes in the open where they can be seen and broken. For this reason, you should demand that the builder comply with the specifications. The use of pressure-treated wood is also no guarantee of immunity from termite attacks but it is just another of the precautions that should be taken.

Apartments Bring 'em Back to Town

By HENRY J. BECHTOLD
United Press International

NEW YORK — Apartment houses have been stealing the spotlight from new homes the past few years — partly through a disillusionment with suburbia — and this popularity is expected to last at least through the early 1960s.

What happens after that is only a guess, but if the anticipated huge increase in family formations comes true, apartment builders should find the next decade very pleasant.

Last year, apartment house building soared more than 40 per cent to about 190,000 units, and accounted for 17 per cent of the total housing market—its biggest share since 1951.

The reasons behind this upsurge are many: Increased population, slum clearance programs, cooperatives, and desire of suburbanites to move back to the city, among other things.

Slum clearance programs and lower income families have swallowed up the new low rent apartments, of which there are not nearly enough to go around. Builders tend to shy away from the lower rent apartments because of the lower profit angle.

Cooperative apartments have become popular mainly because of FHA-backed mortgages. A small cash down payment is needed and payments over the long run usually are lower than renting.

A new and important stimulus to apartment building is the switch back to the city by many suburbanites, according to New York apartment builder Melvyn Kaufman.

The no maintenance feature of apartments is the biggest factor behind this switch, Kaufman said. The lower operating costs compared with home ownership also is an attraction.

In addition, many middle-aged couples who have raised their children in the suburbs have decided that the big city with all its conveniences is a more desirable place to spend their remaining years together, the builder stated.

Kaufman claims apartment builders today are giving more value per dollar than in any period since the late 1920's.

All the rooms of new apartments, particularly the luxury type, are extra large and are loaded with closets, he noted. A typical four-room Kaufman apartment now has six closets, and a family apartment of five to seven rooms sometimes has as many as eight closets.

This extra closet space is an inducement to the women, Kaufman said, because they are the ones you have to make the sales pitch to, not the men. Modern efficient kitchens also are a big selling point.

And it's not only the cities that are experiencing this apartment boom. Garden apartments—usually for two or three families—are sprouting up in the nearby suburbs for those who do not want the responsibility of a house but still want suburbia's atmosphere.

There have been reports that the apartment house boom has resulted in over-building in some areas, thereby forcing some builders to give concessions of one to two months free rent. This is done by builders of new apartment houses to enable them to fill up their houses quicker and sell them to investors sooner than they normally would.

BUILD IT YOURSELF WITH CRAFT PATTERNS

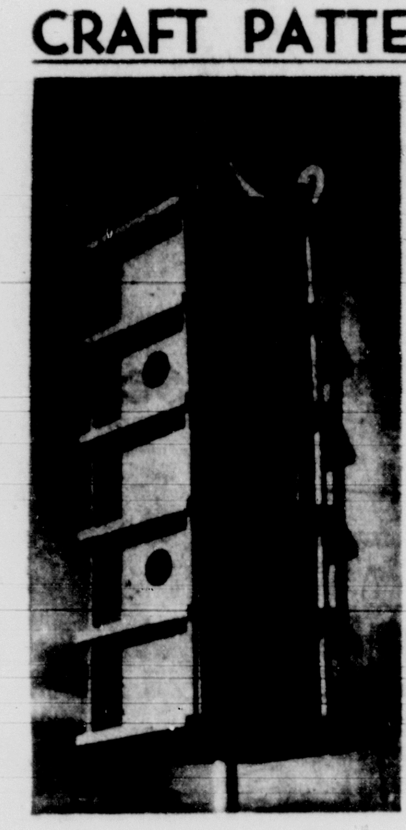
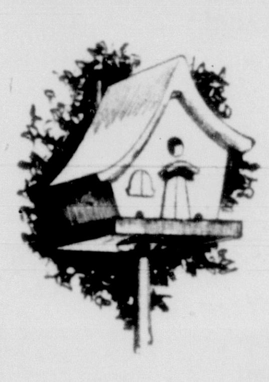
BY A. NEELY HALL

For a Bird Garden



315 A FIFTEEN-ROOM MARTIN TOWER

★ Here is a really different type of martin house. Mounted high in your yard, the picturesque, six-sided tower will provide roomy housing for a martin colony. If you paint it white, it will sparkle in the sunshine and add a touch of distinction to your yard. Or, if you prefer, you may use a combination of pastel colors. Each story is provided with its own runway, and its Oriental top, reminiscent of the Taj Mahal, will serve as a perch. The house is 52" tall and 21½" wide and can be built from a 4 x 8 panel of ¼" exterior plywood, 1 x 1's, and dowels. Craft Pattern 315 shows full-sized curves and assembly of parts for this 15-room house.



306 A FAIRY STORY WREN HUT

314 A THIRTEEN-ROOM MARTIN HOUSE

★ You will have something different in a martin house if you follow this design. Its two stories are laid out in modern style with seven rooms in the first story and six in the second. Wide projections of the base and second story decks provide continuous runways, and there is a perch on the roof for the martin posted as lookout. Provision has been made for opening the compartments for an annual cleaning. Complete working drawings on Craft Pattern 314, some full size, make this a simple project.

★ Send 35 cents each for the Craft Patterns 306, 314, and 315. Send $1.50 each for the Home Cabinets Packet (22 patterns), Bird House Packet (17 patterns), Junior Jig-saw Packet (19 patterns), Senior Jig-saw Packet (21 patterns); 25 cents for illustrated catalog of more than 850 Craft Patterns available.

Home Buyers Grow Younger

By EDWARD COWAN
United Press International

WASHINGTON—The typical metropolitan buyer of a single-family house is described in a savings and loan industry report as 37 years old and earning about $7,300 a year.

He paid $17,100 for a six-room dwelling—$6,000 in cash and with an $11,100 mortgage loan.

Such is the statistical profile of home buyers using conventional savings and loan financing in 22 metropolitan areas across the nation as reported by the U.S. Savings and Loan League.

The age of the typical single-family house buyer using savings and loan financing has been declining, a sign of rising prosperity and of lower down payments.

Still another reason, the study notes, may be that suburban developments, which now account for the bulk of new home-building activity, are more attractive to younger couples.

Sixty-two per cent of new home buyers with savings and loan mortgage were under 40 years of age and 52 per cent of buyers of existing houses fell into this category. Although the average age of all buyers was 37 years, for those purchasing a home for the first time it was closer to 30.

Half of all conventional mortgage borrowers in 1957 had family incomes under $7,300 and 56 per cent of them fell into the $5,000-$9,000 annual income bracket.

Families buying new homes tend to have bigger incomes than families buying existing houses. Only 10 per cent of new home buyers reported incomes below $5,000 annually compared with 18.5 per cent for buyers of existing homes.

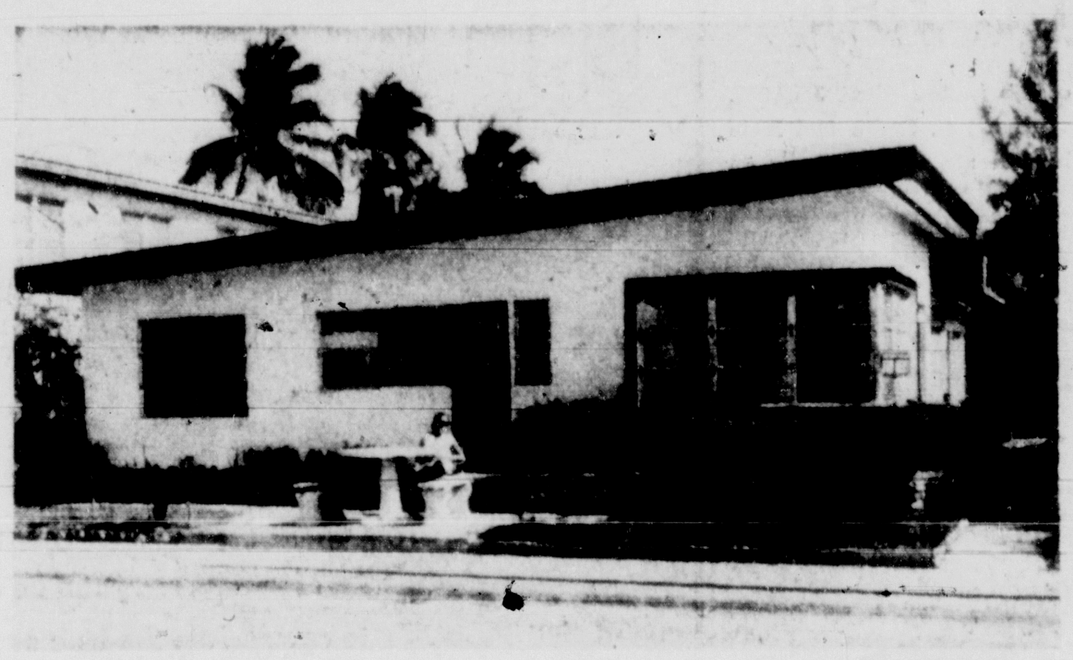
Expressed somewhat differently, 61 per cent of families buying new houses had incomes over $7,000. But families in that income bracket accounted for only 49 per cent of the buyers of used houses.

The League's survey of 7,000 buyers also found houses selling from $2,000 to $1,000,000 with those in the $12,000-$20,000 bracket accounting for 55 per cent of the total. Those under $25,000 accounted for 86 per cent of the total.

Half of all houses financed conventionally by savings associations sold for $17,107 or less.

New homes were reported as more costly than existing properties. Half of all new houses sold for $18,582 (and half for more) compared with a median price on existing houses of $15,602.

Nearly 45 per cent of buying families with incomes under $4,000 bought homes priced below $12,000 and 43 per cent of those in the $4,000-$6,000 class bought homes valued at less than $14,000. In the $10,000-plus income class, one out of two home buyers purchased a house costing $24,000 or more.



APARTMENT HOUSE with six furnished units has been sold by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Goodman to Mr. and Mrs. Leon Fayans for $47,500. The building is located at 7815 Byron Ave. David Gross of Harold J. Segal's office sold it.

REAL ESTATE SALES MANAGER

One of St. Petersburg's outstanding builders is in immediate need of a sales manager. Now has under construction over one hundred homes near two major shopping centers and anticipates starting another hundred homes shortly.

Sales effort is backed up by heavy advertising program and lavishly furnished and landscaped model homes.
F.H.A. financing is the most lenient available with down payments from $290.00 to $690.00. Homes range in price from $12,390.00 to $15,495.00. Registrations amount to approximately two hundred each week.

Broker's license is not necessary; however you must be a licensed real estate salesman.

This position requires an aggressive, hard-hitting, high-pressure salesman who has had vast experience as a closer.

Must be able to employ and train sales personnel.

Replies will be kept strictly confidential.

Friend Speaks For Architects

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Desinger Paul McCobb has complained about architects who draw blueprints for homes without worrying now people are going to live in the space.

From The Mailbag

REAL ESTATE EDITOR The Herald: In answer to the article by Vivian Brown in the Sunday Herald in which she quotes Paul McCobb's tirade against architects. First, who is this man? We never heard of him.

A designer of furniture would not be expected to know much about architecture. He may think he knows, but alas how he fails to understand architects.

From the times of the ancients, during the Middle Ages and during our lifetime, we have always had scores of good architects whose education required many years of training and whose creations were not developed with the aid of a few toothpicks, but were the result of inborn talent and hard work.

We take issue with Mr. McCobb on the matter of imagination. Many of the present day architects have too much imagination.

It may well be that another generation will return to at least some use of the "orders," but discussion of this phase of architecture is too involved for a short article like this one.

It has been said that a well trained architect knows what he knows, knows what he does not know, but knows where to get what he does not know and knows enough to use that.

He will not put the furniture designer out of business since he has far more problems to work out in his own field.

It may be that the so-called profession of architecture is the least understood one. His relations with client and builder are complicated.

One handicap the architect has is difficult to cope with—the expanding cost of all construction work. If the kitchen is too small it may be the client preferred a large living room to a large kitchen.

Gables to Get 12 More Units

A 12-unit apartment house will be built on Antilla Ave., between Douglas Rd. and Galiano St., Coral Gables by Gary I. Salzman, who also owns the property. H. L. Keck is the architect on the $58,000 job. Engineers are Weiss and Hertz.

They'll Tackle The Specifics

Metal windows will be discussed at Monday's meeting of Miami Chapter of the Construction Specifications Institute.

Time is 7:30 p.m.; the place, the University Room of the Dupont Plaza Hotel.

"The Truth About FLORIDA"
Says About
LAKEWOOD PARK
A Suburb Of Ft. Pierce and Vero Beach, Florida

"LAKEWOOD PARK, at Fort Pierce, is one of the outstanding developments in Florida and well worth study. Here is what I consider the best argument for good planning and zoning, where no honky tonk will be erected to cheapen the property next door. Here we find a strong code on drainage and street construction is enforced.
Nineteen beautiful artesian spring fed lakes are reserved for the exclusive use of property owners as well as acres of parks. Barbecue pits, shuffleboard courts, a community center is provided for good neighbor recreations, zestful living. Lakewood Park is strategically located off the S.E. coast of Florida, just ten minutes to Vero Beach, or Fort Pierce and fifteen minutes to Atlantic Ocean Beaches.
This development in my opinion offers one of the best homesite buys in Florida. I find many homes already completed and under construction. I am informed that the development is approved for mortgage loans by local Federal Savings and Loan Associations and also by a large Florida Insurance Company."

Playing in the sand and sun at Fort Pierce, just 15 minutes from beautiful LAKEWOOD PARK.

- Situated on high, dry, beautifully wooded parkland. All buildable land.
- All city conveniences as close as Ft. Pierce and Vero Beach 10 to 15 minutes away.
- Year-'round swimming, sun bathing, gardening and fishing practically in your own backyard. Enjoy many gay social events at the "Lakewood Park" Village Hall.
- World's finest fishing in the Atlantic Ocean and Indian River just 15-20 minutes away.
- Served by bus lines, air lines, Florida East Coast Railroad.
- No Florida inheritance, gift or state income tax. Tax on your homesite will be approximately $1.50 per year. Homestead exemption up to $5,000.
- Over 3,000 Homesites Sold—All homes are sold with full NAHB warranty.
- 110 occupied homes—many other homes now under construction for early delivery.
- Money-back guarantee to permit you to inspect your property.
- 50 miles of roads, 23 spring-fed fresh water lakes, and acres of beautiful parks completed and now in use.
- Many lakes stocked with blue gill, bream and black bass by the Florida State Game and Fish Commission.
- Approved for first mortgage loans by three major lending institutions.
- Lakewood Park, Edmund Brant, President, is a member of the Fort Pierce and Vero Beach Chamber of Commerce, and the National Association of Home Builders.

!!IMPORTANT NOTICE!!
The fact that more than 3000 homesites have been sold in LAKEWOOD PARK, for a volume in excess of 3½ million dollars, in the first 10 completed and recorded sections is incontestable proof of the stability and permanent investment values of this established community. We would be remiss in our obligation to Florida area residents if we did not point out that the final 2 units are now being offered for sale in LAKEWOOD PARK, Florida. This property contains some of the finest wooded terrain in the entire development. These are the last homesites to be offered for sale in this deluxe and highly desirable community. But Her New President Rules a Troubled Land

Venezuela Starts on Road to Reform

Modern Government Buildings in Caracas Contrast With a Hacienda on the Venezuelan Llanos

By NIXON SMILEY
Herald Staff Writer

Two weeks ago, as a result of the first free elections in 10 years, Romulo Betancourt took the oath of office as president of Venezuela.

Significantly, however, steel-helmeted troops with fixed bayonets stood watch as Betancourt was inaugurated, for the new chief of state takes over a country torn with discontent.

Venezuela, our best customer and most important supplier in Latin America, is in trouble. Here's why:

UNEMPLOYMENT is on the increase, with resulting discontent. A month ago, some 15,000 rioters demanding jobs marched on the Presidential Palace, screaming, "We want work! We can't live without jobs!" They were stopped in a club battle with police and troops.

BETANCOURT'S election over popular Rear Adm. Wolfgang Larrazabal was unexpected in the U.S. and he faces political opposition. There have been reports of "disgruntled Jiminez men on the prowl" and the Communists, an active force in Venezuelan politics, have been fomenting trouble.

Typical is an incident in the town of El Consejo, near Caracas, where some 500 persons attacked a police station with gunfire and home-made bombs a few weeks ago when police tried to arrest a man for drunkenness. Authorities said the circumstances indicated the incident and the prompt attack were well organized.

THE SUCCESSFUL overthrow of Dictator Perez Jiminez led the people to expect rapid improvement in their economic status. This has not materialized.

DESPITE the spectacular building program in Caracas and the super-expensive super-highways, little has been done to improve the lot of the average worker and of the farmer in the back country.

How did a nation endowed with such a wealth of mineral resources get into the situation it finds itself in today? Why, in a country which has one of the highest per capita incomes in Latin America, is there so much poverty? What's going on behind the glittering facades of the costly modern buildings that make up the fabulous capital city of Caracas?

* * *

Four Causes for Trouble

MOST of the nation's troubles are usually laid to four causes: 1. Perez Jiminez, who put the country in its rocky financial condition; 2. Growing pains of expanding economy; 3. Short-sighted planning of former government leaders; 4. Foreign interests.

Venezuela's new president hopes to implement programs to solve his nation's problems, but he cannot do it overnight.

The seat of the unrest is in the capital city of Caracas, and the reasons reach back some years into the past. About one-fifth of the population of Venezuela — a country as large as all the Southeastern states put together — live in Caracas.

To a visitor seeing the city for the first time, there is all the hustle and bustle one would find in any other great city of the world. It is a showplace of architecture, with ultra-modern government buildings, block after block of massive apartment houses, great super-highways.

Mob violence seems out of place in such magnificent surroundings — but it exists.

Falls on Caroni River Have High Potential for Hydroelectric Power

It was much the same when I visited Venezuela during the dictatorship of Jiminez, who fled the country a year ago when his government fell in the face of an unhappy and violent populace.

Caracas was in the midst of a great construction boom. Thousands of penniless countrymen poured into the city in search of jobs. They congregated on hills overlooking the city and built their filthy villages of any kind of scrap materials that would keep out the rain.

To take care of the increasing numbers, the government spent millions to build skyscraper apartment structures that looked much like a dream of Frank Lloyd Wright. But as one mass of humans moved from a hillside and had their huts flattened and burned, unsanitary villages were springing up in other places about the city.

Thus when the city of Caracas had reached a million population, its housing problem was still about as great as it was in 1952, when the building boom got under way.

* * *

One Needs to Be Prosperous

IN THE MEANTIME, the government was building tremendous highways, including one publicized throughout the world because of its cost of $7,000,000 a mile. And where in 1950 one had only a little more than a cow trail to drive from Caracas to the former capital city of Maracay, by 1957 the government had built a modern four-lane "autopista," where traffic speeds at 60 miles an hour.

It is now possible for a prosperous resident of Caracas to drive to the Maracay bullfights in the afternoon and return home in time for dinner. But this doesn't help the average worker.

And one needs to be prosperous in Venezuela. For inflation has swept in like a torrent and has carried all values before it. One has to be a millionaire to build a home that would cost $30,000 in Miami. (A spot of land in Caracas big enough to build a house would cost this much.)

Workmen earn $3 a day, when they work. This is hardly enough to pay rent and to buy beans and rice.

As the government began to catch up with its building programs, thousands of persons found themselves out of work, and without funds to pay for either beans or rent.

* * *

Back Country Backward

WHILE the government was spending millions to build Caracas into a modern, world-famous city, what was happening in the back country?

I had an opportunity to see for myself during a 1,200-mile trip across Venezuela, including the expansive and unforgettable plains known as the Llanos.

Except for oil-stimulated property in some areas, the majority of the back country appeared to be about as poor and as backward as it must have been at the time of Dictator Gomez, who died in 1935 after 27 years of iron-thumbed rule.

The little villages along the road to Ciudad Bolivar on the river Orinoco were shabby places, where people lived on dirt floors and usually beneath thatched roofs.

The city of El Tigre with a population of 30,000 was little better. There was small evidence of government spending to improve streets, public buildings or schools. Thus an important communications center in the heart of the Llanos was left in utter neglect by the government.

Nor did the more attractive city of Ciudad Bolivar show any signs of having been favored by the government in its vast spending program.

Few Efforts to Help Farmers

FEW SERIOUS efforts were being made to assist the countryman. Experiment stations, as we know them in the U.S., didn't exist.

I did visit a modern experiment station in northern Venezuela, but it was operated by one of the big oil companies. The government could take no credit for it.

Venezuelans with whom I talked were proud of their capital city of Caracas. But the more enlightened ones were worried about the lack of concern over the produc-

State Department Too Used to 'Personal Diplomacy'

Dulles' 1-Man Rule May Hamper Successor

The task of finding a successor to cancer-stricken Secretary of State Dulles may be complicated by his long regime of one-man diplomacy. Here's an informed closeup of the problem by a Pulitzer Prize-winning reporter.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON—The office which John Foster Dulles has occupied in the State Department for six years is a huge paneled room that can easily accommodate 50 or 60 people at stand-up ceremonies and seat two dozen in comfort.

Hightower

Dulles' old office in New York's Wall Street was far more suitable for him. It was small, even cramped by comparsion. Just room enough for one man to work easily.

Dulles, an associate once said, is not "an organization man." He has been much closer to a 19th Century rugged individualist than to a 20th Century corporation executive or committee chairman. This has occasionally been hard on his subordinates and it may well have narrowed the intellectual springs from which U.S. foreign policy must be derived.

One effect of Dulles' management of foreign policy has been to create a fresh concern within the State Department and among outside experts over operating the place as a one-man show.

The problem is most sharply seen in terms of Dulles' eventual successor. No one else can bring to the job the same combination of almost inexhaustible energy, huge resources of experience and a driving ambition to make his place in history through the medium of foreign policy and diplomacy.

There is no one currently in sight whose career has given him quite so much know-how in international affairs and whose interest would make a hobby of the job. Anybody else probably would have to take a weekend off occasionally.

* * *

More Consultation

THE PRESSURE in the post-Dulles State Department will inevitably be to work more through committees, to engage in greater consultation and to widen responsibility. Dulles seemed incapable of taking such steps. He had always worked alone, even when he seemed to be working with other people — as he worked with the late Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan and with Secretary of State George C. Marshall to put the North Atlantic Treaty into operation just 10 years ago.

His most spectacular achievement before succeeding Dean Acheson in the executive office at the State Department was negotiation of a Japanese peace treaty. Dulles had highly qualified professional assistance, but he designed and ran the operation and worked closely with one man, Ambassador John M. Allison, then a Far Eastern expert and now ambassador to Czechoslovakia.

Acheson had authorized the undertaking and in fact had made use of Dulles' talents as a bipartisan figure in the Democratic administration on several other occasions.

* * *

Work Differently

THIS WAS ONE of the striking differences between the two men. Both had been subjected to appraisal that they were ambitious, tough-minded, sometimes arrogant in quite different ways, impatient with inferiority and subordinates. But Acheson, as secretary of state, had the capacity to delegate tasks to others and to command a high quality of performance from them which Dulles never developed.

Acheson's recommendations to Truman were usually, if not always, the decisive element in the president's foreign policy actions.

So far as is known, Dulles' recommendations to President Eisenhower have always been decisive elements in the President's determination of policy.

But where Acheson drew strength from expert advisers in his own department, Dulles has generally played a lone hand.

Acheson, for example, frequently consulted with such diverse personalities as Soviet expert George F. Kennan, later ambassador to Moscow; Paul Nitz, onetime New York investment banker who served under Acheson as director of the policy planning staff; Douglas MacArthur II, now ambassador to Spain; and Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen, Soviet expert and later ambassador to Moscow, whom Dulles eventually sent to the Philippines.

Dulles has relied heavily on very few people for basic policy information and advice. He sought the opinions of Herman Phleger, international law authority from the West Coast, and of Robert Bowie, who headed his policy planning staff for a while. But he relied most consistently on Assistant Secretary of State Livingston T. Merchant, director of the State Department's European Bureau, and he has depended on Assistant Secretary Walter Robertson for advice on Far Eastern affairs.

* * *

Which Method Best?

AMONG the experts and planners in government there is an unsettled argument over the relative merits of the lone-wolf technique and the "organization man" system.

Some combination of the two is what practical administrators in government usually aim at, but everything depends on the man at the head of the operation.

One problem for Dulles' successor — whenever he takes over — undoubtedly will be to try to bring other and diverse minds into the circle of his advisers and encourage them to come up with bold and original thinking. It will also be to delegate responsibility, something Dulles has succeeded only partially in doing.

There has been more consultation in Dulles' administration within the state department than it has been possible to publicize. But there is no question that Dulles has dominated these consultations from the first day.

Even with the finest talent available, critics say, such a system of one-man control discourages initiative on the part of other high officials.

Dulles' impulse to do everything himself — he has written all his own speeches and most of his official statements, for example — may be one of the reasons why the secretary has sometimes laid himself open to criticism of insufficient planning and "crisis diplomacy."

It seems difficult, critics have noted, for one man and a handful of advisers — a small group — to command the resources necessary for dealing with today's crises and simultaneously anticipating and trying to avert the crises coming next month or next year.

Ike, The 'Chief,' Now Is Beginning To Act The Part

Views On The News:

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER, frequently a faltering leader, was a take-charge President at last Wednesday's press conference.

As noted by Edwin A. Lahey, the unimpressionable bureau chief of the Knight Newspapers, "Ike's eyes were hard; the chin tilted just a little; and the words were spat out in unequivocal terms on matters of vital importance to every soul in the U.S.A."

When questioned about the conflicting claims and views on Capitol Hill concerning our national defense, the President made it abundantly clear that he wasn't tipping his hat to anyone on that subject.

KNIGHT

"I think I am more able," snapped the President, "than any one of those individuals of whom you speak to make an overall decision on behalf of the U.S. in this matter, because I again assure you that just spending money does not make us stronger.

"Someone has to make the decision. That happens to be the commander in chief."

This was the old Ike, the supreme commander of our victorious forces in Europe, the leader who hammered harmony into the Allied command, the decisive general who tolerated no back biting in SHAEF.

Even the cynical correspondents, accustomed as Lahey has said, "to hearing Eisenhower wander leisurely while his subjects get separated from their predicates," experienced a measurable wave of pride in hearing the President lay it on the line.

* * *

Popularity Isn't All

IT WAS GOOD to see the President "violating," as he put it, his "own conception of humility and modesty."

It has often been stated here that Americans have tremendous respect for a President who leads.

In these times, it is not enough to be a popular President.

The great issues which we face—notably the Berlin crisis—are now testing our diplomatic skills and resoluteness as seldom before.

The President's position on Berlin has been admirably firm but never intransigent.

He seeks opportunities to negotiate "when the other person will give us the slightest area in which to negotiate," but adds that "we are not going to give one single inch in the preservation of our rights, and of discharging our responsibilities . . . in Berlin."

On such a premise, the country will give the President its full support for this is leadership without bluster, statesmanship without rigidity.

* * *

We'd Like To Hear Him

IN THE NEARLY TWO YEARS that remain of Eisenhower's tenure of office, there are two areas in which he may retrieve a lost leadership and perform the greatest public service of his career.

As Ike has said, he is "more able to speak . . . in this matter . . . than any one of those individuals" who have been critical of the Defense Department.

The point is, however, that he should "speak" more often and use his authority when and where it is needed.

True, we have made some impressive advances in weapons since Russia's Sputnik jolted us out of our complacency. But there is indisputable evidence that the United States is lagging behind Russia in certain types of missile development.

The President, by spending two hours a day at the Pentagon, could give effective direction to our program and cut some of the feuding bureaucrats down to size.

In that way, we might get a stronger defense establishment and fewer windy speeches from the military brass on how we can clobber Russia any day before breakfast.

* * *

He Can Lead The West

THE SECOND AREA in which the President can, and occasionally does, perform brilliantly is in the field of personal diplomacy.

As shown by his recent visit to Mexico, the President's friendliness and warmth goes far to allay fears and suspicions.

He has a natural grasp of the diplomatic arts; an intuitive feel of personalities and situations.

With Secretary Dulles gravely ill, the President's determination not to name a successor places the burdens of statecraft upon his own shoulders.

For instance, something more is needed than the second echelon of the State Department to represent the United States when the Western powers meet in April in celebration of the 10th Anniversary of the North Atlantic treaty.

With Khrushchev's ultimatum on Berlin expiring May 27, the NATO meeting could be the hour when the Western leaders may have to take the important policy decisions which mean war or peace.

With Khrushchev playing a tough and uncompromising game on Berlin in an effort to split the Allies, President Eisenhower is the one world leader who can forge unity and convince the Russian premier that we are not bluffing.

Reports of Eisenhower's press conference say the President was "firm and articulate" as he assumed personal leadership of U.S. foreign policy.

That was indeed welcome news.

Modesty and humility are attractive qualities.

But a world bullied by Khrushchev and his kind has a better chance of survival when the man who "happens to be commander in chief" begins to act like one as he did last Wednesday.

MORE PEOPLE, LESS MONEY

SOUTH FLORIDA'S perfect weather should have produced a record season but there is considerable moaning and groaning from some of the motel and hotel people.

The Miami area, for instance, is feeling the competition from Nassau, Jamaica, Puerto Rico and other island resorts.

Ease of air travel and the urge to find new and more glamorous attractions elsewhere have cut into the Gold Coast luxury tourist trade.

Miami Herald circulation figures prove there are more people in its circulation territory than ever before. But one sees fewer of the big bettors at Hialeah's $50 and $100 windows and not so many heavy spenders at the night clubs.

Granting that the strip from Miami Beach to Fort Lauderdale has been overbuilt with tourist accommodations, the number of permanent residents is constantly rising.

In the long run, Southeast Florida will prosper more through the growth of its year 'round population than by anchoring its economy to the tourist season.

With the best winter climate in the United States, South Florida will always get its share of tourists, too.

Provided, of course, that hotel operators come to the realization that while people are spending less, they still like to be treated as guests.

Former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy is certain his son, Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts, will be nominated by the Democrats for the Presidency and is equally sure Jack will win the election . . . Another major contender, Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, is elated over being the majority choice of Congress for the same honor . . . But there's always Adlai, gentlemen.

Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who is asking $277 million in new taxes, provoked this comment from one New York Republican leader:

"I never thought his popularity could drop so far so fast . . . If Rockefeller were running today, he'd lose the state by 1,000,000 votes instead of winning by almost 600,000."

Rockefeller concedes that no one dances in the streets over higher taxes . . . and fewer people, we might add, are now trying to waltz Rocky into the White House.

Nothing But Best For Judges

Editor The Herald: The Dade County Bar Association, ever mindful of the best interest of the public, is recommending large salary increases for our judges. Of course, they should have it. It is also being asked their retirement age be reduced from 65 to 55.

Not only should that be done also but at least $100,000 spent on a survey to see if they are not working too hard and should have shorter hours and longer vacations.

Would it not also be a good idea to provide every judge with a Jaguar automobile and make them exempt from any traffic laws? Surely all this would cost a great deal of money but it would only be taxpayers' money and who cares about that?

MARTIN COLFAX

They're Underpaid

Editor The Herald: Please permit me to dissent politely from your editorial opposing a much-needed and well-deserved salary raise for circuit and appeals court judges. These judges now are grossly underpaid.

The salary of a Dade County Circuit judge is $19,000 a year. Such a judge in New York City receives $32,000.

District Court of Appeal judges in Dade County receive $21,500. In New York City, the salary of similar judges is $36,500.

It is worse than ridiculous that a $19,000-a-year judge should have to preside over a court in which $100,000-a-year lawyers practice. It is as absurd as if a bank president should receive a salary smaller than a teller.

Most incongruous of all, Florida Supreme Court justices are paid only $17,500 a year, while judges of New York State's highest court get a salary of $36,500 plus an expense allowance of $5,000.

FULLER WARREN

Nonsense

Editor The Herald: Three cheers for Rep. Cliff Herrell for his quick protest against the sweeping pay hikes to our judicials straight down the line.

How hard up are our poor judges? Their salaries are $21,500 — $19,000 — $17,500 — $15,000 — $13,500 and the Small Claims Court, $10,000. How do these figures look to the average man and woman? It just doesn't make sense.

Hats That Fit, Who Wants One?

Editor The Herald: This Portuguese fellow, Scella Corsi, who made such witty remarks about half-witty American men, forgot one thing. Those narrow lapels were sent here from Europe—Italy, I think—and I haven't seen too many of them around except on television commercials and late movie announcers who get them from the man who sponsors the show.

THEY'RE ALL UNIFORM!

As for the hats, who wants one to fit properly? It comes down and bends the ears outward, compresses the head and creates migraine.

Baggy pants are comfortable, too. Corsi may make fun of conformists, but on the other side of the Pearly Gates I'll bet he wears the same kind of halo we do.

Not Spending? That's For Birds

Editor The Herald: A letter by Ray Ward (an abridged Readers Digest version relative of Artemus, no doubt) states the birds say us snow birds ain't spending. Them birds is so overfed they can't see well.

I don't really know what the birds consider spending down here: Texas Tycoon Hunt bought several million bucks worth of sand around Palm Beach the other day and the next day somebody with the help of Eastern bank and insurance capital starts a 10,000 housing project in Boca Raton. The following day I read that Mackle Brothers built and sold more houses in Florida than any other firm elsewhere in all U. S.

No outside capital being spent in Florida, eh? Just let us have one and one half per cent of that sum in Maine and I will replace my porcelain bridge with a diamond studded one.

Time For Keef To Pay Visit

Editor The Herald: Every time The Herald does a good job of exposing some local gambling, vice or police department laxity, the brass snaps a whip and the little boys in blue and brown pass out traffic summons in such volume that it appears they are working on a commission basis.

We are all familiar with the numerous articles which have been written by fine reporters on problems from vice to ticket fixing.

As long as the power of the press has to point out the crimes being committed in our city, for the police to act upon, we are all in a sad state of affairs. One would venture to think that a newspaper would be printing accounts of police action rather than accounts of existing corruption and vice, and waiting for the police to act.

Perhaps we should invite Estes Kefauver to Miami again, and try to get residents a good reliable police agency instead of the traffic summons writing department that it appears to be.

Confident Living

There's Way To Find Answers

By Norman Vincent Peale

THIS COLUMN is about a woman who was suffering deep depression. Many problems, all seemingly insoluble, had swooped down upon her and she had given way under them, falling into the blackest despair.

Peale

Losing her ability to reason intelligently, she came to the pathetic decision that the only answer was to take her own life. She secured a gun. Then, fearing that she might not be able to nerve herself to use it, she also armed herself with a box of sleeping pills. Thus equipped, she got into her car, drove 100 miles to the outskirts of Atlanta, registered in a motel and prepared for the terrible act of self-destruction.

She paced the room, trying to work herself up to do what she planned to do. It so happened there was a newspaper in the room. She picked it up and nervously leafed through it, not really seeing anything. Then, suddenly, by some strange perceptiveness she saw an advertisement in small type. It seemed to leap out of the paper at her. "If you are in trouble," it read, "dial a prayer." A telephone number was given.

* * *

SHE SAID to herself, "If I'm going to end my life, it's only right that I should hear a prayer before I die." She dialed the number and soon a strong, friendly confident voice was saying:

"God is your refuge and your strength, an ever-present help in time of your trouble. I give you an affirmation. Say it after me: 'God is my refuge. God is my strength. God is my peace. I am now receiving the assurance that I can gain victory over my trouble.'"

She repeated it after him. And six times in the next 24 hours, she went back to the telephone, heard the prayer and offered the affirmation. The sixth time, not knowing that she would be heard, she whispered, "I am going to commit suicide. I need your help."

Soon a man came. He prayed with her; he talked with her; he broke through into her darkness. She gained victory.

* * *

SHE DROVE home to attack her problems with new strength and a new ally in God. And she found her problems were not insoluble after all. She got some real answers, through prayer, to all her difficulties.

Pray, with supplication, with devotion and with thanksgiving; and power over difficulty will come. I haven't any doubt about it. Neither will you when you try it.

Mr. K. Tosses Curve

Signed Blank Check Is What Reds Ask

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON—To the dismay of everybody who hoped for productive negotiation with the Soviets, there is a lot of wreckage in the wake of the curve ball which Nikita Khrushchev threw at his guest, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, in Moscow.

Drummond

Obviously Mr. K. took good aim and succeeded in knocking over practically every prospect of any kind of agreement-by-conference with the Kremlin.

After Mr. Khrushchev invites the West to offer counter-proposals to his plan to put access to West Berlin in the hands of the East German Communists, he rejects out of hand our invitation to a meeting of Big Four foreign ministers to consider the whole future of the two Germanies, including Berlin.

When Mr. Khrushchev invites the British prime minister to Moscow for a candid canvass of what might be done to resolve tensions, he withholds his views in private and publicly denounces every Western approach.

After Mr. Khrushchev appeals for an end to nuclear-weapons tests with guaranteed inspection, he virtually torpedoes the Geneva Conference by insisting that the Soviets must reserve the right to veto any inspection which they don't like.

* * *

WHAT DOES the Kremlin want — a series of advance Western signatures to a blank check which it will fill in later?

We can't prevent Moscow from assigning its rights and responsibilities in East Berlin to the East Zone regime. But by what conceivable line of reason does Mr. K. expect that America, Britain, and France, will abandon the safety of the 2.5 million free West Berliners to the whims of a regime which it controls?

We can't force the Soviets to live up to their long and loud plea that they, above all others, want to find a way to end nuclear-weapons testing, but Mr. K. can hardly believe that we will accept a detection system with a built-in Soviet veto over its functioning.

* * *

THE SOVIET premier now says he wants a summit conference of the heads of government to settle these matters. He argues that Mr. Gromyko is "too busy" to attend a meeting of foreign ministers and that, anyway, such a meeting would get bogged down in detail.

But when Mr. K. asked for a summit meeting last fall over Lebanon and the West agreed, he refused to attend.

Let's not get distracted nor imprisoned by images. A meaningful meeting with the Soviets on Germany and European security is desirable, is needed, is in order. The real issue isn't between a foreign ministers' conference and a summit conference. We don't oppose a summit meeting per se.

The real issue is a carefully prepared conference of responsible Soviet and Western leaders with whose governments there is a sufficiently frank and thorough exploration of differing views to know that it would have some chance of success.

Mr. K. made it evident in his casual treatment of Prime Minister Macmillan that he doesn't want any candid preparation for a meeting either of foreign secretaries or of heads of government. The real problem is not what kind of conference, but what kind of preparation. At this stage Mr. K. is saying, as he did at the time of Lebanon, let's meet, let's just meet. It isn't good enough.

* * *

AS TO A veto-laden International Control Commission to make sure there is no illegal nuclear testing, what would that mean? It would mean that a nation against which the commission had suspicion based on evidence of possible violation could by itself prevent investigation. That would be the same as giving a suspected bank robber power to immobilize the police.

The Soviets say that to give the commission the right to investigate freely would mean that it would be running hither and yon engaging in all kinds of spying.

Why not find out? The commission could use its powers responsibly and, if it didn't, then any nation could be given the right to end the ban at will.

Merry-Go-Round

Now Ike's On Spot About Own Spending

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—For a long time some congressmen have hesitated about tangling with Ike over his own increased White House budget. Despite his criticism of Democrats regarding the national budget, Democrats have shied away from pointing to Ike's budget with its expensive helicopters, new private plane, two yachts, and increased White House expenses.

Pearson

When Rep. Jack Shelley of San Francisco, for instance, requested facts and figures regarding Ike's increased White House budget, Rep. George Andrews of Alabama, chairman of the subcommittee on appropriations, said No. Every year for several years, Shelley has raised this point, but each year has been rebuffed by his fellow Democrat from Alabama.

This year, however, Andrews reversed himself.

"I've talked to Mr. Cannon," he said, referring to Chairman Clarence Cannon of the full Appropriations Committee, "and I'll back you up on looking into these White House expenses."

As a result, Rep. Shelley has requested that the Library of Congress report fully on the cost of running the White House under Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower. The research will go back to 1936.

GEORGE Washington University, named in honor of the Father of Our Country, held its graduating exercises on Washington's Birthday last week — an impressive ceremony at which some 500 students were given degrees.

If George Washington himself had been there he would have rubbed his eyes a bit at the evidence of how far the country he fathered had drifted away from his doctrine of isolation.

For the university named in honor of the President who warned against entangling alliances has become a great mecca for students from all over the world. The roster of graduates included George Crisan from King Ferdinand I University in Romania, Karlis Vilis Kalnins from the University of Latvia, Yibbhan Xoomsai of Thailand, Chandra Kishen Dalaya from the University of Bombay, Mohammed Amjad Shah from the University of The Punjab.

And Sachindra Nath Pradhan from Calcutta University won a Doctor of Philosophy with a thesis on "effect of chlorambucil on the synthesis of protein and nucleic acids in tumor-bearing mice."

Times have changed!

THEY SAID it couldn't be done when Congress was considering a college loan program last summer.

The U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers both insisted that college loans would be too costly and impractical. The Department of Health and Education thought so little of the proposal that it wasn't included in the administration's science education bill. Even some college presidents were skeptical.

However, Sen. Lister Hill and Rep. Carl Elliott of Alabama, who fought to keep loans in the bill, are now enjoying the last laugh. For their idea has given college enrollments the greatest boost in history.

When the science education bill became law last Sept. 2, it was estimated that no more than 700 of the nation's 1,800 colleges and universities would participate in the loan program. Instead, 1,229 already have signed up and another 300 are expected to be certified for government loans to students within the next year.

About 500 of these colleges and universities never have engaged in any kind of student loan program before. But talented high school graduates are so deluging college registrars with loan applications that Sen. Hill and Rep. Elliott are confident Congress will approve an additional $25 million for student loans this year.

NOTE — High school graduates with good grades in science, mathematics, or language courses can borrow up to $1,000 a year for four years (five years for engineering students) to complete their college training. The loans are repayable over a 10-year period, beginning one year after graduation, at 3 per cent interest. Those who teach for at least five years have to repay only half their loan.

SEN. PROXMIRE of Wisconsin was right in his charge that Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas has not followed the democratic processes as majority leader of the Senate. Proxmire went out of his way to praise Johnson on other matters, and Johnson deserves that praise. But Lyndon knows the congressional ropes so well and knows what he wants to get done so decisively that he's impatient with conferences and caucuses; sometimes forgets that the Senate is a great deliberative body.

tion of food or the problems of education and the improvement of the general population.

One got an idea the government had promised Venezuelans that the entire country one day would be as "prosperous" as the capital city. And, for several years, they were conned into believing that the government had the country at heart while building proud Caracas.

One Venezuelan with whom I talked about agricultural research was concerned over the spending of huge sums on the University of Caracas, while so little money was going into the study of agriculture or agricultural research.

"Our university is set up to train professional people," said this man, a graduate of Cornell University, "but little provision is being made to provide training at the skilled worker's level.

The government also spent more millions to build a swank club for the elite officer class at Caracas than it probably had ever spent on agricultural research altogether.

What Venezuela Plans

WHAT DOES Venezuela plan to do to improve the economic status of her people?

At his inauguration, Betancourt said he would direct the foreign ministry to seek immediately a revision of the existing commercial treaty with the U.S. He is backing the recent change in the traditional 50-50 split in oil company profits to 60-40 in favor of the government, which has been attacked in the U.S.

He has pledged government action to improve the lot of some 700,000 Venezuelans who, he said, live in huts lacking all sorts of sanitary services and at a very low standard of living.

He has promised to enact an agrarian reform program and construct "feeder" roads in the back country.

He plans to give Venezuela's industries adequate tariff protection.

All these programs will take time and money. With sufficient time, Betancourt can get the money; with sufficient money, he can shorten the time needed to implement his programs.

The question is, will the cauldron of unrest, already simmering, boil over before he can effect his reforms?

McNasty and I Are Dieting

McNASTY and I are going on a diet. It really is my venture. McNasty has reduced his 49th parallel from a fat 44 to a slim 34. I am just beginning, under his direction. He fears I'll digress hither and yon. "Dieting is a serious matter," sezze. "One that cannot be taken on leav-n. It is, or it ain't."

BELL

McNasty—alias Hugh Moth alias Hugh Mother McKay of hereabouts & etcetera—starts his lesson with: "Let him be kept from pen and ink, so he may cease to write and learn to think."

After that old Scotch proverb he desecrates the Scots by using pen and ink to write down a motley conglomeration of wisdom.

"Weight gainers come in three categories," says McNasty.

1. — The compulsive eater dines constantly to satisfy some inner psychological need.

2. The reactive eater punishes food as a release from emotional stress.

3. The regular interval eater (who goes overweight) selects food top-heavy in calories.

"You've fallen into everything else in your hurried career and now are in a category. How do you feel?"

Dr. McNasty doesn't subscribe to the theory that eating of fats creates fat. Nor does he advocate the "no liquor" diet. "Eskimos live on fats," he points out, "and use seal oil with both cooked and dried meats, they eat cooked blubber, oogruk, bear feet and soured seal liver — but no ryekrisp, cottage cheese or lettuce. Hard liquor is a fat solvent and seems to metabolize in the breakdown system. Sniff in moderation."

* * *

Blubber Eaters

IN ADDITION, Dr McNasty gave me an Eskimo cook book. It's a delightful publication, with recipes brought in by students of Shishmaref, Alaska school. It's published by the Alaska Crippled Children's association and you may buy it for 60 cents at box 912, Anchorage. Listen:

"Soured seal liver is made in summer. Place liver in enamel pot and cover with blubber. Put in a warm place for a few days until sour. Most boys and girls don't like it, only old people. I don't like it either." Agnees Kiyutelluk.

"Most people like bear feet better than the meat. We cook them well, add salt. Take them out of the pot and let them cool. Eat with seal oil." Nellie Okpowruk.

"Cut white whale in pieces and put into a cooking pot. Add water and salt, and boil. Add the blubber inside the small intestine and cook." Johnnie Weyiouanna.

"Cut the walrus in small pieces and also cut the skin and blubber. Put them together in a pot and boil. Add salt and water." Thelma Olanna.

The Eskimos seem to use seal oil in just about everything cooked or eaten. They eat some berries and plants, but mostly it's fish, land animals, seals, walrus, whales. And nearly everything is cooked after careful cleaning, with salt added.

* * *

No Sugar

McNASTY'S conclusions: "No candy, sugar, soft drinks or anything made with flour. No starchy foods or cream soups. Eat fat meats, oils and butter. An early news story will say there's no factual proof that high blood cholesterol level hastens the clogging of the arteries. Fat acts on the metabolism of the body and produces better burning of the food you eat.

"Kidneys need water. It is not fattening but should not be used to wash down partly chewed foods. Salt has a tendency to retain water in the tissues. Use less. Appetite is a delicate mechanism and the attempt to destroy it by smoking is vicious.

Stay away from shotgun diets.

Hipprocrates aid: One thing we know about fever is that it is bad.

McNasty said: One thing we know about obesity is that it is not good.

Socrates booted us both out of the picture, saying: "There is one thing that we are sure of, and that is, we are sure of nothing."

So you want to lose some weight???????

Larson Likely to Deny Hike in Auto Insurance

By JOHN L. BOYLES
Capital Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — Don't be surprised if State Treasurer and Insurance Commissioner J. Edwin Larson denies altogether or allows only a slight rate increase in auto liability insurance requested by the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters. The proposed boost would be 27 per cent statewide.

BOYLES

Larson has been criticized for not turning down an application for a boost in liability rates in eight years. He has announced, however, that he will ask the 1959 legislation to approve a revision of the auto insurance rate-making procedure.

Speculation is that Larson may force a test case of the law which some observers say hangs heavily in favor of proposed rate increases.

Under present procedure if a rate-making agency's petition meets the legal requirements a public hearing isn't held on the application until Larson has acted on it, unless the rating bureau requests the hearing.

That seldom happens unless the application is found lacking sufficient information and is denied on a technicality. That occurred in the case of the National Bureau's petition, which it later amended and which was held by Larson to be adequate. The next step is a public hearing on the merits of the proposed increase.

Larson and experts in his department have explained that under the law if rate increase applications supply adequate information on experience of company losses, the commissioner has little choice but to approve the new rates.

However, he does have the alternative of denying the increase and letting the rating bureau take its case to court.

* * *

To Hold Hearing

THIS IS WHAT he will likely do in the current National Bureau application before him. He will hold a public hearing before March 15 after a rate analysis firm has made a report on its study of the application.

Meanwhile, Larson's legislative program to be presented at the session opening April 7 will call for a change under which no action can be taken on a rate hike petition until after a public hearing.

Renew Probing?

THE LEGISLATURE will have to decide whether it wants to renew the life of Sen. Charley Johns' committee, that in addition to its mission to probe the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, has other broad investigative powers.

The committee was first established in 1956 in a special session on segregation legislation.

In 1956 the committee was headed by then State Rep. Henry W. Land of Apopka and was credited with exposing race-baiter John Kasper as a professional rabble rouser, after taking the cue from a series on Kasper published in The Miami Herald.

Collins commended the committee for its efforts to thwart extremists on both sides of the race issue in his message to the 1957 Legislature.

* * *

Allotted $75,000

IN 1957 the committee was revived for two years and given a $75,000 appropriation. Sen. Charley Johns of Starke, former acting governor, became chairman.

Its probe of alleged Communist infiltration is tied up in court suits and won't be completed before its authorization expires June 30.

Johns has said he will recommend the Legislature extend the life of his committee but hasn't revealed how much money he thinks it will need.

So far it has spent $63,553. Many of the expenses are not detailed in explanation because of the nature of the committee's work.

Our Judges Won't Starve

By JOHN B. McDERMOTT
Herald Political Writer

Taxpayers! Have no fear. Your judges are not going to starve.

At least two of them won't.

State Rep. Cliff Herrell, who flatly rejected the Bar Associations' proposed pay increases for the judiciary, has sent food parcels to Circuit Judges Marshall C. Wiseheart and Ray Pearson.

McDERMOTT

Herrell, who heads the House Appropriations Committee — and who has a real sense of humor— sent cabbage, peanut butter, crackers, bean soup and bread in the parcels. As for the judges both are good sports. We understand they took the ribbing goodnaturedly.

The situation developed from an exchange in the public prints of comments by Herrell and Wiseheart over the merits of giving all judges, including the Supreme Court Justices, substantial pay boosts.

"At a time when the state is not in position to increase the meager pay of employes doing difficult jobs —(nurses working with deformed children get only $175 monthly) — I can not see increasing salaries of judges who are getting a comfortable pay check," Herrell said. Wiseheart came back with an expressed hope that "Rep. Herrell can be convinced that we do difficult jobs too."

Nobody questions that members of the judiciary, especially in big and busy Dade County, perform difficult and time-consuming jobs. However, for the most part they are well paid. Furthermore, they are under no compulsion to serve. Maybe they could do better financially in private practice. Their jobs are entirely of a volunteer nature. They know when they seek election what the office pays and what it entails.

On the other hand, never blame a person for trying to get a pay increase. Unfortunately for the judges, the Dade Bar Association picked the worst possible time to come up with such a recommendation. Florida is pushed to the hilt going into this legislative session in an effort to hold the line on taxes.

Incidentally, Sen. Bill Pearce of East Palatka, chairman of the Finance and Taxation Committee, has been quoted around the state in the past few days as saying he does not believe we can escape some new taxes at the legislative session beginning April 7. That is bad news of priority interest. Pearce usually knows what he is talking about.

* * *

Criticism Wins Praise

CRITICISM by this corner last week of Metro commissioners wasting too much time with trivia and not getting on with the over-all development of the county seems to have met with public approval.

Letters and phone call response on this subject have been surprising . . . Also surprising was the appearance of Dade Rep. George Hollahan's name on the Daytona Beach manifesto opposing the race integration plans for the Dade School Board for Orchard Villa. Hollahan explains that while he is opposed to integration, he stipulated he would not vote to shutting down the public school system just to preserve segregation. "I'm for segregation and for state's rights — but I will not vote for a bill which means closing the schools," he said.

As for Rep. David Eldredge signing the manifesto, he had no alternative politically. He ran on a one-plank platform of segregation. It might be noted in passing that the Dade legislative delegation, like all other legislators in Florida, is united in its belief that segregation should be maintained. The only variance is on how far the state should go in resisting.

Sen. Kennedy Due Here

U.S. SEN. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts is scheduled to address Florida lawyers during the Bar convention here in May. He also has been invited to speak at a Dade Democratic dinner and a Tampa meeting of county officials. Indications are that the Tampa conclave has the inside track . . . Dean Claussen, president of the Dade League of Municipalities, plans to seek reelection as a Miami Shores councilman in the April 14 balloting there . . . The Dade League will hold a dinner meeting next Friday night at Miami Shores country club. Rep. Herrell will outline problems confronting the legislature . . . Add Walter B. Lebowitz as a probable starter in the Miami Beach City Council race. He is an attorney and member of the Dade Democratic Executive Committee.

Businessmen Dodge Taxes

THE OTHER DAY, State Comptroller Ray Green told us that many businessmen are becoming tax-dodgers by failing to pay the state its full take under the sales tax law. He said it is costing "millions." A Lake Worth winter resident has this suggestion:

Require business establishments to buy state stamps which they would give out to each customer making a purchase. It is a method used now in some states. The customer then would have a record of his own sales tax expenses and the state would have a tighter rein on the tax-dodging businessman.

Rep. Cramer 'Adopted'

FLORIDA Congressman William C. Cramer of St. Petersburg is being asked to worry about Kentucky problems in the House as well as those of Florida. In a unique action, The Young Republican Club of Louisville passed a resolution "adopting" Cramer as its representative. The resolution said that "after 12 years, we of Jefferson County, Ky., find ourselves without representation in the House of Representatives . . . we therefore adopt as our representative the honorable William C. Cramer, a Young Republican, who is a vigorous, energetic, hardworking statesman from the First Congressional District of Florida."

Candidate Hopefuls Hinting

MANY would-be candidates for governor are dropping hints these days of their "availability." Sen. Fred O. "Bud" Dickinson is doing a lot more than that. In the past year, he has made 122 speeches, in 44 Florida cities and covered 27,000 miles . . . U.S. Sen. George Smathers will address the Coral Gables Business & Professional Women's club March 16 at the Gables Country Club. Mrs. Roxcy O. Hart is dinner chairman.

Quick Guide To Baroque

Three phases of French Baroque include the early phase from 1643 to 1660 with bald Baroque scrolls, carouches, and garlands. Flowers were larger than those found in nature.

The middle phase, 1660 to 1683, symbolized Louis XIV in the role of Apollo, reflecting the image in bursting sunrays introduced in elaborate brocades.

The third phase, 1683 to 1715, was famous for the elaborate Lyonnaise brocades, intricate floral design. Exotic Oriental silks were made fashionable, brought about through the arrival at Versailles of a delegation sent by the King of Siam.

WEDGE STOP holds stock tight as a vise, because the more pressure you put on it, the tighter the wedge squeezes shut. It holds boards of most any width, depending on the distance apart you fasten members. To make it, taper-rip piece of 1x4, saving both parts. Nail them to a plywood base. You release stock by tapping wedge out. Copyright, Better Homes and Gardens.

How About Scotch Coolers Made From Milk Churns?

By MARGUERITE DAVIS

CHICAGO — Early American design still is riding high on a wave of popularity, in accessories as well as furniture.

One furniture manufacturer has found a ready response for a keg set, less traditional than most, but still in the flavor of the times.

The table consists of a 40-inch round oaken top attached to an iron-bound oak barrel 30-inches high. Stools are made of upholstered seats mounted on smaller kegs 18-inches high.

The set is finished in chestnut, dusty acorn, birch bark, light or dark antique. A set, including the $65 table and four stools, costs $207.

Early American is at home with accessories of many periods, but hi-fi and radio cabinets are designed for persons who prefer to remain consistent.

One firm's newest products include a hi-fi set contained in a cabinet patterned after two gingerbread molds used in Pennsylvania 200 years ago. Sixteen-inch high handpainted figures of a man and woman are mounted on the two front panel doors.

The cabinet, 36-inches wide, 19 deep and 48 high, is produced in maple for about $500, and in hand rubbed mahogany and cherrywood for slightly more.

The same firm offers another hi-fi console copied from an Early American bonnet box. It is finished in Salem, cherry or mahogany, and sells for around $400.

A transistor radio, patterned after a tea kettle, costs about $80. It can be operated by battery, or placed on a black wrought iron trivet which can be plugged into an electric connection. The kettle's hand rubbed cherrywood body is decorated with a brass spout, handle and back plate. Controls are reached by lifting the kettle's hinged top.

Groundbreaking Scheduled On Two Shopping Centers

Plans for two more shopping centers in Dade County were announced this week.

Realtor J. A. Cantor said groundbreaking will be held March 11 for his Central Shopping Plaza on NW 7th St. at 37th Ave., just north of the West Flagler dog track.

Fourteen stores will occupy the first section of 200,000 square feet which is scheduled for completion in September.

The contract was awarded to R. M. Thompson Co. of Clearwater. The firm is handling design and engineering.

Leases have been signed with Grand Union supermarket, J. C. Penny, Little, G. C. Murphy, Neisner's, Walgreen's, Western Auto, Three Sisters and Butler's.

Coming along early in May will be the groundbreaking for the Palm Springs shopping center in Hialeah at W. 4th Ave. and 49th St.

R & R Development Co. will build the 40-store center which was designed by Lloyd Frank Vann. The developers are Clifford Russell, John Raulerson and Bernard Schoniger. R & R has put up more than 4,000 homes in the Palm Springs community and now is busy with its Palm Springs Village development in Palm Beach County.

All 40 stores are scheduled to open by March of 1960. The G. C. Mruphy chain has leased 36,000 square feet. Other major tenants will be Grand Union supermarket, Liggetts, Jackson's, Western Auto, Neisner's, Three Sisters and Sherwin Williams.

Keynote of the L-shaped center will be a two-story office building fronting on a garden. An adjoining mile of frontage on 49th Street has been set aside for expansion.

Rosen to Build Beach Apartment

The two-story building will contain 4 two-bedroom, two-bath units, 3 two-bedrooms, one-bath apartments, 11 one-bedroom, one-bath sections and four efficiencies.

• PROPOSED LAYOUT OF GUERNSEY ISLES, TAMPA, FLORIDA (NOT TO SCALE)

This choice site of approximately 60 acres of Bayfront land, with riparian rights, is located in Tampa, Florida. 1760 ft. front on Old Tampa Bay and 1745 ft. front on West Shore Boulevard, a main traffic thoroughfare running from Gandy Boulevard to Tampa International Airport. Dry land is approximately 1448 ft. deep from Old Tampa Bay to West Shore Boulevard. The site is located between the new Frankland (Third Bay) Bridge now under construction on the north and Gandy Bridge on the south.

This location is considered the hub of the Tampa-St. Petersburg-Clearwater "Golden Triangle," in the midst of a trade area of 750,000 population. Tampa population of 276,500, St. Petersburg 196,498, Clearwater 33,365. Property is within the Tampa city limits with all utilities available, including city sewers and city water. Approximately 60 acres of upland adjacent to Old Tampa Bay with very shallow submerged land ready for development. This bayfront site offers an excellent opportunity for the development of "fingers" and/or islands as shown in the above proposed layout.

The island in the foreground in the above drawing could be developed with multi-story garden type cooperative apartment buildings with white sand beach frontage. A modern marina would also be ideal in this development that is located in the immediate vicinity of some of Florida's finest fishing waters.

Demand for waterfront sites is unprecedented in this area. This is one of the few large available waterfront sites suitable for a modern home development in the Tampa area.

Court Delay Costs Money and Misery

It is impossible to estimate what delays in our courts cost us in human anguish, to say nothing of money.

Something is being done about it, but there is a long way to go before we can even approach the necessary speed to give out justice in time for those who need it now. Courts in some areas are as much as five years behind in their work. That'll give you an idea of what this article tells you.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Shakespeare's Hamlet, in his best-known soliloquy, listed "the law's delay" among the frustrations of life. The same complaint is echoing again today in every important gathering of the bench and bar.

"I must report that interminable and unjustifiable delays in our courts are compromising the basic legal rights of countless thousands of Americans and, imperceptibly, corroding the very foundations of constitutional government in the U.S."

In the same vien. Attorney General William P. Rogers said recently the legal profession exists to provide justice for individuals and "this means that we must provide it on time to do the litigants some good."

Lawyers will tell you that the cost of the log-jams in the courts in terms of human anguish can never be counted. To count it, you would have to look intimately into a hundred thousand private lives and hear in detail the hopes and fears that hang on litigation which may take years.

They cite cases of men and women pressing an insurance claim while college-age children stay out of school for lack of funds. Or the case of a medium-income citizen suddenly confronted with a big damage suit. He must defer buying a home or shelve other dreams until he knows the outcome.

Atty. Gen. Rogers

. . . presses for speed

People write the attorney general about their troubles in state and federal courts. One woman who heard Rogers speak out on a TV program for speedier justice wrote him:

"We have a son 5½ years old. He was hit by a car in our own yard four years ago this July 2. As of now, as far as we know, this case has not yet been entered on the court calendar.

"My husband is in the working man class, earning approximately $6,000 a year. We have many outstanding bills as a result of this accident.

"We are writing you this letter to let you know that we appreciate anything you, as the attorney general of the U.S., can do to shorten the lengthy time it takes to bring these cases to trial."

Another citizen wrote to thank the attorney general for an address entitled "How Long Must a Person Wait to Have His case Tried?" The letter said:

"I think it is a disgrace and a reflection on our American way of life when a citizen has to wait years to receive justice.

"I speak from bitter experience. I am the innocent victim of a very embarrassing divorce case and have been waiting nearly two years to receive justice. The mental, emotional and monetary strain of the victims of such experiences cannot be adequately described.

"What is even more important is the tragic effect such delays have on the lives of innocent victims. In my own case there is a three-year-old boy involved, and when one is suspended in mid legal air as the participants in my case are, it cannot help having an adverse psychological effect on the lives of the innocent."

Something is being done about the problem, largely through "the Attorney General's Conference on Court Congestion and Delay in Litigation." This was set up by Attorney General Herbert Brownell in early 1956 and continues to function under Rogers. The conference includes representatives of the judiciary, bar associations, the chairmen of the House and Senate judiciary committees, the Council of State Governments, the American Society of Newspaper Editors, and the American Association of Law Schools.

The group has recommended such things as more judgeships, better organization of the work of the courts and a very much wider use of what is known as the pre-trial conference. This is a meeting at which a judge sits down with both sides to see how a controversy can be boiled down to base issues and so speeded up.

Congress last year did not create the 43 additional federal judgeships recommended by the conference but it went along in other ways. For instance, it provided that when an individual sues a citizen of another state and invokes his right to use the federal court in his home district, at least $10,000 must be at stake, instead of the previous minimum of $3,000.

Congress also provided that when a chief judge of a federal district court or appeals court reaches 70 years of age, he must yield the top post and its administrative duties to a younger colleague. In addition, a new law permits retirement of aging judges as "senior judges," who remain on call for special duty to help clear crowded dockets.

Some progress toward speedier trials has been made. But the fact remains that court congestion during the fiscal year 1958 was the worst since the abnormal days of prohibition.

The Judicial Conference of the U.S. has asserted that every suit should have the chance of going to trial within six months from the time of filing. For the average federal district court, this now takes about a year. In some high population areas such as New York, it runs close to four years.

The last session of the attorney general's conference on delay heard reports that some state courts were five years behind on their work.

Struck Line Asks to Quit

CHICAGO — (AP) — The largest privately owned bus company in Illinois, hit by a strike of drivers and maintenance men, has asked to go out of business.

The struck West Towns Bus Co., which carries an average of 45,000 passengers daily in 26 suburban communities, petitioned the Illinois Commerce Commission for permission to discontinue service and sell the firm's equipment.

The company previously had said it would go out of business if the line was struck.

Cloroben
PINE SCENTED
CLEANS
GREASE TRAPS
CESSPOOLS
WORKS FAST AND GOOD
KILLS ODORS
DISSOLVES GREASE
CONTROLS BACTERIA
OPENS DRAINS

One step process, no additives needed!

Works faster

Goes twice as far!

Costs less!

The sanitation chemical, used for 21 years by nation's leading professional sanitation engineers, now available for you!

In such Florida cities as Miami, Coral Gables, Key West, West Palm Beach, Fort Lauderdale, Hollywood, and St. Petersburg, Cloroben is the choice of local sanitary engineers, as well as other leading sanitary engineers of cities and towns throughout the United States.

If the septic tank or cesspool which services your home overflows or gives off offensive odors, almost always the cause is the thick crust of grease and slime which has coated the wall of your tank and the scum mat on the surface.

The only way to cure this condition is to dissolve this mat and grease and slime coating. Adding bacteria cultures, yeast, or enzymes can't work. They don't get at the cause of the condition. Only Cloroben ends the clogging and overflow of septic tanks and cesspools by eliminating the cause! Cloroben creates the right conditions for the rapid growth and functioning of digestive bacteria, ever present in the system, and thus keeps the tanks or cesspools in good working order.

Cloroben Excellent Garbage Spray
A tablespoon of Cloroben added in a cup of water makes an amazing solution that kills odors promptly. Helps repel rodents, dogs and cats, kills roaches and other insects, too.

Quick and easy to use. Gets and keeps septic tanks and cesspools in good condition.

■ Kills obnoxious odors ■ Ends clogging and overflow of septic tanks and cesspools by dissolving grease and slime ■ Opens grease clogged drains and traps ■ Attacks and stops odor-causing bacteria, but does not affect useful organisms needed in your tank for the conversion of sewage into harmless "digested" form ■ Instantly kills roaches which infest drains and tanks ■ Pleasantly pine scented.

1-PINT CAN $1.88
1-QUART CAN $3.49
1-GALLON CAN $10.98

Note to Operators of Motels, Hotels and Restaurants: Cloroben exceptionally efficient cleaner of grease traps, too!

Just Who Got There First?

Hudson River Celebration Plans Have Historians Wrangling Again

* * *

The proposed Hudson River celebration in New York this summer has stirred up more controversy among historians. Just who should be credited with discovering the famed river has long been debated, and the celebration has fanned the fires of argument again.

Italian Giovanna de Verrazano admittedly took a look at the river's mouth, but Henry Hudson was the one who sailed up its course and really put it on the map. However, Norseman Leif Ericson has his supporters, too.

* * *

NEW YORK —(UPI)— Federal, state and local officials have united to plan a huge Hudson River celebration this summer — but there is sharp division over just what all the shouting is to be about.

Some historians claim the summer-long festival will mark the 350th anniversary of the discovery of the river by Henry Hudson.

Others declare it will be a celebration only of the exploration of the river by Hudson, because the waterway already had been discovered by Italian Giovanna de Verrazano 85 years earlier, before Hudson was even born.

Still others maintain that Leif Ericson should get the credit for finding the Scenci River that winds for its entire 306-mile course through New York state.

And, if a person really wants to get historically persnickety, he might be able to prove that the Chinese or even the Phoenicians got to the Hudson first, maybe even before the American Indians paddled their canoes across the river for the first time.

John La Corte, director of the Italian Historical Society of America, which serves as a sort of watchdog over Italian claims to fame in the Western World, is a militant member of the pro-Verrazano forces.

"All you have to do is go to the Encyclopaedia Britannica," La Corte said.

"Verrazano proceeded a short distance up the Hudson by boat in 1524; but the first European to demonstrate its extent and importance was Henry Hudson, from whom the river derives its name."

La Corte said Verrazano intended to sail the length of the Hudson, but was driven back by storms as he reached what now are known as the New Jersey palisades, across the river from Manhattan Island.

"He named it the Santa Margherita River," La Corte said. "He returned to Europe with information and descriptions and Hudson followed his course."

John H. G. Pell, chairman of the federal Hudson-Champlain celebration commission, scholar and trustee of the New York Historical Society, leans toward the side of those who give Hudson the largest share of the credit.

"I believe Verrazano undoubtedly came to the mouth of the Hudson first, but that the discovery of importance was the voyage of Henry Hudson, because he explored the river," Pell said.

A spokesman for the city's planning body, called the Hudson Celebration Committee, said a gala land and sea parade is scheduled to open the festivities June 14. It will begin, he said, with a float honoring Verrazano, with the Henry Hudson float next.

But Leon Michel, special assistant to the federal commission, doubts that. He said it was more likely a Norse float honoring Ericson would be No. 1 in the Hudson discovery hit parade.

The formulation of Orkil and our unequaled surety bonded guarantee are in my opinion the greatest advances we have made in more than a half century of service to homeowners and industry.

Otto Orkin
Founder and President

A dramatic Scientific Triumph in Termite Control

BACKED BY AN UNMATCHED TERMITE GUARANTEE

We have just completed two momentous advances for the control of termites.

1. The formulation of Orkil—the most effective termiticide available.
2. The world's strongest surety bonded guarantee against future termite damage.

Orkil, containing chlorohepton (patent pending), is the deadliest known killer of termites. Yet, it will not injure shrubbery, is non-staining, non-flammable, and has no disagreeable odor. Orkil kills termites on contact and sets up a durable poisonous barrier that termites cannot penetrate. With the formulation of Orkil, an Orkin exclusive, the Orkin Exterminating Company is able to offer an unparalleled surety bonded guarantee against future termite damage.

ORKIL

A Chemical Breakthrough in Termite Control!

Orkil is a new revolutionary formulation.

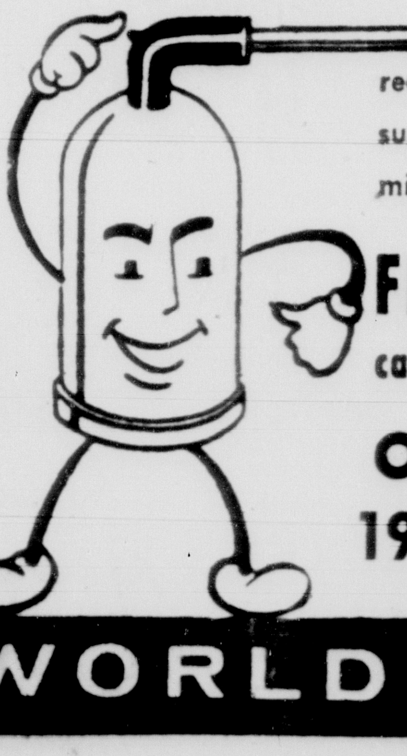
IT IS AN ORKIN EXCLUSIVE

You can't buy it anywhere . . . But, it's included without extra charge when Orkin protects your property from termites.

Orkin's guarantee is backed by one of the world's largest bonding and insurance companies with assets in excess of 355 million dollars. Unique features of this guarantee are: (1) annual termite reinspections; (2) additional treatment of soil and structure if necessary at no additional cost; (3) repairs on future termite damage up to $5,000; and (4) comprehensive liability insurance in the amount of one million dollars.

FREE INSPECTION

Without any cost or obligation a complete termite inspection can be made of your property. Termites do millions of dollars damage in this country each year. Do not wait until termites appear—call 'Otto' the Orkin Man for a free termite inspection today.



Before you sign any agreement for termite control be sure and read the details of Orkin's full protection. If anyone else claims comparable surety-bonded coverage, have your insurance agent review the bond to determine your rights as a beneficiary.

Weather Puts You in the Mood—to Laugh or Cry

When It's Bright and Sunny, So Are You

By LAWRENCE THOMPSON
Herald Staff Writer

When a storm is on its way, don't feel upset if you cuff your wife and kick your dog. You're doing what comes naturally. It isn't your fault; it's the fault of the weather.

How you are going to straighten things out with your wife and dog is up to you. Chances are, since the weather affects them the same way, your wife will respond by breaking the crockery over your head and your dog will chew off your best leg.

If that happens, be kind and understanding. They aren't to be blamed any more than you. It's that same debbil weather.

This is the gist of a theory, advanced in much more dignified language, by Dr. Clarence A. Mills, professor of experimental medicine at the University of Cincinnati.

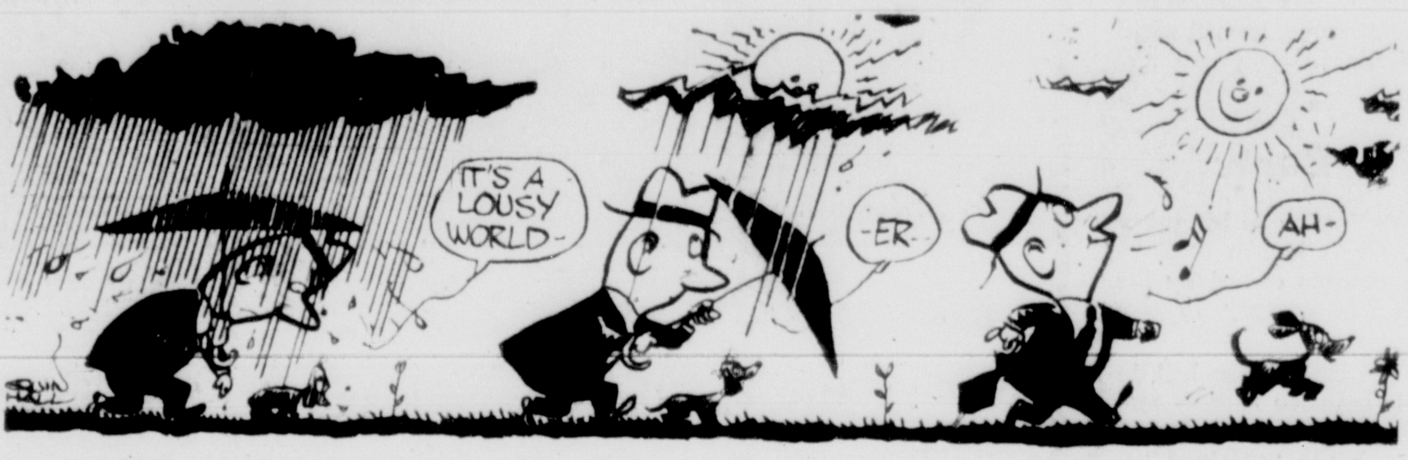
Actually, he's merely propounding in scientific language something that cows and cats and lots of people have thought all along.

Specifically, what makes you feel like sassing the teacher or telling off the boss is the barometric pressure. When it falls, so do your spirits. You're a grouch and not worth living with. But when the weather clears and the barometer goes up, you feel like kissing the stenographer and dancing around the May pole.

* * *

Tissues Swell Up

IF YOU WANT to be impressed by this theory, listen to how the good doctor from Cincinnati tells it:



"The body tissues take up additional water, from inside the intestinal tract, when a low, or storm center is approaching and surrounding pressures are falling. This tissue swelling may increase the leg girth by an inch within a 24-hour period. And in some people it may amount to as much as a five-pound gain in weight as the person drinks fluids to satisfy his thirst and refill the intestinal tract.

"Such tissue swelling may make a person feel clumsy. Its effects are even more definite and disturbing in the brain, where expansion is sharply limited by the bony skull. Any swelling tends to increase pressure there and shut off the blood supply.

"When the barometer falls, clear thinking becomes difficult. Feelings of frustration, despondency and irritation develop.

"These are the times when attempts at suicide are most common, when people susceptible to headaches or fainting spells have most of their attacks, when school teachers welcome the end of a prostrating day."

He goes on to say that summer is the best season for most people's dispositions since the barometer remains most constant and that spring is most apt to upset us, because of its frequent barometric changes.

WHAT A DAY!
JUMP

* * *

Barometer Behaves Here

SUPPORT is found locally for the doctor's theory, but none for his remarks about the seasons. This isn't his fault. It just so happens that the barometer doesn't behave that way in Florida.

Generally speaking, it stays at about the same place whether it's summer, winter, spring or fall. In other words, it's as easy to be happy here in April as it is in August, and our birds feel so good in January that they sing their lungs out.

Sanford Newman, meteorologist for the Miami Weather Bureau, reports that the barometer varies but little in these parts. At the moment he was called, the pressure reading was 30.12, which he says is typical. Usually it is about 30 — somewhere between 29.90 and 30.15.

That variation really doesn't give you much excuse to clobber your wife or kick your dog.

But, sad to say, there are times when our barometer goes on a binge and at such times the birds, bees and beasts of the field, not to mention us people, are apt to get in all kinds of trouble and suffer all types of moods.

* * *

Hurricanes Lower Spirits

ONCE, back in 1926, Newman recalls that our barometer fell to 27.61 which is a mighty big fall in pressure.

This happened during a hurricane. If you have only lived among us for 10 years, you don't know about hurricanes. They are big, bad winds that used to bother us at too frequent intervals.

When a hurricane is on its way, the barometer goes down. It starts to sink while the eye of the storm is hours away, and it keeps a steady descent until all is clear again. Then the barometer, and the spirits of people and pets, goes up.

Newman took a poll among fellow laborers at the weather bureau and these experts agreed that changes in the barometric pressure affect their feelings.

This, of course, is what the doctor in Ohio says. And he has confirmation of his theory from a Miami psychologist and management consultant.

* * *

Animals React Same Way

"WHEN THE WEATHER is bright and sunny, people are more cheerful and optimistic," says Daniel Howard. "They are less prone to do things that are bad for themselves and others.

"When it is cloudy, rainy or dismal, people are prone to be irritable and cross.

"Animals react the same way. Birds don't sing as much when the sun is obscured as when the sun is shining.

"The weather has a great bearing on punctuality and efficiency in offices or factories. The weather is very important in our lives."

It seems as if the doctor has a good case. Granting that, there's reason for rejoicing among Floridians. If changes of barometer cause changes of temperament and personality, we should be the most even-tempered placid people in the world, since we have a most consistent barometer.

Think of that the next time you feel like whacking your wife or snarling at your dog. Wait until the storm clouds send the barometer downward — and if you wait that long, you may live to a ripe old age as a pleasant, well mannered, good tempered person.

Fevered African Nationalists Generate New Unrest in Kenya

By GARVEN HUDGINS
Associated Press Newsfeatures Writer

LONDON—A new unrest grips Kenya today—just four years after Mau Mau terrorism was smashed in the grassy highlands of Britain's rich East Africa colony.

The Africans want independence in 10 years. The Europeans there insist it's dangerously fast.

The new disquiet stirs along the flanks of the present legitimate African membership in Kenya's Legislative Council as other Africans try to exploit difficulties over a constitution imposed by the British in 1957.

It stirs among the restless and the militant who are uncompromisingly sworn to African nationalism.

It manifests itself in speeches and statements by African political leaders outside Kenya supporting more power for themselves, less for Europeans.

It raises the questions: Is Mau Mau dead forever? Will there be more bloodshed in Kenya?

* * *

Kenya Evolving Fast

A MAJORITY of European settlers do not think the bloody terror that stalked the country at the beginning of the decade will be repeated.

But many settlers — along with colonial office experts here in London—recognize that Kenya is evolving politically at a rate faster than at any time since the British East Africa company began to open up the territory in the late 1880's.

The trouble comes in trying to get Africans, Asians and Europeans in Kenya to agree on what direction this evolution is to take — and where it is to end.

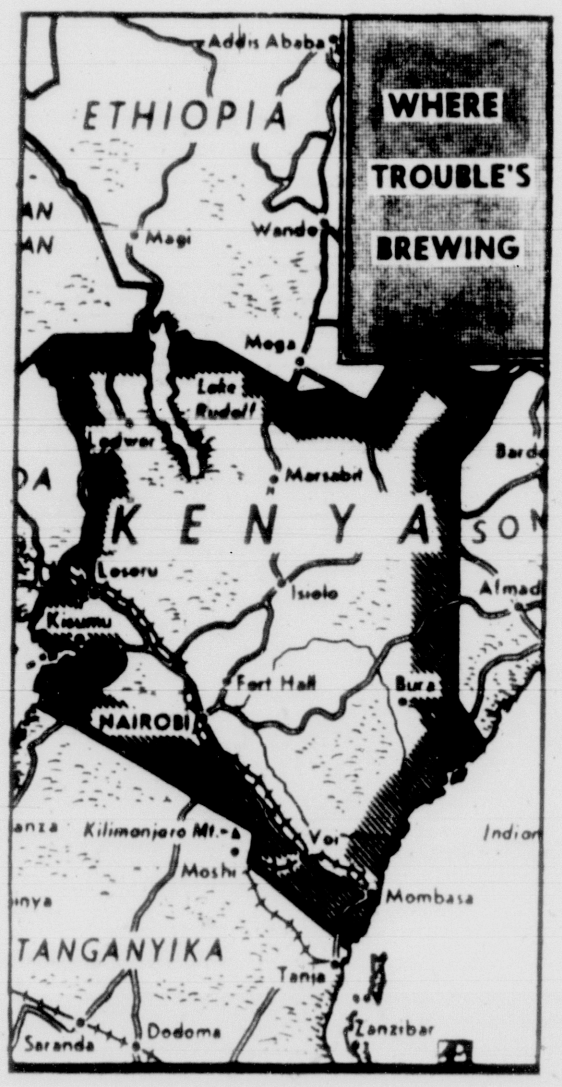
Until they do, the British government intends to act as it sees fit to prevent political drifting in Kenya that could lead to renewed violence.

* * *

Want More Seats

ONE FOCUS of the current struggle is the Legislative Council, which functions under a British governor acting as chief executive. Fourteen seats on the 34-seat council were allotted to Africans. And an important group of Africans, led by Tom Mboya, demand 23 seats. Mboya is not considered the most extreme of the African politicians.

His group bases its demands on the preponderance of Africans in Kenya's population, made up of six million Africans, 150,000 Asians, 50,000 Europeans and 30,000 Arabs.



They also want to throw out property and literacy voting qualifications and to move faster toward universal suffrage and independence.

Mboya believes he can achieve all this within 10 years.

The British think it will take longer.

Along with many Europeans in Kenya, the British realize it's not necessarily in the cards that the white man will remain in control of the country forever.

But the British are convinced a change must be approached gradually under a stable constitutional government which will afford the best opportunities for racial cooperation. Only then, the British feel, can Europeans and Africans in Kenya prosper together.

At the same time, the British position means the Europeans will be in control for the foreseeable future in Kenya and that Britain will protect their interests against what it considers irresponsible or unqualified challenges from Africans.

* * *

Constitution Under Fire

ALL OF THIS is spelled out in the constitution Britain imposed in Kenya in 1957.

The new constitution raised African representation in the Legislative Council and provided for 12 special seats to be filled by the council from candidates among the European, African and Asian populations.

This was an attempt to get started on a truly multi-racial representation. Mboya and his followers rejected the entire constitution.

Nevertheless, elections were held last May for the six extra seats in the council granted to Africans under the constitution — and Mboya's nominees won them all easily.

Speaking of the constitution, Mboya says: "We recognize the constitution made some advances. But we reject it because it strengthens the political power of the settlers."

* * *

Mboya Lists Aims

WHAT WOULD Mboya prefer to the present constitution?

"We have prepared a detailed program of our aims, showing how we could achieve a democratic society in Kenya over a period of years," he says.

"This policy recognizes the legitimate suspicions, fears and aspirations of the whites and other minorities.

"It accepts the need to safeguard their interests both during a transitional period — by retaining direct control of the colonial office — and after the eventual achievement of independence. It accepts the principle of the government being in the hands of representatives of all the racial communities, subject to the ultimate establishment of a democracy based on individual equality."

Mboya says this policy was proposed as a basis for discussion.

"All we demanded was the right to negotiate. The colonial secretary (Allan Lennox-Boyd) has ruled out any idea of negotiation except on his own terms."

In London, British Colonial Office officials concede the new constitution has not achieved the quick success its more optimistic advocates hoped for.

But the British believe the constitution they have laid down in Kenya sets fair ground rules for all at this point.

Now a Tug-of-War

THE SITUATION in Kenya now has reached the stage of a tug-of-war between the British government and moderate settler opinion on one hand and organized African nationalism on the other.

And in the background is the shadow of Mau Mau.

A state of emergency still exists in Kenya growing out of the bitter struggle against Mau Mau terrorism.

But the British are pushing ahead with a giant rehabilitation program for the Kikuyu tribe which spearheaded the Mau Mau troubles. So far the results have been encouraging, with many former Mau Mau adherents taking their places as useful citizens once more.

In remote areas of the country Mau Mau-like activities, such as bloody oath-taking and tribal recruitment drives, occasionally show up today. But they are on a small scale.

The British believe they have adequate forces and powers to deal with any new outbreak of terrorism.

Austerity Looms As Uruguayans Get New Boss

The new, conservative government taking office in Uruguay today faces the task of getting an ailing economy back on its feet. But the crusty octogenarian who led his party to power already has a program worked out—a program that may go against the grain of many leisure and fun-loving Uruguayans.

By JOSE MARIA ORLANDO
Associated Press Newsfeature Writer

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay — After 93 years of political famine, the conservative National Party takes power in Uruguay today.

It will be a moment of sweet triumph for cantankerous, 85-year-old Luis Alberto de Herrera, the man who led the party to its long-delayed comeback, and a signal for general belt-tightening in the country at large.

HERRERA

ECHEBOYEN

Austerity, in hefty doses, is the National Party's prescription for Uruguay's ailing economy.

There likely will be no new appointments to government jobs, popular with easy-going Uruguayans because of the 30-hour week.

This nation of beef eaters will have to pay more for steaks.

The complicated multi-rate exchange system, which in effect means subsidies for many exports and imports, probably will be abolished. Prices may rise faster than salaries.

* * *

Man of Quick Mind

THE MAN responsible for this program is stubborn and clever, with a slight deafness he frequently exaggerates when someone is contradicting him. But Herrera is also a man of quick mind and amazing energy which allow him, despite his age, to keep a young man's schedule.

He is loved by hundreds of thousands who voted his party, the "Blancos" (whites), into power last November and respected even by his political enemies. They acknowledge him to be intelligent and of irreproachable honesty.

Led by Herrera, the Blancos ousted the left-of-center Colorado Party, gaining power for the first time since 1865. The new National Council—the nine-man, Swiss-style "board of directors" which rules Uruguay — is formed of six Blanco members and three Colorados.

Martin Echegoyen, a lawyer and politician, will serve during the first-year of the four-year government as the Blanco leader in the council and the country's titular president.

Herrera is not a member of the council. He was elected in 1954 as a minority member. Reelection is forbidden.

The old lawyer claims he is "just a plain citizen with no public office." But as victorious leader of the Blancos and the party's elder statesmen, he will wield power from the sidelines.

* * *

Dedicated to Party

HERRERA'S dedication to his party is extraordinary. He is known to have sold the two big ranches owned by his family since the last century to pay party expenses.

When people press the door bell in his ramshackle old mansion here — and hundreds do every month, many just to shake hands with the "patriarch"—he frequently answers the door himself.

He is the last of the old-time "caudillos" (chieftains) who won his early popularity fighting in the civil wars that bloodied this rolling land at the turn of the century.

For him, the Blancos' victory last Nov. 30 was his life-long dream come true.

* * *

Economy in Trouble

BUT THE PARTY inherits a country saddled with economic troubles.

For many years prosperity, coupled with a calm democratic behavior, made Uruguay the Switzerland of South America. But in the last four years the prosperity vanished. The government, headed by Luis Batlle Berres, was unable to halt inflation, increase production and stop the plunge of the once-stable Uruguayan peso in the money markets.

The Colorado government traded increasingly with Russia and Soviet bloc countries. It bitterly criticized U.S. duties on wool, Uruguay's main export item.

Blancos say extravagance and efforts by the Colorados to make Uruguay a welfare state are to blame for the economic blight. The government owns the power and water companies, restaurants, a tire factory, the monopoly for producing alcoholic drinks and a repertory theater. Most of these state-owned projects operate at a loss.

The country also has a costly social security system which provides retirement at 50.

* * *

Lack Resources

THE BLANCOS say their country, a small nation about the size of Nebraska with some three million people, lacks the natural resources to pay for the program.

They have called for general austerity. Even members of the National Council will not have official cars at their disposal.

They plan to curb government expenses and increase production of wool and meat — the traditional export items.

Herrera, an anti-Communist who was a friend of Argentina's ex-dictator Juan Peron and an admirer of Italy's Mussolini and Spain's Franco, says he doesn't particularly like to trade with communist nations. But, he adds, "We have to sell and buy where we can find the best terms."

The Blancos may find the task of strengthening the economy formidable. The Colorados have been running the country for almost a century. The present setup is so deeply rooted that Herrera's party might find itself trying to blow up a mountain with a thimbleful of wet powder.

Mrs. Cecilia Krawczak and Her Six Children Will Be Aided by New Fund

Aftermath of a Tragedy

Good Neighbors Come to Aid Of Families of Lost Sailors

The tragedy only begins with the men who go down to the sea in ships. What of the widows who weep by the shore and the children who wait in vain for daddy to return? This is what happened when the cruel sea struck down a great ship on Lake Michigan.

By A. F. MAHAN JR.
Associated Press Nesfeatures Writer

ROGERS CITY, Mich. — When the giant freighter Carl D. Bradley broke apart and sank in the icy waters of Lake Michigan last November, this little town of 3,873 was numb with tragedy.

Most of the 33 crewmen who died in the storm — only 2 survived — came from here. They left 23 widows, 50 living children and 3 yet unborn.

But now a warmth of neighborliness has helped dry the tears of the bereft and has brought hope for their offspring. The men asleep in the deep never knew most of the people who responded with such generosity to the plight of their widows and children.

In the bank for their children is a $147,000 trust fund, which will mean $3,000 apiece for them to apply to a college education, vocational training or a similar investment in the future. The fund came from pennies, dimes and dollars donated to an appeal by a Detroit newspaper.

Christmas without Daddy was sad and lonely, but thanks to the thoughtfulness and generosity of unknown friends, Daddy's place at the table was not taken by the specter of poverty and want.

* * *

Gifts Poured In

GIFTS of toys, food and clothing poured in for the families of those who perished on the Bradley. Many boxes, piled high with gifts, were put aside for other celebrations, such as birthdays and graduations.

The town of Posen, 15 miles away and with a population of 274, sent two huge baskets containing a turkey and all the trimmings to each of the families.

The Presque Isle County Health and Welfare Department sent $5 for each child, $10 for each widow, "just in case anybody needs it."

Said Mrs. Melville Orr, one of the widows, "Most of the youngsters probably had a bigger Christmas than they ever had in their lives.

Officials Take Inventory of Gifts Yet to Be Distributed

Continuing the pattern of unsolicited help, the Alpene Boys Club, 30 miles down the coast, voted to guarantee all surviving children of the lost Bradley seamen two weeks at its summer camp on nearby Lake Long. Dads and alumni agreed to underwrite the cost. The club figures it will be 1967 before it runs out of Rogers City guests.

MICHIGAN LIMESTONE sent a $300 check to each widow to cover clothing and other personal effects lost at sea. Bradley Transportation paid all funeral and burial costs.

In addition to the insurance, the widows are dependent on Social Security payments to keep their families going.

Social Security payments cease when the surviving child reaches his 18th birthday, or just about the time he would be starting college.

And that is where Banker John R. Blasky hopes the "Carl D. Bradley Ship Disaster Children's Fund" can step in. To help protect the child's health until then, the fund has purchased a hospital and medical insurance plan for all the children and their mothers at $4,400 a year.

The fund's trustees have voted, with the approval of the widows, to earmark an equal share of the money to each child to be used for "health, education and welfare." Separate accounts have been set up for each child. Withdrawals can be made as the need arises and are charged against the separate accounts.

"We will make no distributions for frivolous reasons," said Blasky in behalf of his fellow trustees.

* * *

Fund 'Only Hope'

MRS. FRANCES VALLEE, who has managed to pay off her home with insurance benefits, sees the fund as the only hope for the future that she and her husband had planned for their daughters, 16-year-old Patricia and 13-year-old Sue Ellen. "Edward and I," she says, "had planned to send the girls to college, and maybe the trust fund will do it."

Mrs. Cecelia Krawczak, a 32-year-old widow with six children, faces the future with a calm determination that does honor to the memory of her drowned husband. "I think we can manage, I don't know how, but we'll try. We have to. I've got the home and car paid off and some money left," she says.

Barbara Orr, 34, mother of three children, feels she is better off than most. "I own everything I've got," she says. "I can get by and feel lucky by comparison, because some of the kids are going to be real hard up."

The tragedy of the Carl D. Bradley has robbed Rogers City of fathers and husbands, but not, thanks to these courageous widows and the generosity of unknown friends, of its hope in the future.

It's Real 'Panache,' They Say on Madison Avenue

Ego-Propping Derby Scores Comeback

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK — Madison Avenue's first crash helmet, the derby, is reputed to make copy clerks look like account executives, and account executives like agency vice presidents.

It can, so the hatters claim, take the boy out of the mail room and into the board room in one easy wearing.

"Put one on for a couple of days," urged President Bernard Salesky of the Hat Corp. of America, the firm that brought about the bowler revival. "It will make you look younger, slimmer, more important. People will take you for a banker or a broker or maybe the head of a big corporation.

After this slur on the sartorial standards of my chosen calling, his challenge could not be ignored. I owed it to myself and raggedy journalists everywhere to lift a derbied head out of the slough of slovenliness.

But there is more to putting on a derby than just putting on a derby. There is first the ritual of the fitting or, as they say none too flatteringly in the trade, "blocking it out."

IN A CHIC midtown hat shop two faultlessly tailored salesmen studied my head with the clinical concern of phrenologists taking final exams.

While one dwelled excessively on my "oblique oval," "crown recession," "cranial bulge" and similar defects of which I was previously unaware, the other clamped a heavy cast iron device on my head and began working a series of prongs and levers back and forth. A small slip of perforated paper, shaped like a tear drop, finally emerged from the torture chamber overhead.

"This is your hat size," I was informed. "Keep it for future reference."

A shiny black derby was produced forthwith from the case and planted on my head at a precarious angle. The salesmen withdrew a respectful distance to study their handiwork.

"Not enough hat for so much face," said one sadly.

"Too much face for so little hat," said the other, even more sadly.

For a moment plastic surgery seemed to be indicated, but fortunately more hat was supplied in a model with a wider brim and higher crown.

"Panache," gushed the first hatter.

"Real panache," echoed the other.

It sounded like a scalp disease but the dictionary defines it as "swagger."

* * *

BUT I KNEW what they meant when I stepped from the shop and a cab driver promptly mistook me for Nelson Rockefeller.

"Where to, governor?" he asked.

In the Associated Press Building, the elevator operator whisked me to the executive offices on the seventh floor instead of the below stairs. He said he pushed the wrong button, but it was a thrilling experience all the same.

Among my cohorts there were few who mistook me for a broker or banker, although certain other comparisons were advanced.

Others thought I looked like an unemployed burlesque comedian, a Boston ward heeler, an undertaker, a fight manager, a London chimney sweep, the bouncer in a Bowery dive.

* * *

THESE WERE obviously the carping comments of envious idlers. A derby, I soon learned, is more than just a head covering, it is a crown of egoism. Let a man walk in wearing a fireman's helmet or a jeweled turban and no one pays much attention. But sport a derby and everyone from the janitor to the assistant general manager wants to try it on and preen in front of the mirror.

Machine Finds Hat Size
. . . as Mulligan looks on fearfully

With furled umbrella in hand and derby tilted smartly overhead, I was striding on top of the world until a small boy suddenly knocked the props out from under my newly acquired insouciance.

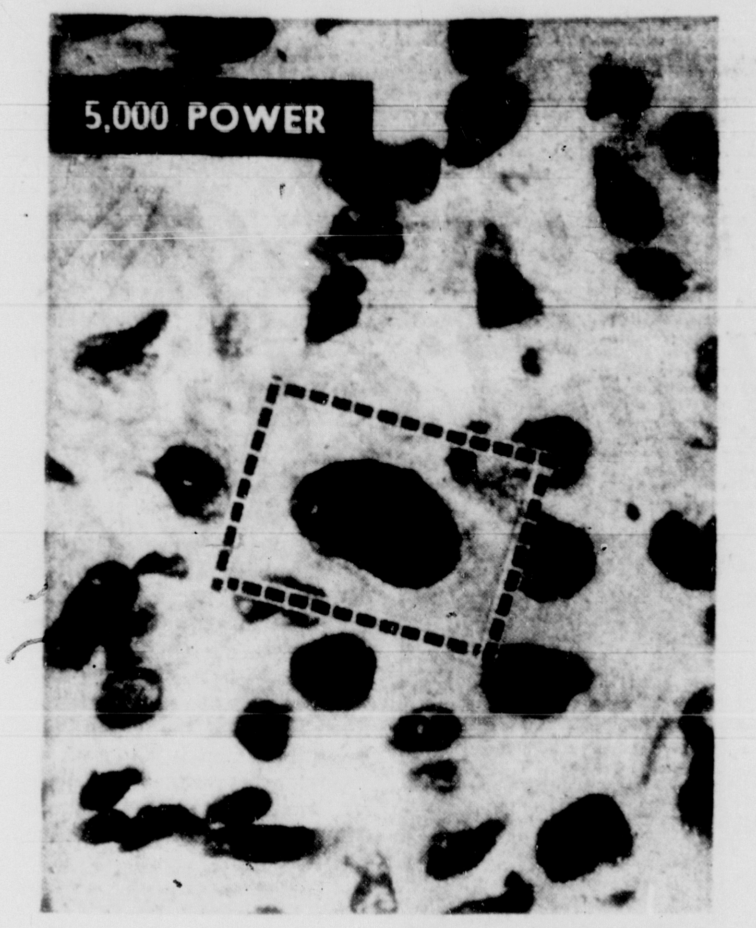
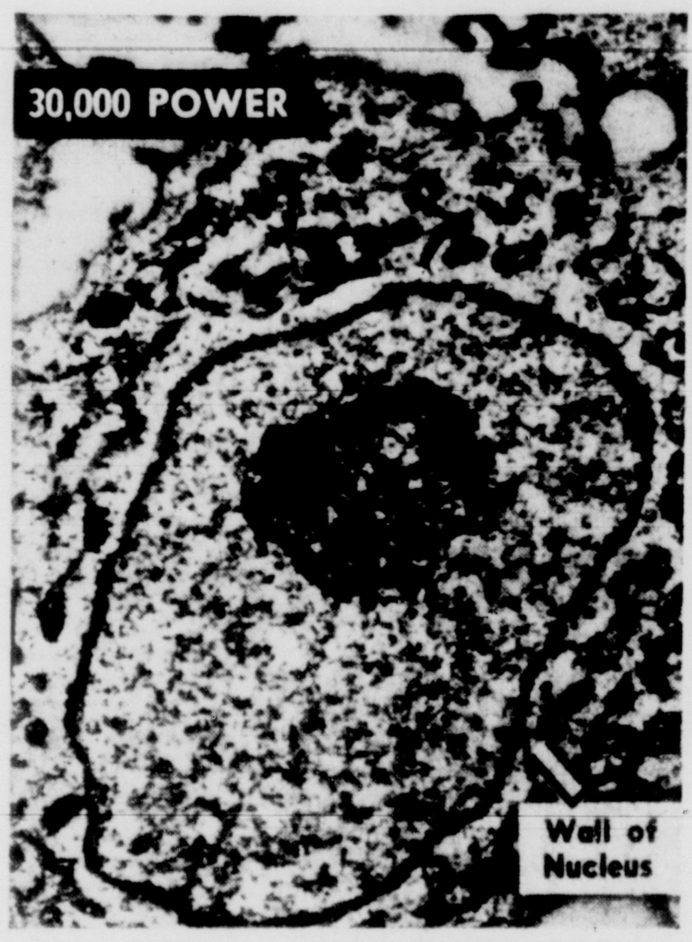
New UM Electron Microscope Magnifies Up to Million Times



Light-Ray Microscope Shows Many Cells
. . . at instrument's limit of magnification



Electron Microscope Shows Single Cell

Wall of Nucleus at 100,000 Power
. . . these are pictures of cancer cells

By MIKE MORGAN
Herald Staff Writer

The man who slices those thin wafers of ham found in sandwiches would writhe in envy over a machine in use at the University of Miami Medical School.

It's a microtome that can carve dextrously between 500,000 and one million slices of specimen tissue per inch.

It's the newest model electronic microscope commanding a magnification of such enormous range that if you could enlarge a dime to the full extent of the microscope's power, the dime would have a diameter of 12 miles.

It would cover a good portion of Dade County.

Thus reports Dr. Harvey Blank, head of the school's dermatology department, and the man in charge of the microscope.

* * *

Important Research Tool

PURCHASED through a grant of the United Better Health Foundation of the United Fund, the instrument will play an important factor in research on heart, cancer, tumors caused by viruses, leukemia studies.

It will also be put to work in extremely significant work that Dr. Blank is conducting in skin diseases—work that has attracted international attention.

Standing over six feet high, flanked by intricately devised wings of wiring and "innards", the electronic microscope is as different from the standard, "high-powered" light-ray microscope as a buggy is compared to a complicated, finely-tooled racing car.

It literally operates in a vacuum.

Called upon to magnify objects which are often much smaller than light rays, smaller than ultra-violet rays, the scope uses electronic rays—which are extremely short.

Electronic rays are shot through the vacuum to the object being magnified, and an image is built on a small screen.

To put it roughly, it operates not unlike a television screen.

* * *

Molecules Photographed

CONSIDER that the average "high-power" microscope, utilizing light rays, can magnify an object possibly 5,000 times—and then in a manner not very satisfactory for precise work.

The electronic microscope has an extreme range of magnification of one million times—and has enabled man to penetrate the world of the minute, opening new worlds of discovery.

Some idea of the dramatic capabilities of the microscope, combined with the all-important microtome, or "slicing machine," can be gained from the following.

With a light-ray microscope it is impossible to see viruses. Advent of the electronic microscope brought identification of several viruses which were revealed under its powerful eye.

Such as the flu virus.

Not only does the electronic all-seeing eye reveal the virus, but the cutting machine can slice four horizontal layers from a single cell, thus enabling scientists to study the structure of a virus.

* * *

HOW is it done?

This little deal calls for some highly polished skills and techniques—and the steadiest kind of a hand.

First you take a dot of tissue containing the virus, or cell you want to study.

The speck of tissue is imbedded in a plastic which hardens into the shape of a capsule, holding the specimen firmly inside, and on the nose of the plastic.

Then the plastic is locked in position facing the cutting tool. Cranking a wheel moves the blade under the capsule . . . moves it up so that it shears off a microscopic section which drops into a water-filled receptacle.

The sliced specimen floats invisibly upon the top of the water. Trained technicians know how to recognize the specimens by the difference in light refraction on the water's surface—by the shimmer not unlike that created when a droplet of oil is on water.

Next, the specimen is delicately scooped up on a tiny, round screen grid and both screen and specimen are placed in the microscope.

Of such exacting nature is the entire cutting operation that the technician needs a specially mounted microscope when he cuts and picks up the specimens.

* * *

Well Fixed for Blades

At first I thought that in order to obtain the fine degree necessary a 'sonic' blade—(using sound waves to do the cutting as in some forms of dentistry) or a highly evolved mechanism was needed.

Dr. Blank explained that when the machine was first engineered, development of a cutting edge was a major baffling problem.

Steel blades, even brought to extraordinary sharpness, didn't perform as needed.

Nor did any other devices.

The solution was found not in any expensive, elaborate blade. Someone, with a stroke of inspiration, simply cracked a fragment of plate glass on an angle and latched it in the blade holder.

The sheer edge of the plate glass cut to perfection. Replacement costs? About 4 cents.

How Jews Helped in U.S. Life

Harry Simonhoff lives on Miami Beach and this is his second book regarding the achievements of Jewish statesmen, men of letters, scientists, labor leaders, poets and great merchants.

The Jewish community remained stationary in the United States throughout the Napoleonic wars, he points out, but by the end of the Civil War its estimated number was 150,000.

"One cannot visualize music in America without the host of Jewish composers, violinists, conductors and audiences," the author reminds us. "In heavy industry the Guggenheims became the world's largest miners, smelters and refiners of copper. Former peddlers opened stores and transformed the pushcart into great department stores.

"Samuel Gompers built up the American Federation of Labor and perhaps the most astonishing Jewish performance was the creation of the motion picture industry into a vast film empire."

The book is actually a compilation of 50 biographies of famous Jewish men and women, each one illustrated and carrying a portrait of the subject.

They range from Oscar Hammerstein, the impresario, to Oscar S. Straus, Secretary of Commerce, and Emma Goldman, anarchist, to Joseph Pulitzer, editor of The New York World, and are drawn from many walks of life.

Walter Damrosch, born in Posen, became a musician by chance because his parents insisted on his graduating from the University of Berlin in medicine. Albert Einstein, Nobel prize winner, first saw the light of day in the same place, emigrated to California as a child, obtained a commission to Annapolis where, in science classes, he first became interested in the nature of light.

Emma Lazarus, whose poem is engraved on the Statue of Liberty in New York harbour, was a sugar heiress with a good education while Emma Goldman, born in Kovno, Poland, stole back to St. Petersburg, worked in a factory at 12, emigrated to Rochester, N.Y., where wages were no better — 10½ hours a day for $2.50 a week.

Samuel Gompers was the product of London's poverty stricken East End.; Charles Frohman's father ran a cigar store in New York's theatrical district. Adolph Ochs, who owned The New York Times, moved from Cincinnati to Knoxville in a covered wagon, delivered papers, swept floors, ultimately bought The Chattanooga Times for $800.

This Saga is invaluable for anyone interested in Jewish culture in America.

A Princess Returns to Her Russia

THE PRIVILEGE WAS MINE, by Princess Zinaida Schakovskoy, (Putnam, $4)
By Lyal Shoemaker

In 1957 Mme. Swiatoslav Malewsky-Malevitch packed luggage for the trip to her husband's new diplomatic post in Moscow, during the period of strained relations between Russia and the western democracies.

Princess Schakovskoy

Her schooling in Belgium and Paris had equipped her to work with the Free French Information Service and as a war correspondent. Later she turned to creative writing, publishing both novels and poetry.

Her story is at once readable and dramatic. She does not pretend to give an unbiased account. These people are her people and she loves then but the present Russian government is "they" throughout and she loathes them.

The author's knowledge of Russian enabled her to move in and out of shops, museums, and other public places without being recognized as a foreigner. She is chiefly concerned with living conditions and points of view rather than political issues.

Whether her conclusion is accurate or not will have to be left to other observers but she found "an immense discontent . . . which has its roots less in material difficulties than in oppression of ordinary people.

"In spite of the frantic propaganda which has gone on now for nearly half a century," she says, "the Russian people has preserved its independence of judgment and intellectual curiosity."

Smallpox In Town

THE PILLARS OF MIDNIGHT, by Elleston Trevor, (Morrow, $3.50).

What would happen if an epidemic of a usually fatal disease broke out in a small British town — or any town, for that matter? This novel by a prolific young Englishman describes such an event, its impact on the townspeople, on the dedicated doctors and nurses, and on the lives and relationships of individuals.

Nowadays vaccinations, inoculations, antibiotics and miracle drugs are available and the basic premise of this novel, that smallpox could slip into a city when its guard is down, is a trifle unrealistic.

But Trevor, who has 10 novels and scores of radio dramas to his credit, does a commendable job of characterization and plot, and manages to keep interest burning.

Florida of the Sawgrass and Palmettoes Is Like No Other State

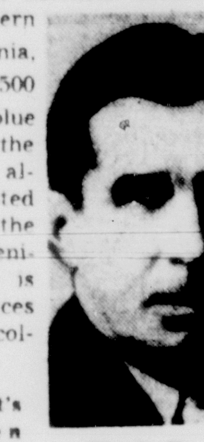
Books In Review

by
BEATRICE WASHBURN
Herald Book Page Editor

Pratt Writes of His Old Love -- Florida

"SUB-TROPICAL FLORIDA is unique among all the states," declares Theodore Pratt in his Florida Roundabout, Duell Sloan, ($3.95). "Her northern border is well south of the southern border of California, she sails more than 500 miles into the blue green waters of the West Indies . . . almost as if she wanted to get away from the United States, perenially seceding. She is one of the few places that lives up to her color photographs."



Ted Pratt
. . . Florida voice

Eleven of Pratt's novels have been written about Florida and though he has made several attempts to escape her lure, such as making wild dashes to Arizona and California, and even to Mexico, he always returns and is now quartered, let us trust permanently, in Delray Beach.

His Barefoot Mailman, a tale of the first letter carriers between Miami and Palm Beach, is required reading in many of the state's universities and colleges. It also is represented by murals in the Palm Beach postoffice and its name is borne by a hotel at Pompano, several motels, and a town on Route One. Pratt likes the wild untamed beauty of the Florida hinterland that no other state can claim.

16 Stories of the State

WHILE WRITING HIS BOOKS he attended "every cock fight, old time medicine show, fish fry, fishing trip with the conch people of the Florida Keys, joined groups on the steps of the country store, journeyed to the mangrove coast, knew juke joints and back-country barbecues." He admits there are still beautiful unspoiled spots in Florida, and an incomparable winter climate but the southeast section has become an "artificial goldplated tourist trap."

There are 16 stories in this book, most of them collected from books already published and, as Pratt says himself, his attachment to wild, uncultivated parts of the state and what you might call wild, uncultivated people give his rural sketches far more authority than his more sophisticated bits.

In a story called The Pensioners, which should have probed far deeper than it did into the life of retired people, he has one unforgettable sentence: "Somehow you never think of Florida as home, even if you know you are going to spend the rest of your life here." How often have we heard someone say that!

Kane on Gulf Coast

ANOTHER BOOK on Florida, long on pictures and information but short on literary style is The Golden Coast, by Harnett Kane, (Doubleday, $5). Kane, an extremely versatile writer who has turned out all kinds of books on all kinds of subjects, has touched on the picturesque parts of our Florida Gulf Coast and places that many have learned to take for granted. He points out that Pensacola is the oldest of all Gulf settlements.

"Thirteen times Pensacolians shifted owners," he says. "They once had a new master four times in four months." He describes the Navy Yard with its four sturdy forts, reminds us that where the jets fly today was in 1894 the scene of construction of hundreds of square-rigged ships made from Pensacola's own trees. Cigars, cigarets and a Moorish temple are, of course, Tampa, a city that was once the embarkation point for 30,000 American troops in the Spanish war.

When the 1886 fire swept Key West its hundreds of Cuban cigarmakers moved to Tampa. St. Petersburg, which owes its name to an Imperial Russian officer who owned a railroad there, has had free public concerts for 65 years . . . At Tarpon Springs is the Aegean village that the Greek fishermen built out of homesickness for their native land.

Our Colleague Differs

WISH WE HAD space for our own children's book reviewer's entire letter on the subject of The Bobbsey Twins who have since become a national issue. May Edmonds doesn't agree with us — that's all right, it's a free country and a free press — but she adds another disconcerting note to the excitement about childrens' books. "It is only when a child reads nothing but 'series' books that I worry," she says. "They are unwholesome in the same way as a diet of cake would be unwholesome and children's librarians feel about wholesome book meals as a dietician feels about food — a responsibility to provide the best."

Well, that's a big responsibility, all right, we don't wonder Mrs. Edmonds is worried. And what's this about "series books being unwholesome?" Please page Mr. Galsworthy. Under that category jolly Mrs. Franken with her roster of Claudia books would be considered unworthy of Florida bookshelves. It would seem the "series" books have a distinctly logical appeal. People they're reading about, and children are particularly susceptible to this form of identification.

Only fair to add that Mrs. Edmonds sets forth a definitely positive approach to the whole question. To place alongside the beloved Anderson, Grimm, Carroll, Grahame books in imaginative writings she suggests, The Borrowers, by Mary Norton; Rabbit Hill, by Robert Lawson, Charlotte's Web, by E. B. White; 21 Balloons, by William DuBois; Mary Poppins by Pamela Travers.

To fill the same reading interest as the "series" books she recommends The Freddy Books, by Charles Brooks; The Betsy Books, by Carolyn Haywood; The Saturdays, by Elizabeth Enright; The Moffats, by Eleanor Estes and Betsy Tacy by Maud Lovelace.

Queen Bess, a Portrait

Elizabeth Led England's Rise

ELIZABETH THE GREAT, by Elizabeth Jenkins, (Coward McCann, $5)

This magnificent portrait of England's greatest queen is not only a sensitive and perceptive picture of a complex woman, but a tapestry from one of the most picturesque periods of English history.

Miss Jenkins treats this remarkable daughter of Henry VIII not only as a sovereign but as a woman. As a personality she has remained an enigma to this day — fragile, imaginative, nerve-ridden, with the brain of a ruler and the body of a neurotic.

Her greatest feat was that "she kept her realm free from foreign conflict and civil war, filled it with thriving prosperity and her intellect, elegance and grandeur surrounded it with a blaze of personal distinction."

Although her suitors numbered not only the lords of her realm but kings and princes from all over the world, she expressed as a child, pale, red-haired, inflexible in her stepmother's luxurious home, the decision never to marry.

Could the blood and tragedy in which her life began, and the savage advances of Lord Seymour when she was still a child have given her sexual development an injury from which she never recovered?

While she was still in the nursery her mother and her mother's cousin, Jane Seymour, became headless corpses. Her stepmother, Catherine Howard, who befriended her, was also beheaded.

Queen Elizabeth I
. . . remarkably complex

The princess was, for a time, completely homeless, dragged from one luxurious house to another while the great play for power went on above her. Her brother Edward, whom she adored, died at 16.

Her stepsister, Mary, who was bidding for the same crown, was thrown in prison by Elizabeth and, in the last 10 years of her reign Elizabeth's reprisals against Catholic priests overshadowed the luxuries of her splendid court.

A great administrator, Elizabeth had many feminine accomplishments. She was an expert needlewoman and dancer. Her handwriting, as she turned from Greek and Latin to Spanish, French or German, was as exquisite as fine lace. Her expert manipulation of foreign affairs kept England secure.

Miss Jenkins says, of the Spanish Armada: "On a moonlight night of July 1588 England saw the great nightmare rise above the horizon's rim and creep over the sea toward them. The huge ships were built high like towers and castles."

The wealth of Elizabeths' court rivaled the Hollywood of today. Increasing prosperity brought "stockings fine as yarn, velvet shoes, ruffs trimmed with gold and silver.

"At Hampton Court the rooms were of transparent glass studded with pearls and precious stones. Diamonds were studded in the doors. The queen's grey horses had their manes dyed orange, wore bridles of silver and diamonds."

Altogether a fascinating book, both for readibility and for historical importance.

Dade Doctor Cites Gains In Medicine

AMID MASTERS OF 20TH CENTURY MEDICINE, by Leonard G. Rowntree, M.D. (Thomas, $5.00)

When Dr. Rowntree, a resident of Miami for the past 13 years, first entered medical school in London, Ontario nearly 50 years ago, the life expectancy of the white male in our society was only 47. Now it is 68.

During his long career in medicine he has seen the conquest of diabetes, yellow fever, tuberculosis, diphtheria and malaria. He was a pre-med student during the Spanish American War, saw Walter Reed and William Gorgas do tremendous work in the tropics, knew Dr. Patrick Manson, discovered the seeds of dropsy in a dead mosquito.

Dr. Rowntree has been teacher, research worker, clinician and medical administrator. From the school of medicine at the University of Minnesota he was appointed chief of medicine at the Mayo Foundation, a position he held for 12 years.

He describes day-by-day routine at Rochester, Minn. which the Mayo brothers had made the medical center of the world. To this little Middle Western town came king, potentates, presidents and suffering citizens from practically every country on the globe.

Many of these great names in medicine Dr. Rowntree knew personally. The book is for the medical profession, of course, but his knowledge of the subject is so wide that many intelligent laymen will read it with interest.

A Taylor Caldwell Historical

St. Luke Story Depicts an Age

DEAR AND GLORIOUS PHYSICIAN, by Taylor Caldwell (Doubleday $3.95).

It has taken Miss Caldwell 46 years to write this book, "once when I was 12, again when I was 22 and, finally, now." She has been fascinated, as have many others by St. Luke, the only apostle who was not Jewish and the only one who never saw Christ. Her handicaps, if any, are those of anyone who strives to write about a saint.

Lucanus, son of a Greek fisherman who grew up in the household of the Roman governor of Antioch, must be represented not only as a great physician but as one to whom all earthly pleasures are denied in his pursuit of the great new religion which was beginning to flood the East.

Taylor Caldwell

He is only a child when he sees in the sky the mysterious star that is said to presage a new king but for many years the worship of the Unknown God has absorbed many of the thoughtful men to whom the rude Greek and Roman gods seemed like rude strangers without compassion or good sense.

As Lucanus travels we see the great cities of the East as they were when the Roman Empire was at its prime — Antioch, Athens, Rome, Jerusalem, we visit the cool gardens and marble palaces of the aristocracy, the shacks and hovels of the slaves, hospitals in the cities, travel in ships manned by oars, ride in chariots or on prancing horses.

The man who afterwards wrote one of the four gospels seeks all his material from people who had known Jesus — fishermen and farmers, senators and Pontius Pilate, travelers who had seen the wonder-working Stranger.

All of this, according to Miss Caldwell, he writes down and he is in Rome the day the sky darkens and it is said that the new God is dead.

If Miss Caldwell has failed in her characterization of a man it is only because she sought to depict an ideal rather than a human being.

'Why Africa? My Brutality, Teeth, Face'

HENDERSON THE RAIN KING, by Saul Bellow (Viking, $4.50)

There is no describing this book, any more than you could describe a Gauguin picture. It has the same violence and raw color, the same stupendous primitives, the same trick of translating people into broad colorful surfaces.

This novelist, who wrote The Adventures of Augie March, has created a new kind of character. You must turn back to Somerset Maugham's The Moon and Sixpence, to find a similar one.

Henderson is a man of tremendous appetites and insatiable curiosity about life. The book opens when he is 55:

"I am a big man, very tall, with a big nose. I weighed 14 pounds at birth, graduated from an Ivy League College, have had two wives and multitudes of children."

Most of the book is laid in Africa, amid wild tribes and primitive people. "Why did I go to Africa? The facts began to crowd me . . . my parents, my wives, my girls, my habits, my money, my music lessons, my drunkenness, my prejudices and brutality, my teeth, my face . . ."

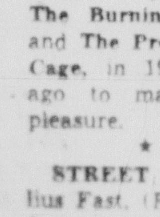
You keep on reading because the style keeps you fascinated.

What's What with the Whodunits

Carr Collection Is Mystery Fans' Treat

By ELEANOR G. SMITH
Herald Mystery Book Editor

THREE DETECTIVE NOVELS, by John Dickson Carr, (Harper, $3.95). The popularity of the first collection of John Dickson Carr's mystery novels, Trio, was so great that Harpers has ventured forth with a second anthology.



CARR

Naturally it takes Gideon Fell to solve and explain these mysteries in his customary portentous fashion. These stories should be new to the current crop of mystery fans, but old and welcome hat to the bearded ones.

The Arabian Nights Murder, was published in 1936, The Burning Court, in 1937 and The Problem of the Wire Cage, in 1939. Long enough ago to make re-reading a pleasure.

* * *

STREET OF FEAR, by Julius Fast, (Rinehart, $2.95). A few years ago this story would have been unbelievable, depicting as it does gang warfare and juvenile delinquency.

Dr. Anthony Lombard was resident physician in an out-of-town hospital when he learned that his 16-year-old brother had been knifed. Of course, he nimbled back to his family's home on the lower East Side and couldn't believe the changes in the neighborhood.

There were the two gangs — the War Chiefs and the Rajahs, that carelessly played with death, mugging, dope and corruption. It is a sordid tale with a dramatic surprise when the killer is uncovered.

* * *

FIRE ON FEAR STREET, by Stewart Sterling (Lippincott, $2.95). By the time Fire Marshal Ben Pedley got there, his men had the blaze under control, but the woman was dead. She had been dreaming of flames when awakened by real smoke. It was the second fire in a day in the run-down Greenwich Village apartment house building. The evidence pointed toward arson cum murder.

There was the usual assortment of misfit tenants which included the dead woman's husband, an under-paid professor of physics.

Fire Marshal Pedley was led on a wild chase through hidden trap doors, stygian basements, a factory and a gift shop — while the murderer set more fires and killed another person. All adding up to the terror on Fear Street.

* * *

THE PORT OF LONDON MURDERS, by Josephine Bell, (Macmillan, $3.25). The South Bank of the River Thames was sordid indeed. Squalid streets, condemned slums, men and women bitter in their poverty. But when the murders started, even these hardened neighbors bridled.

First was Mrs. Mary Holland, a secret drug addict. Dreadfully dead of Lysol poisoning. Detective - Inspector Chandler soon discovered, by asking questions, that it was no suicide.

Then Chandler's body was found behind the wall of a beat-up tenement. From there the trail led to the highest reaches of Mayfair society.

Religion-Art Festival Offers Rich Program

By DORIS RENO
Herald Music and Art Editor

Music and Art

Exhibitions in several local galleries, lectures, panel discussions, tours, and many other events will be featured in the week-long Religion and Art Festival to be sponsored by University of Miami this week.

The festival gets under way today.

The focal point on campus will be the "Religion and Art" exhibition at Lowe Gallery, which gallery members will preview from 3 to 5 today.

This show will include graphics by Rembrandt, Durer and Cranach, together with religious paintings, sculpture, textiles and a wide variety of religious objects. The exhibition will be available to the public from Monday through March 29.

Important paintings being lent from New York galleries are by John Steuart Curry, Abraham Rattner, Giuseppe Maria Crespi and Girolamo da Ponte Bassano.

Also on view in the main gallery will be two illuminated manuscripts from the Morgan Library, New York City, and a showing of Jewish ritual silver lent by Julius Carlebach of New York and Joseph Meyers of Newark.

In the lecture gallery will be a collection of retablos loaned by Alfred I. Barton of Surfside. Retablos are religious paintings done in the 18th and 19th centuries by native artists in northern New Mexico.

Displayed in the foyer will be 14 icons, or images of Christ, the Virgin Mary and the saints used by members of the Orthodox Church in their worship. These are recent gifts from Mrs. Carl Henry Davis of Coconut Grove.

Other shows opening today in connection with this festival include an exhibition of religious paintings by Miami artists at the Rudolph Galleries, Coral Gables, and a showing of sculpture and ceramics on religious themes at the Mirell Gallery, Coconut Grove.

The Rudolph show, which will be previewed between 1 and 3 p.m. today, includes work by Richard Merrick, Margaret LeFranc, Elenora Chambers, Tony Scornavacca, Ethel Fisher, Sadie Rosenblum, LaRue Storm, Frank Dorsay, Lewis Stern, Janet Kennedy, E. E. Ulman, Paul Halvor Reno, and Warren Nolden.

The three-dimensional showing of religious art at Mirell Galleries, scheduled for a preview from 2 to 4 p.m. today, will contain wood sculptures by Al Vrana, Clayton Charles, Harry Greene, and Tony Lopez, and tile placques by Fran Williams.

'The Sepulchre,' by Girolamo Bassano
. . . one of many rare works in Festival

There will also be stained glass by John Salk, a champleve by Marion Tarpley, and other sculptures in various media by Imourie Fisher and Audrey Corwin.

The openings of both the Rudolph and Mirell shows are public.

Still a fourth show which ties into the art and religion festival is the 10th annual exhibition of the Florida Artist Group, which has its reception at the Playhouse Gallery in Coconut Grove Thursday evening.

This group is coordinating its annual symposium with the Art and Religion Festival, and its members and delegates will attend festival sessions Thursday through Saturday. The show will be available to the public from Tuesday through March 23.

The first event of Monday which is open to the public is a tour of the Lowe show at 12:30 p.m., with Leo Mindlin, editor of the Jewish Floridian, speaking on "Art and the Jewish Faith."

Dr. John Oliver Nelson of Yale Divinity School will speak on "Religion and Art" in Beaumont hall at 2 p.m. Tuesday — another public event.

Other events of the week in which the public may participate are: A Lowe Gallery tour at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday, with Robert Tyler Davis, coordinator of humanities at UM, speaking on "Renaissance Religious Art," a tour of Miami churches, including St. Theresa's Catholic Church in Coral Gables, St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Coconut Grove, and Temple Israel, leaving Lowe Gallery at 2 p.m. Wednesday.

Also a panel discussion on "Designing the House of Worship," with Dr. H. Franklin Williams as moderator and Miami architects Dean Parmelee, Irving Korach, Rufus Nims and Edward Remke as panelists, 8:30 p.m. Wednesday in Beaumont Hall; a Lowe Gallery tour with C. Clay Aldridge, Lowe director, speaking on "The Alfred Barton Collection of Southwest Santos," 12:30 p.m. Thursday.

Also a lecture by Kenneth Donahue, director of Ringling Museum of Sarasota, on "The Church as Patron from the Reformation to the French Revolution," 2 p.m. Thursday, Lowe Gallery; A Lowe Gallery tour with Dr. Virgil Barker of the UM art department speaking on "Contemporary Art and Religion," 12:30 p.m. Friday; a panel discussion on "The Place of Art in Religious Life" with Thomas Tibbs, director of the Museum of Contemporary Crafts of New York as moderator, 2 p.m. Friday, Lowe Gallery.

Panelists on the Tibbs program will be Abram Lassaw, sculptor, Frederic Sprague, painter and stained glass designer, Victor Lundy of Sarasota, architect, Dominique de Lerma, musician and musicologist of UM music department, and Joseph Auslander, poet.

Among the events of the festival which will be available by ticket will be a lecture on "Art as the Basis of Religion" by Philip Wylie at 8 p.m. Friday at Lowe Gallery. Tickets may be obtained from Lowe Gallery, the UM art department, or church organizations.

Another event will be the Beaux Arts lecture by poet Robert Frost at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Plymouth Church, Coconut Grove. Admission to this will be by ticket for members of Beaux-Arts and Lowe Gallery.

For students and faculty there will be many film sessions, along with other discussion sessions and lectures throughout the week.

Tibbs, moderator for the 2 p.m. panel discussion Friday, is juror of the Florida Artists Group show. He will address members of this group at their luncheon Saturday.

Clayton Charles, head of the UM art department, has been in charge of planning the program.

Victoria De Los Angeles
. . . soloist tonight

Latin Lark With UM Symphony

One of the finest natural voices in the world will be heard in Miami tonight and Monday, when Spanish soprano Victoria de los Angeles appears with John Bitter and the University of Miami Symphony Orchestra in the sixth pair of concerts presented by the local ensemble this season.

The concerts are scheduled for 8:30 tonight at Miami Beach auditorium, and the same time Monday evening in Dade County auditorium.

Miss de los Angeles plans to sing the charming three-movement "instrumental concerto" of Mozart, the motet K. 165 called the "Exultate Jubilate."

She will also sing the familiar aria "Una voce poco fa" from Rossini's "Barber of Seville," and the somewhat less familiar "L'Altra notte in fondo" from Boito's opera "Mefistofele."

Bitter will conduct the orchestra in Schumann's First Symphony, Op. 38, called "Spring," Nos. 8 and 10 of Dvorak's set of Slavonic Dances, and Stokowski's orchestral version of Bach's Fugue in G Minor.

Miss de los Angeles has not previously sung with the orchestra here, though she has been heard in two recitals for members of Civic Music Association.

She gives equally sympathetic performances in opera and recital. She is also in great demand for performances with orchestra, since she easily surmounts even heavily scored accompaniment.

The singer was brought to this country by Sol Hurok, and made her debut in Carnegie Hall in 1950. Her debut with the Metropolitan Opera was in 1951, since which she has sung numerous roles there.

She is most popular with the public in such roles as Marguerite in "Faust," Mimi in "Boheme," Butterfly in "Madame Butterfly," and Desdemona in "Otello."

Miss de los Angeles will also be soloist with the Florida Symphony under Frank Miller during her artistic invasion of this state. She will appear with Miller and his ensemble in the Municipal Auditorium at Orlando Thursday evening.

Contest Opens For Composers

A competition open to composers will be sponsored by University of Miami chapter of Phi Mu Alpha, national music fraternity. Deadline for submission of scores is Wednesday, March 4.

Eligible are all University of Miami students and faculty members, as well as Phi Mu Alpha members at all other Florida colleges.

Cincinnati Symphony Opens Here Saturday

The Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, second American professional orchestra to visit the Miami area this season, will play the first of two performances here on Saturday evening. This will be for members of Community Concert Association, and is scheduled for 8:30 in Miami Beach auditorium. On the following Monday evening the orchestra will play a concert for members of Civic Music Association in Dade County auditorium.

The Cincinnati Symphony is touring under its new conductor, Max Rudolf. It is the fifth oldest major symphony in the United States.

Soloist for the Community concert on Saturday will be the 22-year-old violinist Michael Rabin, who will play the Paganini Concerto No. 1 in D major, Op. 6.

There will be no soloist for the Civic concert.

Rudolf came to the ensemble this season from the Metropolitan Opera house, where he had been conducting, and also serving as artistic administrator, for the past eight years.

German-born, he began his conducting career in the opera houses of his native land, including the Darmstadt Opera. At 27 he accepted a post at the German Opera House in Prague, where he also conducted several notable concerts with the Berlin Philharmonic.

Later he spent some years conducting the Gothenburg Orchestra in Sweden, and from there came to the United States.

Prior to taking over the Cincinnati orchestra, Rudolf's career in this country has been principally with the Metropolitan Opera. However, he has guest-conducted most of the major symphonies in this country.

Rudolf's program for the Community concert, besides the Paganini, includes Brahms' First Symphony in C minor, Op. 68, and Paul Creston's Dance Overture, Op. 62.

The Creston work was world-premiered in Miami by John Bitter and the University of Miami Symphony in April of 1955. It was commissioned by the National Federation of Music Clubs, for its biennial convention here that spring.

Michael Rabin, at 22, has been before the public several years. He first performed with the National Orchestra Association in Carnegie Hill at 13, and made his debut there with the New York Philharmonic a year later.

He first played here with the UM Symphony when he was 18.

He is known throughout the United States for numerous recordings, including his debut on Columbia Records with the 24 Paganini Caprices when he was 13.

TOP CONDUCTORS TO MEET

Strike Up Band! Maestros on Way

Band music and the country's foremost band conductors will bid for Miamians' attention this week.

Assembling Wednesday at the Dupont Plaza hotel, more than 150 of these eminent musicians will hold their annual convention of the American Bandmasters Association here.

Host for the second time since 1953 is University of Miami, which will dedicate its new Henry Fillmore Memorial Band Building at 2 p.m. Friday with the visiting conductors participating.

Three major band concerts, free to the public, are scheduled.

The University of Miami band, with guest conductors drawn from the A.B.A. roster, will present a symphonic program in Dade County auditorium at 8 p.m. Wednesday, and will appear again at 7:45 p.m. Saturday in Bayfront Park.

Friday night, in Bayfront Park, Caesar La Monaca and his band will offer a program with eleven visiting conductors.

A fourth concert, not open to the public, will be played Thursday morning by the Miami Senior High School band in the school auditorium.

Highlight of the university's program in Dade County auditorium Wednesday night will be the world premiere of Tom Tuckey's "Introduction and Scherzo for Band," which won the 1959 Ostwald award.

The composer's real identity is Dr. Maurice Weed, head of the music department of Northern Illinois University, De Kalb, Ill. Maj. Hugh J. Curry, director of the U.S. Army Band of Washington, D.C., will conduct.

Another feature of the Wednesday program will be a special arrangement of Beethoven's Rondo from the Sonata, Op. 2, No. 2, written for band by George Moore, director of the Mount Dora High School band. Moore is the son of Mrs. Thurston Adams of Miami. UM Bandmaster Fred McCall will conduct.

America's famed composer-conductor Ferde Grofe will appear Saturday night with the UM Band in Bayfront Park, conducting his own composition, "Mardi Gras" from the "Mississippi Suite."

Famous trumpeter Don Jacoby will be soloist on the La Monaca and UM programs in the park.

Among the other distinguished bandmasters appearing in these concerts are:

Music Calendar

TODAY — University of Miami Symphony, John Bitter conductor, Victoria de los Angeles soloist, 8:30 p.m., Miami Beach auditorium.

MONDAY — Repeat of UM concert — 8:30 p.m., Dade County auditorium.

WEDNESDAY — UM Band, 8:30 p.m., Dade County auditorium.

SATURDAY—Cincinnati Symphony, Max Rudolph conductor, Michael Rabin soloist, 8:30 p.m., Miami Beach auditorium, for Community Concert Association members.

Music Camp Entries Open

Applications are now being accepted from Miami music students who wish to attend the Transylvania Music Camp at Brevard, N.C., during the 1959 summer session. The camp season is from June 27 to August 9.

The camp, which is headed by James Christian Pfohl, will again have on its faculty this summer Victor Stern, viola instructor at University of Miami. John Bitter, conductor of the UM Symphony, will be one of the guest conductors this year.

Other Florida musicians on the staff include Emerson W. Head, trumpet, Louie Rivetti, tuba, and Nan Rivetti, theory instructor, all from the Jacksonville public school staff. Harold E. Carter of the same staff will teach art. Reid Poole of the University of Florida faculty will have charge of the band and of theory classes.

Local students wishing to attend the camp may call Al Jacobson, 253 Miracle Mile, Coral Gables, telephone HI 5-3539.

It's Artists' Day At Vizcaya

Miami Art League, in collaboration with the Metro Dade County Parks and Recreation department, will sponsor an Artists' Day at Vizcaya from noon to 5 p.m. today.

Artists will be admitted free to the grounds of Vizcaya, where they may spend the afternoon painting.

Local artists will hold a clothes line exhibition and sale next Sunday, March 8, at Vizcaya during the same hours.

BUT SHOW HAS BRIGHT SPOTS

Romantic Style Is Drawback

By DORIS RENO
Herald Music and Art Editor

Art Reviews

J. Robson Kennedy, who is having her first annual "anniversary show" at the Huber Gallery, Miami Beach—has changed her approach somewhat during this year, but not fundamentally her style.

Only one or two paintings in the present show suggest by their titles that they belong in the stream of "religious" pictures which this artist has been turning out. The starting points, rather, have been Greek myth, or medieval tales, or contemporary romanticism and, in two cases, the drip technique.

Mrs. Kennedy's natural style is out-and-out romantic, whatever the subject material, and this is, for us personally, one of the major drawbacks to appreciation of her work. For romanticism, in this age, can only too easily slide into cuteness, or an all-too-airy expressionism that speaks with small authority.

There are several things in this show we do like very much, however, and one is the single painting bearing a religious title—"The Prodigal." We like this for its arrangement of planes and use of color, and because it has mood and meaning.

We also like "Lace Curtains" and "Beau Rivage." Drop paintings for us are mostly irrelevant, whatever their color-glow, and these are no exceptions.

We think Mrs. Kennedy does well to confine herself mostly to smaller canvases, and several of the smallest in this show are among the most important. The showing will close March 27.

* * *

THE NEW GROUP show at Rudolph Galleries, Coral Gables, which will be on view through March 15, presents, in several cases, off-the-beaten-track paintings by the "regulars."

For instance, Sadie Rosenblum's "Girl on a Park Bench" is different from her normal output, and compositionally attractive. Sidney Laufman's "Landscape with Pink House" is fresh and charming, and Frederick Serger's Still Life took our eye for its bright face.

* * *

NEW YORK painter Andrew Martin's mostly small, bright oils at the Meridian branch of Washington Federal on Miami Beach have a rhythmic flow, and are further interesting for their gaiety of color and internal movement.

Our favorite piece from this show is the artist's conception of "The Orchestra," and we like also several of the very sensitive still lifes.—D.R.

NEW ART SHOWS

Artist Couple Plan Exhibit on Monday

Two Tallahasseans, a sculptor-husband and a painter-wife will present a two-man exhibition at the Playhouse Gallery, Coconut Grove, on Monday.

The sculptures are by Rudolph Jegart, an associate professor of art at Florida State University. The paintings are by Artemis Jegart, a graduate of FSU with both bachelor's and master's degrees in painting.

Mrs. Jegart has had two previous one-mans at the Studio Craft Shop in Coconut Grove. Her husband's work has not previously been seen here, except for one or two pieces in the initial group show at the Playhouse.

Mrs. Jegart recently won first awards two years running in the national exhibition of the Society of Four Arts in Palm Beach, and even more recently won a Tampa Art Institute Purchase Prize.

Jegart had his own design studio in Milwaukee before joining the art staff in Tallahassee. Their showing will continue through March 21. It will consist specifically of 20 paintings, 12 pieces of sculpture, and seven etchings by Jegart.

* * *

CORAL GABLES Art Club will have its annual members' exhibition at the Village Corner Gallery, opening with a preview-reception from 7 to 10 p.m. today. The exhibition will continue through March 27.

Five equal awards of merit and two honorable mentions will be bestowed by a jury.

* * *

THE MIAMI HEART Association will be sponsor to a four-man exhibition which will open with a 2-to-5 p.m. preview today at The Gallery restaurant, 1763 Coral Way.

The painters are Dorothy Gillespie, Ethel Fisher, Tony Scornavacca and Michael Schlazer. Of these only Schlazer has not previously exhibited extensively at The Gallery.

The showing will remain on view throughout March, the $1 admission going to the Miami's Heart Fund Research.

Three other shows opening this week are described in the article on the Art and Religion Festival elsewhere on this DUO VARIATION in "Les Sylphides" will be handled by Nina Novak, prima ballerina of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, and her partner, George Zoritch, when the troupe dances "Sylphides" on the evening of March 15, in Miami Beach auditorium. Ballet Russe will also appear on March 14, in Dade County auditorium. The two programs will be completely different.

Confusing Business

By NIXON SMILEY

Herald Farm and Garden Editor

A LOT OF EAGER students should be attracted to the school of retail management for garden supply people to be held Thursday and Friday at the McAllister Hotel.

We can't think of anything that is more widely sold by so many diverse establishments than garden supplies.

Garden supplies are sold by filling stations, drugstores, hardware stores, building supply stores, supermarkets, department stores, 10-cent stores, and, we might add before we forget it, by garden supply stores.

We know the garden supply business in this area mainly from the viewpoint of our readers. And if the business is one-fifth confused as our readers indicate, well, it's in a mess.

Now there are some garden supply people who are doing an excellent job of providing service as well as practicing forceful salesmanship.

* * *

Wrongly Informed

WE GET OUR INFORMATION from readers — from people who call us about their gardening problems.

Some of the information given to these people is utterly fantastic. We've had callers this winter who were sold a combination of malathion and oil emulsion for the control of late blight on tomatoes.

And copper fungicide is commonly sold for the control of "black fungus" on mangos when the real culprit may be a scale insect and which the malathion-oil emulsion would do a superb job of controlling.

Where did these things happen? In a garden supply store? In a hardware store? In a supermarket?

It doesn't matter. To the public all the people who sell garden supplies are lumped together under a single identity.

* * *

Rich Pie Attracts

THE GARDEN SUPPLY business in Florida is a big business. But it is widely scattered and severely diluted. Too many people are trying to cut this rich pie.

Moreover, this is a free country, and if a person wants to sell garden supplies there's nothing to stop him, if he buys the proper licenses and meets zoning restrictions.

But the multiplicity of confusion, the widespread handing out of misinformation, and the sometimes vicious back-biting and back-stabbing between competitors sets the business up as a great opportunity for the energetic, sincere and studious operator.

For we can't think of any other business where service itself is more important than in the garden store business.

Being able to provide accurate information about gardening problems — and to give imformation willingly — is certain to gain customers for the garden store man.

Clever merchandising setups, gimmicks to attract buyers, and smooth talking by bright-eyed salesman may gain customers and build up trade.

But this isn't enough. One must have satisfied customers — customers who will return again and again because of the service they receive.

* * *

Service Is Vital

SERVICE HAS NEVER BEEN so important as it is today.

We can't think of a tougher business to learn and to do well than running a garden store, especially in South Florida.

Yet, this business attracts a good many people who are looking for something easy.

On the other hand, many business establishments sell garden supplies as a side line because every home owner is a potential buyer — and because you "don't have to know much" to sell something that everybody needs.

Well, we believe that those who stay in the business will learn something about the gardening supplies they sell, or eventually they will be looking for some other "easy" business.

Garden School, Show Scheduled

THE PEOPLE WHO SELL garden tools, chemicals for insect control, fertilizer, and even bird seed and ornamental fish, will go to school this week.

Thursday and Friday the first important school of retail management ever to be held in South Florida will be conducted at the McAllister Hotel.

And on the same days a big garden supply trade show will be held at Bayfront Park auditorium.

The school is being conducted by the Garden Supply Merchandiser, a trade magazine published at Towson, Md.

This school has met with great success in the North and West. Miami will be the first city in the South to get the school.

* * *

EXPERTS ON SALES promotion, garden store design and merchandising display will be on the program. Among them will be James Kiley, formerly in the store planning department of Sears and now store layout and design consultant with Garden Supply Merchandiser.

KNAPP

And also on the program will be Charles Walter, landscape architect and vice president of E.M. Freystadt Associates, Inc., advertising agency.

Those who attend will hear Murray Franklin, publisher of Garden Supply Merchandiser, discuss the garden supply business and make prediction about its future.

Also planned are panel discussions covering garden supply and nursery problems.

Sessions will be held from 9 a.m. to noon Thursday and Friday. Those enrolled will attend a luncheon at noon Thursday, at which Franklin will talk, and "garden supply" party Friday night.

* * *

THE TRADE SHOW will be open from noon to 9 p.m. on Thursday and from noon to 5 p.m. on Friday.

The trade show will be restricted on Thursday and Friday to those registering for the school, but will be open Saturday and Sunday to the public.

Douglas Knapp, assistant county agent, will present programs from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

On Saturday night he will discuss pest control, and on Sunday night landscaping.

His program will be given from a temporary bandshell set up outside the Bayfront Park Auditorium.

Knapp will interview Publisher Franklin on his television program (Channel 10) at 9:15 a.m. Friday.

Vines Offer Good Flowering Bet

THOSE WHO insist on keeping their places brightened by the color of flowering plants throughout the year may be missing a good bet by avoiding the vines.

For some reason the vines have lost much of their popularity in recent years.

Vines seem to go down in popularity with the development of the modern outdoor patio and the outdoor living trend.

Even the bougainvillea is not so popular as it used to be.

It is true that vines do offer management problems. Some are aggressive and will grow to enormous size and extent if permitted complete freedom.

Such, for instance, is the Malay jewel vine, Derris scandens, which makes a trunk the size of a tree.

* * *

BUT THERE ARE many vines that are easily maintained, and which do not push you out of house and garden. Among them are the showy combretum, the congea, and stigmaphyllon, to name a few.

Another excellent vine is one introduced several years ago by the Fairchild Tropical Garden — heteropsis (pronounce it het-er-op'-sis).

This vine is colorful over a long period, first with its bloom and, after the bloom, with its bright red seed pods. Thus the plant is in color for nearly half of the year.

* * *

VINES, HOWEVER, are not so widely cultivated by nurserymen as they once were, and it is difficult to find those species and varieties that one might be searching for. When demand ceases for a plant nurserymen stop propagating it.

HERE'S A WAY TO USE a vine without having to build a trellis or an arbor for it. This is a yellow flowering stigmaphyllon, espaliered on a board fence. This vine is interesting for its growing form, its foliage and its flowers, which are borne in clusters over long periods.

Miamian's Book Deals In Engines

A Miamian, Robert G. Urquhart, has written a manual on the operation and maintenance of small gasoline engines (Hart's Publishing, Box 42-271, Miami, $2).

The aim of his 55-page paperback is to provide the reader with both theory and practice in the operation of the small air-cooled engines, like those used on lawnmowers and water pumps.

Lengthy charts in the book exhausts all the possible troubles that can develop in an engine and explains the whys and wherefores of them.

The book was written for both the home owner who insists on doing the maintenance and repairs on his mowing equipment and also for the garden store operator.

Organization Formed By Negro Gardeners

An organization of Negro gardeners has been formed with the help of Douglas Knapp, assistant Dade county agricultural agent.

The members are made up of 60 former students who took a course in landscape gardening under Knapp some weeks ago.

Meetings will be held at 8 p.m. on the second Thursday of each month at the Dade County Agriculture Department headquarters, 2690 NW Seventh Ave. The next meeting will be held March 12.

Knapp said that the meetings will be open to any Negro gardener interested in keeping up with the latest information about garden maintenance.

Lots of Cassia

More than 30 kinds of cassia have been introduced to Florida. Cassia fistula, the golden shower tree, is the best known.

Your Garden Guide

Now's the Time To...

March 1, 1959

PLANTING — It's getting late in winter to start a fresh vegetable or annual garden, except for a few varieties of plants. See planting calendar. It is best to buy started plants rather than to grow them from seed.

ANNUALS — This is a good time to plant both marigolds and zinnias. A great many varieties of these plants are now on the market. In fact there are so many varieties of these from one another that when they are planted side by side an experienced gardener would think they are different species.

POINSETTIAS — Ragged, leafless plants can be cut back now, and the cuttings may be put into the ground for rooting. Take 10-inch hardwood cuttings and stick half of the cutting in the soil.

CITRUS — Watch out for aphids on new foliage. Spraying with malathion will kill these pests, which cause foliage to curl and remain in this condition as long as it is on the tree.

ALL-FLORIDA
On The Farm—In The Garden
Registered in U.S. Patent Office

LAWNS—Weeds are growing faster than grass now. For this reason, keep lawn mowed in order to help keep weeds under control.

CALADIUMS — Now is a good time to plant beds of this colorful foliage plant. Although these plants can be grown in full sun, where ample moisture is provided, they do best in partial shade.

TRANSPLANTING — This is a poor time to move ornamentals or fruit trees. Wait until late spring or early summer.

LAWNS — Watering is very important during cold weather. When you hear that a cool spell is on its way, be sure to water the lawn well so that the soil will be moist when the northwest wind arrives. Grass turns brown quickly when the soil is permitted to dry out during cold spells.

Planting Calendar

BULBS — Amaryllis, caladium, eucharis, gladiolus, gloriosa lily.

The Inquiring Gardener

QUESTION—Please advise me how to take care of a mango. —P.O.A., Miami.

ANSWER—I regret that I am unable to answer such general questions. The writer doubtlessly has no idea how much writing would be necessary to answer this question, even if the information were limited to the barest outline.

Persons with such general questions should consult libraries and read up on the subject. We must limit our energies to the answering of questions about specific problems. That in itself is work enough.

ANSWER — Your plant is not a shamrock but a common sour weed.

QUESTION — There are several heavy sprouts growing from the base of my citrus tree. An acquaintance said I should remove them, as they are suckers and won't turn out well. But they look very good to me and I am inclined to let them alone. In fact, they look much better than my citrus tree does. — Michael Simms, Miami.

ANSWER — Your friend is right. Your logic is good, but, like most logic, it is faulty because you don't have all the facts.

The suckers come from beneath the union of your citrus tree and the root stock on which it was budded. Of course the rootstock is vigorous, and any growth from it will shoot up like fury. But the chances are that your rootstock is only a rough lemon, which produces a very poor fruit — unless you want rough lemons.

Maybe your logic will tell you that rough lemons are preferable to a sickly cultivated orange or grapefruit. But if you want to keep your budded tree, you'd better get rid of the water sprouts in a hurry, and keep them off.

QUESTION — Can a rubber tree be topped without killing it? — Jacob Orenstein, Miami Beach.

ANSWER —Yes, you can top a rubber tree, or any other kind of tree, without killing it. This doesn't mean that you can remove the entire top, leaving no branches or foliage. Rubber tree stumps may not sprout new growth, as many other trees will do.

QUESTION—For two years I have been trying to grow parsley and kohl rabi from seeds, but the young plants die soon after they sprout. What am I doing wrong? — J. Wisse, Miami.

ANSWER — You probably are having trouble with damp-off disease, caused by fungi. It's always a good idea to sterlize soil. Put moistened soil in a pan and heat it in an oven — if your wife will let you. If a lid is placed on the pan, steam will penetrate the soil and do a good job of sterlizing it.

You also should treat seeds with a chemical seed-treating compound, which can be purchased at garden supply stores.

QUESTION—I have been told that Bahia grass is resistant to chinch bugs, worms, fungus, sponginess, etc., etc. Would appreciate your advice. —A. R. Lallone, Pompano Beach.

ANSWER — Chinch bugs do not bother Bahia. That much is true. Otherwise it is comparable with other grasses so far as insect and disease problems are concerned.

QUESTION — Will you identify the enclosed leaves? They came off a tree in my yard which I have been told is a Florida type orchid. — Mrs. L. Miller, North Miami Beach.

ANSWER — Your tree is a bauhinia of some kind, sometimes called an orchid tree. There are several kinds of bauhinias, however, and I am not certain which one yours might be.

The bauhinia is of no relation of the true orchids. It is, instead, a member of the pea family.

Poinsettias Under Attack

A new bacterial disease on poinsettias holds a threat over the future of this plant in Florida.

According to the State Plant Board the disease manifests itself as longitudinal, water-soaked streaks in affected stems and leaves. Complete defoliation follows.

The disease was discovered in a Delray Beach area nursery in June, 1958, according to the State Plant Board. It was reported to have been brought to Florida on plants shipped from St. Paul, Minn.

Collins Proclaims State Garden Week

This week March 1-March 8, has been declared "garden week" by Gov. LeRoy Collins in a proclamation issued at Tallahassee.

Gov. Collins urged Floridians to cooperate in fostering a program that would bring about "the joy and beautiful surroundings that a garden can provide and to perpetuate a planting program that will preserve the natural beauty of our state."

Canadian to Talk To Garden Group

Members of the Fairchild Tropical Garden and the South Florida Orchid Society will hear Henry Teuscher of the Montreal Botanical Garden at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Fairchild Garden, 10901 Old Cutler Road.

Teuscher, one of the world's top-ranking horticulturists, is an authority on orchids. He has more than 1,300 species of orchids in the Montreal collection.

He will discuss orchid collecting in South American jungles and some of the species in the Montreal Botanical Garden collection.

Tomato Committee Meeting Wednesday

A meeting of the Florida Fruit & Vegetable Association's tomato committee has been called for 10 a.m. Wednesday at the Clewiston Inn at Clewiston.

George Pedersen of Perrine, chairman of the committee, said the meeting's discussion would involve the future of all tomato growers in Florida. He urged all growers to attend, whether they are members of the association or not.

Indoor Plant Water Needs Described

When watering indoor plants, saturate the soil thoroughly, then do not water again as long as the soil is obviously wet.

Some drying out of the soil should be permitted between watering. This permits oxygen to enter the soil.

If soil is kept completely wet, oxygen may be excluded and roots are likely to die.

Thus knowledge of how to water indoor plants becomes as important as knowledge of how much light they require and how much and how often to fertilize.

Palms Abound

There are close to 3,000 palms in the world, of which more than 400 have been introduced to Florida.

Keep Aphids Off Citrus

Citrus is coming out in new growth, and you can bet that aphids—potentially millions of them—are waiting to pounce on the tender leaves, suck the juices from them, and twist them into contorted forms.

Malathion will control aphids. Keep an eye on the new leaves as they come out, and watch for the tiny aphids feeding on the undersides.

Spray as often as necessary—but do not mix the insecticide stronger than the manufacturer suggests.

DO YOU LIKE these stepping stones, used to make a "footlog" across a pond at a Naples, Fla., estate? They can be lighted at night, if one wants to take a stroll that leads across the pond.

Rust on Fig Leaves Due To Fungus

To begin spraying after the rust has covered the leaves does no good. Spraying must begin in spring, as soon as the new foliage has matured.

Rust-covered leaves, now dropping, soon will be replaced.

Chinch Bugs Year Rounders

Chinch bugs thrive in South Florida all year. They don't "go away" in winter, even when you turn your back and hope.

Ancient City Being Restored as Park

By GEORGE SOUTHWORTH
Herald Travel Writer

The oldest city of any consequence in the Western Hemisphere — dating back a thousand years before the birth of Christ — is being uncovered and restored in Guatemala and will become a national park.

It is the ancient city of Tikal, capital of the Maya civilization, and the restoration is a scientific venture of the University of Pennsylvania Museum.

DIMICK

Creator of the Tikal project is John Dimick, a research associate of the museum. He and his wife docked their yacht at the Bath Club, Miami Beach, last week on their way back to Guatemala.

"Some of the temples of Tikal are equal in height to a modern 20-story building," Dimick said. "The stone monuments and ruins are located in the tropical rain forest of Peten.

"Under an agreement with the Guatemalan government, our work started in 1956. Clearing of the cite and the erection of temporary buildings has been largely accomplished. We have 100 persons, including six Americans working on the project."

Dimick said that five large temples and many smaller ones have been discovered at Tikal. He said palaces and pyramidal structures flank large plazas which are decorated by sculptured and inscribed stone monuments.

"Our present clearing constantly uncovers additional treasures," he said. "Deep reservoirs for storage of precious water during the long dry season have been discovered.

"One palace is five stories high. Here is a restoration which will rival many in the Old World and far surpass anything in the New World."

Dimick, a retired engineer and an archeologist by avocation, said the civil and ceremonial heart of the city of Tikal, the temple and government precincts, covers about one square mile.

Beyond this in every direction there are smaller courts and plazas surrounded by stone buildings which extend for three miles.

He said the most outstanding architectural feature of Tikal aside from its size, are its five great pyramid-temples, the highest pre-Columbian structures in the Western Hemisphere. One is 229 feet high.

"Tikal offers many opportunities for the sciences other than archaeology," Dimick said. "We have extended invitations to groups such as students of bird life, plant and soil study, geology and agronomy."

Dimick believes — like the Guatemalan government — that Tikal has an enormous tourist value. Three planes are carrying tourists to the area each week.

Tikal was occupied for 2,000 to 3,000 years by the Maya civilization until its decay during the 10th century A.D. The ruins of the city are located in northern Guatemala and were discovered about 100 years ago.

Facts and Figures About Guatemala

LOCATION: South and East of Mexico, the most northern country in Central America.

POPULATION: Approximately 3,000,000, or about the same as Chicago.

HOW TO GET THERE: It takes from five to six hours to fly from Miami to Guatemala City.

CURRENCY: The monetary unit is the quetzal, which is divided into 100 cents and is at par with the U.S. dollar.

Mexicans Told: Be Friendly

MEXICO CITY —(UPI)— The National Tourism Department has launched an advertising campaign urging Mexicans to make foreign tourists here feel at home.

Full-page newspaper ads, placed by the department, depict a cluster of monkeys, huddling in fear, under the caption "fear is natural." The text says "fear of the unknown is a natural reaction. When the tourist visits Mexico, land of enormous contrasts, he finds himself in a new and fascinating world . . ."

"To insure that the tourist enjoys this new and impressive beauty, we need to create a feeling of absolute confidence. The tourists fears that our water is not very potable. He fears the food. He fears abuses."

The ad ends with the plea "Let's make the tourist feel at home in our country by creating confidence in the true Mexico, hospitable and kind."

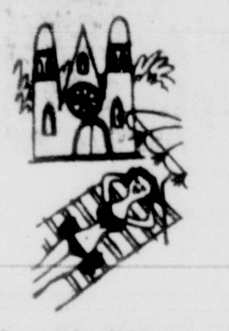
Tenochtitlan Grows Lately

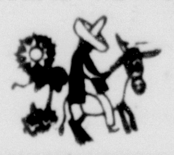
By GEORGE SOUTHWORTH
Herald Travel Writer

TENOCHTITLAN was the headquarters of the ancient Aztec empire 500 years ago with a population of 350,000 people. The city's name was changed to Mexico City, but by 1910 the population had increased only 60,000.



Today the capital has four and one-half million inhabitants and is still growing. It is the world's seventh largest city and is contesting fifth place with Moscow and Shanghai.

These "growing pains" have the city fathers worried. Great numbers of rural citizens are moving to the capital. It is difficult for both the budget and the present public facilities to keep pace.



* * *

ACAPULCO is having a great population increase of a temporary nature—huge flocks of tourists. George R. Corey, Jr., sales manager in the U.S. for Guest Airways Mexico says President Eisenhowers visit to Acapulco is responsible.

Vacationists here can enjoy lazy luxury and learn a little bit about one of the most colorful and important towns in New World history at the same time.

You can look down from your ultramodern hotel to the semi-circular bay—one of the finest natural anchorages in the world—just as Cortes' conquerors did in 1521. This port was once Spain's gateway to the Orient.

Some Important Facts

POPULATION: Estimated at 30,000,000.

HOW TO GET THERE: Between three and four hours flying time from Miami.

ACCOMMODATIONS: There are hotels of every type available.

CURRENCY: The Mexican unit is the peso and is worth about eight cents in U.S. money.

* * *

"OPERATION AMIGO'S" also known as the "Comite Norteamericano Pro-Mexico" is giving advice to U.S. tourists about Mexican customs. They want your stay below the border to be smoother, simpler and more enjoyable.

One of their warnings concerns Yankees who think it is fun to light their cigarettes with burning pesos or ask the merchant "How much is that in money?" This business doesn't make friends.

The committee says something else that is true in all Latin American countries. That is the fact that we as tourists tend to think of the name "American" as something that belongs exclusively to us. They think they are Americans too—and they are so right.

Week-Long Celebration

Visitors in Fort Pierce Will Get Sand in Shoes

Visitors who arrive in Fort Pierce, Florida, during the Sandy Shoes Festival, March 2-8, will find attractions ranging from orange groves to sailfishing to cattle ranches.

This western cowtown by-the-sea, located at the northern terminus of the Sunshine State Parkway on U.S. Highway 1, kicks off a week long Florida celebration with tours of orange groves, packing houses and cattle ranches, historical pageant, sightseeing along the north fork of the St. Lucie River, street dance, art exhibit, flower show and a golf tournament open to visitors.

There'll be an outdoor historical pageant tracing the history and development of the area from the Spaniards to the present day.

An aquacade parade, water ski races and a giant barbecué will be held at the Farmer's Market where visitors will see a tomato auction in progress.

Citrus Day brings a feast of exotic citrus dishes and tours of the groves surrounding the Fort Pierce area.

Besides attending Festival activities vacationers will find much to see and do.

One of Florida's best fishing spots, Fort Pierce has a pair of long jetties that protect Fort Pierce Inlet and separate the beaches. Trolling the reefs, surf casting and fishing off the North or South bridges are considered good angling spots.

Fresh water fishing is available in the canals west of Fort Pierce and in the St. Lucie River. A chain of small fresh water lakes string out from Fort Pierce to Jensen Beach and offer black bass.

North and south beaches, divided by the inlet, offer visitors excellent motel and apartment family type accommodations.

Fort Pierce's 18-hole golf course is an unusual one for visiting linksmen. It's slightly hilly in a flatland country.

Picnic facilities, tennis courts, shuffleboard, two beach parks and an organized recreational program are the additional attractions of Fort Pierce.

Friendly City

Visitors to Bonaire, in the Netherlands Antilles, who are at a loss to pronounce Kralendijk, the friendly capital, are relieved to learn that many of its inhabitants call it Playa. The name means "coral dike". The town is actually built on a sandbar.

St. Croix Plans To Fix Harbor

A master plan has been prepared for the improvement of Christiansted Harbor on the resort island of St. Croix.

Recommended projects include the removal of off-shore reefs to provide a safe channel for deep-draft vessels and the building of docking facilities for inter-island boats. The plan also embodies dredging the harbor.

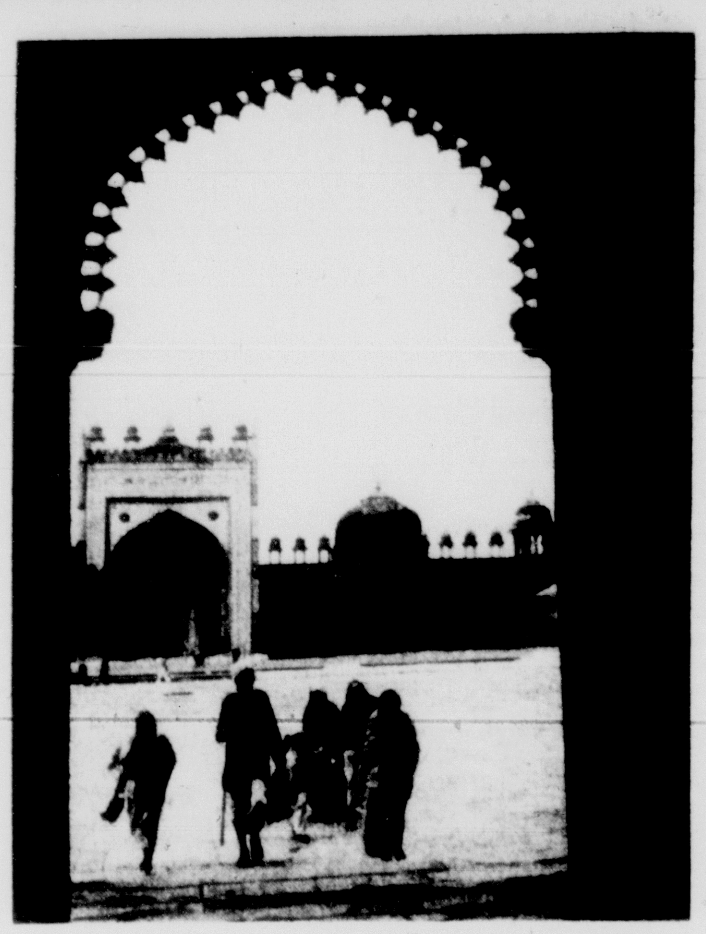
Final Jet Hop Ends In India

By HORACE SUTTON
Herald Travel Writer

SUTTON

NEW DELHI, India — The flight from Tashkent in Soviet Uzbekistan, over the hump into India is the last leg of the jet route that now links New York with New Delhi.

The Russians fly the 1,400 miles by way of Tibet and the Himalayas in a TU-104. Air India International, which pampers the passengers with bourgeois comforts, bless them, flies its Constellations by way of Afghanistan, Pakistan, and the mountains of the Hindu Kush.



Courtyard of Tomb of Saint Salim
. . . Chisti in Fatehpur Sikri, near Delhi

After the uncertainties of the various Conrad Hilton hotels in which we stayed while perambulating around the Soviet Union, we have collapsed, purring, into the satin and the down of Delhi's inns.

We have split our stay here between the new government-owned Asoka and that lovely landmark, the Imperial, run by the Oberoi chain.

The Asoka is built of red sandstone in true Delhi style, and in its dining room a 16-piece orchestra plays for lunch and dinner, extracting strange melodies from Indian instruments that look like banjos in a bad dream.

You can eat from the Indian menu or choose Western food and play it cool. Room and three meals a day, including a farmer's breakfast and countess' tea, costs about $12 a day per person in either the Asoka or Imperial.

The bearers unpack the suitcases without being asked, hang up the clothes, line up the shoes and shine them three times a day. I am curious to know why the new Oberoi International, a 600-room hotel, opening here in October, has dispatched its Indian help to France, Austria, and Switzerland, for training.

Delhi is a mass of mosques and monuments, but here is what we saw one day in the space of ten minutes: a funeral procession came down the Chandni Chowk behind a brass band, playing happy tunes, New Orleans style.

The coffin, borne by pall bearers, was open at the top but the sides were wrapped with bright pink and green crepe paper with gold stars pasted on. The old man inside had lived a long and fruitful life and no one felt sad.

Just across the narrow street a wedding car was being covered bumper to bumper with strands of marigolds and leis of zinnias, until all that could be seen of Detroit's handiwork was the windshield.

Then down the road came a pair of gypsies leading two trained bears. For a rupee the bears would dance or box and for two they would whistle "Dixie."

You can spend hours browsing through the Red Fort at the end of Chandni Chowk built in 1648 by the Emperor Shah Jahan, a 17th century Zeckendorf who also put up the Taj Mahal and the Jama Mosque.

We share the red path that leads down to the Red Fort with a lady from Baniya whose ankles jangled with bangles and whose forehead was decorated with a spray of gold coins.

There were visiting Saudis in white robes who squinted at the rubies and jade through heavy lenses, and we rubbed elbows with a rubbernecking Sikh dressed in a white turban, a handsome tweed English riding coat, and jodhpurs.

All of us came to the cupola where the emperor once sat in bejewelled state and watched the tricks of the horseback riders and the elephants who battled for his pleasure.

Panama Struck It Rich With Free Zone

By WILLIAM G. GAUDET
Herald Travel Writer

GAUDET

COLON, Panama — Colon, once one of the Republic of Panama's most flourishing cities today veritably is a crossroads city, standing at the crossroads.

Many factors made Colon, the Republic's outlet on the Atlantic side of the Panama Canal, a very prosperous and populous city. Here the great liners of the world, ships of the Cunard Line, the Holland American, Grace Line, United Fruit, to name just a few, put into Cristobal, which is the Canal Zone port, and the hundreds of tourist passengers they carried found the shopping in Colon to their liking.

During this period, the Hotel Washington, originally built by the United States by the Panama Railroad Company was the center of many a gala social festivity. The great chandeliers in the ballroom brought praise from many.

Then a whole series of events occurred, none of which could be regarded as advantageous to Colon. First the airplanes began to replace the great ocean liners as a means of transportation, and the big air field for Panama was located at Tocuman, on the Pacific and not the Atlantic side. True, big ships still put into Cristobal but not with the same frequency, or with the same number of passengers.

A still more brutal economic blow came when the U.S. began to move soldiers and sailors from the Cristobal area to new locations. One casualty was the big U.S. Naval base at Coco Solo.

A revision of the treaty between the United States and Panama did result in some economic assets for Panama, including large chunks of land, along with the Hotel Washington. Such a transfer of real estate alone, however, was not enough to swing Colon back into the orbit of prosperity.

Acquisition of the Hotel Washington was an asset, but it came as Panama City opened two first class hotels—the Hotel International and the Hotel El Panama. Meanwhile, travel agents who were concentrated in Colon moved to Panama and in the moving arranged for more and more tours that involved transit through Colon, but the actual spending of time and money, not in Colon but in Panama.

Had events continued to follow this downward pattern, few would have given many balboas for any property location, or any shop. Then came a development which few believed possible—establishment in Colon of the Republic's first foreign free trade zone, called the Colon Free Zone.

Completely stripped of politics, the zone was given a general manager, Everardo Duque, and assistant manager, Eduardo Lanusa, and a board of directors chosen without political flavor.

Now millions of dollars in merchandise flow into this zone area, either to be manufactured and then transshipped, or simply stocked and then re-shipped. Currently more than 100 U.S. corporations, European companies and others utilize the facilities of the zone and each year the number of users increases, and operations expand.

The zone, of course, is NOT the one and the only answer to the myriad problems of Colon, but the important point is that it does represent the first real turn for the better which has occurred since the wheels of fate went against the city.

The Hotel Washington, which, if completely refurnished and re-decorated, could present the same attraction as it did when it was first built, has been turned over, in a management contract, to the American Hotels Corporations.

And the hope for the future does not stop there. In Colon they are talking of building not only a new seaport, but a new airport as well. The outlook is no rosy one for the next four or five years, but with promotion gravitating around the ultra-modern Colon Free Zone the job can be done, and Colon return to its once prosperous position.

Information

POPULATION: Estimated at 959,754.

SIZE: 28,575 square miles.

HOW TO GET THERE: Four hours by plane from Miami. Four or five days by ship.

Transit Tourists Need No Permit

Passengers transiting through Egypt, either by ship or aircraft, need no visa to enter Egypt. Such persons will be provided with landing permits valid for the time the ship or aircraft is calling on the Egyptian port or airport.

As example, passengers on ships passing through the Suez Canal may leave the ship at either Port Said or Suez and rejoin the ship when it leaves the Canal by obtaining a landing permit issued on departing from the ship. The cost of the permit is less than fifty cents. This regulation permits passengers to spend the time sightseeing in Egypt while the ship is traversing the canal.

Special message to Miami and Miami Beach resort advertisers from the Detroit Free Press:

The great hundred-million-dollar gold rush of '59 is under way!

Readers of the Detroit Free Press already are spending part of the $100 million they'll put out for vacations during 1959. Get your share of this golden vacation business! Let these current facts help you choose the friendly Free Press as your primary promotion medium in America's Motor Empire:

1. The Free Press not only gets results for other Miami and Miami Beach area resort advertisers — it constantly outpulls other Detroit advertising media. Steve Czufin at the Free Press Miami office has the interesting details for you!

2. Among Detroit papers, only the Free Press offers you strong coverage in the central city PLUS equally strong coverage in the key cities outside Detroit.

3. In the important suburban residential area around the Detroit Shopping Center Ring, Free Press circulation has outgrown the two other papers' by as much as 2-to-1 during the past five years.

4. Advertising share-of-market gains have paralleled circulation gains during the same period; since 1953 the SHARE of Detroit newspaper advertising placed in the Free Press has increased 50% more than the share placed in one other, while the third paper has lost ground.

5. Detroit retailers are getting results from their Free Press ads as never before! The current successes of local merchants are practical evidence of Free Press pulling power today. Ask for specific proofs of how the Free Press is the hardest-working sales medium in America's Motor Empire.

Free Press Readers Make a Mighty Market!

The lead you get from a Free Press family is much more valuable to you! The typical Free Press family greatly outspends the average U.S. family, as the figures below demonstrate:

Money spent for vacations

Average U.S. Family	Average Free Press Family	Total Vacation Expenditures, All Free Press Families
$194.86	$222.53	$102,859,596.84

Recognize your share of the $100-million-plus Free Press vacation market—and then be sure you tell your appealing story to this mighty market!

TRAVEL NEWS

ASTA Delegations Will Tour Bahamas

Nassau will be host April 30-May 6 to the annual Spring meeting of the Southeastern chapter of the American Society of Travel Agents.

Victor Chenea, United States sales manager for the Bahamas Development Board, said about 300 visitors — including delegates and wives —are expected to attend the session.

Registration will take place Thursday, April 30.

Friday morning, with President Arthur Wilson of the Virgin Islands, presiding, a joint business session of active and allied members is scheduled, with separate group meetings that afternoon. Saturday will be devoted to sightseeing.

Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, Chenea said, will be devoted to tours of the out islands. Headquarters for the ASTA sessions and details of the program are now being worked out, he added.

Here Are Facts

LOCATION: The Bahamas are scattered over some 70,000 square miles of sea. There are 700 islands that extend from a point 60 miles east of Palm Beach to the north of Haiti in a 760-mile arc.

POPULATION: About 85,000 with the capital Nassau and New Providence Island totaling about half that figure.

HOW TO GET THERE: Overnight by ship from Miami or about 55 minutes flying time.

ACCOMMODATIONS: Nassau has luxurious and beautiful hotels and apartment houses.

CURRENCY: The Bahamian pound based on the British sterling system is currently worth about $2.80 in U.S. money.

Tourists Visit Port of Spain

Almost 160,000 tourists visited the islands of Trinidad and Tobago during the calendar year of 1958, according to the Trinidad and Tobago Tourist Board, with by far the largest number coming from the United States and Canada, although many countries of South America and Europe were also represented.

Slightly more than half of the travelers arrived by plane, while many of those arriving by ship were cruise passengers who spent a day or more shopping and sightseeing in Port of Spain and vicinity.

Nassau Sets a Record

By NED AITCHISON
Herald Travel Writer

January set an all-time high for any single month when 23,601 tourists visited Nassau, Victor E. Chenea of Miami, United States sales manager for the Bahamas Development Board, reported Saturday.

This total, he added, does not include "undetermined thousands of others who paid visits to the adjoining islands."

During the record-breaking month, Chenea explained, airliners carried 11,937 travelers to Nassau, while 11,664 went by cruise ship.

"The jump in January was a 177 per cent gain over January, 1958, (Nassau was in the throes of a general strike at that time) and compared to the previous all-time mark of 22,491 set in February, 1957," he said.

AITCHISON

(During January of last year, Chenea reported the total was a "dreary 8,515, due to a 19-day hotel shutdown in the labor dispute, combined with chill weather and the United States economic recession. However, in January, 1957, Nassau chalked up 13,771 visitors; in January, 1956, 15,024.")

During the last 10 years, the highest annual total recorded was 194,618 visitors in 1957, Chenea reported, with 177,867 in the curtailed 12-month total for 1958.

However, the figures show graphically how tremendously travel to Nassau and the islands has increased, as in 1949, the beginning of the decade, only 32,018 visitors were checked in.

Each year since, with the exception of strike-plagued 1958, has shown a substantial increase in the number of visitors. The 100,000 mark was passed in 1954, when 109,605 travelers visited Nassau, and a projection of the subsequent figures into the 12 months ahead indicates the 200,000 mark may well be exceeded this year, barring any untoward circumstances.

While the great majority of the travelers passed through Florida gateways en route to the Bahamas, Chenea said, many of them went direct to the out islands instead of following the familiar route to the capital in Nassau.

Effective March 1, the Development Board's two Miami offices will be consolidated in Suite 608 in the new First National Bank building, 100 Biscayne Blvd., South.

In addition to Chenea, H. Kurtz Henley, Miami district office manager, will be quartered there, as will Travel News Editor J. L. (Dixie) Smith, and other attaches of the Board stationed here.

Duke Refused Rare Treasure

Twentieth-century Spain ranks the Alhambra, 14th-century fortress-palace in Granada, as one of its rarest national treasures. Yet England's Duke of Wellington once declined the Alhambra as a gift, considering it impractical.

THE VALUE LINE
INVESTMENT SURVEY

Your Capital is Important— It Can Take Care of You But It Cannot Take Care of Itself

CAPITAL is hard to save in these days of high taxation. It should not be risked for lack of attention. Your investment capital deserves at least a fraction of the time you would give, say, to keeping your house in repair. It is important that you have the tools to work with to assure that your savings will not be dissipated through unwise investment.

That is why over 20,000 individuals and institutions look to The Value Line Investment Survey, week after week, for guidance in planning their investments for maximum safety, capital building and income. Through the Value Line Survey, these knowledgeable investors receive objective, current measurements of value on practically every widely held common stock (over 850 in all).

Through the Survey, a large staff of analysts keeps you advised on the week to week changes that affect stock values and brings to your attention the facts about individual stocks on which you can base intelligent judgment. And once you have selected your stocks, you are able to maintain constant supervision over them through the Survey's weekly rankings and ratings.

So that you may see for yourself how this wealth of investment information may be used for your own peace of mind and profit, you are invited to avail yourself of an unusual trial offer, shown on page 15, which also brings you the recommended 1959 Investment Program at no additional charge.

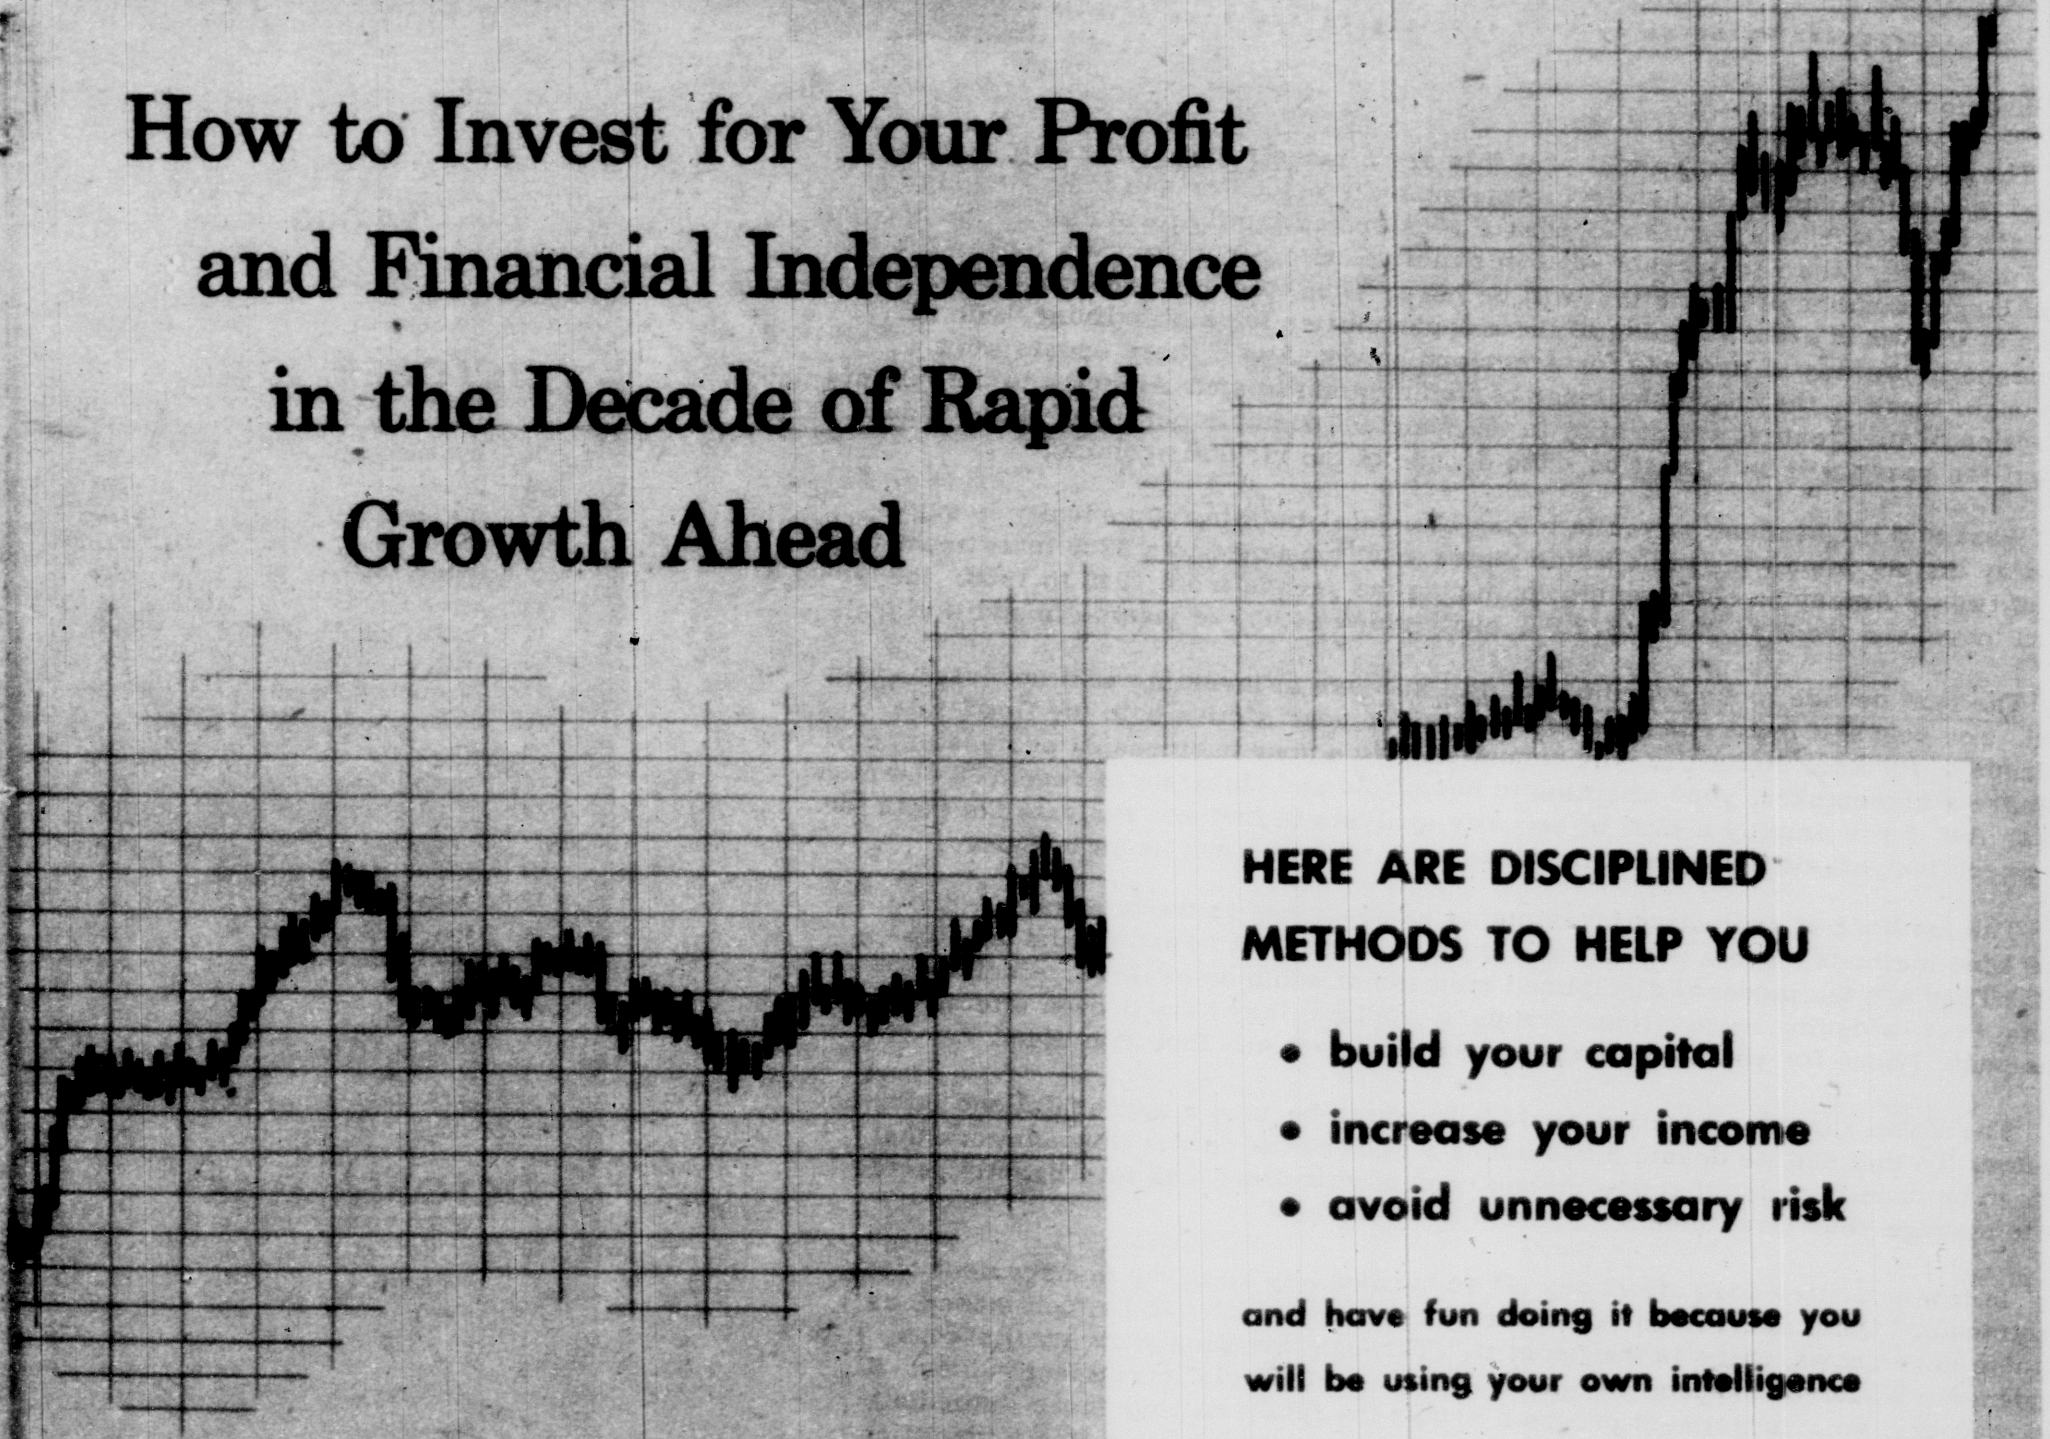
How to Invest for Your Profit and Financial Independence in the Decade of Rapid Growth Ahead



HERE ARE DISCIPLINED METHODS TO HELP YOU

- build your capital
- increase your income
- avoid unnecessary risk and have fun doing it because you will be using your own intelligence

THE VALUE LINE INVESTMENT SURVEY · 5 East 44th Street, New York 17, New York
Published by Arnold Bernhard & Co., Inc., Investment Advisers

This page brings you a special "1959 Investment Program" at no extra charge – PLUS AN INTRODUCTORY 4-WEEK TRIAL OF THE VALUE LINE SURVEY AT ONLY $5 (ONE-HALF THE REGULAR PRO RATA FEE)

BECAUSE the investment decisions you take now may hold so much significance for your capital program in 1959 and the years ahead, the Value Line Survey is making available a special introductory offer. This offer will enable you to see for yourself how useful the Survey can be in your own investment planning. You will receive, by return first class mail, all the reports in the special 1959 Investment Program described below. And, in addition, you will receive the complete Value Line Survey for an introductory 4-week period at one-half the regular pro rata fee. To take advantage of this exceptional offer, just fill out and return the goodwill voucher below.

A COMPLETE 1959 INVESTMENT PROGRAM SENT TO YOU AT NO EXTRA CHARGE

Summary of Ranks and Ratings on all 850 Stocks

Included for each stock are the four measurements of investment value provided exclusively by Value Line:

1) Rank for Probable Market Performance in the Next 12 Months – how your stocks are likely to act price-wise relative to all other stocks.
2) Estimated Yield in the Next 12 Months – the income you are likely to receive in 1959.
3) Rank for Appreciation Potentiality 3 to 5 Years Ahead—an estimate of how 850 stocks may be expected to appreciate or depreciate in value in an hypothesized economic environment.
4) Quality Grade—the safest stocks for your portfolio.

These rankings enable you to compare each of the 850 stocks in the Summary with all others, to select those that offer the attributes that would be best for you in today's market.

An Investment Program for Lifetime Security

Here is a special Value Line study offering practical help to the experienced investor as well as to the individual who has never invested in common stocks before. It explains:

a) how to chart your financial aims.
b) how to plan an investment program that will realize these aims.
c) how to build "safety" into your portfolio.
d) how to select the best stocks for capital appreciation.
e) how to build a portfolio for maximum income.
f) how to keep constant watch over your investments after you have bought them as well as before you select them.

Included are timely selections of 60 stocks, all currently ranked high for Probable Market Performance in the Next 12 Months, to meet your needs – whether for capital gain, safety or income.

The Best Stocks to Buy Now

These are the 180 stocks, among the 850 regularly supervised by the Value Line Survey, that are found to offer the best values currently. They are divided into four groups to suit (1) the conservative investor seeking well-defined appreciation, (2) the conservative investor seeking better than average income, (3) the risk investor seeking better than average appreciation and (4) the risk investor seeking exceptionally large income.

Recent selections on this list, which is kept up to date weekly, have shown yields as high as 8% and appreciation potentiality up to 100% and more. Note that all 180 stocks are ranked in Groups I or II for highest Probable Market Performance in the Next 12 Months.

Special [illegible] on Missiles

[illegible] available latest data on the [illegible] which missiles are in [illegible] stages. Includes list of 45 [illegible] a major role in each stage of each [illegible] the missiles each firm is concerned with.

*Special $5 Introductory Offer

In addition to the complete Investment Program which will be sent at no extra charge, you will receive at one-half the pro rata fee all features of the Value Line Survey during the next month. This will enable you to benefit from Value Line's objective measurements of value through the following investment aids:

- 4 weekly editions of Ratings and Reports covering over 250 stocks in 14 industries.
- 4 weekly editions of the 12-page Summary-Index with latest Value Line rankings on over 850 stocks.
- 2 editions of the Fortnightly Commentary discussing the economic and political developments affecting stock prices.
- A new Special Situation analysis of an undervalued security selected for its unusual capital gain potentiality over a period of time.

VALUE LINE INVESTMENT SURVEY

THE VALUE LINE SURVEY BUILDING • 5 EAST 44TH STREET, NEW YORK 17, N.Y.

Dear Investor:

The decade of the 'Sixties will probably see a more rapid increase in population and production than ever before in American history. For one thing, the high birth rate of the Nineteen Forties forecasts accelerated family formation in the Sixties. For another, the remarkable advances in disease control assure a longer life for the larger number of people that will be here. Then, too, the underdeveloped nations of the world are awakening to their opportunities for better living, with all that means in the way of markets for American goods. And if these events were not enough, there is the sharp challenge of Communism to spur America to the fullest realization of its greatest potentiality in the shortest possible period of time. Indeed, the next ten years will be - must be - the decade of the richest promise.

What this might mean to you in terms of capital-building opportunity is suggested by the accompanying table which shows what happened to a $200 investment in each of twenty American common stocks during the decade from 1948 to 1958: the capital increased from $4,000 to $23,000 and yielded $4,000 of income in addition!

The next decade looks even bigger. But success in investing will not just happen to you. You yourself must make the effort to steer your affairs onto the flood-tide that leads to fortune. Naturally, you cannot sacrifice your business or profession, or, if you are a homemaker, your attention to household and children, to research common stocks. But if you employ a staff of security analysts to find and evaluate the facts for your executive decision, you could increase your effectiveness as an investor.

The methods of evaluating investments as described in this magazine - the Value Line methods - are a product of a quarter century of research and development. They are the modern, disciplined methods of security evaluation that are winning ever-widening recognition. Properly applied, they have proven effective in the past. I hope for your own profit and security you will look into them.

The Value Line organization would help you to become a successful and informed investor. To that end we devote 5,000 hours a week to the research spadework that needs to be done in order that you, in one hour of your time, can intelligently decide how to manage your investments - "your other business".

In few activities does effort pay off so handsomely as in the management of investments. Quite apart from the financial rewards, which can be rich indeed, as the table here shows, there is the fun of it. Through investing your interests are broadened. Whatever happens anywhere in the world affects investment values. If you are young, your investment program brings the future to your more immediate concern. If you are no longer young, your investments bring you a lively identification with all that goes on in the present. And nothing can be more gratifying than the use of your own judgment in planning for the security and comfort of your family and yourself.

But good judgment must be informed judgment, and just because things are happening all the time, good judgment must be continuously informed. This supplement will outline the methods by which you can keep your judgment reliably and continuously informed on stock values with a minimum expenditure of your own time.

Sincerely,

Arnold Bernhard

“What Value Line Subscribers Say

“I can't speak too highly of your Value Line Survey Service. I am proud to say that I am a subscriber.”
Mr. R. S. G., Beverly Hills, California

“Your service is outstanding. The unbiased, frank analysis of each stock is of great help. I just wish I had started your service ten years ago.”
Dr. G. S. R., New York

“Let TV, movies, books, etc., be lowered to a level of mediocrity acceptable to an intellectually lazy public—but not Value Line, for in the hard world of economic realities the very best is barely good enough.”
Mr. P. W. G., California

“Your service has repaid its cost a hundred times over so far this year.”
Mr. R. W. B., Ann Arbor, Michigan

“Proper investment must be guided by the many facts which have a bearing on the investment. You are doing a wonderful job of condensing and presenting those facts. Keep it up.”
Mr. G. L., New York

“I could never go along with a service that gives out buying and selling advice without any supporting data to justify their claims. There are too many opposing viewpoints for that.”
Mr. O. N., Florida

“From the lawyer's viewpoint, certainly your service is outstanding. It is concise, clear, easy to understand, and of real merit.”
Mr. L. S. B., Chicago, Ill.

“You have an amazing amount of information in a very small space, and it is easily read. The fact is that I do not see how any security analyst can do without your service.”
Mr. J. P., Boston, Mass.

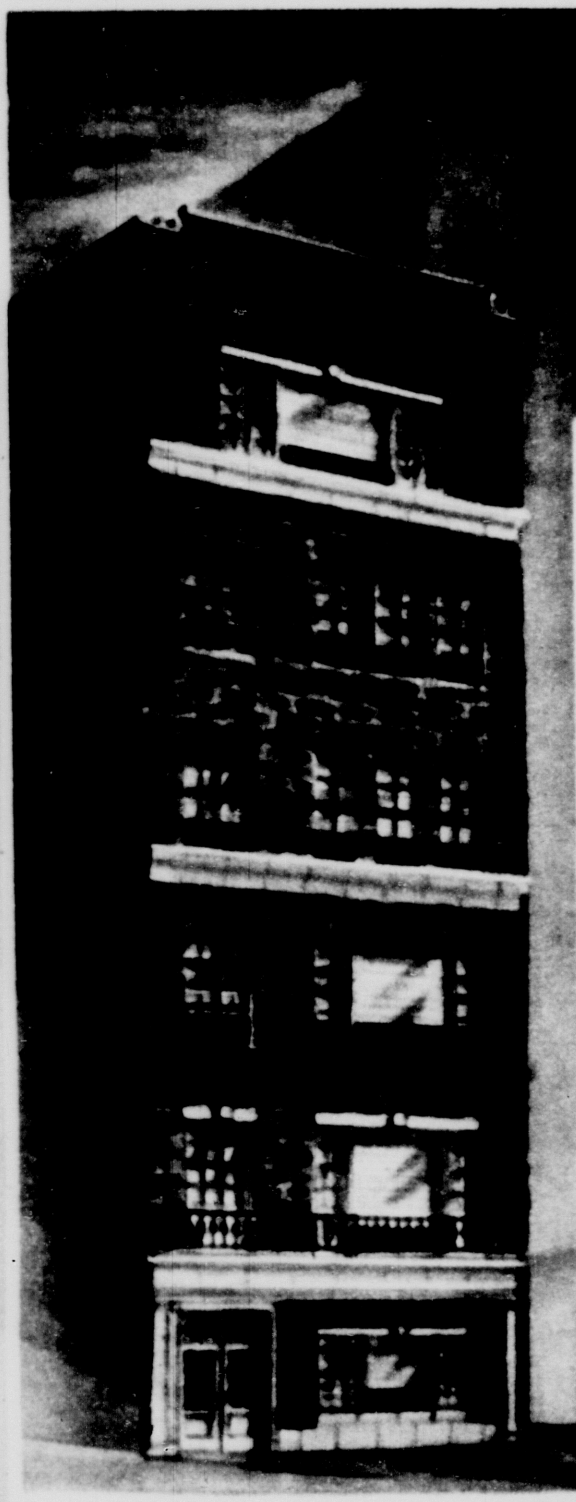
“The Value Line gives an intelligent answer to the problem involved, in that it furnishes a complete history of the corporation at a glance and permits the investor to evaluate future prospects.”
Mr. O. W., St. Louis, Missouri

“I have received my binder and have found it so packed with vital information, so carefully arranged, that I have literally spent hours going over it. I have no doubt it is to be of great value to me from now on, in handling my small investment account. I only regret that I did not come in contact with it at an earlier date.”
Mr. C. F. D., Denver, Colorado

“What I like most about your service is its professional integrity—the conscientious effort to see all the facts, to call your shots as you see them, to stick to your guns, and not to claim infallibility.”
Mr. R. P. C., Washington, D. C.

“My high regard for your Service has been not only confirmed, but increased, and I feel that I can recommend it with confidence when occasion presents.”
Mr. R. C. K. (Member New York Stock Exchange)

“I have found the service of inestimable value in helping me to arrive at my investment decisions.”
Mr. D. C., Scarsdale, New York



The Value Line Survey Building

Practical proof that The Value Line Investment Survey helps investors is the record of its own growth. Starting with a handful of “clients” a little over twenty years ago, The Value Line Investment Survey is now mailed to approximately 20,000 subscribers in all parts of the United States. This is believed to be the largest circulation of any investment service anywhere near its price range.
Such growth could have been achieved only if the renewal rate, which is the percentage of subscribers who decide to resubscribe at the end of their terms, remained very high.
It has remained high.
The Value Line organization will continue to bring to investors in American and Canadian stocks the best factual evidence and the most unbiased, objective evaluation of the evidence that devotion to research, training and hard work can produce.

Under the Value Line methods, every one of 804 common stocks is ranked weekly according to these four universally desired attributes:

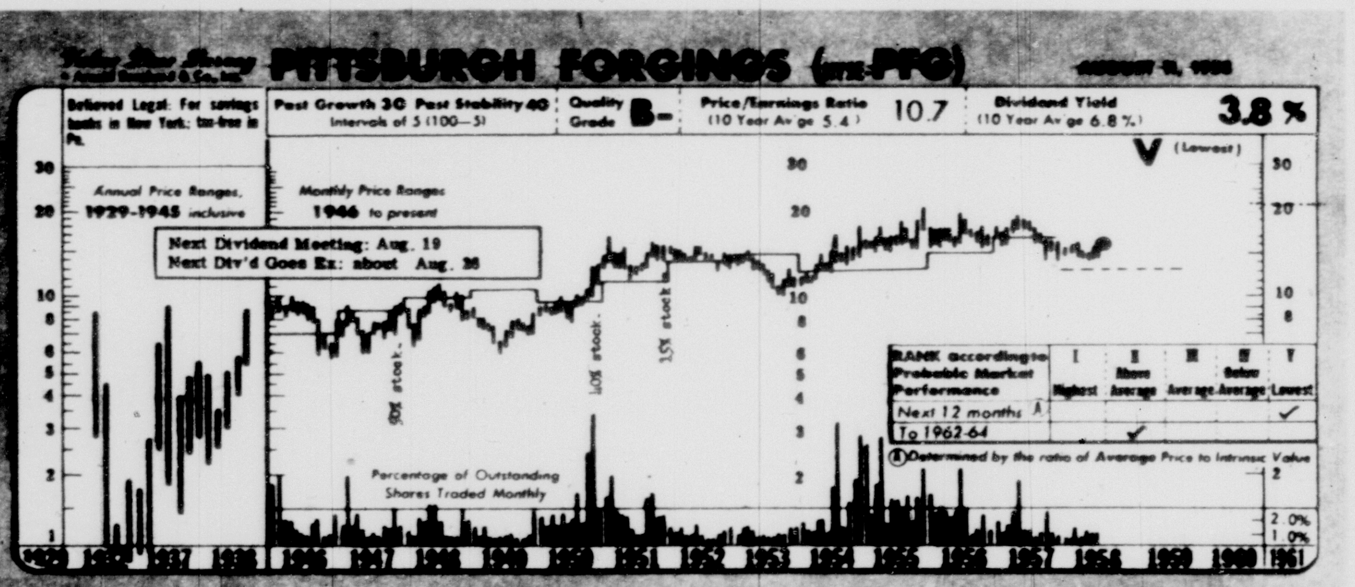
Only in The Value Line Investment Survey do you find these disciplined and objective standards of value.

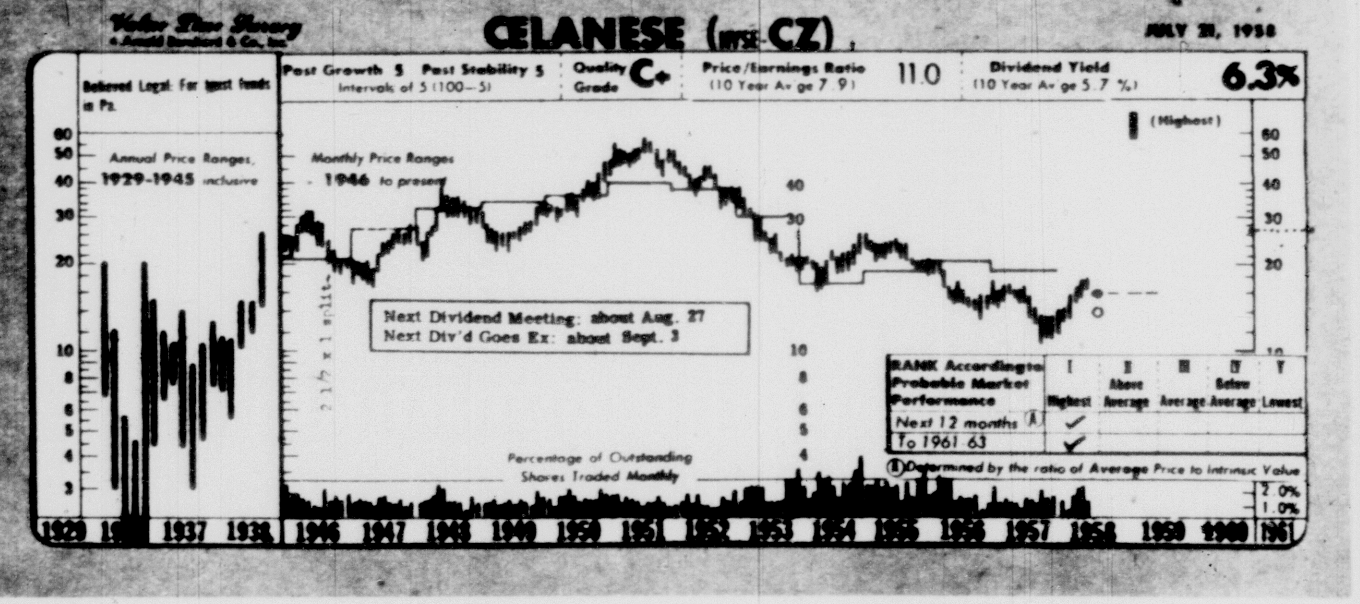
A COMPLETE 1959 INVESTMENT PROGRAM FOR YOUR IMMEDIATE USE

In connection with this special Supplement, the Value Line Survey has arranged to make available to you, at no extra charge, a comprehensive income- and capital-building investment program, which includes all the features shown on page 15. In addition, a special one-month introductory subscription is being made available at half the regular rate. After reading this Supplement, you may wish to take advantage of this exceptional offer.

FIRST OF ALL, KNOW VALUE…

Some stocks always offer better current value than others





"The stock market will fluctuate" – J. P. MORGAN

"Buy cheap, sell dear" – BARON ROTHSCHILD

"First of all, know value" – CHARLES H. DOW

During the past year, stock prices as a whole have risen sharply. But not all stocks have shared equally in the advance. Indeed, some have not gone up at all. To have bought those that were cheap and sold those that were dear you would have had to know which offered the better values at the time.

Had you invested in Lorillard (see List A below) at the beginning of 1958, your capital would have increased almost 150% by the end of October. Over the same period of time, American Motors rose from 8⅝ to 29, Great Atlantic & Pacific from 244 to 435, Merck from 42 to 68, and Rexall Drug from 8⅛ to 26. A commitment of $1,000 in each of these 5 stocks—each of which was ranked in Group I (Highest) for Probable Market Performance in the next 12 months in the Value Line Summary-Index of January 13, 1958 – would have been worth more than $12,400 just ten months later!

But had you instead invested $1,000 each in Babcock & Wilcox, Creole Petroleum, Fairbanks Morse, General Dynamics, and McGraw-Edison (see List B below) – each of which was ranked in Group V (Lowest) for Probable Market Performance in the next 12 months in the Value Line Summary-Index of January 13, 1958 – your original $5,000 investment would have been worth only $4,927 by the end of October!

These examples illustrate the need for selectivity in buying stocks. They show that great changes in capital value can take place among stocks regardless of the trend of the market as a whole. The independent professional analysis provided by The Value Line Investment Survey will enable you to select the stocks best suited to meet your own investment needs – and to avoid those that are determined to be the least promising. Note that the special offer listed on Page 15 includes the latest Value Line Summary of Rankings and Advices on all 850 major stocks and Special Situations under year 'round survey at no extra charge.

Why you must watch your stocks after you own them as well as before you select them.

THE REASON WHY CONSTANT WATCH OVER YOUR INVESTMENTS IS NECESSARY

Times change, conditions change. Therefore, constant supervision over your investments is important. You cannot forget about your stocks. You should not change them around, or trade frequently, but you should be fully informed of current developments so that you can move when necessary to avoid undue risk or to benefit from a better probability.

HOW TO KEEP WATCH OVER YOUR STOCKS AFTER YOU BUY THEM

Everything having to do with the future value of your stocks is based upon an estimate of earnings and dividends. Since future evidence may require a change in the estimate of earnings and dividends, the Value Line Survey employs a large staff of trained analysts and economists to keep constant watch over current developments in the business, sales and profits of the 850 companies under its supervision. They watch for developments and trends within industries as well as within individual companies. They report to you on these developments at regular intervals through the weekly editions of Ratings and Reports. The Ratings and Reports always carry the estimates of future earnings and dividends.

HOW THE VALUE LINE RATINGS AND REPORTS MAKE IT EASY TO KEEP WATCH

The Value Line Report which accompanies the Rating Chart is designed to be a condensed review of what has happened to the subject company since the last quarterly, or supplementary, report. It includes statistical series of sales, profit margins, plant account, working capital, book value, per share earnings and dividends, pay-out ratios, price-earnings ratios and dividend yields for the past 10 years, and for the previous cyclical peak and valley years, 1929, 1932, 1937, 1938. It includes tables showing the latest capital structure, the quarterly record for the past seven years of sales, per share earnings and dividend payments. The Report, in addition to giving the news, includes a description of the company's business and markets and gives specific current advice on the merits or demerits of the stock for individual portfolios. Each Rating and Report explains the background against which the Value Line Survey's editor-analysts estimate the future sales, earnings and dividends of each company.

HOW THE VALUE LINE SUPPLEMENTARY REPORTS FILL IN BETWEEN THE QUARTERLY RATINGS AND REPORTS

If significant developments occur between the time of the quarterly reports on individual stocks, the Value Line Survey issues a Supplementary Report noted in the Weekly Summary-Index.

HOW THE VALUE LINE FORTNIGHTLY COMMENTARIES ADVISE WHEN THE MARKET IN GENERAL IS BELIEVED TO BE IN A SELLING OR BUYING ZONE

The Value Line Survey will also indicate, through the Fortnightly Commentaries, whether the general market is in a high, low or normal area of valuation. This is determined by averaging the Value Line Ratings of the stocks that comprise the well-known market averages and comparing the composite Value Line Rating to the price of the average. The position of the general market will be indicated by measuring the relationship between stock yields and bond yields also.

ADVICE: Investment grade accounts should avoid New York Central stock. The risks (outlined below) are substantial. But for those in a position to be venturesome with a portion of their capital, the potential rewards in this situation are handsome. The business tide has turned after 12 months of deficits for Central. The long-range benefits of the new management's rehabilitation program will now have the first real chance to show as traffic builds up. This issue is expected to act better than the market in the next 12 months, for it is ranked in Group I (Highest) in this respect. It rates the highest rank because even though the current price stands closely in line with Intrinsic Value, the average price for the past 52 weeks stands lower in relation to the Rating than is true of 80% of all stocks. For 3- to 5-year Appreciation Potentiality also, Central stock is classified in the top 20% among all issues under review (Group I - Highest). It should be emphasized, however, that the big visualized gain over a 3- to 5-year term would constitute cyclical recovery not long-term growth. . . Should a shooting war erupt and the excess profits tax be reimposed, Central would have a large tax shelter - estimated at about $9 a share.

❺ Current Analysis: How far are earnings going to rebound? Our tentative estimate, based on the strong recovery visualized for the economy (see page 202), is that Central will reach the $4 a share earnings mark in 1959. But the road will have to get up off the canvas to score such a success, for it has been mercilessly pummeled and financially weakened by the recent business recession. Its carloadings dropped much more than the industry's. A loss of more than $4 a share, piled up over the past 12 months, necessitated omission of dividends and suspension of capital spending to save cash. Note that working capital on May 31st was down to less than $10 million compared to $65 million 17 months earlier. Against this weakened treasury position, the system has debt maturities of $42 million in 1959, $41 million in 1960, and $59 million in 1961.

Chances for the needed revival of earning power look good. Industrial production has turned the corner and, we think, is headed sharply higher. Just as revenues dropped faster than costs during the recession, so they should rise faster than expenses during the recovery phase. The tight financial position will be helped by a sizable retroactive mail pay award - estimated at about $21 million. Also, the carrier has arranged a $35 million line of short-term bank credit.

3 to 5 Year Projections: Assuming the capital improvement program can be resumed shortly and that the passenger service loss ($50 million on the ICC formula basis in 1957) will be pared, we project average annual revenues in the $520 ❻ billion GNP economy hypothesized for 1961-63 at $800 million and earnings to $6 a share. Capitalizing these earnings at 5.5 times, consistent with their marginal character, we project an average price of 33 (a 6.0% capitalization of the envisioned $2 dividend).

BUSINESS: The New York Central Railroad Company is the 2nd largest U.S. carrier. Lines extend from Boston and New York City west to Chicago, ❶ Cincinnati and St. Louis. Passenger traffic large 12% of revenues. Soft coal provides 17% of freight revenues. Road is fully dieselized. Since 1947-49, revenues have increased 2% (GNP, 75%). Labor costs, about 59% of gross revenues. Return on net worth in 1957, .9% (10-year average, 2.5%). Non-cash charges to income were $6.60 a share in 1957. Employs 80,450; has 41,200 stockholders. Alleghany Corp. owns 15% of stock and votes another 3%. Pres.: Alfred E. Perlman. Inc.: N.Y., Ill., Penn., Mich., Ind. Add.: 230 Park Ave., N.Y.

Note how each Rating and Report presents for your quick appraisal the most vital facts about a stock. The whole Value Line research effort is organized to present to you all the significant facts and evaluations you need to do a thorough job of managing your investments with a minimum expenditure of your own time. This is the kind of organization of spadework that every top executive insists upon. You need it too for the efficient management of your investments —"your other business." Get the answers to such important questions as these before you invest in any stock:

1 What is the company's business?

2 What is the statistical background since 1929—annual sales volume, profit margin, plant account, working capital, book value, earnings per share, dividends per share, pay-out ratio based on cash earnings, price/earnings ratio, dividend yield?

3 How do current quarterly sales and earnings compare with previous years' results?

4 What have been the actual dividends on a quarterly basis?

5 What is happening to the company?

6 What are the estimated average earnings, dividends and price levels 3 to 5 years hence in an hypothesized national economy?

7 What will be the sales, earnings and dividends in the coming year, as estimated by the Value Line staff?

8 When is the next dividend meeting and when will the next dividend go ex?

9 How does this stock's past trend of growth in earnings and dividends compare with those of all others?

11 What is the investment quality of this stock?

13 What is the estimated intrinsic value for the next 12 months as shown by the Value Line Rating? Is the current price too high, too low or "right"?

14 How does the stock rank in terms of probable market performance in the coming 12 months? In terms of appreciation potentiality 3 to 5 years in the future?

HOW GOOD IS AMERICAN TELEPHONE?

For Widow Williams — 76% good

For Salesman Forsythe — 64% good

WITH the Value Line measures of value you can determine specifically how good an investment in American Telephone stock would be for you at today's market. But first you must answer this question: what do you want American Telephone to do for you? Presumably you, like all the rest of us, would like American Telephone to provide the highest quality (A+ or A), the best prospective market performance in the next 12 months (rank I - Highest), the greatest appreciation potentiality in the next 3 to 5 years (rank I - Highest), and the highest yield (above 5.6%), all at the same time. But stocks, like people, are different. Some offer greater security than others, some better yield than others. Sometimes those that offer more in the way of quality and yield offer less in the way of market performance expectancy in the next 12 months or appreciation potentiality over the next 3 to 5 years. Your first executive decision then is to determine which of the four universally desirable attributes you want most.

Put yourself in the place of Mrs. Williams. Mrs. Williams is a widow. She has two children in school, the boy a junior at college, the girl in her second year at high school. After careful consideration, Mrs. Williams decides that she wants first of all to conserve her capital. Next she desires the largest possible current income, because while the children are in school, every cent will be needed for support. Third, Mrs. Williams would like to see her stocks give a relatively good account of themselves in the market during the next 12 months. Last, at this time, Mrs. Williams places her desire for appreciation potentiality over a 3 to 5 year pull. This is not because she doesn't want her capital to grow, but because she needs security and income more at this stage of her life.

A weight is assigned to each of the four attributes of American Telephone. The attribute that is most important to Mrs. Williams is weighted four times. The attribute that is next most important to Mrs. Williams is weighted three times. The attribute that is third most important to Mrs. Williams is weighted twice. And the attribute that is least important to Mrs. Williams is weighted only once.

To the right you see how these weights would be assigned to American Telephone's current ranks to accord with Mrs. Williams' scheme.

TABLE OF WEIGHTS

Most important	=	X	4
Second most important	=	X	3
Next to last in importance	=	X	2
Least important	=	X	1

According to Mrs. Williams' weights (or emphasis)		AT&T's Current Ranks				According to Mr. Forsythe's weights (or emphasis)
4	X	A	Quality	A	X	2
2	X	II	12 Months' Market Performance	II	X	4
1	X	V	3-5 Year Appreciation Potentiality	V	X	3
3	X	4.7%	Yield	4.7%	X	1

Now put yourself in the place of another investor, a Mr. Forsythe. Mr. Forsythe's objectives are different from Mrs. Williams'. Mr. Forsythe is a salesman and right now he is making money like mad. The last thing that Mr. Forsythe wants is more income on which to pay tax. No, what Mr. Forsythe wants is to build his capital so that when the old pump starts to tire he can retire and hunt, fish, sail or putter around the garden in a manner becoming a man of his ability and former energy.

To the left you see the weights that Mr. Forsythe would assign to American Telephone's four attributes. They express the difference in his objectives compared to Mrs. Williams'. His first emphasis is placed upon market performance in the next 12 months, second upon appreciation potentiality in the next 3 to 5 years, third upon quality, and last upon yield.

Now in order to get all these ranks expressed in terms of a common denominator, we substitute index numbers for the grades and ranks as shown below in the TABLE OF SUBSTITUTION.

Quality		Rank 12 Mos. Performance		Rank 3-5 Yr. Apprec.		Yield
A+ and A	= 10	I (Highest)	= 10	I (Highest)	= 10	5.7% and up	= 10

B– and C+	= 4	IV (Below Average)	= 4	IV (Below Average)	= 4	2.8 to 3.6	= 4
C and C–	= 2	V (Lowest)	= 2	V (Lowest)	= 2	0 to 2.7	= 2

AT&T's Efficiency for Mrs. Williams

3-5 Yr. Apprec. (V)	2	X	1	=	2
Yield (4.7%)	6	X	3	=	18
					76%

Now it becomes a simple matter to decide how good American Telephone is for Mrs. Williams and how good for Mr. Forsythe.

You see that in today's market American Telephone is 76% efficient for Mrs. Williams' purposes; 64% efficient for Mr. Forsythe's.

SURVEY includes all of the following:

In the weekly Ratings and Reports section are included also any Supplementary Reports required by new evidence on stocks other than the 65 covered in the current edition.

Ratings and Reports includes reviews on all previously recommended Special Situations still held.

Ratings and Reports also includes tables showing changes in officer-director holdings of stocks, latest quarterly sales and earnings reports and a forecast of the future business trend. The Editor's Review page summarizes the contents of the issue and includes comments on the stock market and investment policy. Each issue is fully indexed on its cover. Just inside the issue you will find four lists of stocks selected as being relatively best for (1) the conservative investor interested in well-defined appreciation; (2) the conservative investor interested in better than average income; (3) the risk investor seeking greater than average appreciation; (4) the risk investor seeking exceptionally large income.

c SPECIAL SITUATIONS

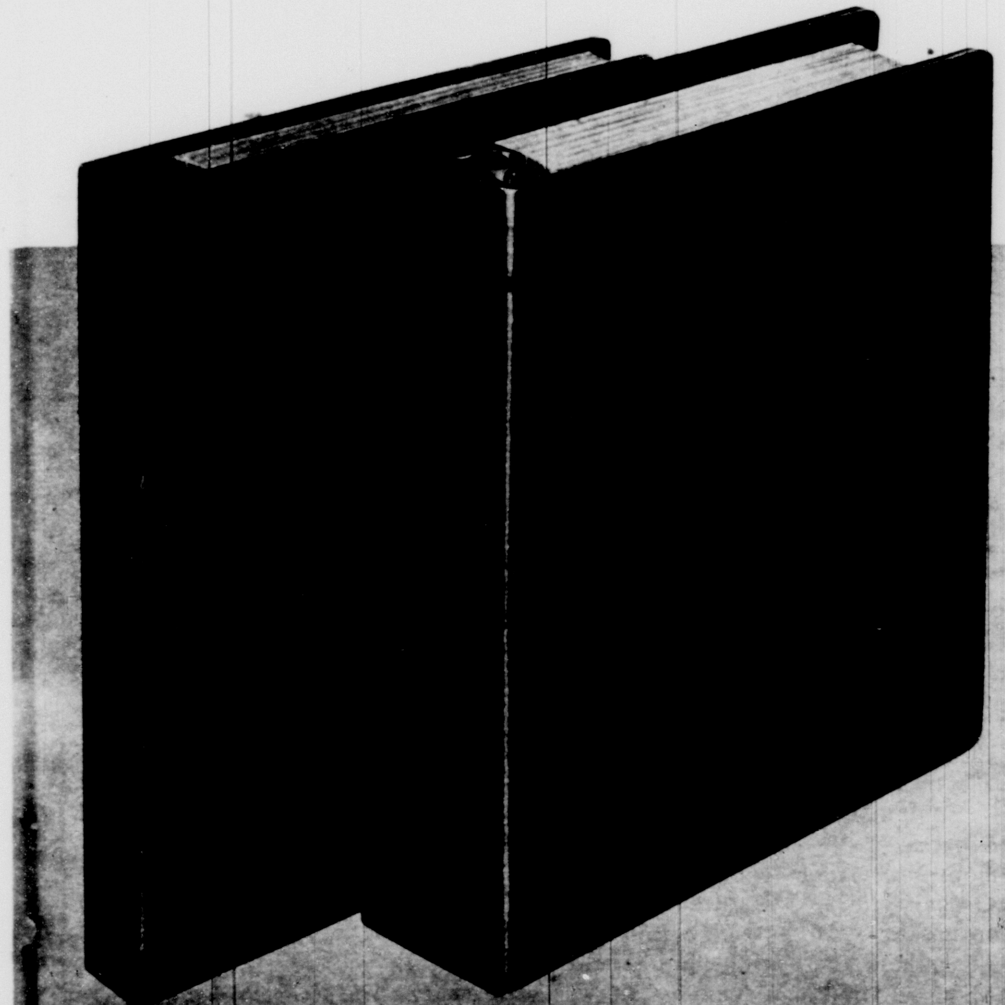
Every month in the second week of the month The Value Line Investment Survey recommends a Special Situation for extraordinary capital gain potentiality. The risks in Special Situations are unusual and mostly non-repetitive in the company's experience. If favorably resolved they may lead to exceptionally wide appreciation. Once recommended, every Special Situation is reported on at least four times a year until sale is advised, at which time the Special is closed out, and the result added to the permanent long-term record. Of all 237 Special Situations recommended in the past eighteen years, 205 or 86% have gone up an average of 102%. Thirty-two, or 14%, have gone down an average of 37% (as of September 30, 1958). This is the comprehensive record of all Special Situations recommendations, not a selection.

d SUPERVISED ACCOUNT REPORTS

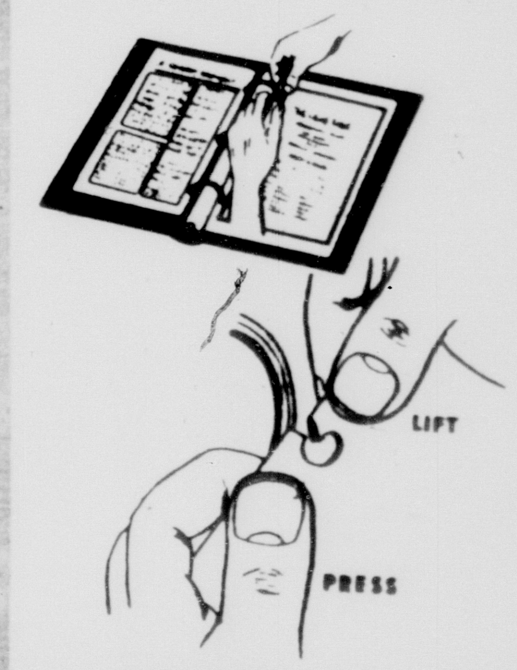
Every month The Value Line Investment Survey reports on its Supervised Account. This is a model fund managed for appreciation and income. Every change in the Account in the eighteen years of its career has been made with advance notice to all subscribers. (Subscribers are notified before the Account itself executes.) Thus the Account illustrates currently and by concrete example how the Value Line staff would manage a typical "businessman's risk" portfolio. It demonstrates by its example how the portfolio should be diversified, its industrial representation rotated, and how the cash reserve should be regulated. Thus, subscribers who wish to follow the Supervised Account in its exact proportions may be sure that they will experience the same or better results themselves. Those who do not wish to follow the Account in its exact proportions because their individual requirements vary from those of the Account have here a current guide to general investment policy.

e FORTNIGHTLY COMMENTARIES

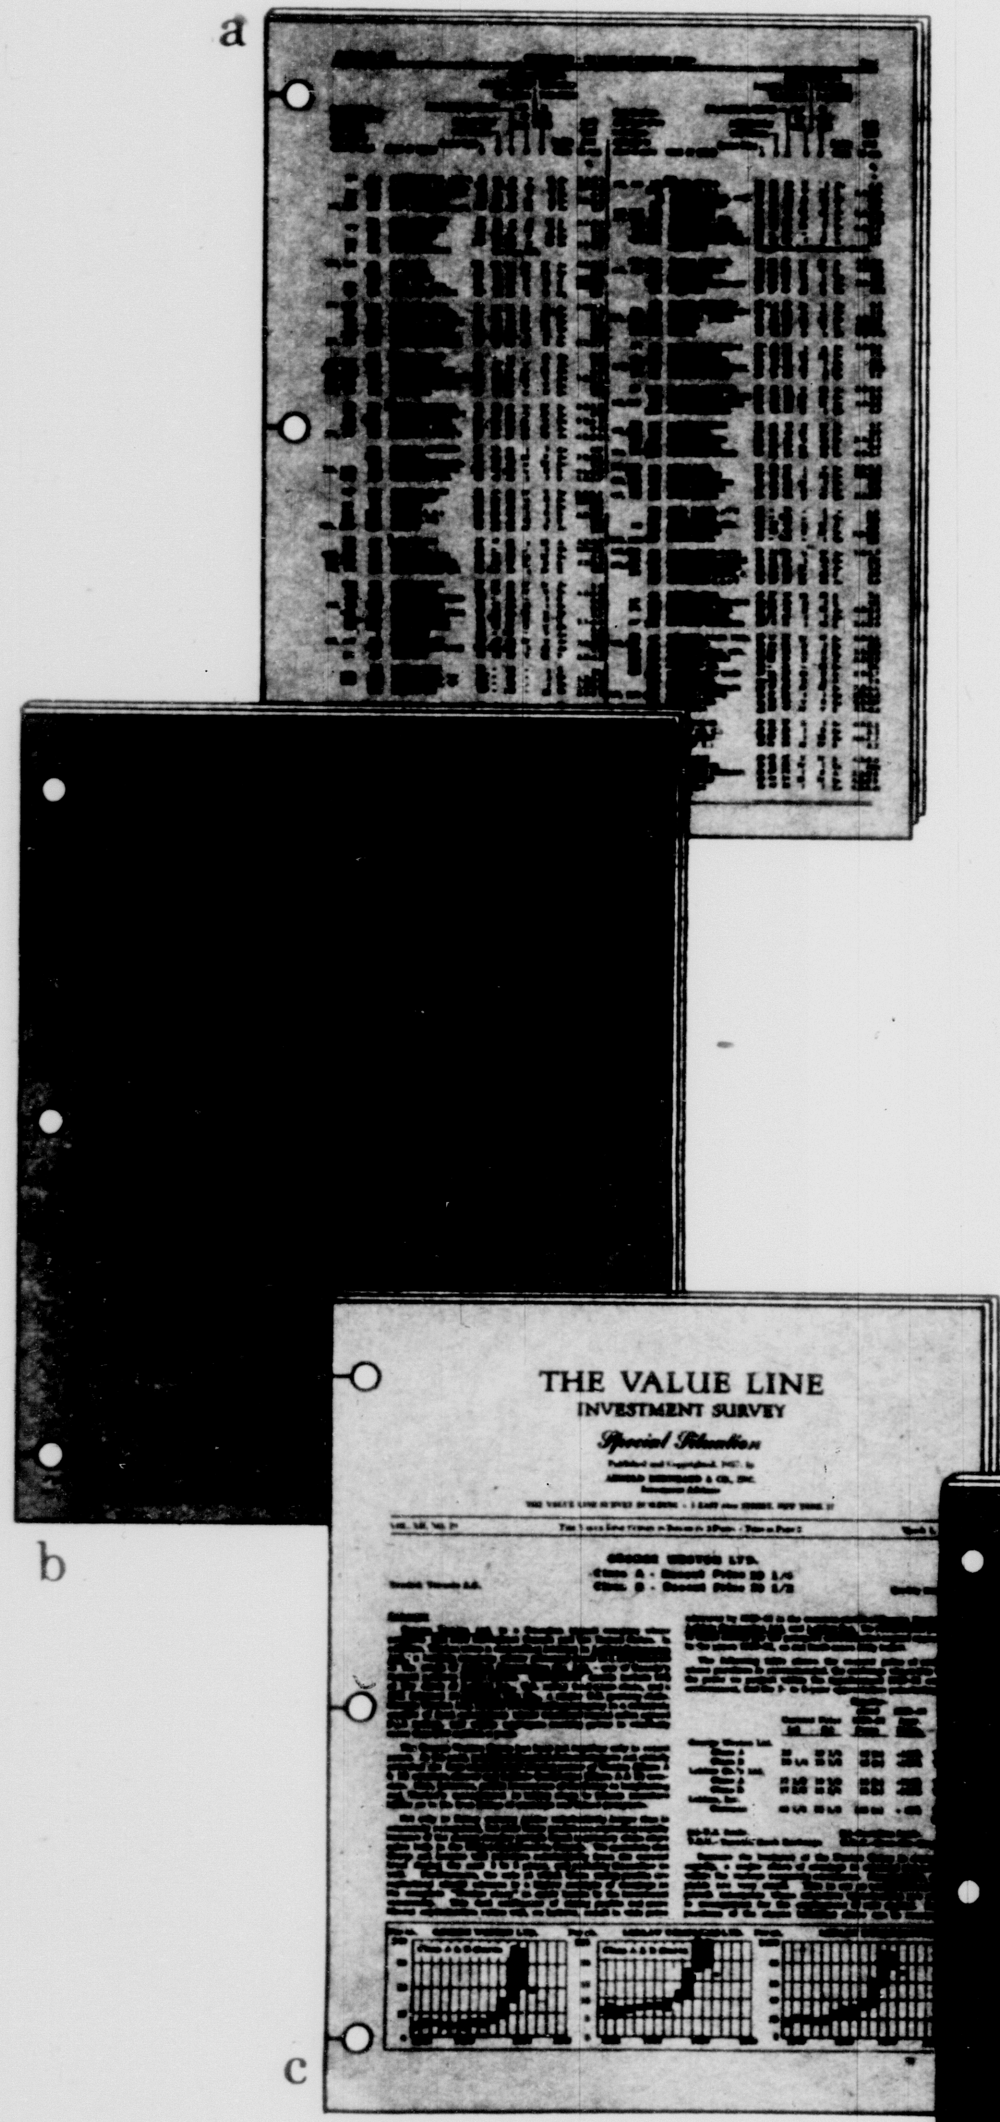
The Fortnightly Commentaries are editorial opinions on the general stock market, the advisable investment policy, the business prospect, domestic or foreign affairs or any other topic related to the investor's interest.

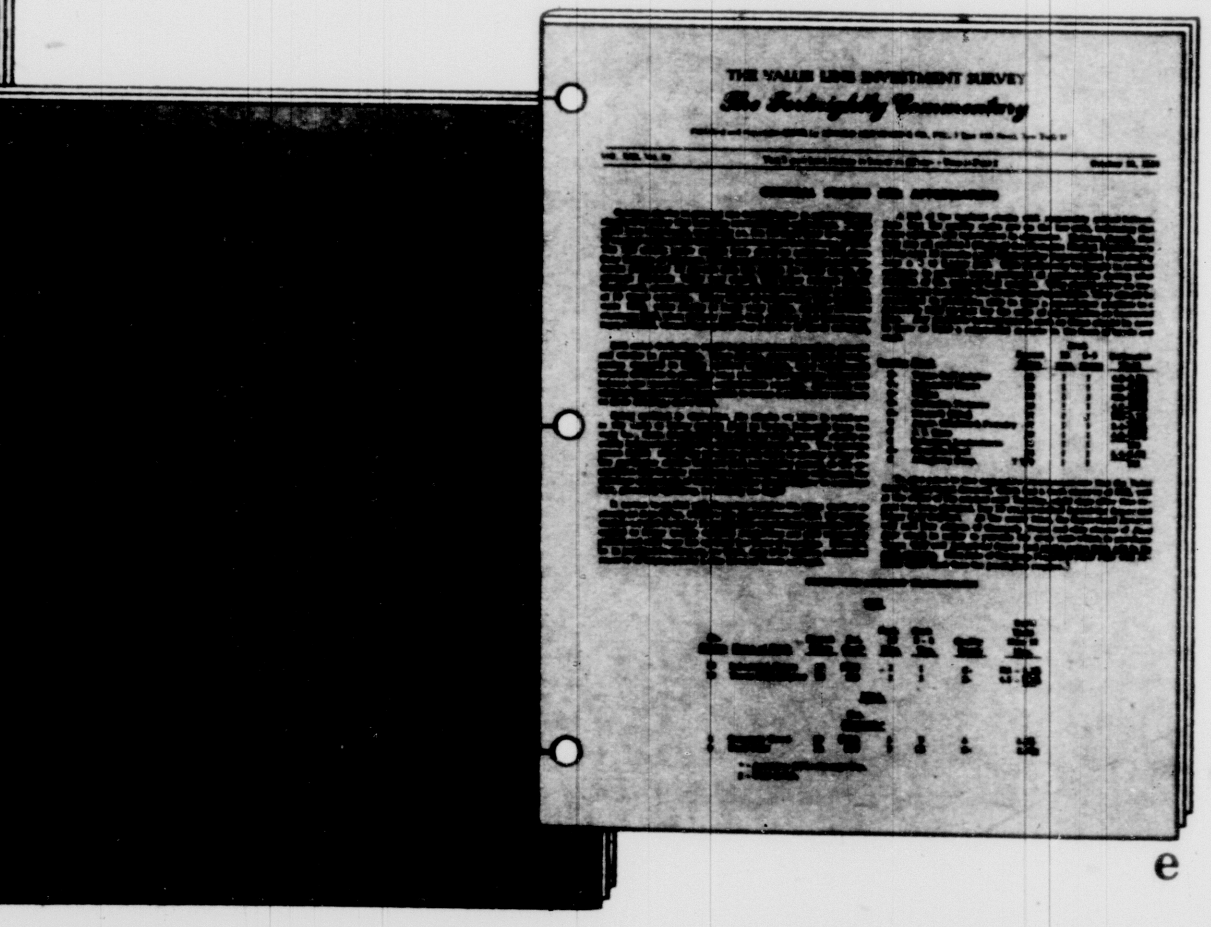


Binders. Two strong binders hold the component parts of The Value Line Investment Survey. The large binder holds the latest complete set of Ratings and Reports (over 1,000 pages) and the latest Summary-Index, on all 804 stocks and more than 50 Special Situations. The small binder holds the Fortnightly Commentaries, the Supervised Account Reports and the Analyses of the new Special Situations that are issued once a month. The Summary-Index gives the page number to turn to in order to find the latest report on a particular stock. Because the bound copies of Ratings and Reports are slit from the binding holes to the edge, it is not necessary to open the ring binder in order to insert new editions of Ratings and Reports or remove old ones. The old editions can be pulled out and the new inserted in just a few seconds, as shown here.



The VALUE LINE INVESTMENT





a WEEKLY SUMMARY-INDEX

The Summary of all ranks is published weekly. It tabulates for each of the 804 leading common stocks under continuous survey its (1) Quality Grade, (2) Rank for Probable Market Performance in the next 12 months, (3) Rank for Appreciation Potentiality in the next 3 to 5 years, and (4) Estimated Yield in the next 12 months. The Weekly Summary is also an index which tells you the page to turn to in your binder for the latest Rating and Report or the latest Supplementary Report on the subject stock. It also gives the most recent price of each stock.

The purpose of the Weekly Summary-Index is to (A) give you the four current ranks based on the latest price every week; (B) tell you where to look for the latest analytical report and rating on each stock; (C) facilitate comparisons among stocks.

The Summary-Index also tells you on what page of Ratings and Reports to look for the latest supplementary analysis of any Special Situation ever recommended by the Value Line Survey and not yet closed out (there are over fifty). The Summary also gives the Quality Grade, the 3 to 5 year Appreciation Potentiality Rank and the Estimated Yield of each Special Situation.

b RATINGS AND REPORTS

About 65 stocks are rated and reported upon every week in regular order. The full cycle of all 804 stocks is completed every thirteen weeks. A sample Rating and Report page is reproduced on page 5 of this magazine. The Ratings and Reports section includes also analyses of the industries in which the stocks of the week's edition are grouped. For example, Issue I, which reports on General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, American Motors and Studebaker-Packard, carries an analysis of the automobile industry and indicates how the individual companies fit into the over-all prospect.

How Mrs. Williams could improve her investment position

Here is Mrs. Williams' entire stock portfolio. Each stock in it has been evaluated according to its weighted ranks, as was American Telephone. The portfolio is found to be 70% efficient for Mrs. Williams' purposes.

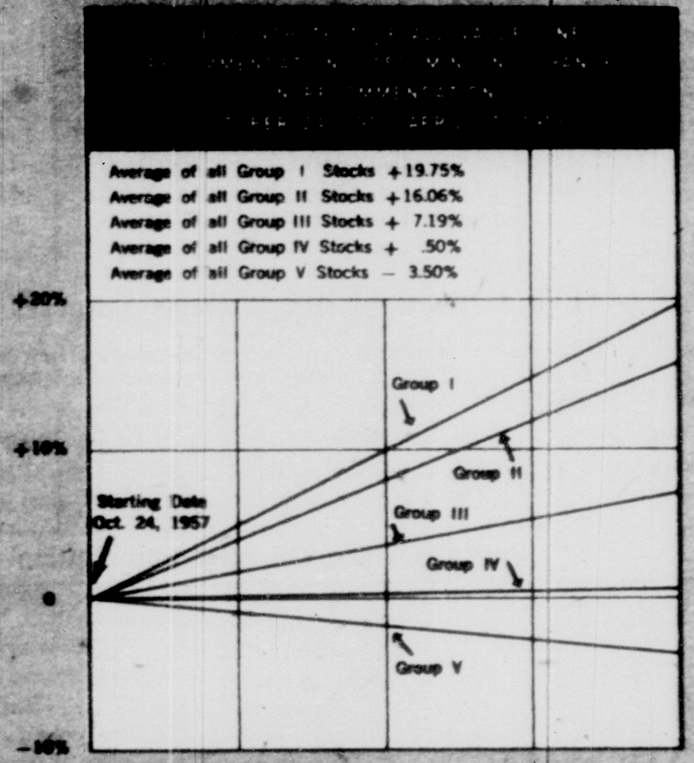
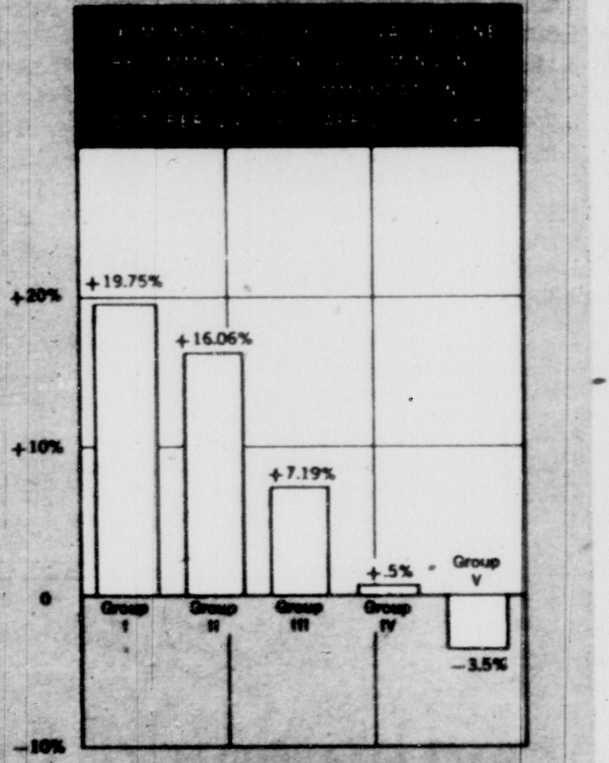
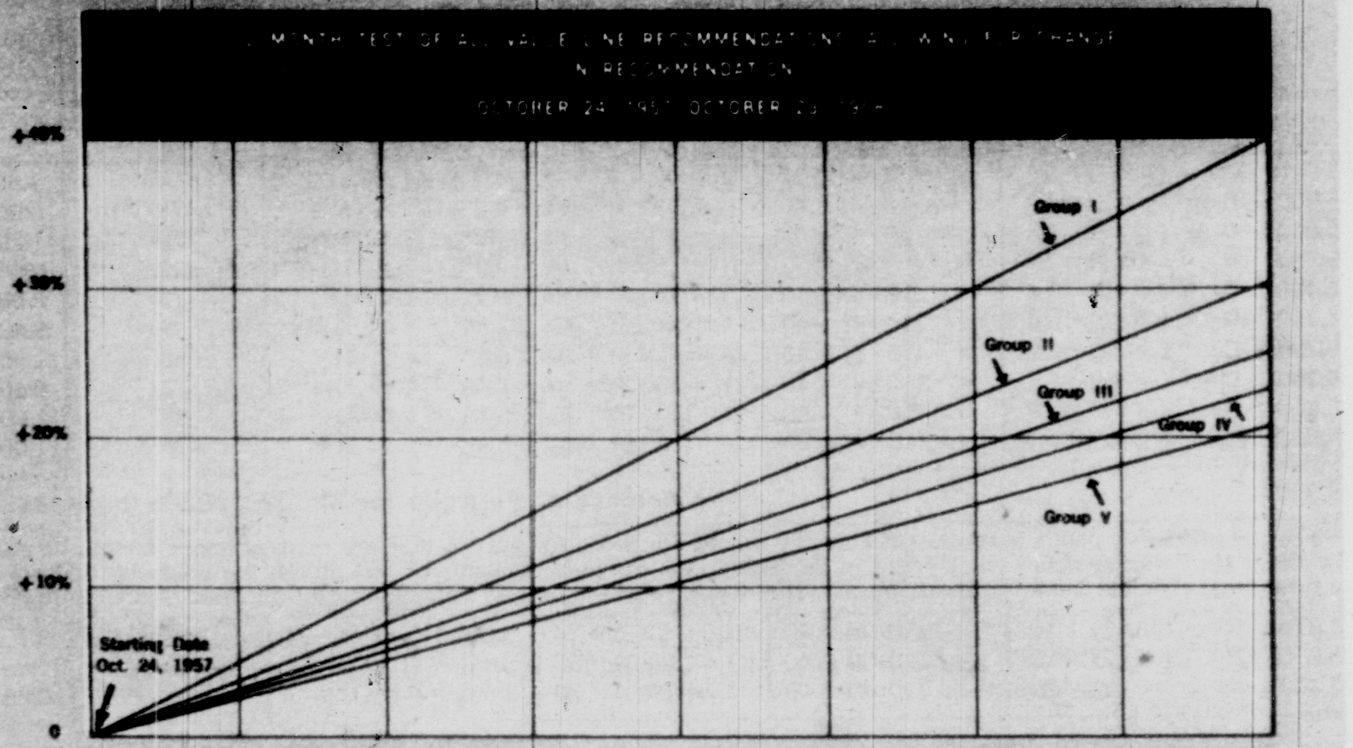
The Record.

The Value Line Survey publishes its specific ranks for each stock every week. The entire record therefore can be audited, and is, regularly. Here is how the ranks for Probable Market Performance in the next 12 months worked out in actual market performance during the period from October 24, 1957 to April 17, 1958. This is the comprehensive record, not a selection. (See The Auditor's Verification on the opposite page.) It will be seen that the average percentage appreciation of all the stocks ranked in Group I (Highest) for 12 months' market performance actually proved to be greater than in Group II, Group II greater than Group III, Group III greater than Group IV, and Group IV greater than the lowest group, V. Your capital invested in Group I would have appreciated more than twice as much as the market as a whole. Your capital invested in Group V (Lowest) would actually have declined in a rising market.





The Value Line ranks for Probable Market Performance in the next 12 months are changed from time to time to reflect changes in prices and earnings forecasts. The six months' record shown above makes no allowance for any such changes. The 12 months' record shown below does allow for interim changes in rank, because the business cycle reversed sharply in May. Hence, earnings forecasts had to be revised, and they were, and the ranks naturally reflected the changed outlook for earnings. Again, over a full year the ranking system discriminated perfectly among the group averages. But a small minority of stocks in each group failed to conform to the average experience of its group, emphasizing once again the necessity for diversification.



Diversification is no fetish. It is absolutely indispensable in any rational adjustment to the future. By reporting on 804 leading stocks and over 50 Special Situations the Value Line surveys a field of values broad enough to permit intelligent selection as well as diversification.

A Warning

The performance test shows perfect discrimination as between groups (of 160 stocks each) in accordance with the ranks placed upon them by the Value Line Rating system. But . . .

. . . note that the performance record of the group average is not necessarily the same as the performance of each stock in the group. For example, the average of all 160 stocks in Group I (Highest) rose 19.75% in six months, and 86% of the stocks in Group I did better than the average of all 804 stocks. But 14%, or 22 stocks out of 160 in Group I, failed to do as well as the average of all 804 stocks in the 6 months to April, 1958. The stocks in Group II rose 16.06% on average, but 29% of the stocks in Group II (46 out of 160) failed to rise as much as the average of 804 stocks. 73%, or 117 of the stocks ranked in Group IV (Below Average) performed more poorly than the average of 804 stocks, but 27% of the stocks in Group IV (Below Average) (43 out of 160) did better than average. 79% of the stocks in Group V (Lowest) (126 out of 160) did worse than the average, but 21% (or 34 out of 160) did better. Now this is not perfect discrimination as between individual stocks. While the Value Line organization is constantly striving to improve its methods, it would be unrealistic to assume that any determination of future price changes, based as it must be on determination of probability, can achieve perfection. Even insurance companies miss on a few risks. It must be expected.

The problem is how to assure for your investment portfolio discrimination as good as that shown by the groups on average (numbering 160 stocks in each group). To be sure your experience corresponds to that of the group averages, spread your investments among twenty stocks. That done, it would be virtually impossible to pick a list whose performance would be significantly different from that which the record indicates.

Gentlemen:

In accordance with your request we have reviewed the results of the forecasts of expected market performance made by you, as indicated by the "Relative Price Performance Rank Next 12 Months" assigned to each security in the summary index of the Value Line Investment Survey of November 4, 1957 (based on market prices on October 24, 1957).

We verified prices prevailing as of the close of the Market on October 24, 1957, and those as of April 17, 1958 against the Wall Street Journal and/or other sources we believed authentic and reliable, for the purpose of ascertaining past results for the period under review.

Relative Price Performance Rank assigned to each security was verified by inspection of the weekly summary index of the November 4, 1957 issue of the Value Line Investment Survey.

Effect was given to all capital adjustments (due to stock splits, stock dividends, and dividend or interest payments which constituted a return of capital) which could be ascertained by reference to the Sinclair-Murray Capital Changes Reporter.

Based on these findings, we recomputed the appreciation (or depreciation) in market value, and, by the use of statistical methods deemed appropriate under the circumstances, computed the average appreciation or depreciation percentage for each of the 5 groups formed by the securities having the same Relative Price Performance Rank.

Group I	+ 19.75%
Group II	+ 16.06%
Group III	+ 7.19%
Group IV	+ 0.50%
Group V	- 3.50%

Based upon this comprehensive review, we are of the opinion that the preceding analysis is a correct statement of the average appreciation (or depreciation) of the securities included in each of the five groups of securities having the same Relative Price Performance Rank as it actually materialized for the period between October 24, 1957 and April 17, 1958.

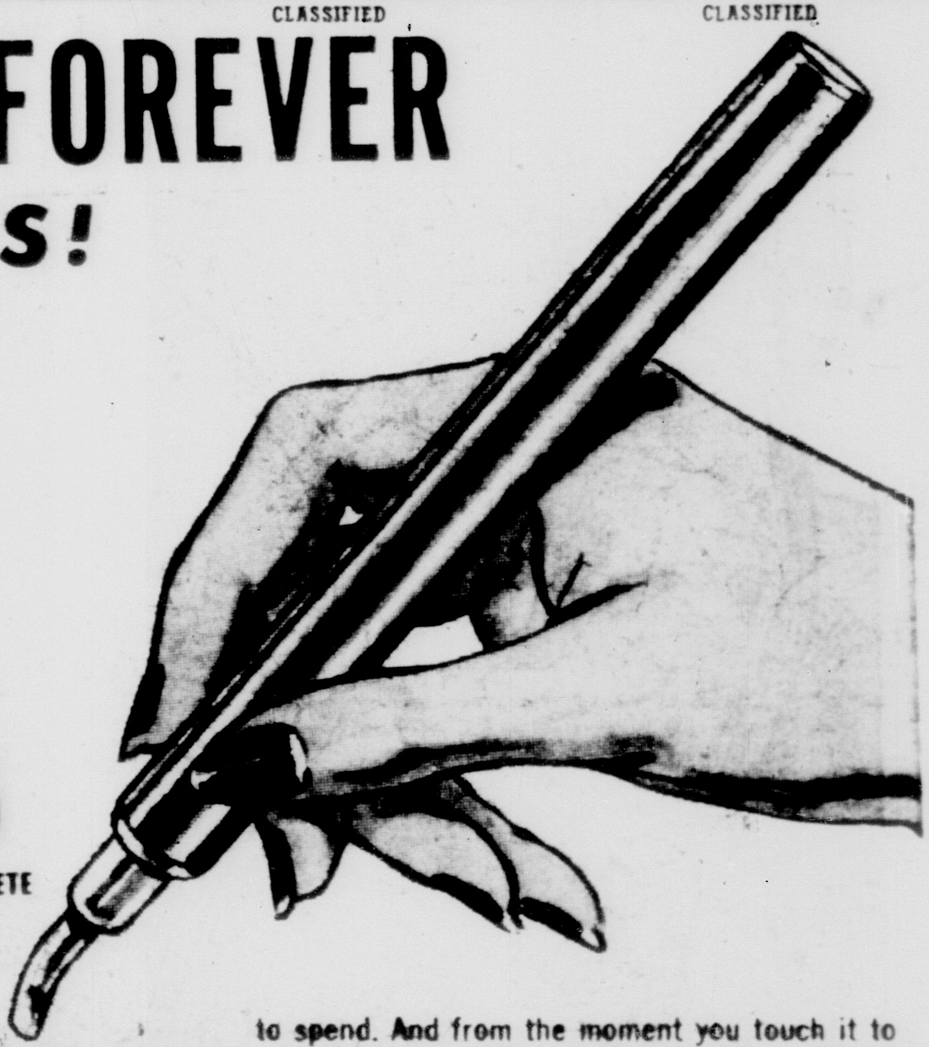
REMOVE UGLY HAIR FOREVER

IN JUST SECONDS!



from Lips . . . from Chin . . .
from ANY PART OF YOUR BODY!

UNWANTED HAIR REMOVED GENTLY . . . SWIFTLY . . . PERMANENTLY
NEVER TO GROW BACK!

ONLY $$9^{95}$ COMPLETE

You are sitting before the mirror in your own bedroom, your tweezer in your hand. The glass reveals, in its cruel honesty, the unsightly hair above your lip . . . on your chin . . . perhaps along your cheeks and jaw. Gently, you pluck out each hair—and as you remove each one YOU KNOW YOU ARE REMOVING THEM FOREVER!

Please read this again: Your own ordinary 50 cent tweezer will be eliminating those hated hairs FOREVER! PERMANENTLY! You won't even feel the pull of the tweezer, because the hair will offer no resistance. It will be dead! And never again will another hair grow in its place. No more, for the rest of your life, will your face be your stigma. No more will you go wearily to the drugstore for the creams or the waxes or the razors which pulled and tugged and tore at your skin only to fail to prevent the ugly hair from growing back coarser and more unsightly than before.

NEW SKIN BEAUTY

We can't repeat it often enough: You will be removing those unwanted hairs FOREVER! And, as the days and weeks and months follow, your mirror will not let you down. It will continue to show you your skin as you've always prayed for it to look—smooth, fine, unmarred by even a shadow of the hair that once was your despair! Your face will have the smoothness, the softness, of a little girl's. Your body, your limbs will be rid of the harsh appearance—your femininity returns as the coarse hairs vanish.

And you will do all this comfortably—safely and swiftly—secure in the knowledge that your own doctor would recommend it!

Is this a dream we've conjured up for you? Are you saying wistfully to yourself right now: "Can this really be true?" It is not a dream. It most certainly is true! Thousands are discovering this to their incredulous delight . . . this new face... this new body... that once seemed so far out of reach as to be only a dream.

WHAT HAS MADE PERMANENT HAIR REMOVAL POSSIBLE FOR EVERYONE

To remove superfluous hair for good, the hair root must be destroyed. The hairs that your little tweezer will be removing will be dead. To be more exact, their roots will be dead. What will have killed these roots? The answer is an instrument—a smooth, finely-balanced, delicate cylinder that weighs less than three ounces, and in the development of which a scientist spent years of his life. The touch of this instrument will kill the hair root (and only the hair root), and your tweezer will then pluck out the lifeless hair! There will be no wires to plug in, no creams to smear over your face, no expensive visits to beauty salons, not the slightest threat to your sensitive skin. Only two things will happen: (1) The unsightly hair will be removed forever; and (2) your skin will be smooth and unmarred by unwanted hair for the rest of your life.

PERMAGON EPILATOR

The name of this dermatological miracle is the LEMOS PERMAGON EPILATOR. And its cost—complete—is only $9.95! That's correct—$9.95 complete! There is nothing else to buy—no treatments away from the intimacy of your own home—no one other than yourself who is needed to bring about this transformation because this self-electrolysis method is so simple, so completely thorough. In all the world there is only one other process that is the possible equal of the LEMOS PERMAGON EPILATOR. (Its equal only, mind you, not its superior.) And that process is professional electrolysis with its long, arduous visits to a professional salon with its costs of hundreds of dollars . . . with the invasion of your privacy by others.

The LEMOS PERMAGON EPILATOR will do everything that the most expensive professional treatment will do—and it will do it at a tiny fraction of the cost! The LEMOS PERMAGON EPILATOR will remove superfluous hair anywhere on your face, body and limbs—and the hair will never grow back. And it will do this safely, swiftly, simply! We guarantee this unconditionally.

SIMPLE—EASY TO USE

When you receive your LEMOS PERMAGON EPILATOR you can begin immediately. (1) You read the simple instructions. (2) You begin removing unwanted hair at once. It's that simple. No involved preparations. No appointment with beauticians. No anxious look at your savings account to see if there is enough money in the bank to pay for the interminable treatments. All you'll need is the PERMAGON EPILATOR and the $9.95 you've paid for it is all you'll have to spend. And from the moment you touch it to your face you will sing out in sheer delight as the disfiguring hairs are eased out and you watch your face and body emerge into a new feminine softness and grace.

So put away the dreaded razor. Throw out the ineffectual depilatories—the creams and the waxes that you've had to use only because you've been desperate. If you will do this—if you will rid yourself of these ineffectual, irritating half-methods and follow instead the efficient, safe instructions contained in our package, avoiding warts, moles and other blemishes, you will be elated by the results and be able to buy yourself a gay new wardrobe with the many, many dollars your cosmetician has been costing you. The LEMOS PERMAGON EPILATOR will do what we've been saying over and over on this page—it will remove the hairs you want removed PERMANENTLY. They will never grow back!

HERE IS OUR GUARANTEE TO YOU

We ask that you try the LEMOS PERMAGON EPILATOR for two full weeks. We guarantee that, if at the end of that period anything we have said in this advertisement does not completely live up to your expectations, we will refund every penny you paid for the LEMOS PERMAGON EPILATOR. Furthermore, we guarantee the LEMOS PERMAGON EPILATOR trouble-free for one year.

Our guarantee will have only one judge—you! If, after following our instructions and putting the LEMOS PERMAGON EPILATOR to the test, you feel we have overstated our claims you are free to immediately request refund. This is our guarantee.

WE'RE GETTING too highbrow for words, climbing right up with the Atlantic Monthly practically. We—get this—have a story so erudite that it requires an asterisk and footnote to translate.

Beatrice Washburn is responsible for this lofty departure. She casually tossed off a reference to a French proverb in her story about the good old days on page 5 in the happy — and completely unfounded—belief that all of us would know what she was talking about.

The path of the intellectual, though, is rough. The difficulties of shepherding asterisks and footnotes, to say nothing of French spelling, safely into type were indescribable. Not only were asterisks in short supply but "the machines don't have any of those crazy accents," the typesetters reported scornfully.

They were slightly mollified but no less scornful when we agreed to settle for French without accents if we could only have the coveted asterisks.

Once you hurdle this one language barrier though, you'll be charmed by Beatrice's reminiscenses of the gentle days when people had moosehead hatracks in the hall, marble statues in the drawing room and ladies carried parasols.

* * *

STEVE TRUMBULL continues his outboard trip across Florida from Gulf to Atlantic on page 8. The first of three chapters about this trip appeared in last Sunday's magazine but if you missed that one, don't let it scare you off. You didn't miss anything — and we don't mean that like it sounds, Steve. That is to say, last week's installment was an overall look at the trip, preliminary plans, etc. Today's story actually begins the cross-state voyage as Steve and his two companions put out from Ft. Myers in the Po Ho. Po Ho, that's the name of Steve's boat, and if you want to know what deep sentiment prompted this choice of a name you'll have to ask him. We couldn't possibly tell you and hope to stay in the high-toned world of asterisks and footnotes.

The Miami chapter of the SPEBSQSA, a jawful of the alphabet now so widely known that it needs no explanation, is making big plans for a two-day Harvest of Harmony this week.

Barbershop singing started back in the halcyon days when a shave and a haircut were two bits. Impromptu quartets sprang up around barber chairs and sentimental Victorian verses were filtered through handlebar mustaches. The tunes quavered and the mustaches quivered and everybody had a fine time. The barbershop was big enough then; now they need Dade County auditorium. For more details see page 6.

FORT PIERCE — "Yesterday and Tomorrow" is the theme for Fort Pierce's Sandy Shoes Festival, now in its third year, to be staged March 2 through 8.

This theme was selected for the celebration as one particularly appropriate for an area which preserves the color and atmosphere of yesterday's pioneer days while neighboring Cape Canaveral's rockets to the moon trace their path in the skies overhead.

The contrast is never so sharply drawn as when a guided missile's corkscrew tracery in the sky can be seen hanging over miles of ranches and groves dozing changelessly in the sun.

The Sandy Shoes Festival is unique among South Florida celebrations in that it gives visitors a look at life as it is lived in Florida instead of concentrating on the glamor and sophistication of "resort" Florida. Its events are put on by local talent and are aimed at giving insight into little-known Florida folkways and fun.

A cast of over a hundred participates in the pageant, "Along These Waters," an outdoor drama depicting the legends, romance and history of St. Lucie County, set to original music. Dramatist, composer and talent are all local.

Tours through the "cowboy and Indian" country and the citrus groves are, particularly for northern visitors, a highlight of the seven-day fiesta.

A citrus feast put on by the Jaycees, features unusual citrus dishes as well as the old standbys, and is highlighted by the selection of "Miss Delicious Dish" from the lovely girls who serve the capacity crowd each year.

The community's enthusiasm for fishing, boating, water-skiing and beach life is represented in a Water Events Day with races, a water show and tourist participation in life on the beaches, river and inland waterways.

For art lovers there's an exhibition by the growing

Only $9.95

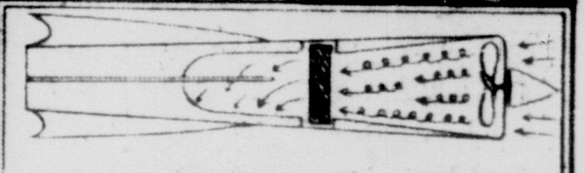
- New scientific portable construction.
- Liquid fuel cooling agent.
- Cools your car in seconds.
- Racy, modernistic design.



This interior view of "Jet Air," shows how the special air flow filter breathes in atmospheric air and blows it into the compressing chamber. There, it is trapped in the liquid fuel cooling chamber and the temperature is dropped enormously. Then, this conditioned air is slowly released into the car creating a refreshing, cool interior temperature that is continuous and pure.

LABORATORY TESTS PROVE

Conclusive laboratory TESTS prove "Jet Air's" efficiency. Under strict laboratory conditions, we raised the temperature of a 1957 Bel Air Chevrolet to a hot, muggy 111° Fahrenheit. We then installed "Jet Air." Instantly cool refreshing air entered the car, and within 90 seconds, the temperature had dropped 34° and was still going down. We were cool, comfortable and refreshed. Within 6 minutes, the temperature was 67° . . . a total drop of 44°.

RIDE IN SAME COMFORT AS IN EXPENSIVE AIR CONDITIONED CARS

"Jet Air" gives you cool refreshing air that makes your car Degrees Cooler in Seconds on even the hottest days. Just think what this means to you. It means that the hottest day of the summer, the streaming roads of traffic congested highways, the short tedious shopping trips, etc., now all become joyous means of escaping the heat. Yes, while other drivers are sitting and suffering, you are cooler, more comfortable and content. Yes, with "Jet Air" we guarantee that you must feel as comfortable as in expensive air conditioning or it doesn't cost you a cent!

WORKS ON SAME PRINCIPLE AS RAM JET ENGINE

"Jet Air" works on the same scientific principle as a Ram Jet. Equipped with a special "air flow" filter, it inhales the atmospheric air and compresses it in the frost chamber. Then, the air is slowly trapped in the liquid fuel cooling chamber, where the air is released in a refreshing, steady, cool breeze into the car interiors, thus giving you and all your passengers a "spring" ride even on the hottest summer days.

SWEPT WING DESIGN WORKS FUNCTIONALLY—ADDS BEAUTY

Portable and constructed of special lightweight polyethylene to insure maximum refrigeration, "Jet Air" fits right between the window and the roof of your car. Pre-grooved and completely adjustable to any size window, it will not obstruct the view of the driver in any way. And, the sleek "Swept Wing" design which is functionally geared for maximum cooling, adds a racy, modernistic design. Even the most "hard to please" buyers find that "Jet-Air" enhances their cars' design and beauty, and "Jet-Air" attracts the admiring attention of all other motorists. "Jet Air" is completely portable, and can be installed and removed in less than one minute without any tools or mechanic necessary. Because of its unique construction and sealed cooling unit, we unconditionally guarantee "Jet Air" against mechanical defects or malfunction at any time.

NEW MATERIALS INSURE LIFETIME USE

"Jet-Air's" unique construction and special liquid fuel cooling agent insure lifetime use. Yes, we guarantee that you will enjoy the beneficial comforts of "Jet Air" each and every hot day for the life of your present auto, or we will refund your money. Attach in a jiffy, close all the car windows and relax in cool comfort. Only $9.95 complete. Nothing else to buy—No other charges. So don't delay. Order now in time for complete summer comfort. If you are not 100% thrilled and delighted, then simply return for prompt refund of full purchase price.

LIFETIME GUARANTEE

"Jet Air" is unconditionally guaranteed to keep you cool and comfortable in your car throughout the summer months for the lifetime of your present car. We further guarantee that you will incur no additional expense after you purchase "Jet Air"; that "Jet Air" requires no attachments, can be installed and removed in seconds. We also guarantee that "Jet Air" will be such an attractive addition to your car that it will receive enthusiastic comments from all your friends and neighbors.

A Marble Niobe That Grandfather Got in Italy Weighed Two Tons and Promptly Crashed Through the Floor

By Beatrice Washburn

OF COURSE if you stick around long enough everything comes around again. The French have a more elegant way of phrasing it but my typewriter has no accents.*

I was thinking of soup tureens. They used to be standard equipment at every dinner table but now they are advertised as something very rich and expensive in the slick magazines.

Ours used to come with a long silver spoon shaped like a cup at the end. Now they call them chowder sets. They come with ten plates, big ones, like they used to have before people began serving soup in those little cereal saucers that wouldn't hold a live oyster.

And, by the way, what has become of oyster plates shaped like real oyster shells? Tough to wash probably but the family wasn't dish washing in the good old days. We had a fish set of deep red shaped like a real fish. A ruby red fish. How we children loved it!

When you begin to write about the good old days people tell you that you only remember the nice things. Well, so what? One of life's few compensations is the fact that the evil things, the pain and misery and shame, fade away with the years and you are left holding only loveliness, or the shadow of loveliness. Another thing is that power of total recall. When you are a child you notice everything, it's shape and smell and color. I could find my way around my grandfather's house in the dark and remember every bit of furniture. But my own, today, I can't even describe to the insurance man.

So how about bear skin rugs? You never see them any more. Or a tiger skin with a stuffed head and big spread-out feet bordered with felt. How's for the moosehead in the front hall to hang your hats on, and the uncomfortable chair from Peking inlaid with mother-of-pearl.

We had Maxfield Parrish pictures on the nursery wall. What has become of those lovely purple mountains and the king who was marble from the waist down? Untrue to life, maybe, as they say in Tallahassee.

* * *

IN THE good old days you changed wall paper every spring and if you were a lucky child you could select your own. Should it be bright red poppies or sprigs of roses, lilac branches or clusters of blushing peonies. Maybe it was because we lived in a climate where snow was on the ground eight months a year that we put so great a store by flowers. The Sistine Madonna at the head of your bed and flowers all around you . . . The Sistine was almost routine. No, we weren't Catholics. We weren't even very religious but years later when I saw the original in the Louvre it did something to me. Of course I had always known the Baby was too big, more like a four year old child than an infant.

Wall to wall carpeting is now considered a luxury but in my childhood you stood ankle deep in carpets and people who had "hard wood" floors were pretty offbeat and daring.

* * *

BURIED IN the deep past where only memory lives are button hooks and "powder puffs," smelling salts in tiny crystal bottles, candied violets and student lamps.

At hotel banquets now you occasionally see napkins shaped like little crowns wearing a hot roll in their bosoms but where, oh where, are swans made of ice that used to emerge when we had particularly distinguished guests?

I seem to remember tiny parasols that tipped their lids on top to follow the sun which, in my grandmother's day, was considered ruinous to a lady's complexion. My grandmother, by the way, wore "tea gowns," made of millions of tiny ruffles and with a train that rustled when she walked.

What has become of marble statues in the home? My grandfather brought back at vast expense from Italy a marble Niobe that weighed two tons and sank gracefully through the floor when she was unpacked by perspiring workmen.

What has become of "tower rooms" — the kind where I did all my reading. Stone houses in the middle west were built by architects who had studied in France and had vague memories of the Renaissance and chateaux where lovely ladies pined for their lords to return from the Crusades. Nowadays with ranch houses and everything on one floor I wonder if the "tower room" wouldn't be a solution for our tremendous lack of privacy?

* * *

LOVE SEATS and chairs made like huge crossed cushions with golden tassels on their ends are now museum pieces. The brick door stop carpeted with the same fabric as the room has vanished into limbo and so, as far as I can see, have muffs. In our below zero climate nothing was so satisfactory to the hands as a deep fur muff and every child I knew had one.

What has become of raspberry shrub? And where, oh where, are those infinitesimal lemonade sets that dolls drank out of, imported from what was then Bohemia and made from the lovely Carlsbad glass? What has become of dolls with real hair?

Of course one could go on forever. What has happened to umbrella stands and it must be years since I have seen one of those little china hands on a lady's bureau for her to keep her rings on.

*The French expression referred to is Le plus ca change, plus c'est la meme chose. Still without the accents since our linotype machines don't have them either. Translated loosely, it means the more things change the more they are the same.

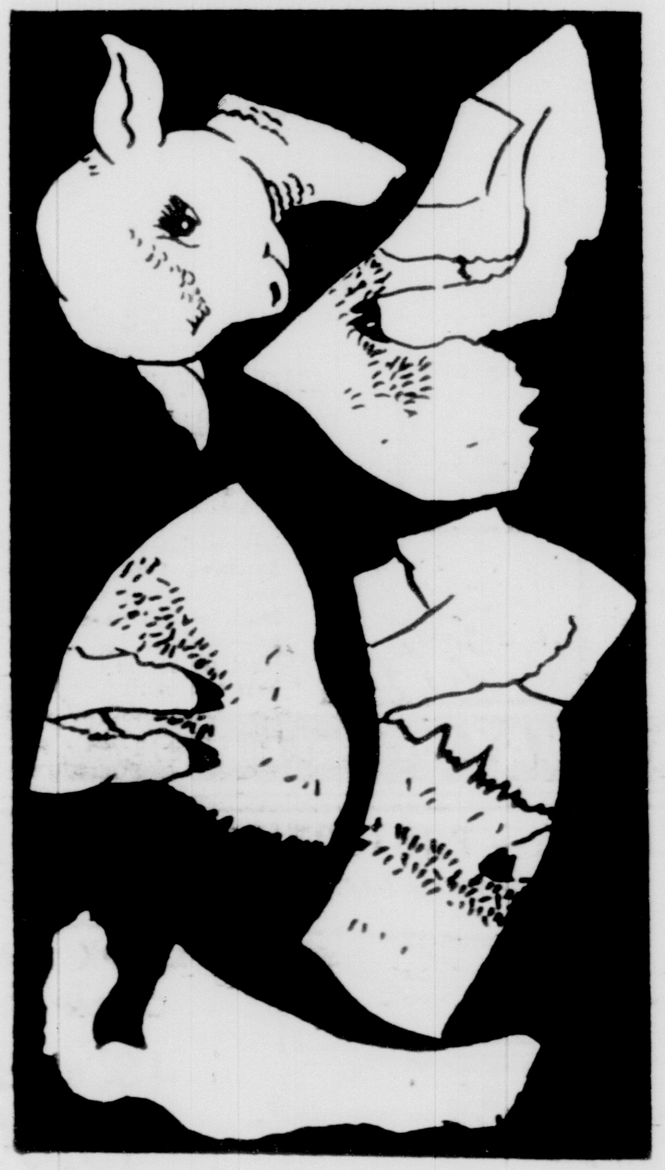
Want to Launch Plane In Air? Try for Prize



By Cappy Dick

JUST for putting together the five pieces in the above picture, 10 boys and girls are going to win plastic airplane dart guns, the new prize offered for the first time last week.

The airplane dart gun is a lot of fun. The outfit consists of a gun and a plastic plane. The gun is used to launch the plane on a speedy flight.

Ten of these prizes will be given away in today's contest, one to each boy or girl who sends in one of the most neatly prepared solutions to the scrambled picture puzzle.

Use scissors to clip out the five white pieces in the picture. Fit them together, then paste them that way on a piece of paper. When the paste has dried, use your paints or crayons to color the picture or decorate your contest entry in any other way you consider neat and attractive.

Print your name, age and address beneath the picture. Address it to Cappy Dick at The Miami Herald, Box 630, and mail it before midnight of day after tomorrow.

Judges will examine all the entries to select the 10 correct ones which are the most neatly prepared. Names, ages and addresses of the winners will be published here and their airplane dart guns will be sent to their homes by mail.

. . . Tropic Notes of Miami

BARBERSHOP melody from the Gay Nineties will be reborn at the Dade County Auditorium when the 11th annual "Harvest of Harmony" rolls into town March 6 and 7.

The 8:15 p.m. concerts, which will draw nationally famous quartets, will be presented by the Miami SPEBSQSA Chapter (that's "Greek" for Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America).

The "Confederates" from Memphis, and the "Midstates Four," both international champs, will top the musical guest list. Joining in will be the "Florida Knights," past Dixie champions.

Local groups will also test their vocal talents. The current Dixie champs, Miami's own "Short Cuts," will be on hand, along with the "Tropic Notes," decked out in early 1900's attire.

The Miami Chapter SPEBSQSA Chorus will render such old-time favorites as "Mandy Lee" and "The Old Songs Medley." For an added treat, they will combine with the "Magic City Sweet Adelines" to present "Lida Rose" from the current Broadway hit, "The Music Man."

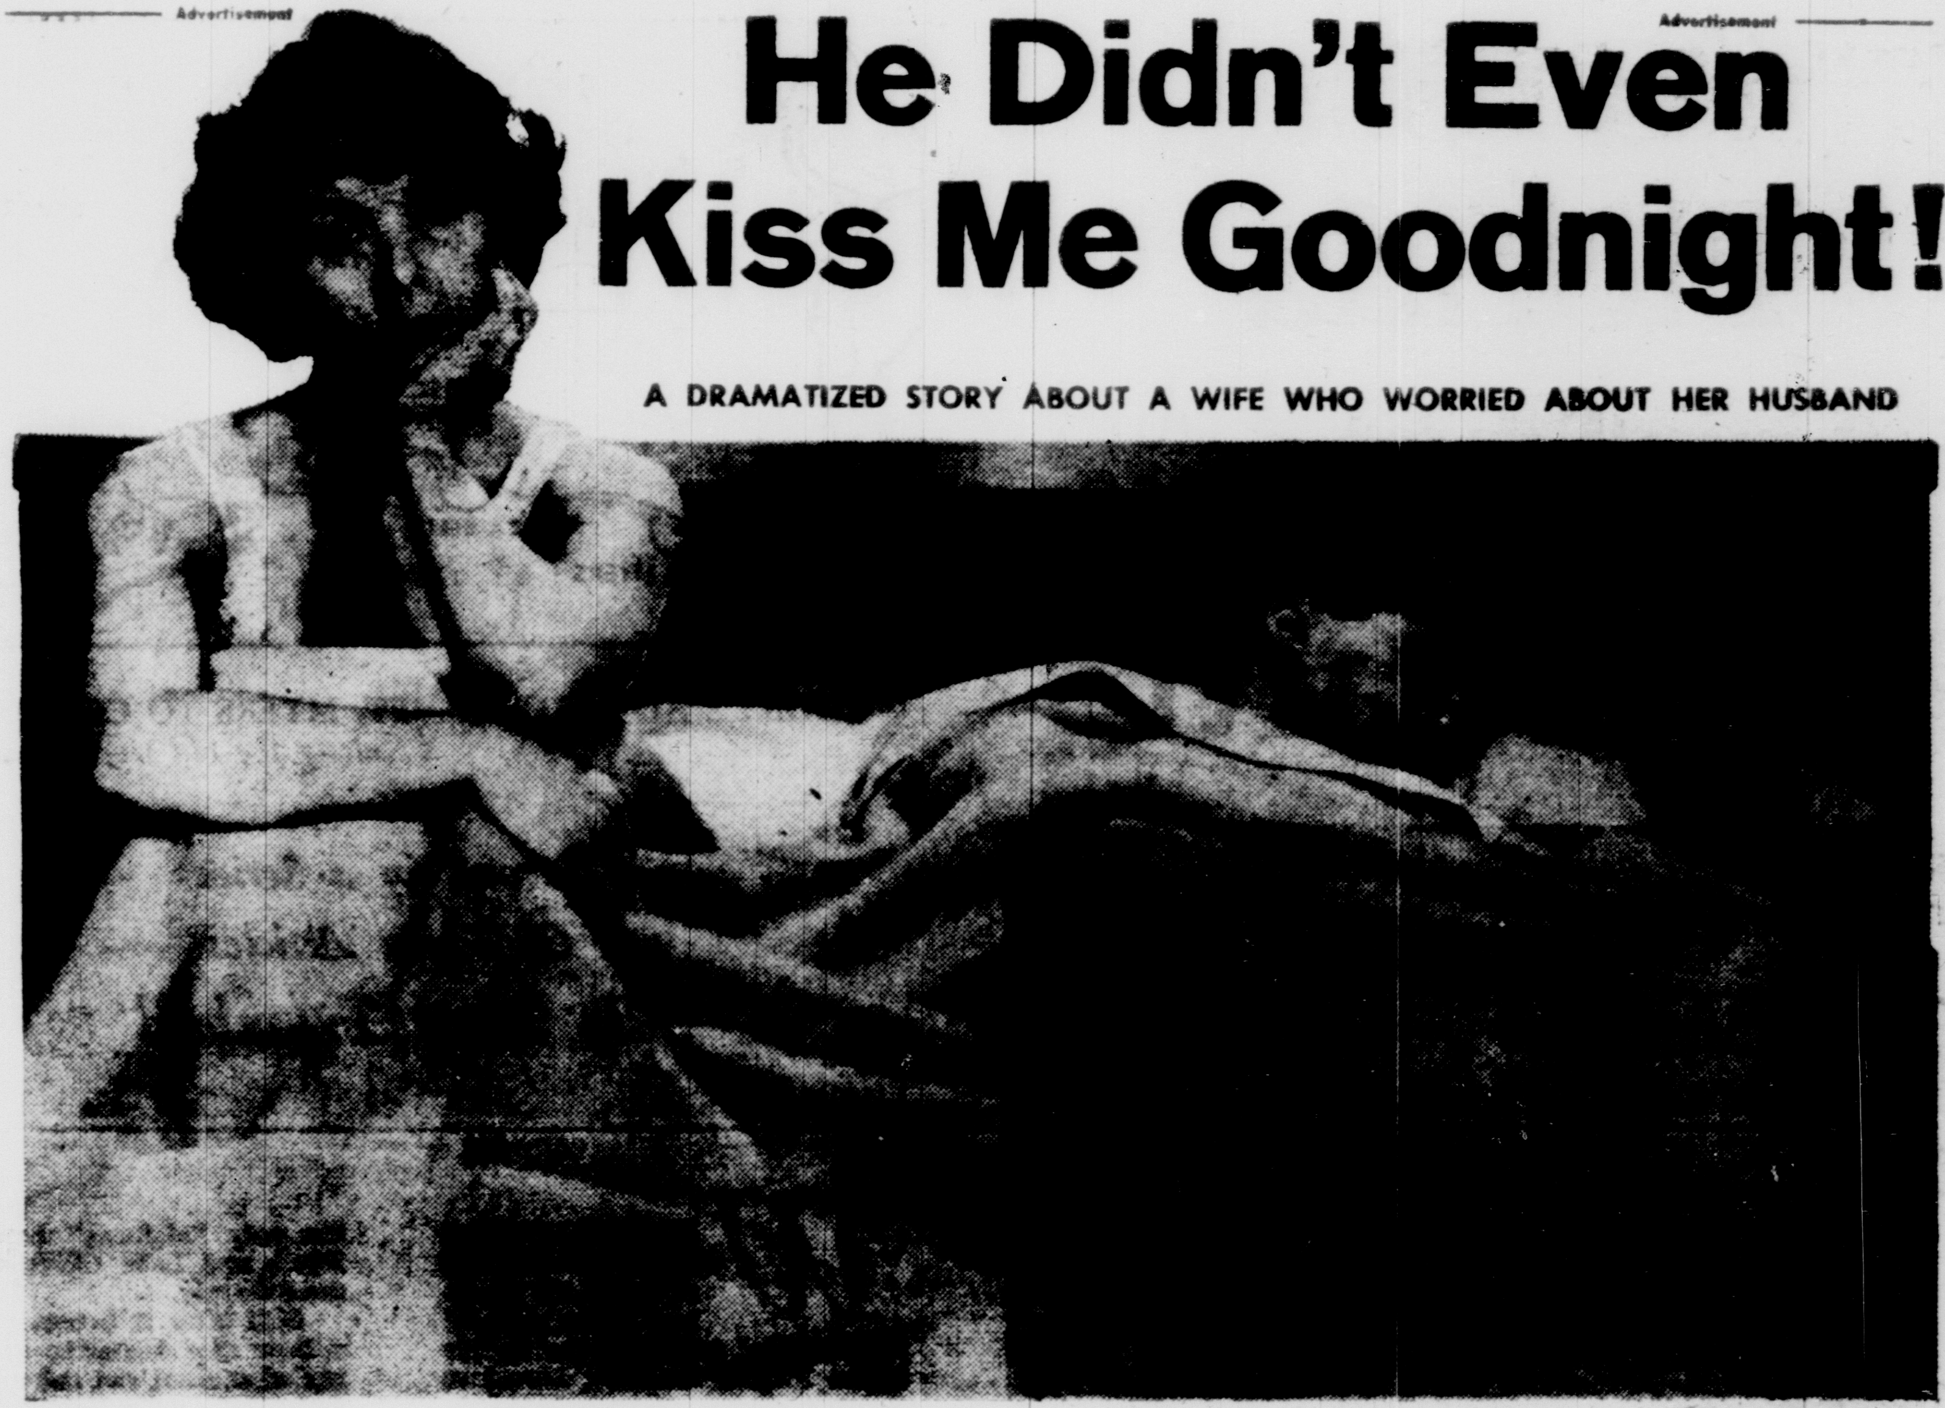
He Didn't Even Kiss Me Goodnight!

A DRAMATIZED STORY ABOUT A WIFE WHO WORRIED ABOUT HER HUSBAND



Posed by professional models.

NIGHT after night my husband came home from work all tired out. He was nervous, irritable — and barely touched supper. Most of the time he'd just sit around for a while — then drop into bed, asleep as soon as his head hit the pillow. Often he didn't even kiss me goodnight . . . and yet I knew I had a good man — one who really loved me.

I know a man's tired after a day's work — but my husband was simply "dead on his feet"! You'd think he'd forgotten all about me!

Then one day we saw a Vitasafe ad in a magazine. It told about other men like my husband who had once felt tired and run-down, who had lost their pep and energy. It said that this condition may be caused by an easily corrected vitamin-mineral deficiency, and that thousands of people had experienced a feeling of increased vitality and strength through the famous Vitasafe Plan. It offered to send a trial 30-day supply of powerful Vitasafe High-Potency Capsules so we could discover for ourselves whether my husband could be helped.

We had nothing to lose, so we sent the coupon. And believe me, it was the smartest thing we ever did. Now my husband's like a new man. He feels stronger and peppier than he has for a long time!

If you want to help someone you love get rid of that tired, run-down feeling, due to a vitamin-mineral deficiency, send for a 30-day trial supply of Vitasafe capsules as we did. Just mail the no-risk coupon today.

EACH DAILY VITASAFE CAPSULE FOR MEN CONTAINS

Choline Bitartrate	31.4 mg.	Niacin Amide	40 mg.
Inositol	15 mg.	Calcium Pantothenate	4 mg.
dl-Methionine	10 mg.	Vitamin E	2 I.U.
Glutamic Acid	50 mg.	Folic Acid	0.5 mg.
Lemon Bioflavonoid Complex	5 mg.	Calcium	75 mg.
Vitamin A	12,500 USP Units	Phosphorus	58 mg.
Vitamin D	1,000 USP Units	Iron	30 mg.
Vitamin C	75 mg.	Cobalt	0.04 mg.
Vitamin B_1	5 mg.	Copper	0.45 mg.
Vitamin B_2	2.5 mg.	Manganese	0.5 mg.
Vitamin B_6	0.5 mg.	Molybdenum	0.1 mg.
Vitamin B_{12}	2 mcg.	Iodine	0.075 mg.
		Potassium	2 mg.
		Zinc	0.5 mg.
		Magnesium	3 mg.

We invite you to compare the richness of this formula with any other vitamin and mineral preparation.

LIPOTROPIC FACTORS, VITAMINS AND MINERALS

Safe nutritional formula containing 27 proven ingredients: Glutamic Acid, Choline, Inositol, Methionine, Citrus Bioflavonoid, 11 Vitamins (including blood-building B-12 and Folic Acid) plus 11 Minerals.

To prove to you the remarkable advantages of the Vitasafe Plan . . . we will send you, without charge, a 30-day free supply of high-potency VITASAFE C.F. CAPSULES so you can discover for yourself how much stronger, happier and peppier you may feel after a few days' trial! Just one of these capsules each day supplies your body with over twice the minimum adult daily requirements of Vitamins A, C, and D . . . five times the minimum adult requirement of Vitamin B-1 and the full concentration recommended by the National Research Council for the other four important vitamins! Each capsule contains the amazing Vitamin B-12 — one of the most remarkable nutrients science has yet discovered — a vitamin that actually helps strengthen your blood and nourish your body organs.

Glutamic Acid, an important protein derived from natural wheat gluten, is also included in Vitasafe Capsules. And to top off this exclusive formula, each capsule now brings you an important dosage of Citrus Bioflavonoid. This formula is so complete it is available nowhere else at this price!

POTENCY AND PURITY GUARANTEED

There is no mystery to vitamin potency. As you probably know, the U.S. Government strictly controls each vitamin manufacturer and requires the exact quantity of each vitamin and mineral to be clearly stated on the label. This means that the purity of each ingredient, and the sanitary conditions of manufacture are carefully controlled for your protection! When you use VITASAFE C.F. CAPSULES you can be sure you're getting exactly what the label states . . . pure ingredients whose beneficial effects have been proven time and again!

WHY WE WANT YOU TO TRY A 30-DAY SUPPLY — FREE!

We offer you this 30-day free trial of valuable VITASAFE C.F. CAPSULES for just one reason. So many persons have already tried them with such astounding results . . . so many people have written in telling us how much better they felt after only a short trial . . . that we are absolutely convinced that you, too, may experience the same feeling of improved well-being after a similar trial. In fact, we're so convinced that we're willing to back up our convictions with our own money. You don't spend a penny for the vitamins! A month's supply of similar vitamin capsules, if it were available at retail, would ordinarily cost $5.00.

AMAZING PLAN SLASHES VITAMIN PRICES ALMOST IN HALF

With your free 30-day supply of Vitasafe High-Potency Capsules you will also receive complete details regarding the benefits of an amazing new Plan that provides you regularly with all the factory-fresh vitamins and minerals you will need. You are under no obligation to buy anything! If after taking your free capsules for two weeks you are not entirely satisfied, simply return the handy card that comes with your free supply and that will end the matter. Otherwise it's up to us — you don't have to do a thing — and we will see that you get your monthly supplies of capsules automatically and on time for as long as you wish, at the low, money-saving price of only $2.78 per month (plus a few cents shipping) — a saving of 45%. Mail coupon now!

SPECIAL PLAN FOR WOMEN

Women may also suffer from lack of pep, energy and vitality due to nutritional deficiency. If there is such a lady in your house, you will do her a favor by bringing this announcement to her attention. Just have her check the "Women's Plan" box in the coupon.

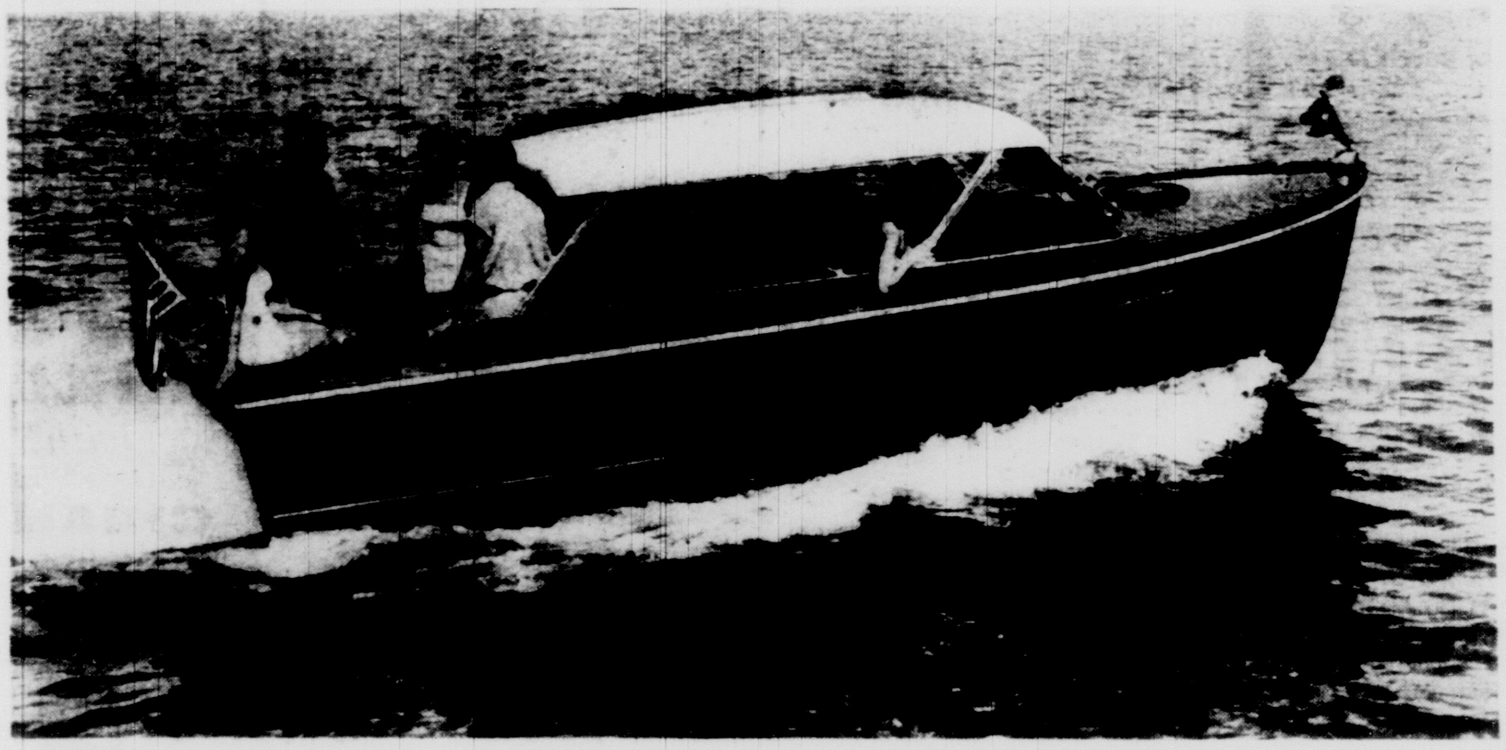
Nautical Know-How

Protect Boat Power Plant When Not in Use



CAREFREE JAUNTS WILL REMAIN CAREFREE LONGER IF ENGINE WELL PROTECTED

. . . should be covered when not in use but with ventilation system

By Don Mucklow

THE MOST COMMON source of engine trouble is caused by dampness and rust, particularly so when the equipment is subject to salt air exposure.

You should protect your power plant when not in use, by making sure that, in addition to being covered, it is also equipped with a ventilation system which permits the air to circulate.

Few people realize that an engine will attract water inside as it is operated which can only be dissipated by heat. If the engine temperature is kept high enough, this water is vaporized and it passes off with the exhaust gases, but if the temperature drops below 120 degrees fahrenheit, some of this water will remain and mix with the oil to form a sludge.

Enough sludge will block the oil pick-up screen, foul the fuel oil pump, and clog the oil lines and oil galleries. This condensing process also permits this water to carry enough impurities to form sulphuric acid, which will damage your bearings, the journals and valves.

Most engine manufacturers recommend the engine be operated at a temperature from 135 to 180 degrees Fahrenheit. Many engines are equipped with a thermostat which permits the recirculation of the water until the engine comes up to its predetermined efficient heat range for operation.

* * *

THERE IS ONE very popular make marine engine on the market which is operated, in most instances, at too low a running temperature. Sludging and bearing failure through sulphurous acid on the metal parts of the engine are found quite often in this engine.

To reduce the flow of water through the engine to raise the temperature, the best idea is to divert a part of this flow after it leaves the pump. By diverting this water and bringing the engine temperature average to around 145 degrees, the sludging and acid condition is relieved.

* * *

THE INDIRECT or fresh water cooling system has a lot of advantages over the direct system. Because of the additional weight cost, it is ordinarily found only in the larger marine engines installations. Fresh water cooling eliminates salt and other contaminants from the engine water jackets, and permits an accurate thermostatic control of water jacket temperature.

The most common type of fresh water system uses a heat exchanger much similar to the automobile radiator, except that sea water instead of air draws off the excess heat from the fresh water which is used as a coolant.

A second water pump is used in place of a fan to circulate the sea water around the fresh water which is circulated through the engine.

A simpler means of fresh water cooling is the installation of a pipe or series of pipes through which the fresh water circulates on the under part of the bottom. This is called a hull cooler and is installed permanently on the outside of the boat's bottom beside the keel. This hull cooler eliminates the sea water pump entirely and is advantageous in dirty water containing sand and mud.

* * *

IGNITION breakdowns cause many engine failures by short circuits due to dampness, or by contacts loosening or breaking from vibration. Good insurance against such failures is to carry an extra distributor cap, rotor, ignition point sets, condenser, coil and a set of spark plugs.

Keep these spare items in waterproof containers. If you've never been called upon to install any of these parts, a bit of study as to their location, using your instruction manual, will ease such installation. When the time comes, remember to watch your instrument panel.

The most important instrument on the panel is your oil gauge. Any engine will burn out quickly without oil pressure, so by watching your oil gauge at regular intervals, danger of ruining your engine is eliminated.

Your ammeter notifies you when and how your generator is charging or recharging your battery. Your tachometer informs you as to what r.p.m. your engine is turning up.

The water temperature gauge tells you at what temperature your engine is operating and whether you're receiving a sufficient amount of coolant circulating through your engine. These instruments form a crystal ball which you should learn to consult regularly to ascertain your fate, engine-wise.

TODAY'S ADVENTURE — FT. MYERS TO CLEWISTON

WAS IT COLD? COATS AND SWEATERS TELL THE STORY
. . . Steve Flynn and Chick Waltman are the well-wrapped boatmen

WE AWAKENED to a ring-tailed stinker of a day the morning of our start of the outboard trip with the Po Ho across Florida from Ft. Myers to Stuart.

A cold wind out of the north had roared around the motel all night long, and the broad Caloosahatchee river out front was whipped to a froth. There was a frigid drizzle of rain.

At first we were for waiting over a day. We stalled and debated until nearly 11 a.m. but a call to the weather bureau said that the tomorrow would be just the same—so we pushed off. It was rough going for the first five miles or so, then the old river that once was the only "highway" between Ft. Myers and Lake Okeechobee narrows sharply.

Still later it becomes a canal, a later day deepening and widening of a canal cut through in the early 1880's when Hamilton Disston was buying 4,000,000 acres of land in this area and north of Lake Okeechobee for 25 cents an acre.

The more sheltered water was a relief for the 15-foot Po Ho—and for its three passengers.

THOMAS EDISON, from his winter home in Ft. Myers, and his buddy, Henry Ford, often traveled this stretch on a river steamer.

The price of real estate has gone up considerably since Disston's time. From Ft. Myers to La-

"Sir, you've insulted my wife to the point where she refuses to buy anything . . . please tell me what you said."

Keeping In Touch Important

By John Bohannan

"WHY WOULD anyone want a radio telephone on his boat?" a friend demanded. "When I leave the harbor I want to get as far away from the office as I can. I don't even want to look at a telephone."

A few weeks later he found out. The ignition coil burned out on a single-screw cruiser. He had no spare. After drifting for several hours, he anchored to keep from being blown out to sea. It was nearly noon the next day before someone noticed him and passed him a towline. He was never in danger, but he could have been. And he missed an important appointment.

The best reason for having a radiophone aboard is that it makes boating safer. If your little ship becomes disabled, or if someone aboard requires medical assistance, a call to the Coast Guard on 2182 kilocycles will get prompt attention.

Another advantage is to be able to communicate with your home or office, using an appropriate ship-to-shore channel for your area. By calling the marine operator at a nearby port, you can be connected with the land line.

THE CHARGE usually is the regular long-distance toll from the land station to the number or person you call, plus a small fee for the marine radio service. It will be added to your home or office telephone bill.

The third reason for having a radio telephone is the ship-to-ship service, enabling you to contact friends in other boats. This is especially valuable when cruising as a fleet on long passages. Any boat requiring assistance from the others can get it by calling on the radio.

A typical marine radio telephone consists of two units — a transmitter and a receiver — contained in a single cabinet mounted against a bulkhead. Power for driving the equipment is obtained from the boat's storage battery, either six or 12 volts.

If it's a power boat the usual antenna is of the top-loaded vertical type erected along the side deck and capable of being lowered for passing under bridges. For a sailboat, there's nothing like a permanent backstay. With insulators at the top and bottom, it's an excellent aerial.

YOU'RE NEVER LOST AT SEA WITH THIS
. . . can call assistance over radiophone

Unless you have a metal hull, a copper plate must be attached to the bottom of the boat to serve as a ground connection.

★ ★ ★

SMALLER SETS will operate on three or four channels and crystals are selected for the calling and distress frequency, for ship-to-shore service, and one or two for ship to ship. Higher-powered and more elaborate sets have as many as eight crystal-controlled channels, a great convenience when using the inland waterway or taking any long cruise.

You will be required to have a restricted radio telephone operator's license, which can be obtained by filling in an application form and returning it to the nearest FCC field office.

You will also need a ship station license. Write for Form 501-A-1 from the Federal Communication Commission, Ship's License Division, Washington 25, D. C. When filled out and signed, the form must be returned to this office.

Your marine dealer can help you with all of this detail, but it's well to remember that several weeks are required before licenses are granted, and application should be made well in advance. All final tuning must be done by an operator having a second class commercial license or higher.

Cracker History and Chilblains-- Abounded Along the Caloosahatchee As Voyagers Headed Toward Lake

Belle subdivisions now are cropping up, many of them on big canals dug in from the main stream.

Olga some 11 miles from our starting point, and Alva, six miles farther along, were main stops for the river traffic, and for the great cattle drives when Capt. Francis Asbury Hendry (for whom Hendry County is named) sent his stock out to the west coast for shipment to Cuba.

* * *

ALVA WAS SURVEYED and laid out in 1883 by its founder, Captain Peter Nelson, a Danish immigrant and reputed of royal family. He named the town from a flower in his native Denmark.

For the history-minded there is also the site of old Fort Denaud, established in the Seminole Wars around 1840. Fort Harvie, at what is now Ft. Myers, was established at the same time.

There's a fuel dock at Alva, but none at Olga or LaBelle. You can lug your gas a block at LaBelle, and probably will continue to do that until a new marina now being dredged out near Olga is opened.

* * *

THERE ARE, however two good reasons for going ashore and spending some time at LaBelle.

First of these is one of the best "Cracker style" meals that can be found for miles around. It's Flora and Ella's, in a drug store a little more than a block from the town docks. Judge W. Frank Blanton, dean of Dade County judges and a fan for such "eatments" introduced us to the place sometime ago en route to a hunting trip at Lew Hall's ranch.

He firmly spurned much more fancy eating places we passed on the way. The reasons are items like chicken and dumplings, turnip greens and black eyed peas—cooked as they should be cooked but seldom are.

Other high spot in a LaBelle stop is the big and rambling Trading Post there, one of the few big survivors of the true country store. The guy has everything from mule harnesses and buggy whips to fine and prime steaks.

* * *

IT'S LESS than 10 miles jaunt from LaBelle down to Ortuna locks, the first of three you will enter on this cross state trip. The lock keeper is J. B. Cox, a 44-year employe of the Corps of Army engineers and who has been at this lock since it opened in 1937.

This lock closes for the night at 5 p.m.

Very old Cracker homes, many of them abandoned and some probably inhabited by most interesting ghosts, line this stretch of the waterway. They are interspersed with many fine new homes, and a couple of subdivisions where the promoters didn't bulldoze all of the natural beauty away.

* * *

IT'S LESS than 15 miles to the Moore Haven locks, your entrance into the Lake Okeechobee area. You are lifted again here, as you were at Ortuna. At the last lock, near Stuart, you will be lowered again.

If you have time to boat for a time around the Moore Haven area, do it. See the old "Sentinel Cypress." For years and during a time around 1910 to 1913 when an estimated 500 boats plied the big lake, this was the only aide to navigation. There were no official man-made markers. Today the markers blossom like pickets in a fence.

Light was fading fast and there wasn't time to call on our friends at Uncle Joe's Fishing camp and cottages on the route to Clewiston. We could just beat the darkness into Bill Johnson's camp and docks at Clewiston.

The first day had been fun, despite that terrible weather. In next Sunday's Fun in Florida we will complete the tour, in slightly warmer temperatures but too much wind.

Increases the value of your property

Installation of G-E Whole-House Air Conditioning is an investment in home improvement that pays for itself in increased property value—might even save your home from obsolescence. In fact, an FHA directive warns, "Within a few years any house that is not air conditioned will probably be obsolescent."

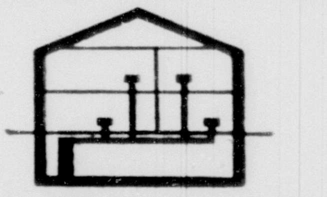
All-New General Electric Units Make Whole-House Air Conditioning Practical For Every Home

No matter what type of home—or heating system—you have, there's an all-new General Electric Air Conditioning Unit designed exactly to meet your requirements. Complete flexibility of the General Electric line enables you to add cooling to your warm-air furnace whether it is upflow, downflow or horizontal. If you have hot water or steam heat—or no central heating—you can install General Electric Whole-House Air Conditioning completely independent of your heating system. G-E air- and water-cooled units may be installed in the attic, garage, basement, crawl space, or utility room.

One-room cooling can't do it!

General Electric Whole-House Air Conditioning brings you the full benefits of modern air-conditioned living. One-room cooling can't do it. Moving from a hot kitchen to a cooled living room to a hot bedroom can cause more discomfort than it prevents.

SIMPLE TO ADD G-E WHOLE-HOUSE AIR CONDITIONING TO YOUR FURNACE!



Add G-E upflow unit to furnace in basement, using heating ducts for cooling.

Install G-E packaged unit if you have hot water, steam or no central heat.

GAY HALL

Into the Uncharted Wilds of Manhattan

By Lawrence Thompson

WHEN THIS is printed, our weekend in New York should be a memory. But as I write it, getting ready for that weekend is a full scale major project. We are spending more time getting ready than Stanley took in packing to go find Livingstone. I doubt if Marco Polo or Columbus went though half as much preparation for their little trips.

Actually, we're just going to spend a couple of nights out of town, but you'd think we were planning a safari around the world.

On Monday, my wife told me I couldn't wear any of my white shirts to work during the week. Since I don't have many shirts and most of them are white, this presented a problem.

"What am I supposed to do?" I asked. "Go to the office bare-chested?"

"It isn't that bad," she said. "That blue shirt with a frayed collar will be all right one day. That hole on the striped shirt won't show if you leave your coat on all day. And you can wear that gray shirt with the rip on the cuff if you roll your sleeves up."

"And what," I asked, pointing to a pile of six white shirts, "are we saving those for?"

"For our trip to New York, naturally," she said.

"How am I going to wear six shirts on one weekend?" I asked. "I know it's cold up there, but I'm not going around wearing three shirts at a time."

"You never know how many times you'll have to change shirts," she said. "After all, you have to make a good impression."

"We're going to see your mother one night, and one clean shirt ought to be enough for her," I said. "And we're going to a show the other night, so that won't take more than one shirt. I don't know any of those people on the sidewalks of New York. They won't know if I even have a shirt on."

This made no impression on my wife and she packed my six white shirts. I was a sight around the office all week, but I sure was ready to make an impression on New York. My wife's theory seems to be that there never has been a clean shirt in Manhattan before, and that I'm bound to stand out with my white wardrobe.

Then there was the matter of my good suit. I haven't been allowed to wear it all week, either. We're saving that for New York, too.

I told my wife it seemed unreasonable for me to look like a tramp around the home folks just so I could look dressed up for a bunch of strangers, but she has a different type of logic.

In addition to worrying about having me well groomed, my wife has been worried about letting her mother know of our arrival.

She wrote her a letter as soon as we made our plans. Then she sent a telegram, confirming the flight number and time of arrival. The next night she called by phone. She didn't have anything new to say, that I could tell, except that wasn't it wonderful that they'd soon be seeing each other.

The next night she got to worrying that her mother hadn't marked down the flight number and she called by phone again. By the time they were done talking, I couldn't see what there was left for them to say when they saw one another, but I knew better than to make any comment.

About that time, a similar-type plane of another airline went into the East River. My wife called our airline to ask if those planes really were safe. Then she called back to ask where we were scheduled to land. They told her which airport, and she looked relieved. "What did you think they'd say?" I asked. "The East River?" But she felt that she had made things safer somehow. She made two or three more calls, though, to make extra sure that our plane would reach the proper destination and not stop for a plunge.

And then, of course, there were the children. Mrs. Miller, the kind lady who helps us on such occasions, is going to stay with them while we're gone. She has done it before many times, and she comes over to baby sit very often, and she knows our kids as well as we do. Sometimes I suspect that she knows and controls them better.

But my wife has been giving her instructions as if Mrs. Miller had never been around a child before. She has written long lists of menus, she has written long lists of when they should get up, when they should eat, when they should play, when they should nap, when they should watch TV, and when they should go to bed.

I hope our trip was a big success. Getting ready for it sure has been a lot of work.

Second Fiddle Role Fine With Stand-In

AS LORETTA YOUNG stepped out of camera range and headed for her dressing-room, a quiet young woman with a radiant face moved in to take the star's place under the blazing TV lights.

She was Virginia Griffith, who has "stood in" for Loretta for the past 17 years.

"Most fans have the wrong conception of what a stand-in really is," Virginia said, as she toed a chalk mark at the instruction of an electrician. "They get us mixed up with doubles — and the two jobs are quite different."

She chuckled as she related several incidents in which wellmeaning friends and acquaintances remarked about her "striking resemblance" to Loretta.

"We don't really look alike at all — but many people seem to think we ought to," she said.

Actually, Virginia does have certain features that are reminiscent of Loretta — the widely spaced, luminous eyes, the soft brown hair and the warm, ready smile, for instance. But the two women are certainly not "doubles."

A stand-in's job is just what the name describes — in the star's spot while lights are being adjusted and preparations completed for the filming of a scene. When all is in readiness, the stand-in surrenders the spotlight to the star — and the play goes on.

The most essential features for a stand-in to share with her star-counterpart are height and general coloring. Beyond that, resemblance is unimportant — and rare.

Virginia was a movie "dress extra" from childhood. She first met Loretta (then Gretchen Young) when both were under contract at First National Studios.

Her first memory of Loretta comes from a day a good many years ago when, as juvenile actresses, they were assigned to float around Toluca Lake in a rowboat for scenic background. "We spent the whole afternoon talking," Virginia recalls. "We talked about boys and careers and clothes and boys — the usual girl-talk."

After some years of extra work, Virginia made the rounds of casting directors in the major studios, asking for assignments as a stand-in. "The job didn't pay as well as being an extra," she said, but the work was a great deal steadier."

The business of being a stand-in requires in addition to certain physical attributes, a good deal of patience and the ability to make good use of leisure time.

While the stand-in's moments in the spotlights are brief, she must be on the set and available at all times during the shooting day. Obviously, this means hours of inactivity.

Soup's On, Boys!

Chuck Connors Success at Both Acting, Cooking

By Hal Humphrey

HOLLYWOOD—Sudden fame and fortune are no problem to Chuck Connors whose TV show, "The Rifleman," goes into 35 per cent of all TV equipped homes each week. That's the way he planned it.

"Before the season started I said if I couldn't be in the top five shows I didn't want to be in a TV series," Chuck states, and then turns to his press agent for affirmation, "Isn't that what I said?"

CONNORS

"That's right, Chuck. I remember that's what you said," the p.a. replies, proudly.

The three of us are sitting in Chuck's newly-acquired dressing room on the Fox-Western movie lot. Actually it is a spacious three-room apartment, complete with kitchen and bar. Outside is parked his new all-white Lincoln Continental, a new badge of success these days for many Hollywood stars. This particular model has been referred to as the "Gauche V-8."

"Women identify with this show," continues Chuck, as he explains the success formula for TV. "They see a widowed father raising a small boy in the wilderness, and they appreciate his problems. I know you don't like westerns, but this one has heart and warmth. I can tell how the people like it when I go to the supermarket or a service station. I'm recognized and loved."

He's Spaghetti Specialist

CHUCK JUMPS UP, strides into the kitchen where an aroma of cooking is beginning to smell things up.

"Hey!" he shouts back, "the spaghetti and meat balls are gonna be great. I like to cook my own lunch. You want cheese with yours?"

I assure him that cheese is fine, and the conversation continues around the kitchen table.

"You know," says Chuck, "my wife Betty had the most faith in this show. The producers and I were scared our rating was gonna dive after that first month. George Burns was coming on against us with his new show, and the next week Bob Hope was opposite us. But Betty said it wouldn't make any difference. 'Your rating will go up another two or three points' — that's what she said, and it did, too.

"Paramount wants me now for a picture. That's because of the success of the TV show. I'll do it, if I get script approval. I don't want to play the same role I'm doing on TV. These pictures the other TV stars have done flopped because they did the same thing they were doing on TV.

"How about some more spaghetti? It's good, isn't it?"

Sticks to Acting Theory

OVER ANOTHER helping of spaghetti I remind Chuck that he told me before the series started that he believes anybody could be an actor, if he would just free himself of being self-conscious.

"I still say that. I've read Stanislavsky since then—figured maybe I ought to. He uses a lot of fancy language, but says the same thing I was tellin' you.

"I don't want to mention any names, but we've had some actors on our show who by the time they get in the right mood, we could've been through with the scene."

Jack's Cracks

ALICE MORGAN, of Miami, Fla., asks if Jack Barry was kicked off NBC because his wisecracks were unacceptable to the West Coast.

BARRY

The Barry situation is this. His Twenty One show folded amid the quiz scandal uproar. He had replaced himself on Tic Tac Dough at night because of too much other work as a producer. Thus when Twenty One departed, he was without a nighttime exposure. He withdrew from the daytime Tic Tac Dough to devote full time to fighting the battle for Twenty One and is presumably still at it.

AL PANTALEONE, of Philadelphia, asks if actor Don Ameche and Baltimore Colts fullback Alan Ameche are related.

Yes, they are cousins. If you remember, Alan was a star at the University of Wisconsin and Don's birthplace was Kenosha, Wis. The family name originally was spelled Amici.

Missing Men

MRS. F. MAC WILLIAMS, of Philadelphia, misses Meet McGraw and 26 Men and asks what happened to them.

McGraw was dropped for low ratings but is now being shown as a re-run on ABC Sunday nights. 26 Men is a syndicated film package and you may be able to pick it up on some other channel or some other night of the week.

The Giveaways

MRS. C. M. HOGUE, of Houston, wonders if The Price Is Right and Queen For a Day really give away all that loot.

Yes, but it's not nearly as expensive as it seems. Most of the products given away have their brand name mentioned, a consequence which is equivalent to a free commercial. With that inexpensive way of getting a plug on a network show, many manufacturers are quite happy to donate their products.

* * *

Price Very Right

ALLAN GOODMAN, of Atlantic City, N. J., his head spinning from the information that Goodman Ace, Perry Como's head writer, earns $11,500 a week, asks what then can Como be earning.

ACE

Those figures can be quite misleading, even if they are accurately quoted and they may not be. It is said that Ace receives the amount mentioned above, but that he then must pay the other writers on the show. It is guessed that his own take is about $8,000. As for Perry, the estimates run anywhere from $15,000 all the way to $50,000. This again can be misleading, since Perry's production unit, Roncom, presents the show and the corporation profits may be much larger than that. A good guess would be that Perry earns about $15,000 a week.

Off the Record

MRS. LEE BOGGS, of Avilla, Ind., wants to know the name of the theme music on The Rifleman and if it can be obtained on a record.

The title of the song is daringly enough, The Rifleman. It has not yet been recorded but since the show is a hit, the theme undoubtedly will be a recording one of these days.

NEWEST addition to the regular cast of the Bob Cummings Show on NBC (Ch. 7) is six-year-old Tammy Marihugh.

Heap Big Silence

Oddly Named Young Actor, X. Brands, Indian Pal To Yancy Derringer is Video's Only Speechless Star

By Charles Denton

HOLLYWOOD—If silence is truly golden, X Brands has the richest role in television. He's the only silent actor still drawing a salary in Filmland.

X, of course, is Jock Mahoney's machete-packing Indian sidekick in the "Yancy Derringer" series and the most taciturn redskin this side of the happy hunting grounds—hasn't opened his mouth yet.

Now, ordinarily a young actor measures his success by the amount of dialogue he's given, but as far as the tall, sinewy ex-stuntman is concerned, his speechless role is strictly 14-karat.

"I think I have more than a speaking actor," explained Brands with a seriousness born of careful consideration. "Usually an actor with nothing to say in a scene just stands with egg on his face. I have to be vital without saying a word."

X (we can vouch for the authenticity of the handle, having gone to high school with him) tapped his forehead with two fingers.

"It's all up here," he said thoughtfully. "I act with my eyes, and it's what is behind the eyes that makes them talk. You have to believe it. The eyes are funny. If you don't believe it, nothing will come through them.

"When the director says 'roll,' I am that Indian—right down to my mocassins."

He illustrated by turning on a stern stare that somehow makes one's eyes want to look elsewhere.

"For instance," X went on, "I like Mahoney, both as a man and as an actor. If he walked in here right now, I'd light up. I think that comes through the show."

The 32-year-old Brands admitted he had some grave misgivings when the role of Pahoo was first offered to him, even though his lanky build and angular face had made him a natural for Indian parts.

"I'd only been acting for four years," he recalled, "and it hadn't been easy. I had to give up stunting, because as long as you take stunt jobs, no one will ever let you act. So for four months I didn't work at all.

"Then I started getting bit parts, and finally some feature roles. I thought, 'Here I am at last. I'm an actor. I can speak.' Then they hand me a part where I can't say a word.

"It threw me at first. I told them to get an extra to play it. But then it was explained to me, and I got the feeling."

X, who unconsciously emphasizes his conversation with the sign language that is his only dialogue in the show, said he now realizes he isn't missing a thing by keeping his trap shut.

"Nothing to say," he shrugged. "It's being said. The character comes over. It's worked, and that's what counts."

KERR WITH TV DIRECTOR JOHN FRANKENHEIMER

JOHN KERR

Star In Triple Orbit

A Dedicated, Intelligent Performer Tells Why He Keeps Active in Three Media

By Ed Misurell

THERE is no room for nepotism in show business today, pointedly said John Kerr, the son of actress June Walker and her ex-husband, playwright Geoffrey Kerr. "It is too expensive a business for anyone to gamble on. Despite what some people may think," he continued earnestly, "the fact that my parents were well known in theatrical circles did not prove a springboard that catapulted me to stardom. My family background did not give me any special entree.

"When I walked into a producer's office they would say 'Oh, yes,' they knew of my mother or father. But that was it. I had to show them that I could fill the bill or I was out. The hard economics of show business have brought about other changes, too. The day that you could put your girl friend in the chorus is also passe."

The slender, six-foot-tall actor, who was rehearsing the lead role in NBC-TV's "Berkeley Square" at the time of the interview, smilingly explained that his latter remark was based on observation and not personal experience. "My wife, four-and-a-half-year-old twin girls and 17-months-old son have been with me in New York for a few months and we all plan to return shortly to our home on the west coast."

After making about 25 video appearances in the last six years on such shows as Studio One, Lux Theatre, Alcoa-Goodyear Theater and two Playhouse 90 programs, Kerr said that he would not do a TV series if it was offered to him, a bonanza most young actors would give their capped eyeteeth for. "I'm not looking for a big flash success," he added sincerely. 'I'd like to grow into a fine actor over the next 20 years. If possible, I'd like to become a sort of American Laurence Olivier in that period.

"That's why of all three mediums — stage, screen and TV — I prefer to work in the theater. I feel it gives a performer the best opportunity to learn his craft thoroughly. I'd place live TV next as a training ground. That is, when the show is an hour and a half long and you have enough time to rehearse your role completely."

Despite his youth, Kerr is well qualified to discuss all three mediums. His background in show business is a fairly extensive one. Born in New York City in November, 1931, he remembers well that conversation in his home centered mainly on things theatrical. After attending boarding school, he went on to Phillips Exeter Academy in New Hampshire. In 1946, before entering Harvard, he worked as an apprentice without pay at the Cape Playhouse in Massachusetts.

During summer vacations while at Harvard, Kerr appeared in stock including Cambridge's Brattle Theater. He played in "Mid-summer Night's Dream," "Twelfth Night," "A Sleep of Prisoners" and "Billy Budd." It was while he was in this latter production that producer Guthrie McClintic saw him and, after his graduation from college, offered him his first Broadway role in "Bernadine."

"It was a wacky thing about a bunch of kids," Kerr recalled, "and lasted about six months. The summer after it closed my wife, Priscilla, whom I had met while she was at Radcliffe, worked as a translator at Columbia University and I collected unemployment insurance. Things were tough for a while."

About this time, he landed his first TV part, a role in which he kissed former child star Margaret O'Brien. For this osculatory performance he received scale pay of $350. Some time after, for his portrayal of the troubled schoolboy in "Tea and Sympathy," he won a number of theatrical awards and began to climb into the higher pay brackets. For recreating the role in the film version of this play he received approximately $50,000.

Among Kerr's other movie credits are such films as "The Cobweb," "Gaby," a remake of "Waterloo Bridge" in which he co-starred with Leslie Caron, "The Vintage" with Mel Ferrer and Pier Angeli, and the role of Lieutenant Cable in "South Pacific."

"The publicity department at Fox," recalled Kerr with a smile, "was quite disappointed with me when they discovered I was married. They had planned, I learned, to drum up an off-screen romance with France Nuyen, the girl whom I loved in the film."

FOR HIS PART in "Rumors of the Evening" with Barbara Bel Geddes, Kerr received Playhouse 90's top scale salary of $10,000.

They Brought School House to Lassie's Master

JON, TEACHER INSPECT MINIATURE SCHOOL

TO THE RANDOM visitor at the mammoth Desilu television studios in Hollywood, Stage 7 is as familiar as the house next door, or the neighbor's across the street.

Its mise en scene is the home of a young farm couple named the Martins—better known as June Lockhart and Hugh Reilly—who, together with young Jon Provost and a collie co-star every Sunday on CBS' Lassie.

Off the set proper is the sight that invariably evokes an exclamation of sheer delight — the most unusual schoolhouse in America.

The neatly lettered legend in front of the building reads: "Lassie P.S. No. 1," and it might well add (though it doesn't) that "through these portals pass two of the most famous children in the world: Jon Provost and Todd Ferrell," who play Timmy and the ubiquitous Boomer Bates, respectively.

It's a Prototype

THE SEAT of learning is the prototype of the little red schoolhouse of the early 1900's, complete with a bell in the tower, lace curtains in the two windows and roses around the door.

Conceived by Dave Lopez, co-ordinator in charge of building sets for "Lassie," the schoolhouse was erected on their own time by the enthusiastic (and sentimental) members of the property, paint, drapery, and set dressing departments.

By state law, Jon and Todd—in common with all other school-age children who appear in television productions—must attend classes at least three hours during every working day and must complete their school day no later than 4:00 PM. In the case of a show like "Lassie," it's a situation not calculated to give the average harried director cause for dancing in the streets.

Attends Regularly

ALTHOUGH Jon's home is in Pomona — about 30 miles from Desilu — and he lives directly across the street from the Kingsley School there, his official school residence is Lassie No. 1. He dutifully puts in an appearance there every school day, even when the show is not in production.

In order to make things easier for the talented eight-year-old, his mother maintains an apartment in Hollywood for Jon and herself and they return to Pomona only on weekends and holidays.

Mrs. Katherine Deeney, who instructs Jon and Todd in their private two-desk schoolhouse, says both boys are unusually bright and are easy to teach. Jon is in the third grade and Todd is in the fifth. Once they're at their desks, the boys forget they're famous television stars and concentrate on their studies.

Mrs. Deeney, who is married and has a pair of boys, 15 and 16, is a regular Los Angeles City school teacher and her salary is set by the Los Angeles Board of Education. She taught at Monrovia (Calif.) High School in 1934-35, and for the next 22 years divided her attention between 20th Century - Fox and Paramount Studios, where she instructed such famed juveniles as Elizabeth Taylor, Shirley Temple, Anna Maria Alberghetti and Marisa Pavan.

CY RUSSELL
... from Buffalo

CY RUSSELL, chairman of WGBS' nightly owl sessions, is proficient in two media of entertainment. He is not only a top rated radio personality but an excellent actor. Indeed, there are people who are more familiar with Russell as a performer behind the footlights than behind the microphone. And, there are those for whom the identity is the other way around. Russell has been in radio here in 1948. He was formerly chief announcer for WVCG and program director for WMIE. For six months at one time he handled Miami coverage for the Mutual network's "Operation Newsbeat." He joined WGBS after a tour of duty in 1954 with the Air Forces Network in Germany. A native of Buffalo, he attended Cornell University and the University of Miami, Russell has appeared in a whole row of plays with various theater groups in this area since 1953.

Get 'Settled' Out of Court

THE AMATEUR or little-known actors who portray real-life defendants in the factual cases presented on ABC-TV's "Day in Court" and "Accused" sometimes are subjected to severe scoldings and tongue lashings by TV viewers who happen to meet them subsequently at bus stops, supermarkets, movie houses and the like.

Letters and telephone calls received by the producers reveal that an unusually high percentage of "Day in Court" and "Accused" fans believe they are watching actual men and women on trial in an actual courtroom.

Video's Physics School Starts Second And Real Brain Twisting Semester

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK—(UPI)—All right, you 6:30 o'clock scholars (a.m., that is), it's exam time at good old NBC Tech on Channel 7.

And if you think that first semester course in physics was tough, you should see the second course on NBC's "Continental Classroom" program.

Atomic and nuclear physics is the subject, and it is so new that there wasn't even a textbook for it.

"Teach" — that would be Dr. Harvey E. White, professor of physics at the University of California in Berkeley (on leave) — and Dr. Henry Semat, physics prof at the College of the City of New York, simply had to use their spare time in recent months to write one that could get off the printing presses by Feb. 11.

"Approximately 5,000 science teachers around the country took the more or less basic course we telecast during the first semester to get college credits," said Edward Stanley, NBC Director of Public Affairs who is in charge of this type of public service program.

Tests in Progress

"THE COURSE ended Feb. 6. Dr. White prepared a written test which has been sent to the schools involved and they will make their own arrangements for giving the test to those concerned.

"These 5,000, of course, were only a part of the audience 'Continental Classroom' has had since last October. There were thousands of others who were looking in at 6:30 a.m. five mornings a week, local time, to brush up on their physics. Technologists of many vital industries, for example, were among the latter.

"We had approximately 250 colleges and universities offering full academic credit for those who elected to seek it during the first part of the program. For the second half, there will be 23 more institutions of higher learning."

Dr. White and staff, incidentally, do not get up before dawn in New York in order to be on the air at 6:30 a.m. Monday through Friday. But they put in a full day.

Program on Tape

THE PROGRAM is on video tape. This is necessary, if for no other reason, to overcome the time zone difference, for the show is aired at 6:30 a.m. local time across the country.

"But Dr. White and his staff have no soft time of it," Stanley explained. "They get to work about 9 a.m. each day in one of our studios. There is the matter of preparing a day's lesson, of creating the various gadgets that may be needed to illustrate an experiment and of rehearsal before actual recording. They work until late afternoon each day."

The Apartment – Not the Head – Got Larger

Success Hasn't Spoiled Barrie Chase

By OLGA CURTIS

NEW YORK — (WNS) — When pretty Barrie Chase became an overnight TV sensation as Fred Astaire's newest dancing partner, she swallowed a dose of success big enough to give most people a bad case of conceit.

BARRIE

But it's nice to report this 23 - year-old dancer hasn't developed a single symptom of swelled head.

She still wears her hair in a pony tail and answers her own phone; thinks window shopping is more fun than actually spending the money; and is surprised that anybody should notice her while she's playing tourist on a New York vacation.

"I'm sorry," she giggled, "but I guess I haven't done anything people" expect. I didn't buy a mink coat or a fancy car or anything like that."

In the five months since the first showing of "An Evening with Fred Astaire," in fact, Barrie's only change in her old way of life was to move — from a one-room apartment to a bigger one-room apartment.

"My new place has the loveliest view of Los Angeles," she said. "I always wanted a view."

Professionally, Barrie has jumped from one room to a whole palace. Her TV debut with Astaire produced a Sylvania award for the NBC show and a movie contract for Barrie.

"I have to go back next week to start making 'Can-Can,'" she sighed. "But I'd love to stay and stay in New York. I came here to accept the award, you know, and for that they gave me a hotel room. Soon as I could I moved into a friend's apartment, and I've been walking all over town.

"I was born here, but I haven't been back since I was 6. And it's so much fun. I've walked all up Fifth Avenue, and seen the U.N. and Greenwich Village and the waterfront and the museums, and gone to the theater as much as I could."

Without fuss and frenzy from autograph hounds?

"That's what makes it so wonderful," said Barrie, "People actually ask for my autograph! And sometimes when I'm walking along they turn around and look at me.

"It's amazing — the whole thing, but wonderful."

The blonde, brown-eyed dancer, who won't admit to having any special boy friends, has no yen for night-club glamor.

BACK AGAIN for the second of his special hour-long shows for ABC is Bing Crosby this week. Bing and guests will appear at 9:30 Monday night on WPST-TV (Ch. 10). The singer's twin sons, Phillip and Dennis will be among his aides for the show.

Bing Crosby on Channel 10

Crosby's twin sons, Phillip and Dennis, will join pop for the singing debut of a Crosby trio. Other guests will be singer Jo Stafford and Jim Garner, star of "Maverick."

Miss Stafford and Crosby will duet their way through a number of popular standard ballads. Garner will do some singing himself, as well as spoof some of the westerns.

A MORAL ISSUE involving a business magnate and his son into head-on clash in "A Good Name" on TV Playhouse at 9:30 Monday night on WCKT (Ch. 7). Edward G. Robinson plays the father. Lee Philips is the son. Jacqueline Scott plays the daughter-in-law.

All-Star Colorcast on Ch. 7

A host of show business stars will take part in a 90-minute colorcast salute at 7:30 Tuesday night on WCKT (Ch. 7) to the memory of the late Emanuel (Manie) Sacks, a beloved NBC executive.

Sacks, who died in February, 1958, was at the time NBC vice president in charge of network talent and programs. He was credited with having shaped the careers of many of today's television stars.

A Close Look at Our Moment of Peril

We'll Let Russia Strike First—Then What

The Great Debate

The "Great Debate" rages over a question that could determine our national existence: Are we building modern weapons of war fast enough and good enough to meet an ominous Russian threat? No one man has the answer. But in the provocative series of articles that starts today one of America's great reporters presents facts and opinions that can help all Americans to a clearer realization of the life-or-death problem.

CONSIDINE

By BOB CONSIDINE
Herald Columnist

FOR THE FIRST time since the War of 1812 there is genuine concern in Washington over the ability of the U. S. to survive an enemy attack.

It is not a general concern. There are elements of the military and officialdom which see little chance of a nuclear war with the Soviet Union. Others, including key figures in the Eisenhower administration, feel no apprehension over the lead which the U.S.S.R. apparently has taken in the fiedl of the ultimate weapon — the intercontinental ballistic missile. They see no need to increase the 40 billion dollar arms budget.

Yet despite this pacifying atmosphere in several high and influential quarters, responsible Americans of all political shades go to bed these nights haunted by such bugaboos as these:

A prospectus drawn up in the Defense Department, and kept under lock and key, states that if the Soviet Union has the long-range weapons delivery system it boasts about, a salvo of its nuclear-tipped missiles would kill 10,000,000 Americans and virtually or entirely demolish our means of retaliation.

Another Defense Department estimate is that by the end of 1960 the U.S.S.R. will have a 3-1 edge over the U.S. in ICBMs. But no speed-up program to close the gap is now planned.

A prominent senator known for his advocacy of the U.S. Air Force states that 75 per cent of the Strategic Air Command's striking force is obsolescent. He questions whether more than a handful of SAC's hundreds of big manned bombers could survive Soviet air defense and reach their assigned targets in any retaliatory raid.

The Distant Early Warning line of radar sites, built across the Arctic from Alaska to Greenland at a cost of hundreds of millions, to detect a Red air force manned bomber fleet which may or may not exist, cannot spot Soviet ICBMs. A crash program to "raise the sights" of our polar detection system is only now getting under way.

The Navy's Polaris missile, submarine-based, will not be ready for another year. Its critics say that it will have only half the predicted 1,500-mile range. But the sea service has stopped production of an excellent interim missile, the air-breathing Regulus II, after spending about 250 million dollars.

The Air Force's solid fuel ICBM, "Minuteman," will not be ready until perhaps 1965. In the interim, it must depend on the complex and immobile liquid-fueled Atlas and Titan which require hours, if not days, to prepare for launching. Flying time of a Russian ICBM from its Soviet base to any U. S. target: 25 minutes.

The Army, with the most notable record in the missile field, has been generally thwarted in its efforts to build bigger and better weapons, including the Nike Zeus, anti-missile missile believed capable of knocking out enemy ICBMs flying in space at 15 times the speed of sound.

The Defense Department, Central Intelligence Agency and White House firmly rule out all attempts to change the country's traditional outlook on war. In an age of superweapons development wherein a great war might be decided in minutes rather than years, we still concede to the enemy the initial blow. A big question in Washington today is, "But will we be able to get off the floor and fight back after being hit?"

This and subsequent articles will attempt to illuminate some of the problems confronting military and political leaders and print the answers as those experts see them. Independent observation will be included.

The answers of the principals involved do not always coincide. The thousands of pages of testimony taken by the preparedness investigating subcommittee of the Senate's Armed Services, Missile and Space Activities Committee, as well as other fact-seeking probes, are laced with differences and contradictions. Ask the same question of any three men involved in Washington's latest Great Debate

Asks for Leadership

Collins Asserts Politicos Fear Rights Issue

Collins hits legal gambling
. . . see Parade Magazine

WASHINGTON—(UPI)—Gov. LeRoy Collins of Florida told a gathering of top Democrats Sautrday night that thhe civil rights controversy has this country's leaders "quaking in their political boots."

Collins charged that the present administration in Washington is not measuring up to changing responsibilities. He said the Democratic party must get busy and provide a real "stand up" man for the presidency in 1960.

The Florida governor, a moderate on the race issue, has been mentioned frequently as a possible contender for President or vice president, although he vehemently denies he is seeking either. He winds up six years as governor in January, 1961, and cannot succeed himself.

Without mentioning names or personalities, Collins devoted practically his entire address here to the qualifications which the next president must have. The occasion was a $100-a-plate victory dinner, honoring newely elected Democratic governors.

"He must be an uncommon man with a common touch, whose solemn commitment to the national interest and welfare he places above self, above friendship, above section, above state, yes, above all, save his God," Collins declared.

He singled out the race issue as one area where the country is badly divided and urgently in need of bold leadership.

"In the civil rights controversy," he charged, "we seem to be stuck behind entrenched positions, quaking in our political boots, with our long-range artillery trained on each other, fearful even to seek honorable, sensible adjustments through political processes which have always been our shield against civil deterioration and self-destruction."

Capital Will Be 'Jumping'

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Official Washington, long attuned to the spoken political word as a kind of music, is going to try its ear on some jazz starting today.

Patrons of the Washington Jazz Jubilee include some names you wouldn't think of as cool cats:

Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, Mrs. Earl Warren, Mrs. John Foster Dulles, 22 ambassadors and their wives, seven cabinet officers and their wives, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and his wife, Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.).

Mrs. Eisenhower

Mrs. Nixon

Washington's first jazz concert with such prominent backing is being arranged by a group of congressional wives raising money for Friendship House, a settlement house on Capitol Hill. The jubilee chairman is Mrs. Richard Bolling, wife of the Democratic representative from Missouri.

A band of jazz greats will shake the rafters of a Washington hotel ballroom on the night of March 16. What Mrs. Bolling calls "an uptown level" will be supplied by the Library of Congress and the National Gallery of Art.

Marshall Stearns, literature professor at Hunter College and writer on jazz, will lecture on the subject at the Art Gallery today.

On Monday the Library of Congress will open an exhibit, "Seven Ages of Jazz," to trace its course from the early folk music to the Carnegie Hall.

Why jazz jubilee in Washington?

"We wanted something new—the benefit circuit has been so over-done," Mrs. Bolling said. "The patrons aren't jazz buffs, but they're really glad to know what it's all about."

Pan-Am Strike Averted

Sides Agree At Meeting

By TOM LOWNES
Herald Staff Writer

Threat of a systemwide strike against Pan American Airways by its 7,000 Transport Workers Union employes was lifted early Saturday as both sides came out of an all-night meeting with an agreement "in principle."

The threatened strike, which had been set for midnight Monday, would have affected some 3,000 PAA workers in Miami and another 1,500 at the strategic Cape Canaveral Missile Test Center.

Federal Mediator Frances A. O'Neill, who several times prevented hot-tempered union and company leaders from stalking out of the night-long meeting in New York, said the agreement was reached at 6 a.m.

Both company and union officials refused to outline terms of the tentative settlement; but Miamian William Grogan, international vice president of TWU, said, "It's a good contract which we can submit with honor to our members."

The union's 20-member negotiating committee will meet in New York at 7 p.m Monday to hear terms of the contract. If they accept the plan, it will be submitted for a TWU general membership vote later in the week.

There were strong indications Saturday that the union did not succeed in pushing through its major demand — a 37½-hour week for all members.

The word "hours" was conspicuously missing from O'Neill's only comment on terms of the agreement: "It concerned wages, rules and working conditions."

In Miami, Bernard H. Diesen, president of TWU Local 500, pointed out that the union's wage demands had been added only three months ago after TWU leaders reported that hour negotiations were deadlocked.

U.S. Laying Plans For Berlin Crisis

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The U.S. has decided on a series of moves to prepare for the expected May 27 showdown with Russia over Berlin.

The Defense and State Departments are now planning precise steps, officials reported Saturday. These are said to fall into two categories—measures to reinforce the Western military-political position on a long-range basis and measures concerned directly with the Berlin crisis.

In connection with the first type, the U.S. has decided to go ahead on an early agreement with Italy to base intermediate range (1,500-mile) ballistic missiles on Italian territory. Now that the new government of Antonio Segni is firmly established in Rome the IRBM pact is expected to be quickly arranged.

After review of the problem within the State and Defense Departments it has also been decided, officials said, to continue replacing F100 jet fighter aircraft with the latest very high speed F101s. Apart from this, West Germany is reported interested in buying some F104s and the U.S. may be willing to sell them in the present circumstances.

Informants said any failure of the U.S. at this point to go forward with plans to strengthen its own bases and its allies overseas would be construed by the Soviets as a sign of weakness. They said that from President Eisenhower down the intention now is to avoid giving Moscow reason for any such miscalculation.

As far as measures aimed specifically at Berlin and Germany are concerned, inquiry in official quarters indicated that as Russia's deadline for abandonment of its occupation role in East Berlin approaches, the U.S. Strategic Air Command will be put in a fully alert status and the Strategic Army Command with its highly mobile force of four divisions may be made ready for quick action.

At the moment, however, the best-informed officials discount talk of any large-scale mobilization.

Concern with military moves increased inside the administration — as well as in Congress — after Soviet Premier Nikita Khurshchev Tuesday assailed Western proposals for negotiation on Germany and Berlin issues. His attack was delivered in such a way as to embarrass and rebuff the visiting British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Nikita's Going to Germany

MOSCOW — (AP) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev is making a surprise trip to East Germany, possibly foreshadowing the next Soviet move in the Berlin crisis.

The official Tass News Agency Saturday said tersely that Khrushchev will visit the International Trade Fair at Leipzig. It did not say when, nor would the foreign ministry give a date. The fair opens today.

The press chief of the Soviet embassy in East Berlin, V. M. Beburov, said Khrushchev is expected to arrive in Leipzig Wednesday.

This will be after a closing meeting with visiting British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in the Kremlin Monday. Macmillan will leave for home Tuesday.

There was speculation that Khrushchev might use the visit to discuss a separate peace treaty with East Germany, following the failure to make any progress on the German question in talks with Macmillan.

The government newspaper Izvestia quoted Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan as saying a separate peace treaty for East Germany may be in the wind.

34,425 See Troilus Win

The largest Hialeah Park crowd in two seasons — 34,425 — watched second-choice Troilus win the $135,800 Flamingo Stakes Saturday.

Troilus took the lead on the final turn and finished three lengths ahead of Open View. The favored First Landing finished third. Troilus paid $6.90, $4.70 and $3.10.

Selassie Has Guests

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia —(UPI)— King Paul and Queen Frederika of Greece arrived Saturday by plane for a six-day official visit to Ethiopia. King Haile Selassie and members of his government greeted the Greek royal couple.

Mack Gordon, Lyricist, Dies

NEW YORK — (AP) — Mack Gordon, 54, who wrote the lyrics for many hit tunes, died Saturday after a brief illness.

He wrote the words for such hits as "Time On My Hands," "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking," "Chattanooga Choo-Choo," "Love Thy Neighbor," "You'll Never Know," and "Stay as Sweet as You Are."

Prior to his songwriting career, he was a vaudeville comedian and singer.

7 Hockey Players Die as Roof Falls

LISTOWEL, Ont. — (AP) — The roof of the Listowel Memorial arena heavily burdened with snow collapsed Saturday, killing seven hockey players under 12 years of age and their recreation director. Nineteen others were injured.

Rescuers dug through debris searching for additional victims. Three boys were not accounted for.

Only the entrance to the $90,000 arena bujit four years ago remained standing. The concrete walls buckled during a Peewee Hockey League game. The collapsed roof covered the entire ice surface.

Players in Peewee Hockey are 12 and under.

The adult victim was Kenneth McLeod, 35, recreation director for this town of 3,530 population 25 miles northeast of Kitchener.

The only other adult in the arena, Norman Stirling, 32, was taken to a hospital. He is coach of the team and assistant recreation director.

The manager of the arena, Percy Knoblaugh, said he was standing at the entrance when the walls buckled. Then the roof crashed.

Police said it was difficult to determine just who was in the arena when the roof fell.

Twenty-two boys' coats were found in the cloak room near the entrance.

Canaveral Bird Set For Its Space Probe

CAPE CANAVERAL —(UPI)— A dense, lingering overcast closed in on the cape Saturday and it appeared highly unlikely the Army would try to launch its new space probe rocket before today.

The tall Juno II moon bird, designed to hurl its gold-plated payload past the lunar sphere and into orbit around the sun, was ready for firing.

But the forecast gave the cape area only a 50-50 chance for the 2,000-foot ceiling necessary for a launching, odds too short for the Army rocketeers to gamble on.

A top project official said that "as far as we can see now, everything about the bird itself looks perfect — the telemetry (radio reporting setup), the mechanics, all that's important."

The Army plans to aim the stately four-stage rocket directly at the moon and has estimated it will take 34 hours for the 13-pound Pioneer IV probe vehicle to reach the lunar sphere.

The overcast did not, however, halt an Air Force attempt to test a futuristic nose cone over intercontinental range early Saturday.

A Thor-Able test rocket fired at 2:48 a.m. knifed through several layers of clouds to start its mission to the South Atlantic.

But the Defense Department said 11 hours later it was not sure what happened to the rocket.

1,300-Lb. Satellite Is Fired

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. —(UPI) — The Air Force succeeded Saturday in its third attempt to fire the first satellite-carrying rocket in the "Project Discoverer" series in research to develop new space weapons and manned moons.

Minutes after the rocket streaked from sight over the Pacific Missile Range toward the South Pole, the Air Force said telemetry data showed the satellite stage had separated from the Thor booster at 4:54 p.m. Miami Time and fired to continue its space-ward climb.

The trackers said it would be one to two hours before it was known whether the moon had gone into orbit.

The satellite — which weighs 1,300 pounds — carried a 40-pound payload of telemetry equipment, but no animals. The first shot is mainly to test the vehicle.

But mice and monkeys soon will ride the moons into orbit as scientists probe "environmental conditions" of space in research aimed at developing a manned satellite.

The towering, two-stage rocket — its satellite comprising the entire 19-foot long second stage — was fired at 1:49 PST (4:49 Miami time) in the first successful moon launching on the West Coast. Orignially, the shot was scheduled for 12:45 P.M. PST but was delayed for technical reasons.

Two earlier attempts to fire the Discoverer literally never got off the ground. Technical difficulties were blamed for scrubbing the shot both Jan. 21 and Wednesday.

The shot was designed to blast south across the Pacific Ocean and over the South Pole in an effort to achieve the world's first polar-orbiting satellite.

A vast and elaborate network of telemetry receiving and tracking stations has been set up to provide information on the progress of Discoverer I. It extends from the Pacific coast west to Hawaii and north to Alaska.

The 78-foot rocket was launched from a pad a few hundred yards from the Pacific Ocean as newsmen watched from the press observation site more than a mile away.

It rose slowly on a pale yellow-orange tail of fire, emitting a deep-throated roar, and climbed nearly straight up over the observers' heads. Appearing to gain speed second by second, it turned into a southerly course over the ocean. Only the tail of the rocket was visible as a brilliant, nearly white blotch of fire as it disappeared from sight.

U.S. May Propose Underground Test

Plan Aims To Salvage A-Talks

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The U.S. may move to drive nuclear bomb tests underground in an attempt to salvage the colapsing Geneva atom talks, informed sources said Saturday.

They said some top U.S. officials now believe that a ban on bomb testing in the earth's atmosphere is the most that can be hoped for from the deteriorating talks. Recent reports from Geneva have indicated the discussions are on the verge of collapse.

The conferences received a heavy blow last week when Russian Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev indicated that the Soviet will never accept the West's proposal for an inspection system to control a test suspension agreement. Khrushchev accused the West of trying to establish a military spy system inside Russian borders.

The U.S. and Britain have made it clear they will not back down on the control question. A proposal to suspend only atmospheric tests would greatly simplify the control problem by eliminating the need for monitoring underground tests — the most difficult nuclear blasts to detect.

Such a test suspension would have one great advantage. It would retard contamination of the atmosphere with radioactive fallout.

According to informed sources, two possible approaches to such a plan are under consideration in high government quarters. One would involve a proposal for such an agreement by the West at the Geneva bargaining table.

The other would involve a unilateral declaration — perhaps by President Eisenhower —that the U.S. would suspend atmospheric tests for a definite period, say three years, while negotiations for a permanent ban on them go forward.

Shots Fired Near Home Of Castro

HAVANA — (UPI) — Gunfire cracked near the home of Premier Fidel Castro in suburban Cojimar Beach but police Saturday denied reports there was an attack on Castro's residence.

The sound of gunfire near Castro's home Friday night brought police and troops pouring into the area.

Castro was not at home at the time. He was presiding at the Council of Ministers (Cabinet) meeting in the Presidential Palace in Havana.

Reports circulating here said gunmen in two cars fired several shots at or in the vicinity of Castro's home in the fishing village, which is the locale for Ernest Hemingway's best-seller "The Old Man and the Sea."

These reports said the rural guard at a nearby post returned the fire. There are no known casualties.

Demand $12,500,000 Wage Boost

Teamsters Bare Plan For Public Workers

By TOM LOWNES
Herald Staff Writer

Out-of-town Teamsters organizers set up headquarters in a Miami Beach councilman's law office Saturday and announced demands for a $12,500,000 wage increase for Dade's municipal and county employes.

Henry Feinstein, president of the Public Employes Local 237 of New York Teamsters, revealed his sweeping short-range plans after moving into the office of Councilman Harold Shapiro, Teamster attorney here.

Feinstein, who is doing double duty as a Teamster organizer, said his group will seek $500-a-year increase for all 25,000 county and municipal workers in Dade.

Other Feinstein plans for courting the county's unorganized workers: "a 40-hour week; time-and-a-half in cash for work over 40 hours; bonus pay for Saturday, Sunday and holidays; and a compulsary merit system."

"I was shocked to learn that men at hard labor are forced to put in as many as 54 hours a week in some municipal jobs here to earn as little as $60.84," Feinstein said.

"This is the sort of thing you hear about Russia — I had assumed that such working conditions had disappeared in the dark age in our country."

"I wonder if Gov. Collins is aware of such conditions in Florida and if so, why he hasn't taken corrective steps," said Feinstein in a sharp dig at Florida's chief Hoffa foe.

"As for the Teamsters Union," said Feinstein, "we most certainly intend to correct this situation immediately."

The New York Teamster said he had already organized a band of 60 municipal and county employes here to work behind William Huet, 1673 Bay Rd., Miami Beach, business agent for the new drive.

Feinstein said he was also "interested" in meeting with Dade's school teachers, firemen, and hospital employes to see what Jimmy Hoffa's Teamster Union could do for them.

Board Five Red Ships

MANILA — (UPI) — The Philippine Navy Saturday boarded five Russian trawlers anchored a mile off the north coast of Luzon and detained them for investigation.

The boarding party reported that the trawlers dropped anchor Friday when one of them broke down with engine trouble. Repairs were being made.

The vessels were en route to Vladivostok from Kaliningrad in the Baltic Sea, where they had been launched recently for the Soviet fishing industry.

Nobody's Right, So Pot's $900

Thirty thousand puzzle fans can be wrong.

This was proved again last week when not a single entry came close to winning the Sunny Fortune jackpot. But cheer up, that old jackpot is sunnier than ever. It now contains 900 dollars which, if laid end to end, would make the prettiest green carpet you ever saw.

SUNNY

"Any prize for getting them all wrong?" asks one fan. "I have a sneaking idea I might win."

Sorry. All you get for missing all the words is a cold, fishy stare.

Another fan writes that on the new-type puzzle "my 10-year-old son in grade five can come closer than his Phi Beta Kappa father. My five-year-old son, who can't read at all, can pick letters closer than either of us to your published solutions. Which group do you want to cultivate?"

And he adds this postscript: "When the new baby comes, look out!"

Youth must be served, but young or old, I need a winner. All this money is cluttering up my desk something awful.

We've Had It--Hottest February

Miami closed out the hottest February on Weather Bureau records Saturday with promises of more nicer-than-usual conditions in March.

Forecaster Sanford Neuman added up the February readings recorded at the Weather Bureau's airport station — where Miami's official readings are taken — and found the average was 75.4 degrees.

That's 6.7 degrees higher than the 68.7 "normal" average for the month — and a whopping 17 degrees warmer than the 59.4 average of February of 1958, when all South Florida suffered in one economy smashing cold spell after another.

Figures for Miami Beach haven't been compiled by the Weather Bureau, but Neuman said "there's no doubt this will be the hottest February on record."

The second hottest February since the Weather Bureau started keeping records in 1939 was in 1957, when the average was 72.7.

What about March?

"Our 30-day outlook calls for normal to slightly above normal temperatures in March," Neuman said.

Ike Has An Ally On Nike

Cash Refusal Gets Backing

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Administration rejection of the Armys' plan for quick production of the Nike-Zeus missile drew vigorous endorsement Saturday from the Democratic chairman of a House subcommittee on defense funds.

"I agree with the President that we whould not provide funds at this time to go into production of the anti-missile missile," said Rep. George Mahon (D., Tex.). "I feel very strongly about this."

Mahon spoke in an interview as Rep. Overton Brooks (D., La.), head of the House Space Committee, called Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy and Gen. Nathan Twining for questioning Monday in the row over the Army project. Twinin is chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The space committee has heard Army research chiefs say they were rebuffed in a plea for 730 million dollars to start production on what they pictured as a promising weapon for shooting down intercontinental ballistic missiles fired at the U.S.

Brooks agreed the Nike-Zeus has yet to be proved workable — a central point in the administration argument — but he said production should be pushed for the sake of doing what can be done to prevent the U.S. from standing defenseless against Soviet ICBMs.

"The question is whether we should take a calculated risk," Brooks said. "If money is lost, you can charge it off to experience. We can afford the money but we can't afford to lose a war."

McElroy has taken the position that, while the Nike-Zeus system would cost untold billions of dollars, technical rather than budget reasons are responsible for holding off production.

And Dr. Herbert York, the Defense Departments top scientist, said putting the weapon into production would tend to slow up development work needed to make it worthwhile. He said a workable anti-missile defense may not be achieved for several years.

Mahon, who has been hearing defense testimony in closed session for several weeks, said welcomed the enthusiasm of the Army men, but he said further scientific breakthroughs are needed.

The Big Question Today: Could We Survive Attack?

and you may receive three sharply conflicting interpretations.

Defense Secretary Neil McElroy sees no need to spend more money during this coming fiscal year than has been asked for by his department.

"The present rate of arms spending assures that essential defense needs are met," the secretary told the subcommittee under the questioning of its able counsel, Edwin L. Weisl. He called the U.S. position "satisfactory."

Sen. Stuart Symington (D., Mo.), a member of the subcommittee and secretary of air during the Truman administration, asserted at the same hearing:

"Since the United States has not kept its defense strength modernized, during the next few years adequate defense requires more money than estimated in the President's budget. The coming year may afford us our last chance to initiate any real effort to catch up with the Russians in the most important field of modern weaponry."

Stuart Symington
. . . 'our last chance'

Neil McElroy
. . . 'needs are met'

"Who's telling the truth in the Great Debate?" I asked Sen. Lyndon Johnson, the majority leader whose subcommittee is far from satisfied with what it has heard.

"They all are," he said, suddenly looking up at us.

"It reminds me of the time our little girl was born. I understand that later on some of the neighbors didn't think she was too pretty as a little baby. But to me she was the most beautiful thing I ever saw in my life." He paused, grinned and added, "Now, that was an honest difference of opinion. Maybe we were both right."

"I've heard enough in that committee room to convince me that the Defense Department's' decision to go along with the President's budget is a political decision, not a military decision.

"I don't think we're moving far enough fast enough. We're getting one missiles czar stacked up on top of another missiles czar, but we're not getting any missiles. The whole program lacks oomph.

"Lord knows forty billion dollars is a terrible lot of money. That's what they've asked the Congress to give them this year. Some of them seem to think it's ridiculous to suggest that Russia might hit us. If they're that sure, then they're wasting a terrible amount of money. But others feel Russia will hit us just as soon as she's sure she can get away with it without serious retaliation by us. If that's the case, forty billion dollars isn't enough.

"These are honorable men we've had appearing before us. But they're tied up in a political decision. The joint chiefs came before us to testify after Mr. McElroy cut their original estimated needs from two to four billion dollars. He had them sign a statement that what remained was sufficient. But all these gentlemen have 'reservations.' For

"As a young fellow in this town, in the days leading up to Pearl Harbor, I had an opportunity to tell President Roosevelt that I thought we weren't going far enough fast enough. Then just before the outbreak in Korea, I told the same thing to President Truman. Now I'm going on record again, this time for the benefit of President Eisenhower.

"I just never want to be in the position that Frank Knox (F. D. R.'s secretary of Navy) found himself in the day after Pearl Harbor. The American Magazine came out with an article by him saying 'we can lick them in either ocean' while the bellies of his fleet looked up at the moon."

The now declassified statement which the joint chiefs dutifully signed reads:

"Memorandum for the secretary of defense.

"Subject: Joint chiefs of staff position on the FY (fiscal year) 1960 budget.

"The joint chiefs of staff consider that the FY 1960 proposed expenditure figure of $40,945,000,000 is adequate to provide for the essential programs necessary for the defense of the nation for the period under consideration. They find no serious gaps in the key elements of the budget in its present form, but all have reservations with respect to the funding of some segments of their respective service programs."

The statement bears the signatures of Gen. N. F. Twining, USAF, chairman, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chief of staff of the Army, Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, Gen. Thomas D. White, chief of staff of the Air Force, and Gen. Randolph McC. Pate, commandant of the Marine Corps.

A document that has aroused much more ire on Capitol Hill, however, is the following memorandum to Scretary McElroy from President Eisenhower's budget director, Maurice H. Stans:

"The President will shortly present his budget for the fiscal year 1960 to the Congress. As you know, the normal process of budgeting results in recommended amounts that in many cases are less than the agency head had requested.

"It is understandable that officials and employes will feel strongly about the importance of their own agency's work, and will sometimes believe that a larger budget might be in order. Such feelings, however, must be related to an awareness that our budget resources are not adequate to accommodate in any one year all of the things that might be desired. The President is responsible for reviewing the total needs of the executive branch in the light of tax and debt policy and for deciding among competing requests for priorities. Executive branch personnel are expected to support the President in his budget recommendations.

"As you and your staff prepare to justify your portion of the budget before Congress, you will want to observe the requirements set forth at the President's direction in Bureau of the Budget Circular No. A-10. It is expected that witnesses will carefully avoid volunteering views differing from the budget, either on the record or off the record.

"While direct questions at hearings must be answered frankly, it is expected that a witness who feels that he must set forth a personal view inconsistent with the President's budget will also point out that the President's judgment on the matter was reached from his overall perspective as the head of the government, and in the light of overriding national policy. The witness should make it clear that his personal comments are not to be construed as a request for additional funds."

A Johnson aide, reading the above commented, "The chiefs came before us handcuffed."

Road Job OKd

TALLAHASSEE — Work will begin March 4 on a $719,910 road project on State Road 31 in Lee County, the Road Department said Saturday.

The project, between State Road 80 and State Road 78 west of Olga, calls for construction on a new location.

Man Slain

McINTOSH — The body of Sylvester Edwards, 56, was found lying on Atlantic Coast Line railroad tracks early Saturday and police held a suspect for investigation of murder.

Officers said they learned from witnesses that Edwards and another Negro, Willie Smith, 30, were involved in a fight Friday night at a local beer garden.

Edwards apparently stumbled off into the night after the fight and his beaten body was discovered on the tracks by Engineer A. E. Wasdell later.

Jory Arrested

OCALA—Actor Victor Jory was charged with reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident early Saturday.

Officers said the 56-year-old performer was accused of running into a power pole and driving off without reporting it to authorities.

Jory, on location for a television filming at nearby Silver Springs, was stopped later when officers spotted his damaged car. He was released on $125 bond.

Admit Guilt

JACKSONVILLE — Two women pleaded guilty to embezzling funds from the Florida National Bank of Jacksonville, where they worked. Mrs. Jewren Helen Hembree admitted she took two checks totalling $900 and deposited them in another bank. Mrs. Quinta Johnson admitted she took $29 in dimes from a cash deposit. Federal Judge Bryan Simpson postponed sentencing them.

Burns Fatal

ST. PETERSBURG — Mrs. Pearl V. Mason, 59, died Saturday of burns suffered ina fire at their apartment here three weeks ago.

Detective Sgt. Cliff Frye said Mrs. Mason's son, John Beaver, told officers he heard his mother scream. He ran into her bedroom to find the housecoat she was wearing afire. She suffered first and second degree burns before Mason could extinguish the flames.

Officers said a match used to light a cigarette apparently ignited the garment.

Citrus Unit Eyes Trade To Britain

LAKELAND, — (AP) — Florida Citrus Commission officials will meet with the British consul Friday to discuss "broadening citrus exports to Great Britain."

Homer E. Hooks, general manager of the commission, said there have been "many problems and trade barriers connected with exports to the British Isles over the years."

He said the meeting with D. G. Crichton, in charge of the consulate in Miami which serves all of Florida, "will be the opening wedge toward solving some of the problems."

Citrus can be imported into Great Britain only under government license.

Hooks said about 30 per cent of all grapefruit sections packed in Florida before World War II went to Great Britain. Since the war, Hooks said, exports of the product into that country have been negligible except for one or two years.

Four Bodies Recovered

KISSIMMEE — (AP) — The bodies of four persons who died when their light plane crashed 20 miles east of here were recovered from the wreckage Saturday.

Sheriff R. M. Buckels said the private craft plunged into a swampy wooded area 10 miles east of State Road 15 near Lake Preston.

The men, all from Patrick Air Force Base, were Horace P. Barham of Cocoa Beach, Michael J. Hudicka of Collingsdale, Pa., Russell C. Cochrane of Lauderdale-by-the-Sea and Lt. Raymond T. Baker of St. Petersburg. Their plane took off from Melbourne Wednesday night.

Governor's Last Session

Collins To Seek Goals Despite Massed Foes

Program Outline Should Be Soon

TALLAHASSEE—(UPI)—Gov. LeRoy Collins, undismayed by legislative blasts at him, is reported ready to present his most ambitious program yet to the Legislature in April.

Collins had better than average success with his first two Legislatures. But he faces rocky going in this session, principally because it is his last.

In addition, his racial stands have brought antagonism from several elements.

The governor has not announced a specific program, but parts of it have come to light, and more may be disclosed this week.

Collins has said he will not recommend any new or general tax increase. A special tax committee of the Legislative Council will meet Tuesday to decide what it will recommend.

The chairman, Sen. B. C. Pearce of Palatka, disagrees with the governor that no tax increases are needed to finance the $725,000,000 two-year budget the cabinet recommended.

He said without new taxes, the Legislature is going to have to carve about $75,000,000 off proposed spending.

The governor's constitutional advisory committee has completed work on a reapportionment proposal and other law reforms and Collins plans to unveil the finished product to a meeting of key legislators sometime this week.

His advisory committee on race legislation has also finished its study and recommendations will be made public soon, maybe this week.

The governor's program also will include:

1. A change in gas tax laws.
2. A reorganization of the State Department of Agriculture.
3. Continued refomr in prisons.
4. Equalized real estate assessments.
5. Centralized purchasing.

In addition, Collins probably will ask for 25 or 30 other less controversial reforms.

Battle lines are drawn on the hottest issue — school laws. There is evidence it will be a three-day struggle, with Collins in one corner, Attorney General Richard Ervin in one, and a "no-surrender" group of legislators in a third.

The new state constitution, to be proposed by Collins, may get lost in the shuffle.

Collins drove a new constitution through the Legislature in 1957, but the State Supreme Court threw it out because it was tied together in a daisy-chain fashion, so the voters had to take all or none.

Since then, he has had a committee working on a new state charter to present to the session.

The governor said this week he is in accord with State Road Department plans to ask the Legislature to revamp gas tax laws to give the state complete jurisdiction over six of the seven cents gas tax and counties the remaining one cent.

At present, the state controls four of the seven cents and has partial control over another one.

Agriculture Commissioner Nathan Mayo is expected to join in opposition to wholesale reorganization of the Department of Agriculture.

But Collins probably will get enough support in the Legislature to get most of it through if not all.

The governor will be hard put, according to advance reports, to keep what prison reform he got last session.

Sens. Charley Johns of Starke and Harry Stratton of Callahan are expected to introduce bills to alter the makeup of the division of corrections.

Johns and Stratton were the leaders in a legislative investigation of prisons last year.

Collins has given no hint as to what he will seek on real estate assessment equalization.

In 1957, he asked a state board of equalization, which could overrule county tax assessors. But the Legislature beat this down immediately.

The governor will renew his four-year fight for centralized purchasing. He said the state could save millions by taking advantage of lower prices available through quantity buying.

At present, state agencies do their own buying.

The State Cabinet fought Collins in 1957 on a central purchasing agency, and can reasonably be expected to do so again this session.

Business? Generally It's Good

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — More than 1½ million tourists streamed into Florida by automobile during January, the State Development Commission reported Saturday.

The commission said that 647,980 cars carrying winter visitors entered the state during the month. Each car carried an average of 2.5 persons. That means that 1,619,550 tourists drove into Florida.

The figures were from a survey, conducted by the State Road Department at the request of the commission. Mechanical counters and car checkers were placed on all federal and state roads leading into Florida from Georgia and Alabama. The counts were made on a seven day a week, 24 hours a day basis.

However, last winter's persistent cold may still be having its effect on the resort business here. It's likely a lot of potential visitors, nursing memories of last season's shivers, are fearful of being nipped again.

This is how things are around the state:

Miami-Miami Beach — Business at Hialeah race track is down a little. Some hotels are turning away guests, others are crying for customers. Stores selling luxury goods report a drop, but customers are plentiful at those which cater to mass market.

Sarasota — Tourist inquiries are up 25 per cent and registrations up 15 per cent over last year. However, business is still off in comparison to seasonal peaks before last winter.

Jacksonville Beach — Expecting its biggest season yet, with some tourists saying they plan to make longer visits than usual.

Fort Myers — Tourist attractions report business down 10 per cent, but traffic is about 4,000 cars a day more than last year. Dog track attendance is up and Edison Pageant of Light drew the biggest crowd in its history.

Tampa — Tourist business was off before Christmas, but has reached a normal level since. Dog track attendance is almost what it was last year.

Daytona Beach — Business received big boost from opening of the Daytona International Speedway. Improvement has been noticed since Christmas.

St. Augustine — Tourist business is off considerably, even in contrast with last year. No theories advanced as to cause.

Fort Lauderdale — January was slow, but February was much better than last year. Advance reservations are heavy through April.

Tallahassee — An inland city, it has no resort hotels. However, tourist courts report more business than any time last year.

On the whole, business is much better than last year, although improvement is spotty.

League Demands Parley on SR 9

By ROSE ALLEGATO
Herald Staff Writer

WEST PALM BEACH — How long will Palm Beach and Broward Counties have to wait for State Rd. 9?

The road, now completed in Dade County, terminates at Hollywood in Broward County. SR 9 has been designated as the route for the federal interstate highway. There's the wrinkle.

Government leaders in Dade, Palm Beach and Broward want to see SR9 extended through Palm Beach County in any way — as a limited access expressway or just a plain old north-south highway.

At a Tri-County Governmental League meeting here this weekend, leaders from Dade, Broward and Palm Beach Counties complained the state was giving them the run-around on SR 9.

George Peterson, chairman of Broward County commissioners, opined: "The State Road Department has two budgets — the budget named desire and the one they use to build roads."

The league is demanding a five-party meeting to ascertain the status of SR 9, which is considered vital to transportation in the tri-county area.

The meeting would include representatives from the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, the State Road Department, the Sunshine Parkway, the governor's office, and the Tri-County Governmental League.

Lake Lytal, chairman of Palm Beach County commissioners, said he has been led to believe Palm Beach County will have its first link of SR 9 in two years.

Peterson said the SRD has okayed the construction of SR 9, from its present terminus to SR 84 in Broward County. This section would be two lanes.

Peterson said he has been told SR 9 will not be extended until the turnpike proves itself a financial success. The bonds floated to finance the pike supposedly prohibit this.

Whichever is accepted, the 90-to-10 principle applies, with the federal government footing 90 per cent of the costs.

City Power Systems Given Alert

JACKSONVILLE — (AP) — Municipal electric systems must work together or be swallowed up by privately owned firms, Alex Radin, general manager of the American Public Power Association, said Saturday.

He spoke at a closing session of the Florida Municipal Utilities Association convention.

"Where the private power companies are not attempting to purchase municipal systems outright, they frequently can be found in the forefront of efforts to stop municipal electric systems from expanding their generating facilities," Radin said.

Laws usually make it more diffucult to start a new municipal utility than to sell an existing one, Radin said, so that once a city gives up its valuable electric system there is little chance of getting it back.

He cited as an example the sale of the city owned electric system at Dunkirk, N. Y., where he said within two years the people were faced with two rate increases.

He urged municipal utilities to reduce rates where possible and to avoid excessive diversion of utility revenue to general support of the city government instead of using it for plant expansion.

Ex-Governor May Run Again

'What's Caldwell Going to Do?'

By HAROLD PARR

TALLAHASSEE—(AP)—Millard Caldwell has maneuvered himself into an advantageous position in the 1960 sweepstakes for governor. He has other potential candidates worried.

Almost the first thing a capitol newman hears when he bumps into one of the governorship hopefuls is the question: "What's Millard going to do?"

Apparently no one has the answer except the tall, stern man who was governor from 1945 to 1949. And it well could be he doesn't yet know himself.

"I certainly don't want to run, and right now I don't think I will, but—," he said, while running through the text of a speech he was preparing to deliver.

Did the "but" mean some situation might develop which would put him in the field?

People can't figure his speech-making, taking him to all parts of the state, as anything but preliminary to a campaign.

There is no doubt Caldwell's massive figure and biting oratory are becoming well-known throughout Florida again.

Caldwell has one main theme—state' rights. But he has been branching out, adding sharp attacks on governmental spending and leadership to criticism of what he charges is the U.S. Supreme Court's usurpation of power.

Millard Caldwell
.. noncommittal

Caldwell, too has been blasting Collins, without naming him. Caldwell long has been at odds with Collins. Their political fued goes back to Caldwell's successful 1944 campaign for governor, when Collins served as Leon County campaign manager for Ernest Graham, former State Senator from Dade County.

Caldwell hasn't been a big figure on the state scene since leaving the governorship. He backed the late Dan McCarty as his successor, but Fuller Warren grabbed the plum.

When McCarty tried again, and won, Caldwell was in the corner of former Supreme Court Justice Alto Adams.

Caldwell sat out the Johns-Collins-Odham campaign in 1954. Caldwell was silent, too, three years ago when Collins whipped Bryant, Warren and Sumter Lowry of Tampa.

Legislators To Visit Colleges

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — A joint House-Senate appropriations subcommittee will visit Florida's tax-supported universities next week to study their spending needs for the coming biennium.

The committee, headed by Sen. John Rawls of Marianna, will open its hearings Monday at the new University of South Florida in Tampa.

It will spend Tuesday and Wednesday at the University of Florida in Gainesville, and wind up hearings in Tallahassee Thursday and Friday at Florida State and A&M Universities.

The university heads are expected to make a strong pitch for restoration of projects cut out of their proposed budgets by the Cabinet.

But recent financial forecasts have given them little encouragement.

The cabinet, riding with an estimate of revenue furnished by Budget Director Harry Smith, recommended a general spending bill of more than $725,000,000.

Comptroller Ray E. Green said the state will be lucky if present taxes permit a $700,000,000 budget in the coming two years. And the chairman of a special legislative council tax study committee, said his study has led him to the view that the Legislature must hold spending to around $650,000,000 to be safe.

Sen. B. C. Pearce's Tax Committee will study the whole picture at a public meeting here Tuesday — and draft recommendations for the full legislative council which meets the following day.

Next week's hearings of the Rawls committee will wind up the pre-session budget meetings and the appropriations committees will get to work drafting a proposed general bill for submission to the Legislature in April.

Chairmen said they hope to have the measure out of the way by the middle of May, although it usually is among the last bills to pass in the dying days of the session in June.

Grapefruit Concentrate Season On

LAKELAND — (AP) — Most of the citrus concentrate plants in the state kissed Florida's early and midseason orange crop goodby Saturday and started the changeover to frozen concentrated grapefruit juice.

Harvesting of early and midseason oranges will end within a few days and it will be three or four weeks before valencia oranges are sweet enough to meet requirements for frozen concentrate.

During the interim, many concentrate plants will switch to production of frozen concentrated grapefruit juice.

Robert W. Rutledge, general manager of Florida Citrus Mutual, said Saturday the total pack of frozen concentrate from early and midseason oranges will come to about 40-million gallons.

He estimated that about 30-million gallons of frozen concentrate will come from the valencia crop.

The 70-million gallon estimate for the season is 12,800,000 gallons more than last year's pack but almost two-million gallons under 1956-57 production.

A General Trades His Gun for a Shovel

Yigal Yadin once headed the general staff branch of Hagana, the Jewish underground in Palestine, in 1947. Today he is steeped in the study of archeology.

Why this successful military man switched to a completely new field makes for a fascinating story.

—Associated Press Photo

Yigal Yadin, right, Briefs a Premier

. . . explains project to David Ben-Gurion

JERUSALEM, Israel —(P)— A few years ago Maj. Gen. Yigal Yadin was chief of staff of the Israeli army. Today at 41 he is by choice a civilian and by accomplishment one of the world's leading archeologists.

And no one in Israel thinks it the least unusual that Yadin abandoned a brilliant military career for excavations and the study of scrolls and artifacts. For in this land of the Bible, one of the well-trodden crossroads of human history, the remote past is as alive as the present. The events of two or three millenia ago are nearly as real as the current events in the morning paper. The archaeologist is as much a part of life as the soldier or politician.

Yadin's change of careers widened the impact of his talents. Where once he fought for Israel, today he works for the entire world of learning. He has helped add greatly to the store of knowledge of Biblical history.

In his new work, Yadin is following in the footsteps of his father, the late professor Eliezer Sukenik, who headed the archeology department of Hebrew University in Jerusalem. (It is not uncommon for a son's name to differ from his father's in Israel, where many people have taken new Hebrew names or translated their names into Hebrew.)

During the Arab-Israeli War of 1948-49, Prof. Sukenik made perilous journeys into Arab-held territory to purchase for a few hundred dollars the first three of the now famous Dead Sea scrolls.

He made the trips against the advice of his son. But later, Yadin also played a part in the fantastic story of the scrolls. He handled negotiations in New York which led to the purchase for Israel of four more scrolls. These cost nearly a half-million dollars.

Prof. Sukenik died in 1953. His son now carries on in his place at Hebrew University.

Yadin lives in the house of his father, a house built of yellow cut stone which typifies all of new Jerusalem. It was here, in the yard, that Sukenik buried the first three scrolls for a time to protect them in case the Arabs invaded the Israeli sector of the city.

Yadin, tall, a little round at the middle, speaks fluent English. He is quite likely to deliver a visitor what amounts to an hour's lecture on current archeological work in Israel.

The Bible tells how Joshua led the Israelites in capturing and destroying Hazor, one of the Caananites' principal cities. If the date of its destruction could be pinned down, it would assist greatly in dating events described in the Bible subsequently.

For four seasons, 250 diggers and 40 to 45 archeologists worked at Hazor. They made rich finds. It turned out there had been 20 cities on the site of Hazor. The site had once housed 40,000 people on an area of 150 acres — an ancient metropolis. Yadin's group found 250,000 artifacts, 1,000 of which have considerable value.

More importantly, it was possible after studying the evidence to date Hazor's destruction by the Israelites in the 13th Century B.C. much more precisely than before.

Reports on the Hazor excavations are currently being published in scientific journals.

Another subject close to Yadin's heart are the investigations being made by him and his Israeli colleagues on the Dead Sea scrolls.

Ten years ago, Yadin was engaged in a completely different kind of work. As one of Israel's leading commanders and chief of operations of the general staff, he had much of the responsibility for the survival of the newly reborn country.

He came to his post of command as the logical result of heading the general staff branch of Hagana, the Jewish underground in Palestine, in 1947.

Yadin's abandonment of his military career for a civilian pursuit is not unusual in Israel. Maj. Gen. Yaakov Dori, chief of the general staff during the Arab-Israeli war, is now president of Israel's leading technological institute, the Technion in Haifa. Maj. Gen. Moshe Dayan, chief of staff during the Sinai campaign of 1956, has retired from Army life to take his chances on a political career.

What Ever Became of . . .

DICK CONTINO—the handsome young accordionist who served a federal term for draft evasion? Dick was making up to $4,000 a week when he was called for induction in 1951. Claustrophobia forced him to flee the Army draft center, he said. Dick voluntarily surrendered after several days, was fined $10,000 and sentenced to six months for avoiding induction. Later he entered the Army and served honorably in Korea. He then returned to show biz.

Today at 29, Dick Contino is trying the second comeback of his career. He and his wife Leigh Snowden — former movie starlet — and their small daughter are living in Las Vegas where Dick is playing in a hotel lounge. Dick has also completed dramatic roles in two "B" movies, says there is a possibility of a TV series. Also in financial difficulties, Dick hopes to pay off creditors and avert bankruptcy.

Bewildered Heifer Case

Chloe Owes Her Life to FBI

Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

CHICAGO — Chloe, a young Indiana cow, owes her life to the FBI.

Last Monday the white-faced Hereford was roaming footloose near her Brownstown, Ind., home. Along came two rustlers. They hustled her into a pickup truck.

The bewildered heifer was driven to the stockyards in Chicago. Wednesday she was sold for $194.24. She found herself, just another 1,000 pounds of beef, milling among thousands of cattle ready for slaughter.

A short time later, two men were arrested in Laporte, Ind., on a traffic charge. While being questioned by police, they admitted stealing Chloe and selling her Wednesday to the Chicago stockyards.

The two are Orrin S. Reed and Wayne Wible, both of Laporte.

Chloe's owner had sent a description of the red and white heifer to police and the FBI.

Armed with the description and the purchase date, two FBI agents who used to be farmers were able to track down Chloe with the help of stockyards personnel.

The owner, whose name was not disclosed, came to Chicago to pick up his heifer from the FBI and take her back home.

Reed and Wible are being held by the FBI in Indianapolis on a charge of interstate transport of stolen cattle.

A Close Look at Our Moment of Peril

We'll Let Russia Strike First—Then What?

The Great Debate

The "Great Debate" rages over a question that could determine our national existence: Are we building modern weapons of war fast enough and good enough to meet an ominous Russian threat? No one man has the answer. But in the provocative series of articles that starts today one of America's great reporters presents facts and opinions that can help all Americans to a clearer realization of the life-or-death problem.

CONSIDINE

By BOB CONSIDINE
Herald Columnist

FOR THE FIRST time since the War of 1812 there is genuine concern in Washington over the ability of the U. S. to survive an enemy attack.

It is not a general concern. There are elements of the military and officialdom which see little chance of a nuclear war with the Soviet Union. Others, including key figures in the Eisenhower administration, feel no apprehension over the lead which the U.S.S.R. apparently has taken in the field of the ultimate weapon — the intercontinental ballistic missile. They see no need to increase the 40 billion dollar arms budget.

Yet despite this pacifying atmosphere in several high and influential quarters, responsible Americans of all political shades go to bed these nights haunted by such bugaboos as these:

A prospectus drawn up in the Defense Department, and kept under lock and key, states that if the Soviet Union has the long-range weapons delivery system it boasts about, a salvo of its nuclear-tipped missiles would kill 10,000,000 Americans and virtually or entirely demolish our means of retaliation.

Another Defense Department estimate is that by the end of 1960 the U.S.S.R. will have a 3-1 edge over the U.S. in ICBMs. But no speed-up program to close the gap is now planned.

A prominent senator known for his advocacy of the U.S. Air Force states that 75 per cent of the Strategic Air Command's striking force is obsolescent. He questions whether more than a handful of SAC's hundreds of big manned bombers could survive Soviet air defense and reach their assigned targets in any retaliatory raid.

The Distant Early Warning line of radar sites, built across the Arctic from Alaska to Greenland at a cost of hundreds of millions, to detect a Red air force manned bomber fleet which may or may not exist, cannot spot Soviet ICBMs. A crash program to "raise the sights" of our polar detection system is only now getting under way.

The Navy's Polaris missile, submarine-based, will not be ready for another year. Its critics say that it will have only half the predicted 1,500-mile range. But the sea service has stopped production of an excellent interim missile, the air-breathing Regulus II, after spending about 250 million dollars.

The Air Force's solid fuel ICBM, "Minuteman," will not be ready until perhaps 1965. In the interim, it must depend on the complex and immobile liquid-fueled Atlas and Titan which require hours, if not days, to prepare for launching. Flying time of a Russian ICBM from its Soviet base to any U. S. target: 25 minutes.

The Army, with the most notable record in the missile field, has been generally thwarted in its efforts to build bigger and better weapons, including the Nike Zeus, anti-missile missile believed capable of knocking out enemy ICBMs flying in space at 15 times the speed of sound.

The Defense Department, Central Intelligence Agency and White House firmly rule out all attempts to change the country's traditional outlook on war. In an age of superweapons development wherein a great war might be decided in minutes rather than years, we still concede to the enemy the initial blow. A big question in Washington today is, "But will we be able to get off the floor and fight back after being hit?"

This and subsequent articles will attempt to illuminate some of the problems confronting military and political leaders and print the answers as those experts see them. Independent observation will be included.

The answers of the principals involved do not always coincide. The thousands of pages of testimony taken by the preparedness investigating subcommittee of the Senate's Armed Services, Missile and Space Activities Committee, as well as other fact-seeking probes, are laced with differences and contradictions. Ask the same question of any three men involved in Washington's latest Great Debate

Asks for Leadership

Collins Says Politicos Fear Rights Issue

EXCLUSIVE

By DAVID J. KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The civil rights controversy has the nation's leaders "quaking in their political boots," Gov. LeRoy Collins told leading U.S. Democrats Saturday.

Collins, addressing a $100-a-plate dinner honoring newly elected Democrat governors, charged the nation's leadership with being "fearful even to seek honorable, sensible adjustments" to the hot race problems.

He said the whole rights issue left the nation "badly divided" in facing the outside world.

Then leveling a blast at the Republicans, the Florida governor said:

"Our national administration, at a crucial time in history, is not measuring up to changing responsibilities. This is the basis for the uneasiness which stirs Americans these days."

He called on Democrats to choose as a Presidential candidate "an uncommon man with a common touch . . . a man of progressive outlook with a solid record of achievement."

The governor, mentioned frequently as a possible Democratic candidate for president or vice president in 1960 shared top billing before some 2,000 guests at the dinner with Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, the powerful Democratic majority leader.

Capital Will Be 'Jumping'

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Official Washington, long attuned to the spoken political word as a kind of music, is going to try its ear on some jazz starting today.

Patrons of the Washington Jazz Jubilee include some names you wouldn't think of as cool cats:

Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, Mrs. Earl Warren, Mrs. John Foster Dulles, 22 ambassadors and their wives, seven cabinet officers and their wives, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and his wife, Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.).

Mrs. Eisenhower

Mrs. Nixon

Washington's first jazz concert with such prominent backing is being arranged by a group of congressional wives raising money for Friendship House, a settlement house on Capitol Hill. The jubilee chairman is Mrs. Richard Bolling, wife of the Democratic representative from Missouri.

A band of jazz greats will shake the rafters of a Washington hotel ballroom on the night of March 16. What Mrs. Bolling calls "an uptown level" will be supplied by the Library of Congress and the National Gallery of Art.

Marshall Stearns, literature professor at Hunter College and writer on jazz, will lecture on the subject at the Art Gallery today.

On Monday the Library of Congress will open an exhibit, "Seven Ages of Jazz," to trace its course from the early folk music to the Carnegie Hall.

Why jazz jubilee in Washington?

"We wanted something new —the benefit circuit has been so overdone," Mrs. Bolling said. "The patrons aren't jazz buffs, but they're really glad to know what it's all about."

Today's Chuckle

"I'll carry this case to the highest court in the land," said the lawyer to the prisoner, "but in the meantime you'd better try to escape."

Pan-Am Strike Averted

Sides Agree At Meeting

By TOM LOWNES
Herald Staff Writer

Threat of a systemwide strike against Pan American Airways by its 7,000 Transport Workers Union employes was lifted early Saturday as both sides came out of an all-night meeting with an agreement "in principle."

The threatened strike, which had been set for midnight Monday, would have affected some 3,000 PAA workers in Miami and another 1,500 at the strategic Cape Canaveral Missile Test Center.

Federal Mediator Frances A. O'Neill, who several times prevented hot-tempered union and company leaders from stalking out of the night-long meeting in New York, said the agreement was reached at 6 a.m.

Both company and union officials refused to outline terms of the tentative settlement, but Miamian William Grogan, international vice president of TWU, said, "It's a good contract which we can submit with honor to our members."

The union's 20-member negotiating committee will meet in New York at 7 p.m Monday to hear terms of the contract. If they accept the plan, it will be submitted for a TWU general membership vote later in the week.

There were strong indications Saturday that the union did not succeed in pushing through its major demand — a 37½-hour week for all members.

The word "hours" was conspicuously missing from O'Neill's only comment on terms of the agreement: "It concerned wages, rules and working conditions."

In Miami, Bernard H. Diesen, president of TWU Local 500, pointed out that the union's wage demands had been added only three months ago after TWU leaders reported that hour negotiations were deadlocked.

Hopes Dim Of Rocket Orbiting

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — (UPI) — The Air Force Saturday fired the first satellite-carrying rocket in the "Project Discoverer" program, but nearly four hours after the launching no signals had been received from the 1,300-pound artificial moon.

When the 78.2-foot long rocket-satellite blasted off at 4:49 p.m. Miami time, controlling Air Force officers said orbiting should be achieved in "two to three hours."

But Saturday night, hopes dimmed. The Air Force still held out a slim hope of successful orbiting.

The planned orbit would be like a hoop around the earth, passing over the North and South Poles. Achievement of the orbit would be a step toward the creation of reconnaissance satellites, which could scan the whole earth as it revolved below.

Air Force officials said the launching was "a success" regardless of success or failure of the orbit. The primary goal had been accomplished, the testing of the second stage vehicle.

The satellite-bearing rocket lunged from its launch pad and headed straight up into a cloudless blue sky, leaving a bright yellow tail of fire clearly visible from the press observation center nearly two miles away.

After the Discoverer — the first attempt to launch a satellite from the Pacific Coast — reached an altitude of between 10,000 to 15,000 feet, it arched into a horizontal flight, leaving a long vapor trail. It appeared that the rocket was heading south in the general direction of Los Angeles, but the shot was designed to send it southwest over the Pacific.

The Air Force confirmed five minutes after the firing that telemetry data showed the 18.8-foot long satellite stage had separated from the Thor booster and was continuing its spaceward climb.

It was estimated that the second stage of the rocket required a speed of approximately 25,000 miles an hour to place it in orbit.

The satellite — which weighs 1,300 pounds — carried a 40-pound payload of telemetry equipment, but no animals. The first shot is mainly to test the vehicle.

But mice and monkeys soon will ride the moons into orbit as scientists probe "environmental conditions" of space in research aimed at developing a manned satellite.

Two earlier attempts to fire the Discoverer literally never got off the ground. Technical difficulties were blamed for scrubbing the shot both Jan. 21 and Wednesday.

We'll Beef Up Might

U.S. Laying Plans For Berlin Crisis

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The U.S. has decided on a series of moves to prepare for the expected May 27 showdown with Russia over Berlin.

The Defense and State Departments are now planning precise steps, officials reported Saturday. These are said to fall into two categories—measures to reinforce the Western military-political position on a long-range basis and measures concerned directly with the Berlin crisis.

In connection with the first type, the U.S. has decided to go ahead on an early agreement with Italy to base intermediate range (1,500-mile) ballistic missiles on Italian territory. Now that the new government of Antonio Segni is firmly established in Rome the IRBM pact is expected to be quickly arranged.

After review of the problem within the State and Defense Departments it has also been decided, officials said, to continue replacing F100 jet fighter aircraft with the latest very high speed F101s. Apart from this, West Germany is reported interested in buying some F104s and the U.S. may be willing to sell them in the present circumstances.

Informants said any failure of the U.S. at this point to go forward with plans to strengthen its own bases and its allies overseas would be construed by the Soviets as a sign of weakness. They said that from President Eisenhower down the intention now is to avoid giving Moscow reason for any such miscalculation.

As far as measures aimed specifically at Berlin and Germany are concerned, inquiry in official quarters indicated that as Russia's deadline for abandonment of its occupation role in East Berlin approaches, the U.S. Strategic Air Command will be put in a fully alert status and the Strategic Army Command with its highly mobile force of four divisions may be made ready for quick action.

At the moment, however, the best-informed officials discount talk of any large-scale mobilization.

Concern with military moves increased inside the administration — as well as in Congress — after Soviet Premier Nikita Khurshchev Tuesday assailed Western proposals for negotiation on Germany and Berlin issues. His attack was delivered in such a way as to embarrass and rebuff the visiting British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Nikita's Going to Germany

MOSCOW — (AP) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev is making a surprise trip to East Germany, possibly foreshadowing the next Soviet move in the Berlin crisis.

The official Tass News Agency Saturday said tersely that Khrushchev will visit the International Trade Fair at Leipzig. It did not say when, nor would the foreign ministry give a date. The fair opens today.

The press chief of the Soviet embassy in East Berlin, V. M. Beburov, said Khrushchev is expected to arrive in Leipzig Wednesday.

This will be after a closing meeting with visiting British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in the Kremlin Monday. Macmillan will leave for home Tuesday.

There was speculation that Khrushchev might use the visit to discuss a separate peace treaty with East Germany, following the failure to make any progress on the German question in talks with Macmillan.

The government newspaper Izvestia quoted Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan as saying a separate peace treaty for East Germany may be in the wind.

Mack Gordon, Lyricist, Dies

NEW YORK — (AP) — Mack Gordon, 54, who wrote the lyrics for many hit tunes, died Saturday after a brief illness.

He wrote the words for such hits as "Time On My Hands," "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking," "Chattanooga Choo-Choo," "Love Thy Neighbor," "You'll Never Know," and "Stay as Sweet as You Are."

Prior to his songwriting career, he was a vaudeville comedian and singer.

7 Hockey Players Die as Roof Falls

LISTOWEL, Ont. — (AP) — Seven Peewee League hockey players—all of them 12 or under—were killed Saturday when the snow-burdened roof of the Listowel Memorial Arena collapsed. Their recreation director also died in the thundering collapse.

Nineteen others were hurt. Nine of them were treated at the hospital for minor injuries and sent home.

Rescue workers dug frantically through the debris for other possible victims but police said later all the missing had been accounted for.

Listowel is in Ontario's snowbelt and there is about 25 inches of snow on the ground in the area.

The adult victim was Kenneth McLeod, 35, recreation director for this town of 3,530 population 25 miles northeast of Kitchener.

The only other adult in the arena, Norman Stirling, 32, was taken to a hospital. He is coach of the team and assistant recreation director.

The manager of the arena, Percy Knoblaugh, said he was standing at the entrance when the walls buckled. Then the roof crashed.

Police said it was difficult to determine just who was in the arena when the roof fell.

Twenty-two boys' coats were found in the cloak room near the entrance.

Canaveral Bird Set For Its Space Probe

CAPE CANAVERAL — (UPI) — A dense, lingering overcast closed in on the cape Saturday and it appeared highly unlikely the Army would try to launch its new space probe rocket before today.

The tall Juno II moon bird, designed to hurl its gold-plated payload past the lunar sphere and into orbit around the sun, was ready for firing.

But the forecast gave the cape area only a 50-50 chance for the 2,000-foot ceiling necessary for a launching, odds too short for the Army rocketeers to gamble on.

A top project official said that "as far as we can see now, everything about the bird itself looks perfect — the telemetry (radio reporting setup), the mechanics, all that's important."

The Army plans to aim the stately four-stage rocket directly at the moon and has estimated it will take 34 hours for the 12-pound Pioneer IV probe vehicle to reach the lunar sphere.

The overcast did not, however, halt an Air Force attempt to test a futuristic nose cone over intercontinental range early Saturday.

A Thor-Able test rocket fired at 2:48 a.m. knifed through several layers of clouds to start its mission to the South Atlantic.

But the Defense Department said 11 hours later it was not sure what happened to the rocket.

Reds Accidentally Cut Cable, Navy Man Thinks

'That's My Personal Opinion'

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The U.S. naval officer who led a boarding party onto a Soviet fishing trawler said Saturday he believed the Russian ship accidentally cut a transatlantic cable.

SHEELY

Lt. Donald Martin Sheely of Fairmont, Minn., said the cable "was most probably accidentally cut by them. That's my personal opinion."

He said there was no evidence that it was cut deliberately but "I am not convinced they didn't cut it deliberately."

Sheely said the Russians took the attitude that their fishing equipment was new and they did not think they could have cut the cable.

Sheely and two other members of the boarding party were flown here to report to the Navy.

They also were questioned at the State Department before meeting newsmen at the Pentagon.

Sheely said he was "somewhat nervous" about boarding the Russian trawler Novorossisk but he and other members of the party went unarmed.

The Soviet ship responded, Sheely said, when the U.S. destroyer Roy O. Hale hoisted an international flag signal to heave to for a boarding party.

He said the Russians were "not social. They accepted us but were not overly friendly." Sheely said he believed there was more electronic equipment aboard the Soviet vessel "than we would expect to see on one of our own fishing vessels."

The party boarded the Soviet craft under terms of an 1884 treaty permitting inspection of documents of ships suspected of damaging oceanic cables. Five cable breaks had been reported.

The Navy had announced Thursday night that Sheely's party found no intent on the part of the trawler to do anything but fish.

Air Crash Kills Five Navy Men

PRESCOTT, Ariz. — (UPI) — Five Navy crewmen were killed Saturday when their Military Air Transport Service Superconstellation crashed, exploded an burned at the edge of a busy highway.

There were no survivors. The craft was assigned to Transport Squadron 7 of the Naval Air Station at Moffatt Field, Calif. It was on a routine training flight from Litchfield Naval Air Facility near Phoenix.

Names of victims were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Demand $12,500,000 Wage Boost

Teamsters Bare Plan For Public Workers

By TOM LOWNES
Herald Staff Writer

Out-of-town Teamsters organizers set up headquarters in a Miami Beach councilman's law office Saturday and announced demands for a $12,500,000 wage increase for Dade's municipal and county employes.

Henry Feinstein, president of the Public Employes Local 237 of New York Teamsters, revealed his sweeping short-range plans after moving into the office of Councilman Harold Shapiro, Teamster attorney here.

Feinstein, who is doing double duty as a Teamster organizer, said his group will seek $500-a-year increase for all 25,000 county and municipal workers in Dade.

Other Feinstein plans for courting the county's unorganized workers: "a 40-hour week; time-and-a-half in cash for work over 40 hours; bonus pay for Saturday, Sunday and holidays; and a compulsary merit system."

"I was shocked to learn that men at hard labor are forced to put in as many as 54 hours a week in some municipal jobs here to earn as little as $60.84," Feinstein said.

"This is the sort of thing you hear about Russia — I had assumed that such working conditions had disappeared in the dark age in our country."

"I wonder if Gov. Collins is aware of such conditions in Florida and if so, why he hasn't taken corrective steps," said Feinstein in a sharp dig at Florida's chief Hoffa foe.

"As for the Teamsters Union," said Feinstein, "we most certainly intend to correct this situation immediately."

The New York Teamster said he had already organized a band of 60 municipal and county employes here to work behind William Huet, 1673 Bay Rd., Miami Beach, business agent for the new drive.

Feinstein said he was also "interested" in meeting with Dade's school teachers, firemen, and hospital employes to see what Jimmy Hoffa's Teamster Union could do for them.

We've Had It--Hottest February

Miami closed out the hottest February on Weather Bureau records Saturday with promises of more nicer-than-usual conditions in March.

Forecaster Sanford Neuman added up the February readings recorded at the Weather Bureau's airport station — where Miami's official readings are taken — and found the average was 75.4 degrees.

That's 6.7 degrees higher than the 68.7 "normal" average for the month — and a whopping 17 degrees warmer than the 59.4 average of February of 1958, when all South Florida suffered in one economy smashing cold spell after another.

Figures for Miami Beach haven't been compiled by the Weather Bureau, but Neuman said "there's no doubt this will be the hottest February on record."

The second hottest February since the Weather Bureau started keeping records in 1939 was in 1957, when the average was 72.7.

What about March?

"Our 30-day outlook calls for normal to slightly above normal temperatures in March," Neuman said.

Maxwell Anderson
. . . dead after stroke

Writer Anderson, 70, Dies

STAMFORD, Conn. — (AP) — Maxwell Anderson, 70, one of America's most respected playwrights, died Saturday night. He suffered a stroke at his home here Thursday.

The Pulitzer prize-winning author died at Stamford Hospital, where he had been partially paralyzed since the stroke.

When he was stricken, Anderson was working on a new musical play to be called "Madonna and Child."

Anderson won the Pulitzer prize in 1933 for his play, "Both Your Houses," and was given a number of other awards for various of his more than 30 plays.

Among those works were "What Price Glory?" (written with Laurence Stallings), "Winterset," "High Tor," "Knickerbocker Holiday," "Key Largo," and "Barefoot in Athens."

Younger persons, though, perhaps know Anderson best of all for the lyrics of "September Song," which he wrote for "Knickerbocker Holiday."

Youth Falls 19 Floors --And Lives

NEW YORK — (AP) — A young man plunged 19 floors Saturday but crashed through the top of a huge water tank and floated semi-conscious to the surface.

Police found him clutching the rim of the 10,000 gallon, two-story-high tank. They strapped him to a plank and maneuvered him through a seventh floor window level with the tank roof.

Identified as Emil A. Swiezy, 23, of Flushing, Queens, N.Y., he was taken to Beth David Hospital in critical condition with head and internal injuries.

The superintendent of the 26-story building, located on Lexington Ave. at 41st St., said he noticed a rear window open. Leaning out, he saw the the tank 19 stories below. There was a jagged hole in the tank's wood and copper-sheathed top. Looking closer, he saw the man, and called police.

Our Moment of Peril

The Big Question Today: Could We Survive Attack?

and you may receive three sharply conflicting interpretations.

Defense Secretary Neil McElroy sees no need to spend more money during this coming fiscal year than has been asked for by his department.

"The present rate of arms spending assures that essential defense needs are met," the secretary told the subcommittee under the questioning of its able counsel, Edwin L. Weisl. He called the U.S. position "satisfactory."

Sen. Stuart Symington (D., Mo.), a member of the subcommittee and secretary of air during the Truman administration, asserted at the same hearing:

"Since the United States has not kept its defense strength modernized, during the next few years adequate defense requires more money than estimated in the President's budget. The coming year may afford us our last chance to initiate any real effort to catch up with the Russians in the most important field of modern weaponry."

"Who's telling the truth in the Great Debate?" I asked Sen. Lyndon Johnson, the majority leader whose subcommittee is far from satisfied with what it has heard.

"They all are," he said, suddenly looking up at us.

"It reminds me of the time our little girl was born. I understand that later on some of the neighbors didn't think she was too pretty as a little baby. But to me she was the most beautiful thing I ever saw in my life." He paused, grinned and added, "Now, that was an honest difference of opinion. Maybe we were both right."

"I've heard enough in that committee room to convince me that the Defense Department's decision to go along with the President's budget is a political decision, not a military decision.

"I don't think we're moving far enough fast enough. We're getting one missiles czar stacked up on top of another missiles czar, but we're not getting any missiles. The whole program lacks oomph.

"Lord knows forty billion dollars is a terrible lot of money. That's what they've asked the Congress to give them this year. Some of them seem to think it's ridiculous to suggest that Russia might hit us. If they're that sure, then they're wasting a terrible amount of money. But others feel Russia will hit us just as soon as she's sure she can get away with it without serious retaliation by us. If that's the case, forty billion dollars isn't enough.

"These are honorable men we've had appearing before us. But they're tied up in a political decision. The joint chiefs came before us to testify after Mr. McElroy cut their original estimated needs from two to four billion dollars. He had them sign a statement that what remained was sufficient. But all these gentlemen have 'reservations.' For

"As a young fellow in this town, in the days leading up to Pearl Harbor, I had an opportunity to tell President Roosevelt that I thought we weren't going far enough fast enough. Then just before the outbreak in Korea, I told the same thing to President Truman. Now I'm going on record again, this time for the benefit of President Eisenhower.

"I just never want to be in the position that Frank Knox (F. D. R.'s secretary of Navy) found himself in the day after Pearl Harbor. The American Magazine came out with an article by him saying 'we can lick them in either ocean' while the bellies of his fleet looked up at the moon."

The now declassified statement which the joint chiefs dutifully signed reads:

"Memorandum for the secretary of defense.

"Subject: Joint chiefs of staff position on the FY (fiscal year) 1960 budget.

"The joint chiefs of staff consider that the FY 1960 proposed expenditure figure of $40,945,000,000 is adequate to provide for the essential programs necessary for the defense of the nation for the period under consideration. They find no serious gaps in the key elements of the budget in its present form, but all have reservations with respect to the funding of some segments of their respective service programs."

The statement bears the signatures of Gen. N. F. Twining, USAF, chairman, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chief of staff of the Army, Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, Gen. Thomas D. White, chief of staff of the Air Force, and Gen. Randolph McC. Pate, commandant of the Marine Corps.

A document that has aroused much more ire on Capitol Hill, however, is the following memorandum to Scretary McElroy from President Eisenhower's budget director, Maurice H. Stans:

"The President will shortly present his budget for the fiscal year 1960 to the Congress. As you know, the normal process of budgeting results in recommended amounts that in many cases are less than the agency head had requested.

"It is understandable that officials and employes will feel strongly about the importance of their own agency's work, and will sometimes believe that a larger budget might be in order. Such feelings, however, must be related to an awareness that our budget resources are not adequate to accommodate in any one year all of the things that might be desired. The President is responsible for reviewing the total needs of the executive branch in the light of tax and debt policy and for deciding among competing requests for priorities. Executive branch personnel are expected to support the President in his budget recommendations.

"As you and your staff prepare to justify your portion of the budget before Congress, you will want to observe the requirements set forth at the President's direction in Bureau of the Budget Circular No. A-10. It is expected that witnesses will carefully avoid volunteering views differing from the budget, either on the record or off the record.

"While direct questions at hearings must be answered frankly, it is expected that a witness who feels that he must set forth a personal view inconsistent with the President's budget will also point out that the President's judgment on the matter was reached from his overall perspective as the head of the government, and in the light of overriding national policy. The witness should make it clear that his personal comments are not to be construed as a request for additional funds."

A Johnson aide, reading the above commented, "The chiefs came before us handcuffed."

Banana River Stake

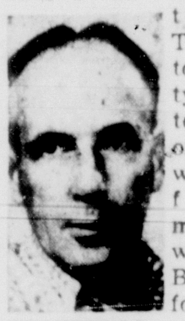
Battle Over Fill Waged In Brevard

By STEVE TRUMBULL
Herald Staff Writer

Counties can't move from very rural to urban status overnight without some growing pains — and amazingly growing Brevard county is no exception.

The transition there has seen two notable battles between a faction that wants to see the county preserve its natural assets, and another that would sacrifice much of this for what they call "progress."

The conservation-minded have won one notable battle. They have thwarted an attempt to establish an oil refinery, with a pipe line from Cape Canaveral.



TRUMBULL

The conservationists now have a far tougher battle on their hands. They are trying to get the County Commission to reverse itself on a ruling that would permit a fill extending more than half way across the Banana River, for a real estate project.

Present status of this one is that the commissioners have agreed to re-examine the question. The conservationists will carry the battle to Tallahassee if the ruling isn't drastically amended.

Frontier Oil, which got a brusk-off in Port Everglades, Palm Beach and Jacksonville, made a bid for a refinery, at the end of a three-mile pipeline from Canaveral harbor.

Fort Pierce also was threatened for a time by the same deal. There citizens actually voted for the refinery, but cooled later when they found the actual benefits would be nebulous. In return for the threat to beaches and air, the refinery would have employed only a little over 100 persons.

The Port Canaveral Authority nixed the deal in Brevard when the company refused to go along with an air pollution code, patterned after that of Los Angeles — one of the most rigid in the nation. They also refused a "sudden death" clause which would have closed them down if the fumes became obnoxious.

The conservation-minded group, of which Mayor Gary Bennett of Cocoa is a leader, fanned the fires against this bit of "progress."

The same group is battling the Banana River fill. Their theory is that if the present six-mile long project gets the go-ahead, there will be no valid argument against others filling that far out, and much of the river will be gone.

Main argument of the conservationists is that if the present prosperity generated by the Missile Test Center ever fades (a thought so horrible that few in Brevard will even consider it) some of these natural assets may again be badly needed.

The flats in the Banana River and its mangrove coasts are prime breeding grounds for both sports fish and commercial fish. They also provide some of the finest duck hunting on the East coast.

The conservationists believe the county has ample highlands left for more thousands of homes, without filling the rivers.

Zone Board Again Says No Permit

By ZOLA SWARTHOUT
Herald Correspondent

JENSEN BEACH — The Jensen Beach zoning committee, at a special meeting, again denied a request for a contractor's storage and office building on the Cutoff Rd.

The "bone of contention" has been tossed back and forth between the County Commission, the county zoning board and the zoning committee for a month.

The permit request was made by Johnny Hendry, owner of the land. His request was turned down by the local zoning committee, headed by Warner B. Tilton.

The county zoning board, failing to get a quorum, took the request for reconsideration directly to the County Commission with a recommendation a permit be issued.

The County Commission, acting as a board of appeals granted the request and a building permit was issued.

When the commission learned the permit had been rejected by the local zoning group, it reversed its decision, and denied the permit.

This caused the county board chairman to remark, "Lets not chew on the same bone twice, from now on all parties in a zoning dispute must be present."

Hendry's attorney, Thomas Thurlow, appeared before the commission last week and asked reconsideration. The commission instructed the Jensen zoning committee to meet within three days and arrive at a decision and inform the planning and zoning board of the results.

The county group will meet Monday in special session to study the problem.

The zoning committee based its decision on grounds the proposed building did not comply with the established setback line, would cause a road bottleneck, and would not be in keeping with the zoning.

Freighter Overhaul Underway

Herald Bureau

MELBOURNE — One of the largest vessels ever to enter Melbourne harbor is a 126-foot freighter, now being conditioned for service by D. S. Thurston. He recently purchased the ship from Sidney M. Boskind.

The vessel is being readied for a trip to the Caribbean, where it will be used in freight service. It can carry 150 tons of cargo and is registered under the Dominican Republic.

Before moving into the harbor, it had anchored in the Indian River between the Melbourne and Eau Gallie causeways.

Held in Murder

WEST PALM BEACH — Franklin Mitchell, 32-year-old Negro of 706½ Seventh St. was held here Saturday for the murder of David Pickett, 38, of 614½ Seventh St. Police said Pickett was shot to death late Friday night and that Mitchell admitted to the shooting. Pickett was shot twice with bullets from a .22 caliber "vest-pocket" postol, police said.

A Nibble Reported For Site

By DAN BROWN
Cocoa Bureau Chief

COCOA — A simple intercity agreement may turn out to be the seed of an industrial development for Central and North Brevard.

The agreement calls for reopening the long dormant Cocoa-Titusville Airport, and "now," says Mayo Hill, executive of the Greater Cocoa Chamber of Commerce, "somebody will be able to use it."

Industrialists have interested themselves in the field from time to time, "but," explains Hill, "they felt they couldn't get anything done dealing with two city councils."

The agreement — which ended a year of Cocoa-Titusville controversy about airport administration — calls for a six-man appointive board to run the field.

Both Cocoa and Titusville, joint owners of the field, will be represented on the board.

The board doesn't exist yet, but Cocoa and Titusville already have one "hard bite" for use of field land.

Peninsular Development Corp. of Orlando wants to take over the whole field and turn most of its 500 acres over to a "large aircraft company" which is seeking Florida land.

Edward J. Hanlon, Peninsular attorney, asked the Cocoa and Titusville councils for a lease on the field during January, but the deal was held off until an airport authority could be set up.

Peninsular already leases a 190-acre industrial park at Orlando Municipal Airport, but Hanlon has explained, the Orlando park isn't big enough.

Plans for the abandoned Navy field are the keynote of Central Brevard plans for industrial promotions, but they aren't the whole story.

A Cocoa group headed by Claude Dyal, an insurance agent, is readying a four-pronged drive for industry in a move designed to balance Brevard's economy which now rests on Cape Canaveral.

Committee members are gathering industrial statistics, searching for industrial property, and planning publicity campaigns and local financing for incoming plants.

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — Brains have been given equal recognition with brawn at Leon High School.

The "Civinettes," a girls' student organization, came up with the idea of awarding letters to the scholars and presented them to 29 of the brainy girls and boys.

To qualify for an academic letter a student must maintain an "A" average, with no more than a single "B" through two consecutive semesters.

Meantime, State School Superintendent Thomas D. Bailey reported the rooting section for the scholars is growing rapidly.

He said the Florida program of rewarding top students by some form of public recognition has caught on nationally.

Bailey wrote the high school principal that Florida Jaycees, for the third year, will present certificates of commendation to every straight "A" student and to every student who makes his school's honor roll.

Last year, the Junior Chamber of Commerce passed out 21,000 honor roll and 5,000 straight "A" certificates.

Bailey long has urged scholarship be given the same recognition as athletic ability. He said his mail indicates the program is stimulating scholarship.

"With the new emphasis being placed upon education since the launching of the Soviet satellite, the wisdom of this program is now even more apparent," he said.

Legislators To Visit Colleges

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — A joint House-Senate appropriations subcommittee will visit Florida's tax-supported universities next week to study their spending needs for the coming biennium.

The committee, headed by Sen. John Rawls of Marianna, will open its hearings Monday at the new University of South Florida in Tampa.

It will spend Tuesday and Wednesday at the University of Florida in Gainesville, and wind up hearings in Tallahassee Thursday and Friday at Florida State and A&M Universities.

The university heads are expected to make a strong pitch for restoration of projects cut out of their proposed budgets by the Cabinet.

But recent financial forecasts have given them little encouragement.

The cabinet, riding with an estimate of revenue furnished by Budget Director Harry Smith, recommended a general spending bill of more than $725,000,000.

Comptroller Ray E. Green said the state will be lucky if present taxes permit a $700,000,000 budget in the coming two years. And the chairman of a special legislative council tax study committee, said his study has led him to the view that the Legislature must hold spending to around $650,000,000 to be safe.

Sen. B. C. Pearce's Tax Committee will study the whole picture at a public meeting here Tuesday — and draft recommendations for the full legislative council which meets the following day.

Next week's hearings of the Rawls committee will wind up the pre-session budget meetings and the appropriations committees will get to work drafting a proposed general bill for submission to the Legislature in April.

Chairmen said they hope to have the measure out of the way by the middle of May, although it usually is among the last bills to pass in the dying days of the session in June.

New Stop Signs Due

WEST PALM BEACH — Keep your eyes peeled for new stop signs.

Congress Can Relax

A Friendly Call, Have No Demands

By ANNE WILDER
Herald Correspondent

FORT PIERCE — Believe it or not—a delegation is going to Washington, and will not ask for a thing!

Members of the Congressional Action Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, will make a two-day flying visit to the capitol, when they will meet with the congressional delegation, get a clearer idea of how Congress functions, and tell the delegation some of their ideas. But—not a single request.

For months, the members of the committee have been meeting weekly to inform themselves on the government and legislation. These meetings have been at 7:30 a.m.

Mrs. Fern Zuver is chairman of the committee of 17. Carl Megelin has headed the "Operation Washington" project, which started with a casual suggestion that a look at Congress in action would be valuable.

The group will leave West Palm Beach the morning of March 18th. On March 19 they will be guests of Congressman Paul Rogers. The committee will be hosts at a dinner March 18th.

Several specific topics will be presented by members of the committee. William J. Piowaty will speak on labor legislation; George Hatzes on foreign aid; Dr. Martin Gould on socialized medicine; and Carl Megelin, on inflation and government spending.

The schedule includes visits to the House and Senate and attendance at committee hearings.

The group will include several wives of members and those planning to go include Dr. and Mrs. Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Hatzes, Mr. and Mrs. Megelin, Ken Peterson, Alvin Morland, Mr. and Mrs. Piowaty, Dr. J. Sims, Mrs. Zuver, and James Strange. The cost of the two day trip is being borne by the members of the committee.

The Little Things Are Big Delay

Melbourne Bureau

MELBOURNE — Operation of Melbourne's new multi-million-dollar water system will be delayed until next week-end—due to several mechanical snags—City Manager Tevis Huguely reported Saturday.

Disappointed Huguely, who had hoped the system would start operating Monday or Tuesday, said minor problems have affected completion of the temporary intake at Lake Washington filtration and treatment plant.

One of these is paint on underwater equipment, slow in drying because of damp weather.

Therefore, flushing of the new mains has to be postponed until Tuesday.

The city manager and Harland H. Mace of Alfred LeFeber and Associates of Cincinnati, consulting engineers, have been working "night and day at the lake plant to expedite its completion."

Huguely said "the public will be kept fully informed with progress reports until water flows through the system."

Meanwhile, Huguely reported, city hall has been beseiged by applicants for service from the new system, especially from Indianlantic, Melbourne Beach, and West Melbourne.

Program Outline Should Be Soon

TALLAHASSEE—(UPI)—Gov. LeRoy Collins, undismayed by legislative blasts at him, is reported ready to present his most ambitious program yet to the Legislature in April.

Collins had better than average success with his first two Legislatures. But he faces rocky going in this session, principally because it is his last.

In addition, his racial stands have brought antagonism from several elements.

The governor has not announced a specific program, but parts of it have come to light, and more may be disclosed this week.

Collins has said he will not recommend any new or general tax increase. A special tax committee of the Legislative Council will meet Tuesday to decide what it will recommend.

The chairman, Sen. B. C. Pearce of Palatka, disagrees with the governor that no tax increases are needed to finance the $725,000,000 two-year budget the cabinet recommended.

He said without new taxes, the Legislature is going to have to carve about $75,000,000 off proposed spending.

The governor's constitutional advisory committee has completed work on a reapportionment proposal and other law reforms and Collins plans to unveil the finished product to a meeting of key legislators sometime this week.

His advisory committee on race legislation has also finished its study and recommendations will be made public soon, maybe this week.

The governor's program also will include:

1. A change in gas tax laws.
2. A reorganization of the State Department of Agriculture.
3. Continued reform in prisons.
4. Equalized real estate assessments.
5. Centralized purchasing.

In addition, Collins probably will ask for 25 or 30 other less controversial reforms.

Battle lines are drawn on the hottest issue — school laws. There is evidence it will be a three-day struggle, with Collins in one corner, Attorney General Richard Ervin in one, and a "no-surrender" group of legislators in a third.

The new state constitution, to be proposed by Collins, may get lost in the shuffle.

Collins drove a new constitution through the Legislature in 1957, but the State Supreme Court threw it out because it was tied together in a daisy-chain fashion, so the voters had to take all or none.

Since then, he has had a committee working on a new state charter to present to the session.

The governor said this week he is in accord with State Road Department plans to ask the Legislature to revamp gas tax laws to give the state complete jurisdiction over six of the seven cents gas tax and counties the remaining one cent.

At present, the state controls four of the seven cents and has partial control over another one.

Agriculture Commissioner Nathan Mayo is expected to join in opposition to wholesale reorganization of the Department of Agriculture.

But Collins probably will get enough support in the Legislature to get most of it through if not all.

67 Tickets Scored for Crackdown

By BILL BUNGE
Melbourne Bureau Chief

MELBOURNE — A police crackdown on traffic violators last week resulted in 67 tickets being issued and $396 in fines collected, Chief John D. Thomas reported Saturday.

Forty-seven motorists were charged with violations. The remaining 20 were bike riders, three over 17 years of age. No motor bike riders were arrested.

A by-product of the police "get tough policy," which followed the city's first traffic fatality in three years, has been a rush to City Hall to apply for licenses by bicycle owners.

City Clerk Mary Lou Knecht said 114 such licenses were issued during the first three days of the safety campaign.

Parents have been asked to cooperate with police in the bike safety drive by "informing their children of city ordinances," Thomas said.

Running stop signs cost 25 motorists $5 each in the first week. Six paid $35 each for reckless driving, and 16 double parkers had to put out $1 each. No tickets were issued for speeding.

"Double parking has got to stop," Chief Thomas declared. "If it isn't stopped—and quickly—we are going to increase the fine for this offense."

Of the bike riders over 17, one paid $20 for having neither license, registration nor light; one paid $5 for no registration, and the third, $20 for riding two on a bike.

The 17 juveniles were charged "with just about every conceivable violation of the bicycle ordinance and were taken into juvenile court," the chief reported.

He said there have been a few "squawks" about the crackdown but most people especially the parents of children who ride bicycles, have voiced "enthusiastic approval" of the enforcement measures.

The chief said the get tough policy is not to be considered a 10-day splurge, "because it's going to be a continuing and increasingly effective drive."

Motorist Pulls Pin, Parts Long Freight

By ANNE WILDER
Herald Correspondent

FORT PIERCE—Police are seeking a motorist who uncoupled a freight train early Saturday at the Seaway Dr. crossing.

A witness saw the man uncouple the cars, and thought he was a railroad employe, until he jumped in a car and drove off.

FEC officials said the man not only uncoupled the car, but "cut off the air," so the emergency brakes would not set. The engineer, unaware that part of the train was unhitched, pulled into the yard there, and discovered something was missing—part of his train.

Railway officials took a dim view of the prank, but reported that, fortunately, the only effect was a delay in the yard work.

Why this successful military man switched to a completely new field makes for a fascinating story.

JERUSALEM, Israel —(P)— A few years ago Maj. Gen. Yigal Yadin was chief of staff of the Israeli army. Today at 41 he is by choice a civilian and by accomplishment one of the world's leading archeologists.

And no one in Israel thinks it the least unusual that Yadin abandoned a brilliant military career for excavations and the study of scrolls and artifacts.

For in this land of the Bible, one of the well-trodden crossroads of human history, the remote past is as alive as the present. The events of two or three millenia ago are nearly as real as the current events in the morning paper. The archaeologist is as much a part of life as the soldier or politician.

Yadin's change of careers widened the impact of his talents. Where once he fought for Israel, today he works for the entire world of learning. He has helped add greatly to the store of knowledge of Biblical history.

In his new work, Yadin is following in the footsteps of his father, the late professor Eliezer Sukenik, who headed the archeology department of Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

(It is not uncommon for a son's name to differ from his father's in Israel, where many people have taken new Hebrew names or translated their names into Hebrew.)

During the Arab-Israeli War of 1948-49, Prof. Sukenik made perilous journeys into Arab-held territory to purchase for a few hundred dollars the first three of the now famous Dead Sea scrolls.

He made the trips against the advice of his son. But later, Yadin also played a part in the fantastic story of the scrolls. He handled negotiations in New York which led to the purchase for Israel of four more scrolls. These cost nearly a half-million dollars.

Prof. Sukenik died in 1953. His son now carries on in his place at Hebrew University.

Yadin lives in the house of his father, a house built of yellow cut stone which typifies all of new Jerusalem. It was here, in the yard, that Sukenik buried the first three scrolls for a time to protect them in case the Arabs invaded the Israeli sector of the city.

Yadin, tall, a little round at the middle, speaks fluent English. He is quite likely to deliver a visitor what amounts to an hour's lecture on current archeological work in Israel.

The Bible tells how Joshua led the Israelites in capturing and destroying Hazor, one of the Caananites' principal cities. If the date of its destruction could be pinned down, it would assist greatly in dating events described in the Bible subsequently.

For four seasons, 250 diggers and 40 to 45 archeologists worked at Hazor. They made rich finds. It turned out there had been 20 cities on the site of Hazor. The site had once housed 40,000 people on an area of 150 acres — an ancient metropolis. Yadin's group found 250,000 artifacts, 1,000 of which have considerable value.

More importantly, it was possible after studying the evidence to date Hazor's destruction by the Israelites in the 13th Century B.C. much more precisely than before.

Reports on the Hazor excavations are currently being published in scientific journals.

Another subject close to Yadin's heart are the investigations being made by him and his Israeli colleagues on the Dead Sea scrolls.

Ten years ago, Yadin was engaged in a completely different kind of work. As one of Israel's leading commanders and chief of operations of the general staff, he had much of the responsibility for the survival of the newly reborn country.

He came to his post of command as the logical result of heading the general staff branch of Hagana, the Jewish underground in Palestine, in 1947.

Yadin's abandonment of his military career for a civilian pursuit is not unusual in Israel. Maj. Gen. Yaakov Dori, chief of the general staff during the Arab-Israeli war, is now president of Israel's leading technological institute, the Technion in Haifa. Maj. Gen. Moshe Dayan, chief of staff during the Sinai campaign of 1956, has retired from Army life to take his chances on a political career.

Police Say They Helped Fugitives

Businessmen Accused Of 'Aiding' Robbers

PENSACOLA — A pair of Pensacola businessmen accused of master-minding four robberies were in jail Saturday on $10,000 bond each.

William W. Doyle, 45, and Thomas E. Pearson, 47, waived a preliminary hearing on charges of being accessories in the $2,000 robbery of Eugene Taylor and his son, John, last December.

Justice of the Peace L. B. Morgan set the high bonds for the two men accused of aiding a pair of Georgia prison fugitives stage the Taylor robbery and holdups at three liquor stores that netted $442.

Burns Fatal

ST. PETERSBURG — Mrs. Pearl V. Mason, 59, died Saturday of burns suffered in a fire at ther apartment here three weeks ago.

Detective Sgt. Cliff Frye said Mrs. Mason's son, John Beaver, told officers he heard his mother scream. He ran into her bedroom to find the housecoat she was wearing afire. She suffered first and second degree burns before Mason could extinguish the flames.

Officers said a match used to light a cigarette apparently ignited the garment.

Miss Reindel Weds R. Carroll Peacock

LAKE WORTH — Candlelight, white flowers, and tropical greenery enhanced the First Presbyterian Church, where Astrid Elizabeth Reindel and R. Carroll Peacock were married Saturday. Rev. Fred Kullmar performed the ceremony.

A patio reception was held at the home of the bride's aunt and uncle, Judge and Mrs. Russell O. Morrow, 1102 N. O St.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Astrid Reindel, 1251 N. 17th Ave. Mr. Peacock is the son of Mrs. R. C. Blain, 801 Ardmore Rd., West Palm Beach.

Given in marriage by Judge Morrow, the bride wore her sister's wedding gown of slipper satin and chantilly lace, the full skirt worn over hoops and terminating in a court train. A bonnet of matching lace held the illusion veil.

The bride carried a bouquet of cattleya and phalaenopsis orchids.

Mrs. John Hoffman of Albuquerque, N. M., was her sister's matron of honor. Mrs. Harry Downer of Grosse Pointe Park, Mich., and Carol Dahlberg, Scarsdale, N. Y., cousins of the bride, and Ann Houser were other attendants while Michelle Orvis and Brenda Peacock, cousins of the bridegroom, were junior bridesmaids.

All attendants wore ballerina length frocks of beige silk organza embroidered in miniature pink flowers, and touched with avocado green satin. They carried pink tea roses and feathered carnations.

Robert Peacock was best man for his nephew. Ushers were Edward Hill, the bridegroom's cousin; Russell Turpin; William Walker; John Hoffman and Harry Downer. Russell Hoffman was ringbearer.

After a honeymoon in Nassau, the newlyweds will live at 3511-½ Washington Rd., West Palm Beach.

Mrs. Peacock is a graduate of Lake Worth High School. She attended Weslyan College, Macon, Ga., and was graduated in 1958 from the University of Florida. She holds an A.B. degree in radio and television education and communication.

During her senior year she was president of Alpha Delta Pi. She is a member of Alpha Epsilon Rho, radio and television honorary society, and Kappa Tau Sigma Society of Journalism. She is also affiliated with PEO Sisterhood.

Mrs. Peacock teaches at Lake Worth High School.

Following graduation from Palm Beach High School, Mr. Peacock attended the University of Georgia, and received his degree in architecture from the University of Florida.

He served as president of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, was vice president of his senior class, and is a member of Gargoyle scholastic fraternity of arts and architecture, and is an associate of the American Institute of Architecture.

He is a member of the West Palm Beach Jaycees and the Kiwanis Club. He is now with the architectural firm of Plockelman, Powell, and Edge.

City Power Systems Given Alert

JACKSONVILLE — (AP) — Municipal electric systems must work together or be swallowed up by privately owned firms, Alex Radin, general manager of the American Public Power Association, said Saturday.

He spoke at a closing session of the Florida Municipal Utilities Association convention.

"Where the private power companies are not attempting to purchase municipal systems outright, they frequently can be found in the forefront of efforts to stop municipal electric systems from expanding their generating facilities," Radin said.

Laws usually make it more diffucult to start a new municipal utility than to sell an existing one, Radin said, so that once a city gives up its valuable electric system there is little chance of getting it back.

He cited as an example the sale of the city owned electric system at Dunkirk, N. Y., where he said within two years the people were faced with two rate increases.

He urged municipal utilities to reduce rates where possible and to avoid excessive diversion of utility revenue to general support of the city government instead of using it for plant expansion.

Drainage District Wants to Expand

Herald Bureau

DELRAY BEACH — The Lake Worth Drainage District Friday asked for legislation enabling it to expand its eastern boundary to take in 12,000 acres stretching from Boca Raton to West Palm Beach.

The county's three-man legislative delegation indicated it would not sponsor the proposed bill unless there was provision for a referendum.

Speaking for Reps. Ralph Blank Jr. and Emmett Roberts, State Sen. Fred O. (Bud) Dickenson said "we need an expression from a substantial portion of the people affected."

Land incorporated into the district would be subject to an annual tax of $1.40 per acre or any portion of an acre.

Principally involved would be farm land and sub-divisions running south from West Palm Beach through Lake Worth, Lantana, Boynton Beach, Delray Beach to Boca Raton.

Also included are the Boca Raton and Palm Beach International Airports.

Delray Beach Attorney John Adams, representing the district, said he could not estimate the number of property holders involved or pinpoint the subdivisions by name.

However, Adams said he understood that "most of the property owners" favored inclusion. He pointed out that those now outside of the district, but taking advantage of its services, are required to pay $2.80 an acre.

Adams estimated that a referendum would cost $80,000 and indicated that it was just about out of the question.

The district maintains a network of drainage canals designed primarily for the benefit of the farmers. They provide water for irrigation and a means for draining off surplus water. According to Adams, there are 100,000 acres in the district.

Fred McNeece, a former drainage district commissioner, told the delegation the canals are now overloaded with water coming from new sub-divisions which make no contribution for their maintenance.

"The farmers don't feel they should pay all of the cost," McNeece said.

Adams said the County Commission is "wholeheartedly behind" the proposed expansion and was "encouraging the district to assume more responsibility."

Bus Firm Target for More Suits

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — Several more suits to foreclose Florida Cities Bus Co. will be filed Monday in Circuit Court, a Miami attorney revealed this weekend.

Sidney Efronson said foreclosure action will be taken Monday against "all buses, equipment and real estate" of the bus company, which provides service for the Greater West Palm Beach area.

Efronson is the attorney for plaintiffs in two foreclosure suits against 29 buses. These were filed Friday.

The bus company has been in and out of court in union hassles and foreclosure suits for the past several months.

The latest financial woes involve two debts — one for $30,059 and the other for $18,080. The foreclosure action is aimed at 29 buses, chattel mortgages for the debts.

The suits were filed by J. Alan Cross Jr. and E. E. Price and MacMillan Oil Co. They ask Circuit Court to order an account, a foreclosure, and a sale of the mortgaged property.

Ship Blaze Controlled At Tampa

TAMPA — (AP) — Firemen from three companies battled a smoldering blaze aboard a 412-foot cargo ship for eight hours early Saturday before extinguishing the flames. No one was injured.

Fire Inspector B. O. Fox said the motor vessel Del Oro caught fire at sea Friday afternoon while en route to Tampa from Argentina with a load of cattle feed. Firemen were waiting at the dock when the ship arrived.

Fox said distilled grain used as cattle feed apparently ignited deep in the No. 1 hold.

The ship, owned by the Mississippi Shipping Co., is registered out of New Orleans. John F. Ownes of New Orleans, captain of the 7,000-ton vessel, said he had no idea as to the extent of the damage.

Truck Stop Prostitution Denied by 6

ST. AUGUSTINE — (AP) — A women and five men have pleaded innocent here to charges of operating a bawdy house.

They were arrested at a truck stop between here and Jacksonville, which was raided through the efforts of a state investigator.

Gov. LeRoy Collins ordered the action, saying Sheriff L. O. Davis of St. Johns County had not raided the place in spite of complaints relayed to him. The governor decided not to suspend the sheriff after talking with him Wednesday.

County Judge Charles C. Mathis Jr., set $3,300 bonds for each and all posted them. Two other women arrested at the place on charges of prostitution are free on $150 bonds.

Ex-Governor May Run Again

'What's Caldwell Going to Do?'

By HAROLD PARR

TALLAHASSEE—(AP)—Millard Caldwell has maneuvered himself into an advantageous position in the 1960 sweepstakes for governor. He has other potential candidates worried.

Almost the first thing a capitol newman hears when he bumps into one of the governorship hopefuls is the question: "What's Millard going to do?"

Apparently no one has the answer except the tall, stern man who was governor from 1945 to 1949. And it well could be he doesn't yet know himself.

"I certainly don't want to run, and right now I don't think I will, but—" he said, while running through the text of a speech he was preparing to deliver.

Did the "but" mean some situation might develop which would put him in the field?

People can't figure his speech-making, taking him to all parts of the state, as anything but preliminary to a campaign.

There is no doubt Caldwell's massive figure and biting oratory are becoming well-known throughout Florida again.

Caldwell has one main theme—state's rights. But he has been branching out, adding sharp attacks on governmental spending and leadership to criticism of what he charges is the U.S. Supreme Court's usurpation of power.

Caldwell, too has been blasting Collins, without naming him. Caldwell long has been at odds with Collins.

Their political feud goes back to Caldwell's successful 1944 campaign for governor, when Collins served as Leon County campaign manager for Ernest Graham, former State Senator from Dade County.

Caldwell hasn't been a big figure on the state scene since leaving the governorship. He backed the late Dan McCarty as his successor, but Fuller Warren grabbed the plum.

When McCarty tried again, and won, Caldwell was in the corner of former Supreme Court Justice Alto Adams.

Caldwell sat out the Johns-Collins-Odham campaign in 1954. Caldwell was silent, too, three years ago when Collins whipped Bryant, Warren and Sumter Lowry of Tampa.

Business? Generally It's Good

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — More than 1½ million tourists streamed into Florida by automobile during January, the State Development Commission reported Saturday.

The figure does not include those who arrived by train, plane, bus or boat.

The commission said that 647,980 cars carrying winter visitors entered the state during the month. Each car carried an average of 2.5 persons. That means that 1,619,550 tourists drove into Florida.

The figures were from a survey, conducted by the State Road Department at the request of the commission. Mechanical counters and car checkers were placed on all federal and state roads leading into Florida from Georgia and Alabama. The counts were made on a seven day a week, 24 hours a day basis.

However, last winter's persistent cold may still be having its effect on the resort business here. It's likely a lot of potential visitors, nursing memories of last season's shivers, are fearful of being nipped again.

This is how things are around the state:

Miami-Miami Beach — Business at Hialeah race track is down a little. Some hotels are turning away guests, others are crying for customers. Stores selling luxury goods report a drop, but customers are plentiful at those which cater to mass market.

Sarasota — Tourist inquiries are up 25 per cent and registrations up 15 per cent over last year. However, business is still off in comparison to seasonal peaks before last winter.

Jacksonville Beach — Expecting its biggest season yet, with some tourists saying they plan to make longer visits than usual.

Fort Myers — Tourist attractions report business down 10 per cent, but traffic is about 4,000 cars a day more than last year. Dog track attendance is up and Edison Pageant of Light drew the biggest crowd in its history.

Tampa — Tourist business was off before Christmas, but has reached a normal level since. Dog track attendance is almost what it was last year.

Daytona Beach — Business received big boost from opening of the Daytona International Speedway. Improvement has been noticed since Christmas.

St. Augustine — Tourist business is off considerably, even in contrast with last year. No theories advanced as to cause.

Fort Lauderdale — January was slow, but February was much better than last year. Advance reservations are heavy through April.

Tallahassee — An inland city, it has no resort hotels. However, tourist courts report more business than any time last year.

On the whole, business is much better than last year, although improvement is spotty.

240 Acres Sold

WEST PALM BEACH — Forest Hill Village Inc. bought 240 acres of land west of Military Tr. for $402,900, according to a warranty deed filed Friday in Circuit Court. Sellers of the property fronting on Forest Hills Blvd. were Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Wilson of Palm Beach County.

Boy Cylcist Dies From Injuries

CLEARWATER — (AP) — A 14-year-old boy from nearby Belleair Beach died in a hospital Saturday, shortly after the motorcycle on which he was riding with another crashed into a bridge railing.

Dale Miller died of head and internal injuries. Tommy Parsons, 16, of Largo, driver of the motorcycle, was listed in serious condition with similar injuries.

Miller became the third teenage traffic fatality in the county within an 18-hour period.

The Housing Authority of the City of Miami, Florida will receive bids for the Alterations to Liberty Square Community Building, Project Fla. 5-5, until 10:00 A.M., EST, Tuesday, March 24, 1959 at the Housing Authority of the City of Miami, 327 N.W. 62nd Street, P.O. Box 51-186 Edison Center Station, Miami, Florida, at which time and place all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud.

Proposal forms of contract documents, including plans and specifications, are on file at the office of the Housing Authority of the City of Miami at 327 N.W. 62nd Street, Miami, Florida.

Copies of the documents may be obtained by depositing $15.00 with the Housing Authority of the City of Miami for each set of documents so obtained. Two sets of documents may be so obtained, and additional sets may be purchased for $15.00 each. Such deposits will be refunded to each person who returns the plans, specifications and other documents in good condition within 10 days after bid opening, and providing that a bona fide bid is submitted at the time and on the day specified above. Checks filed as deposits on bid documents shall be made payable to the Housing Authority of the City of Miami.

A certified check or bank draft, payable to the Housing Authority of the City of Miami, U.S. Government bonds or a satisfactory bid bond executed by the bidder and acceptable sureties in an amount equal to five per cent (5%) of the bid shall be submitted with each bid.

The successful bidder will be required to furnish and pay for satisfactory performance and payment bond or bonds.

Attention is called to the fact that no less than the minimum salaries and wages set forth in the specifications must be paid on this project.

The Housing Authority of the City of Miami reserves the right to reject any or all bids or to waive any informalities in the bidding.

No bid shall be withdrawn for a period of thirty (30) days subsequent to the opening of bids without the consent of the Housing Authority of the City of Miami.

A Close Look at Our Moment of Peril

We'll Let Russia Strike First—Then What?

The Great Debate

The "Great Debate" rages over a question that could determine our national existence: Are we building modern weapons of war fast enough and good enough to meet an ominous Russian threat? No one man has the answer. But in the provocative series of articles that starts today one of America's great reporters presents facts and opinions that can help all Americans to a clearer realization of the life-or-death problem.

CONSIDINE

By BOB CONSIDINE
Herald Columnist

FOR THE FIRST time since the War of 1812 there is genuine concern in Washington over the ability of the U. S. to survive an enemy attack.

It is not a general concern. There are elements of the military and officialdom which see little chance of a nuclear war with the Soviet Union. Others, including key figures in the Eisenhower administration, feel no apprehension over the lead which the U.S.S.R. apparently has taken in the field of the ultimate weapon — the intercontinental ballistic missile. They see no need to increase the 40 billion dollar arms budget.

Yet despite this pacifying atmosphere in several high and influential quarters, responsible Americans of all political shades go to bed these nights haunted by such bugaboos as these:

A prospectus drawn up in the Defense Department, and kept under lock and key, states that if the Soviet Union has the long-range weapons delivery system it boasts about, a salvo of its nuclear-tipped missiles would kill 10,000,000 Americans and virtually or entirely demolish our means of retaliation.

Another Defense Department estimate is that by the end of 1960 the U.S.S.R. will have a 3-1 edge over the U.S. in ICBMs. But no speed-up program to close the gap is now planned.

A prominent senator known for his advocacy of the U.S. Air Force states that 75 per cent of the Strategic Air Command's striking force is obsolescent. He questions whether more than a handful of SAC's hundreds of big manned bombers could survive Soviet air defense and reach their assigned targets in any retaliatory raid.

The Distant Early Warning line of radar sites, built across the Arctic from Alaska to Greenland at a cost of hundreds of millions, to detect a Red air force manned bomber fleet which may or may not exist, cannot spot Soviet ICBMs. A crash program to "raise the sights" of our polar detection system is only now getting under way.

The Navy's Polaris missile, submarine-based, will not be ready for another year. Its critics say that it will have only half the predicted 1,500-mile range. But the sea service has stopped production of an excellent interim missile, the air-breathing Regulus II, after spending about 250 million dollars.

The Air Force's solid fuel ICBM, "Minuteman," will not be ready until perhaps 1965. In the interim, it must depend on the complex and immobile liquid-fueled Atlas and Titan which require hours, if not days, to prepare for launching. Flying time of a Russian ICBM from its Soviet base to any U. S. target: 25 minutes.

The Army, with the most notable record in the missile field, has been generally thwarted in its efforts to build bigger and better weapons, including the Nike Zeus, anti-missile missile believed capable of knocking out enemy ICBMs flying in space at 15 times the speed of sound.

The Defense Department, Central Intelligence Agency and White House firmly rule out all attempts to change the country's traditional outlook on war. In an age of superweapons development where in a great war might be decided in minutes rather than years, we still concede to the enemy the initial blow. A big question in Washington today is, "But will we be able to get off the floor and fight back after being hit?"

This and subsequent articles will attempt to illuminate some of the problems confronting military and political leaders and print the answers as those experts see them. Independent observation will be included.

The answers of the principals involved do not always coincide. The thousands of pages of testimony taken by the preparedness investigating subcommittee of the Senate's Armed Services, Missile and Space Activities Committee, as well as other fact-seeking probes, are laced with differences and contradictions. Ask the same question of any three men involved in Washington's latest Great Debate

Asks for Leadership

Collins Says Politicos Fear Rights Issue

EXCLUSIVE

By DAVID J. KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The civil rights controversy has the nation's leaders "quaking in their political boots," Gov. LeRoy Collins told leading U.S. Democrats Saturday.

Collins, addressing a $100-a-plate dinner honoring newly elected Democrat governors, charged the nation's leadership with being "fearful even to seek honorable, sensible adjustments" to the hot race problems.

He said the whole rights issue left the nation "badly divided" in facing the outside world.

Then leveling a blast at the Republicans, the Florida governor said:

"Our national administration, at a crucial time in history, is not measuring up to changing responsibilities. This is the basis for the uneasiness which stirs Americans these days."

He called on Democrats to choose as a Presidential candidate "an uncommon man with a common touch . . . a man of progressive outlook with a solid record of achievement."

The governor, mentioned frequently as a possible Democratic candidate for president or vice president in 1960 shared top billing before some 2,000 guests at the dinner with Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, the powerful Democratic majority leader.

Today's Chuckle

"I'll carry this case to the highest court in the land," said the lawyer to the prisoner, "but in the meantime you'd better try to escape."

Citadel

Capital Will Be 'Jumping'

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Official Washington, long attuned to the spoken political word as a kind of music, is going to try its ear on some jazz starting today.

Patrons of the Washington Jazz Jubilee include some names you wouldn't think of as cool cats:

Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, Mrs. Earl Warren, Mrs. John Foster Dulles, 22 ambassadors and their wives, seven cabinet officers and their wives, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and his wife, Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.).

Mrs. Eisenhower Mrs. Nixon

Washington's first jazz concert with such prominent backing is being arranged by a group of congressional wives raising money for Friendship House, a settlement house on Capitol Hill. The jubilee chairman is Mrs. Richard Bolling, wife of the Democratic representative from Missouri.

A band of jazz greats will shake the rafters of a Washington hotel ballroom on the night of March 16. What Mrs. Bolling calls "an uptown level" will be supplied by the Library of Congress and the National Gallery of Art.

Marshall Stearns, literature professor at Hunter College and writer on jazz, will lecture on the subject at the Art Gallery today.

On Monday the Library of Congress will open an exhibit, "Seven Ages of Jazz," to trace its course from the early folk music to the Carnegie Hall.

Why jazz jubilee in Washington?

"We wanted something new—the benefit circuit has been so overdone," Mrs. Bolling said. "The patrons aren't jazz buffs, but they're really glad to know what it's all about."

Pan-Am Strike Averted

Sides Agree At Meeting

By TOM LOWNES
Herald Staff Writer

Threat of a systemwide strike against Pan American Airways by its 7,000 Transport Workers Union employes was lifted early Saturday as both sides came out of an all-night meeting with an agreement "in principle."

The threatened strike, which had been set for midnight Monday, would have affected some 3,000 PAA workers in Miami and another 1,500 at the strategic Cape Canaveral Missile Test Center.

Federal Mediator Frances A. O'Neill, who several times prevented hot-tempered union and company leaders from stalking out of the night-long meeting in New York, said the agreement was reached at 6 a.m.

Both company and union officials refused to outline terms of the tentative settlement, but Miamian William Grogan, international vice president of TWU, said, "It's a good contract which we can submit with honor to our members."

The union's 20-member negotiating committee will meet in New York at 7 p.m Monday to hear terms of the contract. If they accept the plan, it will be submitted for a TWU general membership vote later in the week.

There were strong indications Saturday that the union did not succeed in pushing through its major demand — a 37½-hour week for all members.

The word "hours" was conspicuously missing from O'Neill's only comment on terms of the agreement: "It concerned wages, rules and working conditions."

In Miami, Bernard H. Diesen, president of TWU Local 500, pointed out that the union's wage demands had been added only three months ago after TWU leaders reported that hour negotiations were deadlocked.

U.S. Laying Plans For Berlin Crisis

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The U.S. has decided on a series of moves to prepare for the expected May 27 showdown with Russia over Berlin.

The Defense and State Departments are now planning precise steps, officials reported Saturday. These are said to fall into two categories—measures to reinforce the Western military-political position on a long-range basis and measures concerned directly with the Berlin crisis.

In connection with the first type, the U.S. has decided to go ahead on an early agreement with Italy to base intermediate range (1,500-mile) ballistic missiles on Italian territory. Now that the new government of Antonio Segni is firmly established in Rome the IRBM pact is expected to be quickly arranged.

After review of the problem within the State and Defense Departments it has also been decided, officials said, to continue replacing F100 jet fighter aircraft with the latest very high speed F101s. Apart from this, West Germany is reported interested in buying some F104s and the U.S. may be willing to sell them in the present circumstances.

Informants said any failure of the U.S. at this point to go forward with plans to strengthen its own bases and its allies overseas would be construed by the Soviets as a sign of weakness. They said that from President Eisenhower down the intention now is to avoid giving Moscow reason for any such miscalculation.

As far as measures aimed specifically at Berlin and Germany are concerned, inquiry in official quarters indicated that as Russia's deadline for abandonment of its occupation role in East Berlin approaches, the U.S. Strategic Air Command will be put in a fully alert status and the Strategic Army Command with its highly mobile force of four divisions may be made ready for quick action.

At the moment, however, the best-informed officials discount talk of any large-scale mobilization.

Concern with military moves increased inside the administration — as well as in Congress — after Soviet Premier Nikita Khurshchev Tuesday assailed Western proposals for negotiation on Germany and Berlin issues. His attack was delivered in such a way as to embarrass and rebuff the visiting British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Nikita's Going to Germany

MOSCOW — (AP) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev is making a surprise trip to East Germany, possibly foreshadowing the next Soviet move in the Berlin crisis.

The official Tass News Agency Saturday said tersely that Khrushchev will visit the International Trade Fair at Leipzig. It did not say when, nor would the foreign ministry give a date. The fair opens today.

The press chief of the Soviet embassy in East Berlin, V. M. Beburov, said Khrushchev is expected to arrive in Leipzig Wednesday.

This will be after a closing meeting with visiting British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in the Kremlin Monday. Macmillan will leave for home Tuesday.

There was speculation that Khrushchev might use the visit to discuss a separate peace treaty with East Germany, following the failure to make any progress on the German question in talks with Macmillan.

The government newspaper Izvestia quoted Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan as saying a separate peace treaty for East Germany may be in the wind.

34,425 See Troilus Win

The largest Hialeah Park crowd in two seasons — 34,425 — watched second-choice Troilus win the $135,800 Flamingo Stakes Saturday.

Troilus took the lead on the final turn and finished three lengths ahead of Open View. The favored First Landing finished third. Troilus paid $6.90, $4.70 and $3.10.

Suicides Fail

OSAKA Japan — (UPI) — Sanji Ito, a 53-year-old high school principal, and School Clerk Nariko Suzuki, 21, are recovering from poison taken in a suicide pact. They decided to kill themselves because their May and December romance was "impossible."

Mack Gordon, Lyricist, Dies

NEW YORK — (AP) — Mack Gordon, 54, who wrote the lyrics for many hit tunes, died Saturday after a brief illness.

He wrote the words for such hits as "Time On My Hands," "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking," "Chattanooga Choo-Choo," "Love Thy Neighbor," "You'll Never Know," and "Stay as Sweet as You Are."

Prior to his songwriting career, he was a vaudeville comedian and singer.

7 Hockey Players Die as Roof Falls

LISTOWEL, Ont. — (AP) — Seven Peewee League hockey players—all of them 12 or under—were killed Saturday when the snow-burdened roof of the Listowel Memorial Arena collapsed. Their recreation director also died in the thundering collapse.

Nineteen others were hurt. Nine of them were treated at the hospital for minor injuries and sent home.

Rescue workers dug frantically through the debris for other possible victims but police said later all the missing had been accounted for.

Listowel is in Ontario's snowbelt and there is about 25 inches of snow on the ground in the area.

The adult victim was Kenneth McLeod, 35, recreation director for this town of 3,530 population 25 miles northeast of Kitchener.

The only other adult in the arena, Norman Stirling, 32, was taken to a hospital. He is coach of the team and assistant recreation director.

The manager of the arena, Percy Knoblaugh, said he was standing at the entrance when the walls buckled. Then the roof crashed.

Police said it was difficult to determine just who was in the arena when the roof fell.

Twenty-two boys' coats were found in the cloak room near the entrance.

Canaveral Bird Set For Its Space Probe

CAPE CANAVERAL — (UPI) — A dense, lingering overcast closed in on the cape Saturday and it appeared highly unlikely the Army would try to launch its new space probe rocket before today.

The tall Juno II moon bird, designed to hurl its gold-plated payload past the lunar sphere and into orbit around the sun, was ready for firing.

But the forecast gave the cape area only a 50-50 chance for the 2,000-foot ceiling necessary for a launching, odds too short for the Army rocketeers to gamble on.

A top project official said that "as far as we can see now, everything about the bird itself looks perfect — the telemetry (radio reporting setup), the mechanics, all that's important."

The Army plans to aim the stately four-stage rocket directly at the moon and has estimated it will take 34 hours for the 13-pound Pioneer IV probe vehicle to reach the lunar sphere.

The overcast did not, however, halt an Air Force attempt to test a futuristic nose cone over intercontinental range early Saturday.

A Thor-Able test rocket fired at 2:48 a.m. knifed through several layers of clouds to start its mission to the South Atlantic.

But the Defense Department said 11 hours later it was not sure what happened to the rocket.

Hopes Dim Of Rocket Orbiting

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — (UPI) — The Air Force Saturday fired the first satellite-carrying rocket in the "Project Discoverer" program, but nearly four hours after the launching no signals had been received from the 1,300-pound artificial moon.

When the 78.2-foot long rocket-satellite blasted off at 4:49 p.m. Miami time, controlling Air Force officers said orbiting should be achieved in "two to three hours."

But Saturday night, hopes dimmed. The Air Force still held out a slim hope of successful orbiting.

The planned orbit would be like a hoop around the earth, passing over the North and South Poles. Achievement of the orbit would be a step toward the creation of reconnaissance satellites, which could scan the whole earth as it revolved below.

Air Force officials said the launching was "a success" regardless of success or failure of the orbit. The primary goal had been accomplished, the testing of the second stage vehicle.

The satellite-bearing rocket lunged from its launch pad and headed straight up into a cloudless blue sky, leaving a bright yellow tail of fire clearly visible from the press observation center nearly two miles away.

After the Discoverer — the first attempt to launch a satellite from the Pacific Coast — reached an altitude of between 10,000 to 15,000 feet, it arched into a horizontal flight, leaving a long vapor trail. It appeared that the rocket was heading south in the general direction of Los Angeles, but the shot was designed to send it southwest over the Pacific.

The Air Force confirmed five minutes after the firing that telemetry data showed the 18.8-foot long satellite stage had separated from the Thor booster and was continuing its spaceward climb.

It was estimated that the second stage of the rocket required a speed of approximately 25,000 miles an hour to place it in orbit.

The satellite — which weighs 1,300 pounds — carried a 40-pound payload of telemetry equipment, but no animals. The first shot is mainly to test the vehicle.

But mice and monkeys soon will ride the moons into orbit as scientists probe "environmental conditions" of space in research aimed at developing a manned satellite.

Two earlier attempts to fire the Discoverer literally never got off the ground. Technical difficulties were blamed for scrubbing the shot both Jan. 21 and Wednesday.

Reds Accidentally Cut Cable, Navy Man Thinks

'That's My Personal Opinion'

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The U.S. naval officer who led a boarding party onto a Soviet fishing trawler said Saturday he believed the Russian ship accidentally cut a transatlantic cable.

SHEELY

Lt. Donald Martin Sheely of Fairmont, Minn., said the cable "was most probably accidentally cut by them. That's my personal opinion."

He said there was no evidence that it was cut deliberately but "I am not convinced they didn't cut it deliberately."

Sheely said the Russians took the attitude that their fishing equipment was new and they did not think they could have cut the cable.

Sheely and two other members of the boarding party were flown here to report to the Navy.

They also were questioned at the State Department before meeting newsmen at the Pentagon.

Sheely said he was "somewhat nervous" about boarding the Russian trawler Novorossisk but he and other members of the party went unarmed.

The Soviet ship responded, Sheely said, when the U.S. destroyer Roy O. Hale hoisted an international flag signal to heave to for a boarding party.

He said the Russians were "not social. They accepted us but were not overly friendly." Sheely said he believed there was more electronic equipment aboard the Soviet vessel "than we would expect to see on one of our own fishing vessels."

The party boarded the Soviet craft under terms of an 1884 treaty permitting inspection of documents of ships suspected of damaging oceanic cables. Five cable breaks had been reported.

The Navy had announced Thursday night that Sheely's party found no intent on the part of the trawler to do anything but fish.

Air Crash Kills Five Navy Men

PRESCOTT, Ariz. —(UPI)— Five Navy crewmen were killed Saturday when their Military Air Transport Service Superconstellation crashed, exploded an burned at the edge of a busy highway.

There were no survivors. The craft was assigned to Transport Squadron 7 of the Naval Air Station at Moffatt Field, Calif. It was on a routine training flight from Litchfield Naval Air Facility near Phoenix.

Names of victims were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Demand $12,500,000 Wage Boost

Teamsters Bare Plan For Public Workers

By TOM LOWNES
Herald Staff Writer

Out-of-town Teamsters organizers set up headquarters in a Miami Beach councilman's law office Saturday and announced demands for a $12,500,000 wage increase for Dade's municipal and county employes.

Henry Feinstein, president of the Public Employes Local 237 of New York Teamsters, revealed his sweeping short-range plans after moving into the office of Councilman Harold Shapiro, Teamster attorney here.

Feinstein, who is doing double duty as a Teamster organizer, said his group will seek $500-a-year increase for all 25,000 county and municipal workers in Dade.

Other Feinstein plans for courting the county's unorganized workers: "a 40-hour week; time-and-a-half in cash for work over 40 hours; bonus pay for Saturday, Sunday and holidays; and a compulsary merit system."

"I was shocked to learn that men at hard labor are forced to put in as many as 54 hours a week in some municipal jobs here to earn as little as $60.84," Feinstein said.

"This is the sort of thing you hear about Russia — I had assumed that such working conditions had disappeared in the dark age in our country."

"I wonder if Gov. Collins is aware of such conditions in Florida and if so, why he hasn't taken corrective steps," said Feinstein in a sharp dig at Florida's chief Hoffa foe.

"As for the Teamsters Union," said Feinstein, "we most certainly intend to correct this situation immediately."

The New York Teamster said he had already organized a band of 60 municipal and county employes here to work behind William Huet, 1673 Bay Rd., Miami Beach, business agent for the new drive.

Feinstein said he was also "interested" in meeting with Dade's school teachers, firemen, and hospital employes to see what Jimmy Hoffa's Teamster Union could do for them.

Thirty thousand puzzle fans can be wrong.

This was proved again last week when not a single entry came close to winning the Sunny Fortune jackpot. But cheer up, that old jackpot is sunnier than ever. It now contains 900 dollars which, if laid end to end, would make the prettiest green carpet you ever saw.

SUNNY

"Any prize for getting them all wrong?" asks one fan. "I have a sneaking idea I might win."

Sorry. All you get for missing all the words is a cold, fishy stare.

Another fan writes that on the new-type puzzle "my 10-year-old son in grade five can come closer than his Phi Beta Kappa father. My five-year-old son, who can't read at all, can pick letters closer than either of us to your published solutions. Which group do you want to cultivate?"

We've Had It--Hottest February

Miami closed out the hottest February on Weather Bureau records Saturday with promises of more nicer-than-usual conditions in March.

Forecaster Sanford Neuman added up the February readings recorded at the Weather Bureau's airport station — where Miami's official readings are taken — and found the average was 75.4 degrees.

That's 6.7 degrees higher than the 68.7 "normal" average for the month — and a whopping 17 degrees warmer than the 59.4 average of February of 1958, when all South Florida suffered in one economy smashing cold spell after another.

Figures for Miami Beach haven't been compiled by the Weather Bureau, but Neuman said "there's no doubt this will be the hottest February on record."

The second hottest February since the Weather Bureau started keeping records in 1939 was in 1957, when the average was 72.7.

What about March?

"Our 30-day outlook calls for normal to slightly above normal temperatures in March," Neuman said.

Maxwell Anderson
. . . dead after stroke

Writer Anderson, 70, Dies

STAMFORD, Conn. — (AP) — Maxwell Anderson, 70, one of America's most respected playwrights, died Saturday night. He suffered a stroke at his home here Thursday.

The Pulitzer prize-winning author died at Stamford Hospital, where he had been partially paralyzed since the stroke.

When he was stricken, Anderson was working on a new musical play to be called "Madonna and Child."

Anderson won the Pulitzer prize in 1933 for his play, "Both Your Houses," and was given a number of other awards for various of his more than 30 plays.

Among those works were "What Price Glory?" (written with Laurence Stallings), "Winterset," "High Tor," "Knickerbocker Holiday," "Key Largo," and "Barefoot in Athens."

Younger persons, though, perhaps know Anderson best of all for the lyrics of "September Song," which he wrote for "Knickerbocker Holiday."

Youth Falls 19 Floors --And Lives

NEW YORK—(AP)—A young man plunged 19 floors Saturday but crashed through the top of a huge water tank and floated semi-conscious to the surface.

Police found him clutching the rim of the 10,000 gallon, two-story-high tank. They strapped him to a plank and maneuvered him through a seventh floor window level with the tank roof.

Identified as Emil A. Swiezy, 23, of Flushing, Queens, N.Y., he was taken to Beth David Hospital in critical condition with head and internal injuries.

The superintendent of the 26-story building, located on Lexington Ave. at 41st St., said he noticed a rear window open. Leaning out, he saw the the tank 19 stories below. There was a jagged hole in the tank's wood and copper-sheathed top. Looking closer, he saw the man, and called police.

Our Moment of Peril

The Big Question Today: Could We Survive Attack?

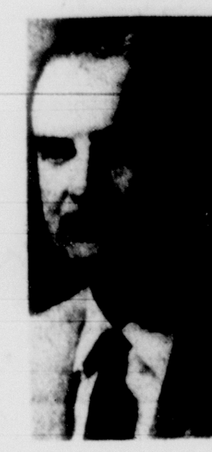
and you may receive three sharply conflicting interpretations.

Defense Secretary Neil McElroy sees no need to spend more money during this coming fiscal year than has been asked for by his department.

"The present rate of arms spending assures that essential defense needs are met," the secretary told the subcommittee under the questioning of its able counsel, Edwin L. Weisl. He called the U.S. position "satisfactory."

Sen. Stuart Symington (D., Mo.), a member of the subcommittee and secretary of air during the Truman administration, asserted at the same hearing:

"Since the United States has not kept its defense strength modernized, during the next few years adequate defense requires more money than estimated in the President's budget. The coming year may afford us our last chance to initiate any real effort to catch up with the Russians in the most important field of modern weaponry."



Stuart Symington

Neil McElroy
. . . 'needs are met'

Between McElroy's "satisfactory" and Symington's "last chance" one can find a dozen shades of opinion.

"Who's telling the truth in the Great Debate?" I asked Sen. Lyndon Johnson, the majority leader whose subcommittee is far from satisfied with what it has heard.

"They all are," he said, suddenly looking up at us.

"It reminds me of the time our little girl was born. I understand that later on some of the neighbors didn't think she was too pretty as a little baby. But to me she was the most beautiful thing I ever saw in my life." He paused, grinned and added, "Now, that was an honest difference of opinion. Maybe we were both right."

"I've heard enough in that committee room to convince me that the Defense Department's decision to go along with the President's budget is a political decision, not a military decision.

"I don't think we're moving far enough fast enough. We're getting one missiles czar stacked up on top of another missiles czar, but we're not getting any missiles. The whole program lacks oomph.

"Lord knows forty billion dollars is a terrible lot of money. That's what they've asked the Congress to give them this year. Some of them seem to think it's ridiculous to suggest that Russia might hit us. If they're that sure, then they're wasting a terrible amount of money. But others feel Russia will hit us just as soon as she's sure she can get away with it without serious retaliation by us. If that's the case, forty billion dollars isn't enough.

"These are honorable men we've had appearing before us. But they're tied up in a political decision. The joint chiefs came before us to testify after Mr. McElroy cut their original estimated needs from two to four billion dollars. He had them sign a statement that what remained was sufficient. But all these gentlemen have 'reservations.' For

"As a young fellow in this town, in the days leading up to Pearl Harbor, I had an opportunity to tell President Roosevelt that I thought we weren't going far enough fast enough. Then just before the outbreak in Korea, I told the same thing to President Truman. Now I'm going on record again, this time for the benefit of President Eisenhower.

"I just never want to be in the position that Frank Knox (F. D. R.'s secretary of Navy) found himself in the day after Pearl Harbor. The American Magazine came out with an article by him saying 'we can lick them in either ocean' while the bellies of his fleet looked up at the moon."

The now declassified statement which the joint chiefs dutifully signed reads:

"Memorandum for the secretary of defense.

"Subject: Joint chiefs of staff position on the FY (fiscal year) 1960 budget.

"The joint chiefs of staff consider that the FY 1960 proposed expenditure figure of $40,945,000,000 is adequate to provide for the essential programs necessary for the defense of the nation for the period under consideration. They find no serious gaps in the key elements of the budget in its present form, but all have reservations with respect to the funding of some segments of their respective service programs."

The statement bears the signatures of Gen. N. F. Twining, USAF, chairman, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chief of staff of the Army, Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, Gen. Thomas D. White, chief of staff of the Air Force, and Gen. Randolph McC. Pate, commandant of the Marine Corps.

A document that has aroused much more ire on Capitol Hill, however, is the following memorandum to Scretary McElroy from President Eisenhower's budget director, Maurice H. Stans:

"The President will shortly present his budget for the fiscal year 1960 to the Congress. As you know, the normal process of budgeting results in recommended amounts that in many cases are less than the agency head had requested.

"It is understandable that officials and employes will feel strongly about the importance of their own agency's work, and will sometimes believe that a larger budget might be in order. Such feelings, however, must be related to an awareness that our budget resources are not adequate to accommodate in any one year all of the things that might be desired. The President is responsible for reviewing the total needs of the executive branch in the light of tax and debt policy and for deciding among competing requests for priorities. Executive branch personnel are expected to support the President in his budget recommendations.

"As you and your staff prepare to justify your portion of the budget before Congress, you will want to observe the requirements set forth at the President's direction in Bureau of the Budget Circular No. A-10. It is expected that witnesses will carefully avoid volunteering views differing from the budget, either on the record or off the record.

"While direct questions at hearings must be answered frankly, it is expected that a witness who feels that he must set forth a personal view inconsistent with the President's budget will also point out that the President's judgment on the matter was reached from his overall perspective as the head of the government, and in the light of overriding national policy. The witness should make it clear that his personal comments are not to be construed as a request for additional funds."

A Johnson aide, reading the above commented, "The chiefs came before us handcuffed."

Sea Water Plant Decision May Be Made Soon

By HARRY CAICEDO
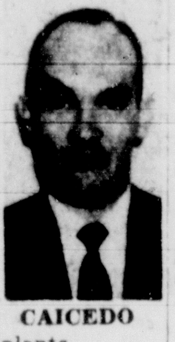
Key West Bureau Chief

KEY WEST — There's an outside chance we'll learn within the next couple of weeks if the Keys are going to get one of those five desalination plants Uncle Sam has in mind.



CAICEDO

The public law authorizing the construction of the plants set a March 2 deadline for a decision on the process to be used in the first of the plants.

True, this says nothing about deciding the plant's location. But if the federal authorities concerned decide on the type of plant (there are several desalination processes under consideration), they may also decide where to set up their first installation.

* * *

Chronic Malady

THE EAGERNESS displayed by official and private parties to get the plant located here is understandable and warranted. Water shortage in Key West is a chronic malady.

The availability of an extra million gallons of water a day could make the difference between water famine and plenty on this island.

Key West and the Keys now get their water from the Florida Keys Aqueduct Commission, which in turn buys it from the Navy — owner and operator of the single pipeline bringing the liquid 130 miles from Florida City.

At present, under an emergency plan, the Navy is operating its aqueduct at full capacity. Three pumps at Florida City, two at Tavernier and two at Marathon are pushing a daily average of five million gallons of water down the line.

A four-hour nightly shutdown on one of the Florida City electric pumps affects the flow slightly — a total loss of only 65,000 gallons, the Navy estimates.

Of the total amount pumped down the Keys, about two-thirds is purchased by the FKAC for civilian consumption. Between Jan. 20 and Feb. 20, for instance, the Navy sold the FKAC 95,347,000 gallons of water (94,048,900 according to FKAC figures).

Regardless of which figure you use, that's still a record purchase of water. It's roughly 10 million more gallons than the average monthly amount bought by the FKAC.

Yet Key West has been experiencing a water shortage. Where does the water go?

During the same period, Key West got 47,247,000 gallons and the Keys 39,492,000, according to FKAC figures. The Navy got back 7,282,000 gallons distributed to users in Sigsbee Park and Peary Court, military housing.

The Key West figure averages out to about 1.6 million gallons a day. Yet demand, if fully satisfied, could drink up an extra 300,000 to 400,000 gallons daily, Ernest Ramsey, FKAC manager says.

More consumers, as during the tourist season, and dry weather — a combination we're experiencing now — naturally tend to push up the demand.

* * *

Tank Shortage

ANOTHER shortage-creating factor for Key West is the present woefully inadequate storage facility.

Two tanks, with a total capacity of two million gallons or little over a day's supply, is all that stands between the pipeline and the thirsty Key Westers.

If the pipeline conks out — as it did for 15 hours last week — Key West has water for 24 hours in those tanks — if they're full.

If they're not, which is usually the case, the supply is proportionately reduced. Output from the tanks usually exceeds intake during the week. Over the weekend, when output slackens, the water level is brought up.

However, on those rare occasions when the tanks are full, the line to them must be shut off to prevent overflow. This happened four times last month. It happened 12 times in December.

Thus it creates the paradoxical situation of being fully stocked up on water, yet not being able to feed the demand for more than a day if the pipeline broke down.

A correction to this basic fault in the system is expected when the new tanks on Stock Island, with their 10-million-gallon capacity, are put into use shortly. That will give the island a comfortable six days' supply in an emergency.

The most comfortable supply, however, would come from one of those desalination plants churning out a million gallons a day right here.

But local water experts warn us to keep our hopes in check. Even if it is approved for Key West, it will be at least two years before you'll get your first cupful of that ex-sea water.

Zone Board Again Says No Permit

By ZOLA SWARTHOUT
Herald Correspondent

JENSEN BEACH — The Jensen Beach zoning committee, at a special meeting, again denied a request for a contractor's storage and office building on the Cutoff Rd.

The "bone of contention" has been tossed back and forth between the County Commission, the county zoning board and the zoning committee for a month.

The permit request was made by Johnny Hendry, owner of the land. His request was turned down by the local zoning committee, headed by Warner B. Tilton.

The county zoning board, failing to get a quorum, took the request for reconsideration directly to the County Commission with a recommendation a permit be issued.

The County Commission, acting as a board of appeals granted the request and a building permit was issued.

When the commission learned the permit had been rejected by the local zoning group, it reversed its decision, and denied the permit.

This caused the county board chairman to remark, "Lets not chew on the same bone twice, from now on all parties in a zoning dispute must be present."

Hendry's attorney, Thomas Thurlow, appeared before the commission last week and asked reconsideration. The commission instructed the Jensen zoning committee to meet within three days and arrive at a decision and inform the planning and zoning board of the results.

The county group will meet Monday in special session to study the problem.

The zoning committee based its decision on grounds the proposed building did not comply with the established setback line, would cause a road bottleneck, and would not be in keeping with the zoning.

KEY LARGO — Members of the Miami Mineral and Gem Society will hold an outing on Key Largo Sunday.

They will examine formation of the area and will study the general flora of this section of the Florida Keys.

The Little Things Are Big Delay

Melbourne Bureau

MELBOURNE — Operation of Melbourne's new multi-million-dollar water system will be delayed until next weekend—due to several mechanical snags—City Manager Tevis Huguely reported Saturday.

Disappointed Huguely, who had hoped the system would start operating Monday or Tuesday, said minor problems have affected completion of the temporary intake at Lake Washington filtration and treatment plant.

One of these is paint on underwater equipment, slow in drying because of damp weather.

Therefore, flushing of the new mains has to be postponed until Tuesday.

The city manager and Harland H. Mace of Alfred LeFeber and Associates of Cincinnati, consulting engineers, have been working "night and day at the lake plant to expedite its completion."

Huguely said "the public will be kept fully informed with progress reports until water flows through the system."

Meanwhile, Huguely reported, city hall has been beseiged by applicants for service from the new system, especially from Indianlantic, Melbourne Beach, and West Melbourne.

Legislators To Visit Colleges

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — A joint House-Senate appropriations subcommittee will visit Florida's tax-supported universities next week to study their spending needs for the coming biennium.

The committee, headed by Sen. John Rawls of Marianna, will open its hearings Monday at the new University of South Florida in Tampa.

It will spend Tuesday and Wednesday at the University of Florida in Gainesville, and wind up hearings in Tallahassee Thursday and Friday at Florida State and A&M Universities.

The university heads are expected to make a strong pitch for restoration of projects cut out of their proposed budgets by the Cabinet.

But recent financial forecasts have given them little encouragement.

The cabinet, riding with an estimate of revenue furnished by Budget Director Harry Smith, recommended a general spending bill of more than $725,000,000.

Comptroller Ray E. Green said the state will be lucky if present taxes permit a $700,000,000 budget in the coming two years. And the chairman of a special legislative council tax study committee, said his study has led him to the view that the Legislature must hold spending to around $650,000,000 to be safe.

Sen. B. C. Pearce's Tax Committee will study the whole picture at a public meeting here Tuesday — and draft recommendations for the full legislative council which meets the following day.

Next week's hearings of the Rawls committee will wind up the pre-session budget meetings and the appropriations committees will get to work drafting a proposed general bill for submission to the Legislature in April.

Chairmen said they hope to have the measure out of the way by the middle of May, although it usually is among the last bills to pass in the dying days of the session in June.

New Stop Signs Due

WEST PALM BEACH — Keep your eyes peeled for new stop signs.

The City fo West Palm Beach will install 20 stop and yield signs this month, according to a memo from City Engineer John H. Klinck Jr.

Ten of the intersections were selected by the Engineering Department and 10 by the Police Department.

Involved are Olive and 10 cross streets; Division Ave., and six cross streets; and West Railroad Ave., and four cross streets.

A Bit of Sweden Drops Its Anchor

By HARRY CAICEDO
Key West Bureau Chief

KEY WEST—A bit of Sweden arrived here Saturday and immediately set a fine example of Scandinavian hospitality.

Early visitors to the Swedish naval training ship, Alvsnabben, when she tied up at the Naval Station were treated to a warm welcome, cold Swedish beer and cigarets made with "American tobacco and fine Swedish paper."

Capt. Karl Gunnar Norstrom, blue eyed and courtly, was eager to tell of his country's Navy and his ship's mission.

The Alvsnabben, he explained, is now on the final leg of a five-month training cruise for first year midshipmen of the Swedish Naval Academy.

"We want our midshipmen to see some of the seven seas," the officer said in English, laced with a healthy Swedish accent.

"And also we like to show the flag of Sweden," he added almost modestly.

To illustrate his words, the captain offered his guests attractive booklets on "Sweden," "The Swedish Navy," and a map of the Alvsnabben's 1958-59 cruise.

The ship's voyage, which begain in November, brought her officers, crew and 55 cadets to the western hemisphere. They've touched at Colomiba, the Galapagos, Mexico, and crossed the Panama Canal twice.

"Then we came to that wonderful country known as the United States of America," Capt. Norstrom beamed. He spoke enthusiastically of San Francisco and of a little village near Victoria, in Canada, where he learned about Eskimos, pronounced E-SKY-MOS.

The Alvsnabben will be in Key West until Wednesday, before heading for Haiti, and then home.

The captain asked his guests if they had ever been to his homeland.

"No? You have not? Then you must come, perhaps we can all go together."

"And our flag . . . do you know about our flag?" he asked, referring to the gold-cross-on-blue-field ensign.

"There are many stories about its meaning, but I like to think of it as the cross of Christianity on the blue of a Swedish summer sky."

U.S. Funds Offered On Sewer Unit

Herald Service

FORT PIERCE — Fort Pierce has been allocated a federal grant of $132,300 on the $900,000 sewage treatment plant and pumping station, now under construction, according to a telegram received from Sens. Spessard Holland and George Smathers, and Congressman Paul Rogers Saturday.

The plant is part of the 2.5 million dollar sanitary sewer project. The fund offer has been approved by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Mayor James L. Howe said Saturday this grant will enable the city to complete the project without going in the red. Rising costs had sent costs $72,840 above the funds in hand.

Letterman Sports? Egghead?

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — Brains have been given equal recognition with brawn at Leon High School.

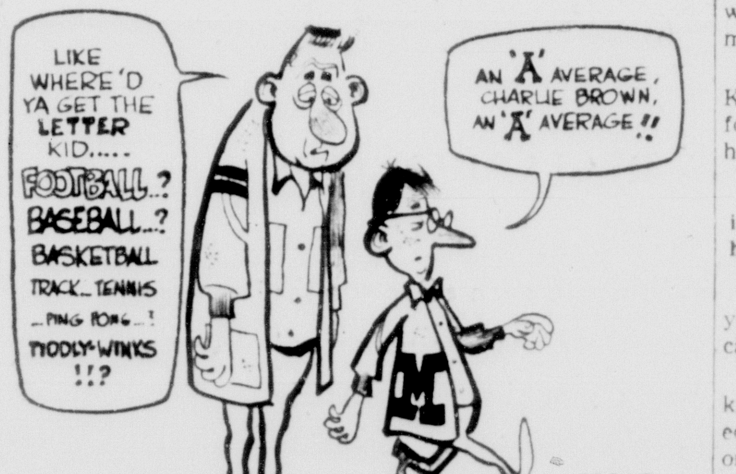
The "Civinettes," a girls' student organization, came up with the idea of awarding letters to the scholars and presented them to 29 of the brainy girls and boys.

To qualify for an academic letter a student must maintain an "A" average, with no more than a single "B," through two consecutive semesters.

Meantime, State School Superintendent Thomas D. Bailey reported the rooting section for the scholars is growing rapidly.

He said the Florida program of rewarding top students by some form of public recognition has caught on nationally.



LIKE WHERE'D YA GET THE LETTER KID..... FOOTBALL..? BASEBALL..? BASKETBALL TRACK_TENNIS _PING PONG_! TIDDLY-WINKS !!?
AN 'A' AVERAGE, CHARLIE BROWN, AN 'A' AVERAGE!!

Bailey wrote the high school principal that Florida Jaycees, for the third year, will present certificates of commendation to every straight "A" student and to every student who makes his school's honor roll.

Last year, the Junior Chamber of Commerce passed out 21,000 honor roll and 5,000 straight "A" certificates.

Bailey long has urged scholarship be given the same recognition as athletic ability. He said his mail indicates the program is stimulating scholarship.

"With the new emphasis being placed upon education since the launching of the Soviet satellite, the wisdom of this program is now even more apparent," he said.

Program Outline Should Be Soon

TALLAHASSEE—(UPI)—Gov. LeRoy Collins, undismayed by legislative blasts at him, is reported ready to present his most ambitious program yet to the Legislature in April.

Collins had better than average success with his first two Legislatures. But he faces rocky going in this session, principally because it is his last.

In addition, his racial stands have brought antagonism from several elements.

The governor has not announced a specific program, but parts of it have come to light, and more may be disclosed this week.

Collins has said he will not recommend any new or general tax increase. A special tax committee of the Legislative Council will meet Tuesday to decide what it will recommend.

The chairman, Sen. B. C. Pearce of Palatka, disagrees with the governor that no tax increases are needed to finance the $725,000,000 two-year budget the cabinet recommended.

He said without new taxes, the Legislature is going to have to carve about $75,000,000 off proposed spending.

The governor's constitutional advisory committee has completed work on a reapportionment proposal and other law reforms and Collins plans to unveil the finished product to a meeting of key legislators sometime this week.

His advisory committee on race legislation has also finished its study and recommendations will be made public soon, maybe this week.

The governor's program also will include:

1. A change in gas tax laws.
2. A reorganization of the State Department of Agriculture.
3. Continued reform in prisons.
4. Equalized real estate assessments.
5. Centralized purchasing.

In addition, Collins probably will ask for 25 or 30 other less controversial reforms.

Battle lines are drawn on the hottest issue — school laws. There is evidence it will be a three-day struggle, with Collins in one corner, Attorney General Richard Ervin in one, and a "no-surrender" group of legislators in a third.

The new state constitution, to be proposed by Collins, may get lost in the shuffle.

Collins drove a new constitution through the Legislature in 1957, but the State Supreme Court threw it out because it was tied together in a daisy-chain fashion, so the voters had to take all or none.

Since then, he has had a committee working on a new state charter to present to the session.

The governor said this week he is in accord with State Road Department plans to ask the Legislature to revamp gas tax laws to give the state complete jurisdiction over six of the seven cents gas tax and counties the remaining one cent.

At present, the state controls four of the seven cents and has partial control over another one.

Agriculture Commissioner Nathan Mayo is expected to join in opposition to wholesale reorganization of the Department of Agriculture.

But Collins probably will get enough support in the Legislature to get most of it through if not all.

67 Tickets Scored for Crackdown

By BILL BUNGE
Melbourne Bureau Chief

MELBOURNE — A police crackdown on traffic violators last week resulted in 67 tickets being issued and $396 in fines collected, Chief John D. Thomas reported Saturday.

Forty-seven motorists were charged with violations. The remaining 20 were bike riders, three over 17 years of age. No motor bike riders were arrested.

A by-product of the police "get tough policy," which followed the city's first traffic fatality in three years, has been a rush to City Hall to apply for licenses by bicycle owners.

City Clerk Mary Lou Knecht said 114 such licenses were issued during the first three days of the safety campaign.

Parents have been asked to cooperate with police in the bike safety drive by "informing their children of city ordinances," Thomas said.

Running stop signs cost 25 motorists $5 each in the first week. Six paid $35 each for reckless driving, and 16 double parkers had to put out $1 each. No tickets were issued for speeding.

"Double parking has got to stop," Chief Thomas declared. "If it isn't stopped—and quickly—we are going to increase the fine for this offense."

Of the bike riders over 17, one paid $20 for having neither license, registration nor light; one paid $5 for no registration, and the third, $20 for riding two on a bike.

The 17 juveniles were charged "with just about every conceivable violation of the bicycle ordinance and were taken into juvenile court," the chief reported.

He said there have been a few "squawks" about the crackdown but most people especially the parents of children who ride bicycles, have voiced "enthusiastic approval" of the enforcement measures.

The chief said the get tough policy is not to be considered a 10-day splurge, "because it's going to be a continuing and increasingly effective drive."

Airport Valued For Industries

Motorist Pulls Pin, Parts Long Freight

By ANNE WILDER
Herald Correspondent

FORT PIERCE—Police are seeking a motorist who uncoupled a freight train early Saturday at the Seaway Dr. crossing.

A witness saw the man uncouple the cars, and thought he was a railroad employe, until he jumped in a car and drove off.

FEC officials said the man not only uncoupled the car, but "cut off the air," so the emergency brakes would not set. The engineer, unaware that part of the train was unhitched, pulled into the yard there, and discovered something was missing—part of his train.

Railway officials took a dim view of the prank, but reported that, fortunately, the only effect was a delay in the yard work.

A General Trades His Gun for a Shovel

Yigal Yadin once headed the general staff branch of Hagana, the Jewish underground in Palestine, in 1947. Today he is steeped in the study of archeology.

Why this successful military man switched to a completely new field makes for a fascinating story.

JERUSALEM, Israel —(AP)— A few years ago Maj. Gen. Yigal Yadin was chief of staff of the Israeli army. Today at 41 he is by choice a civilian and by accomplishment one of the world's leading archeologists.

And no one in Israel thinks it the least unusual that Yadin abandoned a brilliant military career for excavations and the study of scrolls and artifacts.

For in this land of the Bible, one of the well-trodden crossroads of human history, the remote past is as alive as the present. The events of two or three millenia ago are nearly as real as the current events in the morning paper. The archaeologist is as much a part of life as the soldier or politician.

Yadin's change of careers widened the impact of his talents. Where once he fought for Israel, today he works for the entire world of learning. He has helped add greatly to the store of knowledge of Biblical history.

Yigal Yadin, right, Briefs a Premier

. . . explains project to David Ben-Gurion

In his new work, Yadin is following in the footsteps of his father, the late professor Eliezer Sukenik, who headed the archeology department of Hebrew University in Jerusalem. (It is not uncommon for a son's name to differ from his father's in Israel, where many people have taken new Hebrew names or translated their names into Hebrew.)

During the Arab-Israeli War of 1948-49, Prof. Sukenik made perilous journeys into Arab-held territory to purchase for a few hundred dollars the first three of the now famous Dead Sea scrolls.

He made the trips against the advice of his son. But later, Yadin also played a part in the fantastic story of the scrolls. He handled negotiations in New York which led to the purchase for Israel of four more scrolls. These cost nearly a half-million dollars.

Prof. Sukenik died in 1953. His son now carries on in his place at Hebrew University.

Yadin lives in the house of his father, a house built of yellow cut stone which typifies all of new Jerusalem. It was here, in the yard, that Sukenik buried the first three scrolls for a time to protect them in case the Arabs invaded the Israeli sector of the city.

Yadin, tall, a little round at the middle, speaks fluent English. He is quite likely to deliver a visitor what amounts to an hour's lecture on current archeological work in Israel.

The Bible tells how Joshua led the Israelites in capturing and destroying Hazor, one of the Caananites' principal cities. If the date of its destruction could be pinned down, it would assist greatly in dating events described in the Bible subsequently.

For four seasons, 250 diggers and 40 to 45 archeologists worked at Hazor. They made rich finds. It turned out there had been 20 cities on the site of Hazor. The site had once housed 40,000 people on an area of 150 acres — an ancient metropolis. Yadin's group found 250,000 artifacts, 1,000 of which have considerable value.

More importantly, it was possible after studying the evidence to date Hazor's destruction by the Israelites in the 13th Century B.C. much more precisely than before.

Reports on the Hazor excavations are currently being published in scientific journals.

Another subject close to Yadin's heart are the investigations being made by him and his Israeli colleagues on the Dead Sea scrolls.

Ten years ago, Yadin was engaged in a completely different kind of work. As one of Israel's leading commanders and chief of operations of the general staff, he had much of the responsibility for the survival of the newly reborn country.

He came to his post of command as the logical result of heading the general staff branch of Hagana, the Jewish underground in Palestine, in 1947.

Yadin's abandonment of his military career for a civilian pursuit is not unusual in Israel. Maj. Gen. Yaakov Dori, chief of the general staff during the Arab-Israeli war, is now president of Israel's leading technological institute, the Technion in Haifa. Maj. Gen. Moshe Dayan, chief of staff during the Sinai campaign of 1956, has retired from Army life to take his chances on a political career.

A Close Look at Our Moment of Peril

We'll Let Russia Strike First—Then What?

The Great Debate

The "Great Debate" rages over a question that could determine our national existence: Are we building modern weapons of war fast enough and good enough to meet an ominous Russian threat? No one man has the answer. But in the provocative series of articles that starts today one of America's great reporters presents facts and opinions that can help all Americans to a clearer realization of the life-or-death problem.

CONSIDINE

By BOB CONSIDINE
Herald Columnist

FOR THE FIRST time since the War of 1812 there is genuine concern in Washington over the ability of the U. S. to survive an enemy attack.

It is not a general concern. There are elements of the military and officialdom which see little chance of a nuclear war with the Soviet Union. Others, including key figures in the Eisenhower administration, feel no apprehension over the lead which the U.S.S.R. apparently has taken in the field of the ultimate weapon — the intercontinental ballistic missile. They see no need to increase the 40 billion dollar arms budget.

Yet despite this pacifying atmosphere in several high and influential quarters, responsible Americans of all political shades go to bed these nights haunted by such bugaboos as these:

A prospectus drawn up in the Defense Department, and kept under lock and key, states that if the Soviet Union has the long-range weapons delivery system it boasts about, a salvo of its nuclear-tipped missiles would kill 10,000,000 Americans and virtually or entirely demolish our means of retaliation.

Another Defense Department estimate is that by the end of 1960 the U.S.S.R. will have a 3-1 edge over the U.S. in ICBMs. But no speed-up program to close the gap is now planned.

A prominent senator known for his advocacy of the U.S. Air Force states that 75 per cent of the Strategic Air Command's striking force is obsolescent. He questions whether more than a handful of SAC's hundreds of big manned bombers could survive Soviet air defense and reach their assigned targets in any retaliatory raid.

The Distant Early Warning line of radar sites, built across the Arctic from Alaska to Greenland at a cost of hundreds of millions, to detect a Red air force manned bomber fleet which may or may not exist, cannot spot Soviet ICBMs. A crash program to "raise the sights" of our polar detection system is only now getting under way.

The Navy's Polaris missile, submarine-based, will not be ready for another year. Its critics say that it will have only half the predicted 1,500-mile range. But the sea service has stopped production of an excellent interim missile, the air-breathing Regulus II, after spending about 250 million dollars.

The Air Force's solid fuel ICBM, "Minuteman," will not be ready until perhaps 1965. In the interim, it must depend on the complex and immobile liquid-fueled Atlas and Titan which require hours, if not days, to prepare for launching. Flying time of a Russian ICBM from its Soviet base to any U. S. target: 25 minutes.

The Army, with the most notable record in the missile field, has been generally thwarted in its efforts to build bigger and better weapons, including the Nike Zeus, anti-missile missile believed capable of knocking out enemy ICBMs flying in space at 15 times the speed of sound.

The Defense Department, Central Intelligence Agency and White House firmly rule out all attempts to change the country's traditional outlook on war. In an age of super-weapons development wherein a great war might be decided in minutes rather than years, we still concede to the enemy the initial blow. A big question in Washington today is, "But will we be able to get off the floor and fight back after being hit?"

This and subsequent articles will attempt to illuminate some of the problems confronting military and political leaders and print the answers as those experts see them. Independent observation will be included.

The answers of the principals involved do not always coincide. The thousands of pages of testimony taken by the preparedness investigating subcommittee of the Senate's Armed Services, Missile and Space Activities Committee, as well as other fact-seeking probes, are laced with differences and contradictions. Ask the same question of any three men involved in Washington's latest Great Debate

Asks for Leadership

Collins Says Politicos Fear Rights Issue

EXCLUSIVE

Florida Gov. LeRoy Collins lashes out at gambling in "Legalized Gambling Is Poison" on page 8 of Parade magazine, inside The Herald today.

From Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The civil rights controversy has the nation's leaders "quaking in their political boots," Gov. LeRoy Collins told leading U.S. Democrats Saturday.

Collins, addressing a $100-a-plate dinner honoring newly elected Democrat governors, charged the nation's leadership with being "fearful even to seek honorable, sensible adjustments" to the hot race problems.

He said the whole rights issue left the nation "badly divided" in facing the outside world.

Then leveling a blast at the Republicans, the Florida governor said:

"Our national administration, at a crucial time in history, is not measuring up to changing responsibilities. This is the basis for the uneasiness which stirs Americans these days."

He called on Democrats to choose as a Presidential candidate "an uncommon man with a common touch . . . a man of progressive outlook with a solid record of achievement."

The governor, mentioned frequently as a possible Democratic candidate for president or vice president in 1960 shared top billing before some 2,000 guests at the dinner with Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, the powerful Democratic majority leader.

Capital Will Be 'Jumping'

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Official Washington, long attuned to the spoken political word as a kind of music, is going to try its ear on some jazz starting today.

Patrons of the Washington Jazz Jubilee include some names you wouldn't think of as cool cats:

Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, Mrs. Earl Warren, Mrs. John Foster Dulles, 22 ambassadors and their wives, seven cabinet officers and their wives, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and his wife, Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.).

Mrs. Eisenhower

Mrs. Nixon

Washington's first jazz concert with such prominent backing is being arranged by a group of congressional wives raising money for Friendship House, a settlement house on Capitol Hill. The jubilee chairman is Mrs. Richard Bolling, wife of the Democratic representative from Missouri.

A band of jazz greats will shake the rafters of a Washington hotel ballroom on the night of March 16. What Mrs. Bolling calls "an uptown level" will be supplied by the Library of Congress and the National Gallery of Art.

Marshall Stearns, literature professor at Hunter College and writer on jazz, will lecture on the subject at the Art Gallery today.

On Monday the Library of Congress will open an exhibit, "Seven Ages of Jazz," to trace its course from the early folk music to the Carnegie Hall.

Why jazz jubilee in Washington?

"We wanted something new—the benefit circuit has been so overdone," Mrs. Bolling said. "The patrons aren't jazz buffs, but they're really glad to know what it's all about."

Pan-Am Strike Averted

Sides Agree At Meeting

By TOM LOWNES
Herald Staff Writer

Threat of a systemwide strike against Pan American Airways by its 7,000 Transport Workers Union employes was lifted early Saturday as both sides came out of an all-night meeting with an agreement "in principle."

The threatened strike, which had been set for midnight Monday, would have affected some 3,000 PAA workers in Miami and another 1,500 at the strategic Cape Canaveral Missile Test Center.

Federal Mediator Frances A. O'Neill, who several times prevented hot-tempered union and company leaders from stalking out of the night-long meeting in New York, said the agreement was reached at 6 a.m.

Both company and union officials refused to outline terms of the tentative settlement, but Miamian William Grogan, international vice president of TWU, said, "It's a good contract which we can submit with honor to our members."

The union's 20-member negotiating committee will meet in New York at 7 p.m. Monday to hear terms of the contract. If they accept the plan, it will be submitted for a TWU general membership vote later in the week.

There were strong indications Saturday that the union did not succeed in pushing through its major demand — a 37½-hour week for all members.

The word "hours" was conspicuously missing from O'Neill's only comment on terms of the agreement: "It concerned wages, rules and working conditions."

In Miami, Bernard H. Diesen, president of TWU Local 500, pointed out that the union's wage demands had been added only three months ago after TWU leaders reported that hour negotiations were deadlocked.

Today's Chuckle

"I'll carry this case to the highest court in the land," said the lawyer to the prisoner, "but in the meantime you'd better try to escape."

Hopes Dim Of Rocket Orbiting

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — (UPI) — The Air Force Saturday fired the first satellite-carrying rocket in the "Project Discoverer" program, but nearly four hours after the launching no signals had been received from the 1,300-pound artificial moon.

When the 78.2-foot long rocket-satellite blasted off at 4:49 p.m. Miami time, controlling Air Force officers said orbiting should be achieved in "two to three hours."

But Saturday night, hopes dimmed. The Air Force still held out a slim hope of successful orbiting.

The planned orbit would be like a hoop around the earth, passing over the North and South Poles. Achievement of the orbit would be a step toward the creation of reconnaissance satellites, which could scan the whole earth as it revolved below.

Air Force officials said the launching was "a success" regardless of success or failure of the orbit. The primary goal had been accomplished, the testing of the second stage vehicle.

The satellite-bearing rocket lunged from its launch pad and headed straight up into a cloudless blue sky, leaving a bright yellow tail of fire clearly visible from the press observation center nearly two miles away.

After the Discoverer — the first attempt to launch a satellite from the Pacific Coast — reached an altitude of between 10,000 to 15,000 feet, it arched into a horizontal flight, leaving a long vapor trail. It appeared that the rocket was heading south in the general direction of Los Angeles, but the shot was designed to send it southwest over the Pacific.

The Air Force confirmed five minutes after the firing that telemetry data showed the 18.8-foot long satellite stage had separated from the Thor booster and was continuing its spaceward climb.

It was estimated that the second stage of the rocket required a speed of approximately 25,000 miles an hour to place it in orbit.

The satellite — which weighs 1,300 pounds — carried a 40-pound payload of telemetry equipment, but no animals. The first shot is mainly to test the vehicle.

But mice and monkeys soon will ride the moons into orbit as scientists probe "environmental conditions" of space in research aimed at developing a manned satellite.

Two earlier attempts to fire the Discoverer literally never got off the ground. Technical difficulties were blamed for scrubbing the shot both Jan. 21 and Wednesday.

Battle Is Bitter On Incorporation

PEMBROKE PINES—Two different sets of figures on the number of freeholders here threw an incorporation election in doubt Saturday night, climaxing bitter clashes during the day.

The incorporationists, headed by Dr. Walter Kipnis, candidate for mayor, claimed they mustered the necessary two-thirds with 184 yes votes balloted. They claimed a total of 278 freeholders.

Anti-incorporationists, headed by Attorney Bob Fegers and Ralph Bibbo, local builder, contended there are 285 freeholders and the election flopped by six votes.

Both sides agreed to take the matter to the county registrar, Mrs. Easter Gates, and check the rolls.

Balloting, held in the carporte of the home of Ernon W. Day, 6852 SW 13th St., was marked by bitter clashes.

"He (Dr. Kipnis) is running things his way. I never heard of holding an election in a carporte," declared anti-incorporationist Larry Carter, Pembroke resident and Miramar Elementary School principal.

Carter and William Wright, local builder, sitting at a small card table in the carporte to check voters' names, drew fire from Dr. Kipnis, official election chairman.

Addressing the voting clerks, Dr. Kipnis declared, "You don't have to give them any names."

Commenting on Carter's blast, the retired physician said: "What did they want us to do, hire a hall?"

Dr. Kipnis personally checked voters' eligibility and tangled with another resident, Jerry Fazio, of 7121 SW 11th St.

On two different occasions Dr. Kipnis refused Fazio a vote because he could not show proof that he owns property. The third time the angry Fazio showed up with a deed to his home and was permitted to vote.

"He got very mad and called the newspapers," said Dr. Kipnis.

Pembroke Pines, one of the newer developments of high-priced homes in West Hollywood, is located between Hollywood Blvd. and Pembroke Rd., just west of the Turnpike.

Nikita's Going to Germany

MOSCOW — (AP) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev is making a surprise trip to East Germany, possibly foreshadowing the next Soviet move in the Berlin crisis.

The official Tass News Agency Saturday said tersely that Khrushchev will visit the International Trade Fair at Leipzig. It did not say when, nor would the foreign ministry give a date. The fair opens today.

The press chief of the Soviet embassy in East Berlin, V. M. Beburov, said Khrushchev is expected to arrive in Leipzig Wednesday.

This will be after a closing meeting with visiting British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in the Kremlin Monday. Macmillan will leave for home Tuesday.

There was speculation that Khrushchev might use the visit to discuss a separate peace treaty with East Germany, following the failure to make any progress on the German question in talks with Macmillan.

The government newspaper Izvestia quoted Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan as saying a separate peace treaty for East Germany may be in the wind.

34,425 See Troilus Win

The largest Hialeah Park crowd in two seasons — 34,425 — watched second-choice Troilus win the $135,800 Flamingo Stakes Saturday.

Troilus took the lead on the final turn and finished three lengths ahead of Open View. The favored First Landing finished third. Troilus paid $6.90, $4.70 and $3.10.

Mack Gordon, Lyricist, Dies

NEW YORK — (AP) — Mack Gordon, 54, who wrote the lyrics for many hit tunes, died Saturday after a brief illness.

He wrote the words for such hits as "Time On My Hands," "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking," "Chattanooga Choo-Choo," "Love Thy Neighbor," "You'll Never Know," and "Stay as Sweet as You Are."

Prior to his songwriting career, he was a vaudeville comedian and singer.

7 Hockey Players Die as Roof Falls

LISTOWEL, Ont. — (AP) — Seven Peewee League hockey players—all of them 12 or under—were killed Saturday when the snow-burdened roof of the Listowel Memorial Arena collapsed. Their recreation director also died in the thundering collapse.

Nineteen others were hurt. Nine of them were treated at the hospital for minor injuries and sent home.

Rescue workers dug frantically through the debris for other possible victims but police said later all the missing had been accounted for.

Listowel is in Ontario's snowbelt and there is about 25 inches of snow on the ground in the area.

The adult victim was Kenneth McLeod, 35, recreation director for this town of 3,530 population 25 miles northeast of Kitchener.

The only other adult in the arena, Norman Stirling, 32, was taken to a hospital. He is coach of the team and assistant recreation director.

The manager of the arena, Percy Knoblaugh, said he was standing at the entrance when the walls buckled. Then the roof crashed.

Police said it was difficult to determine just who was in the arena when the roof fell.

Twenty-two boys' coats were found in the cloak room near the entrance.

Canaveral Bird Set For Its Space Probe

CAPE CANAVERAL — (UPI) — A dense, lingering overcast closed in on the cape Saturday and the Army delayed its attempt to launch its new space probe rocket at least until today.

The tall Juno II moon bird, designed to hurl its gold-plated payload past the lunar sphere and into orbit around the sun, was ready for firing.

A top project official said that "as far as we can see now, everything about the bird itself looks perfect — the telemetry (radio reporting setup), the mechanics, all that's important."

The Army plans to aim the stately four-stage rocket directly at the moon and has estimated it will take 34 hours for the 13-pound Pioneer IV probe vehicle to reach the lunar sphere.

The overcast did not, however, halt an Air Force attempt to test a futuristic nose cone over intercontinental range early Saturday.

A Thor-Able test rocket fired at 2:48 a.m. knifed through several layers of clouds to start its mission to the South Atlantic.

But the Defense Department said many hours later it was not sure what happened to the rocket.

Reds Accidentally Cut Cable, Navy Man Thinks

'That's My Personal Opinion'

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The U.S. naval officer who led a boarding party onto a Soviet fishing trawler said Saturday he believed the Russian ship accidentally cut a transatlantic cable.

SHEELY

Lt. Donald Martin Sheely of Fairmont, Minn., said the cable "was most probably accidentally cut by them. That's my personal opinion."

He said there was no evidence that it was cut deliberately but "I am not convinced they didn't cut it deliberately."

Sheely said the Russians took the attitude that their fishing equipment was new and they did not think they could have cut the cable.

Sheely and two other members of the boarding party were flown here to report to the Navy.

They also were questioned at the State Department before meeting newsmen at the Pentagon.

Sheely said he was "somewhat nervous" about boarding the Russian trawler Novorossisk but he and other members of the party went unarmed.

The Soviet ship responded, Sheely said, when the U.S. destroyer Roy O. Hale hoisted an international flag signal to heave to for a boarding party.

He said the Russians were "not social. They accepted us but were not overly friendly." Sheely said he believed there was more electronic equipment aboard the Soviet vessel "than we would expect to see on one of our own fishing vessels."

The party boarded the Soviet craft under terms of an 1884 treaty permitting inspection of documents of ships suspected of damaging oceanic cables. Five cable breaks had been reported.

The Navy had announced Thursday night that Sheely's party found no intent on the part of the trawler to do anything but fish.

Air Crash Kills Five Navy Men

PRESCOTT, Ariz. —(UPI)— Five Navy crewmen were killed Saturday when their Military Air Transport Service Superconstellation crashed, exploded an burned at the edge of a busy highway.

There were no survivors. The craft was assigned to Transport Squadron 7 of the Naval Air Station at Moffatt Field, Calif. It was on a routine training flight from Litchfield Naval Air Facility near Phoenix.

Names of victims were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Demand $12,500,000 Wage Boost

Teamsters Bare Plan For Public Workers

By TOM LOWNES
Herald Staff Writer

Out-of-town Teamsters organizers set up headquarters in a Miami Beach councilman's law office Saturday and announced demands for a $12,500,000 wage increase for Dade's municipal and county employes.

Henry Feinstein, president of the Public Employes Local 237 of New York Teamsters, revealed his sweeping short-range plans after moving into the office of Councilman Harold Shapiro, Teamster attorney here.

Feinstein, who is doing double duty as a Teamster organizer, said his group will seek $500-a-year increase for all 25,000 county and municipal workers in Dade.

Other Feinstein plans for courting the county's unorganized workers: "a 40-hour week; time-and-a-half in cash for work over 40 hours; bonus pay for Saturday, Sunday and holidays; and a compulsary merit system."

"I was shocked to learn that men at hard labor are forced to put in as many as 54 hours a week in some municipal jobs here to earn as little as $60.84," Feinstein said.

"This is the sort of thing you hear about Russia — I had assumed that such working conditions had disappeared in the dark age in our country."

"I wonder if Gov. Collins is aware of such conditions in Florida and if so, why he hasn't taken corrective steps," said Feinstein in a sharp dig at Florida's chief Hoffa foe.

"As for the Teamsters Union," said Feinstein, "we most certainly intend to correct this situation immediately."

The New York Teamster said he had already organized a band of 60 municipal and county employes here to work behind William Huet, 1673 Bay Rd., Miami Beach, business agent for the new drive.

Feinstein said he was also "interested" in meeting with Dade's school teachers, firemen, and hospital employes to see what Jimmy Hoffa's Teamster Union could do for them.

Thirty thousand puzzle fans can be wrong.

This was proved again last week when not a single entry came close to winning the Sunny Fortune jackpot. But cheer up, that old jackpot is sunnier than ever. It now contains 900 dollars which, if laid end to end, would make the prettiest green carpet you ever saw.

SUNNY

"Any prize for getting them all wrong?" asks one fan. "I have a sneaking idea I might win."

Sorry. All you get for missing all the words is a cold, fishy stare.

Another fan writes that on the new-type puzzle "my 10-year-old son in grade five can come closer than his Phi Beta Kappa father. My five-year-old son, who can't read at all, can pick letters closer than either of us to your published solutions. Which group do you want to cultivate?"

And he adds this postscript: "When the new baby comes, look out!"

Youth must be served, but young or old, I need a winner. All this money is cluttering up my desk something awful.

We've Had It--Hottest February

Miami closed out the hottest February on Weather Bureau records Saturday with promises of more nicer-than-usual conditions in March.

Forecaster Sanford Neuman added up the February readings recorded at the Weather Bureau's airport station — where Miami's official readings are taken — and found the average was 75.4 degrees.

That's 6.7 degrees higher than the 68.7 "normal" average for the month — and a whopping 17 degrees warmer than the 59.4 average of February of 1958, when all South Florida suffered in one economy smashing cold spell after another.

Figures for Miami Beach haven't been compiled by the Weather Bureau, but Neuman said "there's no doubt this will be the hottest February on record."

The second hottest February since the Weather Bureau started keeping records in 1939 was in 1957, when the average was 72.7.

What about March?

"Our 30-day outlook calls for normal to slightly above normal temperatures in March," Neuman said.

Maxwell Anderson
. . . dead after stroke

Writer Anderson, 70, Dies

STAMFORD, Conn. — (AP) — Maxwell Anderson, 70, one of America's most respected playwrights, died Saturday night. He suffered a stroke at his home here Thursday.

The Pulitzer prize-winning author died at Stamford Hospital, where he had been partially paralyzed since the stroke.

When he was stricken, Anderson was working on a new musical play to be called "Madonna and Child."

Anderson won the Pulitzer prize in 1933 for his play, "Both Your Houses," and was given a number of other awards for various of his more than 30 plays.

Among those works were "What Price Glory?" (written with Laurence Stallings), "Winterset," "High Tor," "Knickerbocker Holiday," "Key Largo," and "Barefoot in Athens."

Younger persons, though, perhaps know Anderson best of all for the lyrics of "September Song," which he wrote for "Knickerbocker Holiday."

Youth Falls 19 Floors --And Lives

NEW YORK —(AP)— A young man plunged 19 floors Saturday but crashed through the top of a huge water tank and floated semi-conscious to the surface.

Police found him clutching the rim of the 10,000 gallon, two-story-high tank. They strapped him to a plank and maneuvered him through a seventh floor window level with the tank roof.

Identified as Emil A. Swiezy, 23, of Flushing, Queens, N.Y., he was taken to Beth David Hospital in critical condition with head and internal injuries.

The superintendent of the 26-story building, located on Lexington Ave. at 41st St., said he noticed a rear window open. Leaning out, he saw the tank 19 stories below. There was a jagged hole in the tank's wood and copper-sheathed top. Looking closer, he saw the man, and called police.

Our Moment of Peril

The Big Question Today: Could We Survive Attack?

and you may receive three sharply conflicting interpretations.

Defense Secretary Neil McElroy sees no need to spend more money during this coming fiscal year than has been asked for by his department.

"The present rate of arms spending assures that essential defense needs are met," the secretary told the subcommittee under the questioning of its able counsel, Edwin L. Weisl. He called the U.S. position "satisfactory."

Sen. Stuart Symington (D., Mo.), a member of the subcommittee and secretary of air during the Truman administration, asserted at the same hearing:

"Since the United States has not kept its defense strength modernized, during the next few years adequate defense requires more money than estimated in the President's budget. The coming year may afford us our last chance to initiate any real effort to catch up with the Russians in the most important field of modern weaponry."

"Who's telling the truth in the Great Debate?" I asked Sen. Lyndon Johnson, the majority leader whose subcommittee is far from satisfied with what it has heard.

"They all are," he said, suddenly looking up at us.

"It reminds me of the time our little girl was born. I understand that later on some of the neighbors didn't think she was too pretty as a little baby. But to me she was the most beautiful thing I ever saw in my life." He paused, grinned and added, "Now, that was an honest difference of opinion. Maybe we were both right."

"I've heard enough in that committee room to convince me that the Defense Department's decision to go along with the President's budget is a political decision, not a military decision.

"I don't think we're moving far enough fast enough. We're getting one missiles czar stacked up on top of another missiles czar, but we're not getting any missiles. The whole program lacks oomph.

"Lord knows forty billion dollars is a terrible lot of money. That's what they've asked the Congress to give them this year. Some of them seem to think it's ridiculous to suggest that Russia might hit us. If they're that sure, then they're wasting a terrible amount of money. But others feel Russia will hit us just as soon as she's sure she can get away with it without serious retaliation by us. If that's the case, forty billion dollars isn't enough.

"These are honorable men we've had appearing before us. But they're tied up in a political decision. The joint chiefs came before us to testify after Mr. McElroy cut their original estimated needs from two to four billion dollars. He had them sign a statement that what remained was sufficient. But all these gentlemen have, 'reservations.' For

Neil McElroy
. . . 'needs are met'

"As a young fellow in this town, in the days leading up to Pearl Harbor, I had an opportunity to tell President Roosevelt that I thought we weren't going far enough fast enough. Then just before the outbreak in Korea, I told the same thing to President Truman. Now I'm going on record again, this time for the benefit of President Eisenhower.

"I just never want to be in the position that Frank Knox (F. D. R.'s secretary of Navy) found himself in the day after Pearl Harbor. The American Magazine came out with an article by him saying 'we can lick them in either ocean' while the bellies of his fleet looked up at the moon."

The now declassified statement which the joint chiefs dutifully signed reads:

"Memorandum for the secretary of defense.

"Subject: Joint chiefs of staff position on the FY (fiscal year) 1960 budget.

"The joint chiefs of staff consider that the FY 1960 proposed expenditure figure of $40,945,000,000 is adequate to provide for the essential programs necessary for the defense of the nation for the period under consideration. They find no serious gaps in the key elements of the budget in its present form, but all have reservations with respect to the funding of some segments of their respective service programs."

The statement bears the signatures of Gen. N. F. Twining, USAF, chairman, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chief of staff of the Army, Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, Gen. Thomas D. White, chief of staff of the Air Force, and Gen. Randolph McC. Pate, commandant of the Marine Corps.

A document that has aroused much more ire on Capitol Hill, however, is the following memorandum to Scretary McElroy from President Eisenhower's budget director, Maurice H. Stans:

"The President will shortly present his budget for the fiscal year 1960 to the Congress. As you know, the normal process of budgeting results in recommended amounts that in many cases are less than the agency head had requested.

"It is understandable that officials and employes will feel strongly about the importance of their own agency's work, and will sometimes believe that a larger budget might be in order. Such feelings, however, must be related to an awareness that our budget resources are not adequate to accommodate in any one year all of the things that might be desired. The President is responsible for reviewing the total needs of the executive branch in the light of tax and debt policy and for deciding among competing requests for priorities. Executive branch personnel are expected to support the President in his budget recommendations.

"As you and your staff prepare to justify your portion of the budget before Congress, you will want to observe the requirements set forth at the President's direction in Bureau of the Budget Circular No. A-10. It is expected that witnesses will carefully avoid volunteering views differing from the budget, either on the record or off the record.

"While direct questions at hearings must be answered frankly, it is expected that a witness who feels that he must set forth a personal view inconsistent with the President's budget will also point out that the President's judgment on the matter was reached from his overall perspective as the head of the government, and in the light of overriding national policy. The witness should make it clear that his personal comments are not to be construed as a request for additional funds."

A Johnson aide, reading the above commented, "The chiefs came before us handcuffed."

Chamber's Fair Hurt by Beefs, Lack of Spenders

By TOM VINCIGUERRA
Herald Staff Writer

HALLANDALE — The Chamber of Commerce-sponsored fair, dogged by complaints, closed out its six-day run Saturday night, with officials hoping the promotion will at least break even.

"The attendance was not what we expected and the people just didn't spend money," said veteran road showman R. C. McCarter, the fair director. "We might even lose money," McCarter added.

An audit is expected to be completed today.

McCarter said gate receipts for Thursday, the biggest day, were $1,100. Other days, he said, produced less than $500 daily.

Also to be counted are revenues from kiddie rides, side shows, concessions and booth rentals. McCarter listed expenses at about $18,000.

The Chamber's take was set at 25 per cent of net profits with the remainder divided among two individual investors and the show promoter.

"We didn't anticipate making anything the first year," said S. Lee Crouch, Chamber president. "The chamber hasn't lost anything, and when you consider the more than $1,000 in prize money and the car give-away, the area actually made money."

Crouch said a Chamber committee will report to the board of directors on the fair's financial condition and whether it will become an annual Chamber-sponsored event.

DE-SCOOTERED Saturday atfernoon was Joseph Alter; 54, 1115 NW 7th Ave. shown being attended by Fort Lauderdale Policeman William Hilgenfeldt near the intersection of NW 4th Ave. and Second St. Alter's left ankle was broken when his scooter fell on top of him, police said, after he swerved to miss a motorcycle ridden by John B. Herrick, 705 NE 16th St. Herrick was charged with failure to remain stopped at a stop sign.

League Demands Parley on SR 9

By ROSE ALLEGATO
Herald Staff Writer

WEST PALM BEACH — How long will Palm Beach and Broward Counties have to wait for State Rd. 9?

The road, now completed in Dade County, terminates at Hollywood in Broward County. SR 9 has been designated as the route for the federal interstate highway. There's the wrinkle.

Government leaders in Dade, Palm Beach and Broward want to see SR 9 extended through Palm Beach County in any way — as a limited access expressway or just a plain old north-south highway.

At a Tri-County Governmental League meeting here this weekend, leaders from Dade, Broward and Palm Beach Counties complained the state was giving them the run-around on SR 9.

George Peterson, chairman of Broward County commissioners, opined; "The State Road Department has two budgets — the budget named desire and the one they use to build roads."

The league is demanding a five-party meeting to ascertain the status of SR 9, which is considered vital to transportation in the tri-county area.

The meeting would include representatives from the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, the State Road Department, the Sunshine Parkway, the governor's office, and the Tri-County Governmental League.

Lake Lytal, chairman of Palm Beach County commissioners, said he has been led to believe Palm Beach County will have its first link of SR 9 in two years.

Peterson said the SRD has okayed the construction of SR 9, from its present terminus to SR 84 in Broward County. This section would be two lanes.

Peterson said he has been told SR 9 will not be extended until the turnpike proves itself a financial success. The bonds floated to finance the pike supposedly prohibit this.

Whichever is accepted, the 90-to-10 principle applies, with the federal government footing 90 per cent of the costs.

'Prosecutor' Of Mayor Volunteers

By PETER LAINE
Herald Staff Writer

WILTON MANORS — Attorney Frank Akerman will aske the city council Tuesday night to appoint him special prosecutor against Mayor Frank Starling.

Starling is due to go to trial next Saturday in Municipal Court with his partner, Lamar Braddy, accused of violating a city ordinance which prohibits specially-licensed bars from serving patrons on stools.

Starling and Braddy recently opened a bar and restaurant with a special license. Customers sit around the bar to drink.

The mayor said they sat on chairs. His competitors said they sat on stools, and took out a warrant for his arrest.

The case has caused some embarassment in the onetime village family circle. Municipal Judge William Leonard, who owes his appointment to the mayor, promptly disqualified himself.

Terminal's Ready For Business

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — The new terminal building at Broward International Airport will be in business starting at 7 a.m. today.

Two airlines now using the field moved in Saturday as did Customs, Immigration, the Public Health Service and the Department of Agriculture's plant inspector.

A third Airline, Aerovias Q, will start flying between Broward International and Havana with the opening of the new field. National Airlines has also applied for space.

The first flight carrying passengers from the new building will leave for Nassau at 9 a.m.

The control tower is still uncompleted. Lee Wagener, county aviation director, said it will take the Civil Aeronautics Administration two to three months to move in $100,000 worth of radio equipment.

The federal agencies will be quartered in a wing seperated from the main building by a patio. It was designed to speed up the clearance of inbound passengers.

For customs, there is a row of checkout counters where they will inspect baggage and hand it back to the owners, who will then have to take only a few steps to reach the taxi and limousine loading zone.

The building and divided access road leading in from Federal Hwy. still have not been landscaped. The Union News Co., which will operate the restaurant and lounge, has not completed it. Lighting has not yet been installed for the parking lot.

When all of this is completed, the building will be dedicated.

Cochrane Rites Will Be Monday

LAUDERDALE-BY-THE-SEA — Funeral services for Russell C. Cochrane, 53, who was killed in a private plane crash Wednesday near Orlando will be at 11 a.m. Monday at Kraeer Funeral Home, Pompano.

Friends may call at the home from 6 to 9 p.m. Sunday. Burial will be at Lauderdale Memorial Gardens.

Cochrane, who lived at 4445 El Mar Dr., was employed as an engineer by the Air Materiel Command at Patrick Air Force Base.

He is survived by his wife, Lucy, a son, Russell D., and a daughter, Merlyn, all of Lauderdale-by-the-Sea, and another son, Donald of Eau Gallie.

For Unincorporated Areas

Volunteer Fire Units Propose One-Mill Levy

Tax May Provide $250,000

By ART ROBINSON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Broward County Volunteer Firemen's Association wants the unincorporated areas of the county made into a taxing district to provide money for fire protection.

M. L. Lehman, president, said Saturday the proposal will be presented to the county commission Tuesday.

The association will seek legislation which would permit the levying of up to one mill in unincorporated areas for the purchase of equipment, construction of buildings and salaries of some paid firemen.

However, all volunteer companies would be retained and the bulk of the firemen would continue to be volunteers, Lehman said. He is president of the Pompano Beach Highlands Volunteer Department.

The tax money would be administered by a five-man fire commission, two of whose members would be appointed by the Volunteer Firemen's Association and the other three by the County Commission.

A one-mill levy on non-exempt property would return about $250,000 a year, Lehman said. This would be a far cry from the $15,000 which the county commission now distributes each year among 16 companies.

The association has long complained that every company in the county is short of funds and has only makeshift equipment.

"We can't go on begging for funds which are never enough," Lehman said.

The $250,000 annually is needed to obtain modern equipment, he said. He thought one paid fireman on duty around the clock in each department would be sufficient.

City fire departments have refused to answer calls outside their corporate limits. As unincorporated areas have filled up with subdivisions, the situation has become acute, Lehman said.

He feels there are now more than 75,000 homes outside city limits.

The volunteer firemen's proposal is tentative. They hope to combine it with any ideas the county commissioners may offer.

Nick Faillace of the association will meet with the legislative delegation at 9 a.m. Wednesday in the county commission room to discuss a bill authorizing the tax district.

Slightly Ahead Of Ourselves

FORT LAUDERDALE — Through a typographical error, projected population figures for Broward County were incorrectly listed in The Herald Saturday.

The figures, in Henry Kinney's column, should have recorded a prediction by a Washington analyst that Broward will have a population of 700,000 by 1969. The date was incorrectly printed as 1960.

Counts Bar Profits on the Run
...Morris Engle leaves Tangiers

Big-Time Gambler Has Set Up Shop

By DOM BONAFEDE
Herald Staff Writer

Morris Engle, bigtime Youngstown, Ohio, gambling operator, has joined the growing list of racketeers who now call the Gold Coast home.

Engle, with his brothers Jerry and Zollie, ruled a gambling empire in the Ohio city for more than two decades.

But since last September he has been operating the snazzy barrom at the Tangiers Motel at 18695 Collins Ave. behind a mask of relative anonymity.

The owners of the motel say even they didn't know of his background as a former Ohio gambling lord with a string of arrests reaching back to the depression days of the 1930's.

Although he has left his Youngstown haunts, Engle still maintains a home there, as well as another one at Hollywood where he lives in suburban serenity.

"A fellow is in the rackets and then goes straight but they won't leave him alone, mused Engle.

Speaking of his latest venture, he said:

"I just lease the bar. I don't have any money in the motel. I wish I did."

Irvin Pollak, who owns the Tangiers along with Bernard Becker, declared that Engle "runs the bar as a concession."

"I don't know anything about Eagle's background or that he had been a gambler," said Pollak. "He seems to be a nice guy. I first met him when he was a customer of mine."

A check with the Miami office of the State Beverage Department disclosed that Engle has neither registered nor been fingerprinted with the agency to obey Florida law.

Reported D. E. Yund, director of the Miami office:

"We have no record of Engle in our files. By law he is not allowed to work there until he has been cleared."

Yund further points out that Florida law requires a bar operator to be of "good moral character." Another provision provides that upon conviction of a felony he is prohibited from running a bar for the next 15 years.

Even in his youth, Engle hardly qualified for the Good Government Award.

Reds Accidentally Cut Cable, Navy Man Thinks

'That's My Personal Opinion'

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The U.S. naval officer who led a boarding party onto a Soviet fishing trawler said Saturday he believed the Russian ship accidentally cut a transatlantic cable.

SHEELY

Lt. Donald Martin Sheely of Fairmont, Minn., said the cable "was most probably accidentally cut by them. That's my personal opinion."

He said there was no evidence that it was cut deliberately but "I am not convinced they didn't cut it deliberately."

Sheely said the Russians took the attitude that their fishing equipment was new and they did not think they could have cut the cable.

Sheely and two other members of the boarding party were flown here to report to the Navy.

They also were questioned at the State Department before meeting newsmen at the Pentagon.

Sheely said he was "somewhat nervous" about boarding the Russian trawler Novorossisk but he and other members of the party went unarmed.

The Soviet ship responded, Sheely said, when the U.S. destroyer Roy O. Hale hoisted an international flag signal to heave to for a boarding party.

He said the Russians were "not social. They accepted us but were not overly friendly." Sheely said he believed there was more electronic equipment aboard the Soviet vessel "than we would expect to see on one of our own fishing vessels."

The party boarded the Soviet craft under terms of an 1884 treaty permitting inspection of documents of ships suspected of damaging oceanic cables. Five cable breaks had been reported.

The Navy had announced Thursday night that Sheely's party found no intent on the part of the trawler to do anything but fish.

Demand $12,500,000 Wage Boost

Teamsters Bare Plan For Public Workers

By TOM LOWNES
Herald Staff Writer

Out-of-town Teamsters organizers set up headquarters in a Miami Beach councilman's law office Saturday and announced demands for a $12,500,000 wage increase for Dade's municipal and county employes.

Henry Feinstein, president of the Public Employes Local 237 of New York Teamsters, revealed his sweeping short-range plans after moving into the office of Councilman Harold Shapiro, Teamster attorney here.

Feinstein, who is doing double duty as a Teamster organizer, said his group will seek $500-a-year increase for all 25,000 county and municipal workers in Dade.

Other Feinstein plans for courting the county's unorganized workers: "a 40-hour week; time-and-a-half in cash for work over 40 hours; bonus pay for Saturday, Sunday and holidays; and a compulsary merit system."

"I was shocked to learn that men at hard labor are forced to put in as many as 54 hours a week in some municipal jobs here to earn as little as $60.84," Feinstein said.

"This is the sort of thing you hear about Russia — I had assumed that such working conditions had disappeared in the dark age in our country."

"I wonder if Gov. Collins is aware of such conditions in Florida and if so, why he hasn't taken corrective steps," said Feinstein in a sharp dig at Florida's chief Hoffa foe.

"As for the Teamsters Union," said Feinstein, "we most certainly intend to correct this situation immediately."

The New York Teamster said he had already organized a band of 60 municipal and county employes here to work behind William Huet, 1673 Bay Rd., Miami Beach, business agent for the new drive.

Feinstein said he was also "interested" in meeting with Dade's school teachers, firemen, and hospital employes to see what Jimmy Hoffa's Teamster Union could do for them.

We've Had It--Hottest February

Miami closed out the hottest February on Weather Bureau records Saturday with promises of more nicer-than-usual conditions in March.

Forecaster Sanford Neuman added up the February readings recorded at the Weather Bureau's airport station — where Miami's official readings are taken — and found the average was 75.4 degrees.

That's 6.7 degrees higher than the 68.7 "normal" average for the month — and a whopping 17 degrees warmer than the 59.4 average of February of 1958, when all South Florida suffered in one economy smashing cold spell after another.

Figures for Miami Beach haven't been compiled by the Weather Bureau, but Neuman said "there's no doubt this will be the hottest February on record."

The second hottest February since the Weather Bureau started keeping records in 1939 was in 1957, when the average was 72.7.

What about March?

"Our 30-day outlook calls for normal to slightly above normal temperatures in March," Neuman said.

Maxwell Anderson
. . . dead after stroke

Writer Anderson, 70, Dies

STAMFORD, Conn. — (AP) — Maxwell Anderson, 70, one of America's most respected playwrights, died Saturday night. He suffered a stroke at his home here Thursday.

The Pulitzer prize-winning author died at Stamford Hospital, where he had been partially paralyzed since the stroke.

When he was stricken, Anderson was working on a new musical play to be called "Madonna and Child."

Anderson won the Pulitzer prize in 1933 for his play, "Both Your Houses," and was given a number of other awards for various of his more than 30 plays.

Among those works were "What Price Glory?" (written with Laurence Stallings), "Winterset," "High Tor," "Knickerbocker Holiday," "Key Largo," and "Barefoot in Athens."

Younger persons, though, perhaps know Anderson best of all for the lyrics of "September Song," which he wrote for "Knickerbocker Holiday."

Youth Falls 19 Floors --And Lives

NEW YORK — (AP) — A young man plunged 19 floors Saturday but crashed through the top of a huge water tank and floated semi-conscious to the surface.

Police found him clutching the rim of the 10,000 gallon, two-story-high tank. They strapped him to a plank and maneuvered him through a seventh floor window level with the tank roof.

Identified as Emil A. Swiezy, 23, of Flushing, Queens, N.Y., he was taken to Beth David Hospital in critical condition with head and internal injuries.

The superintendent of the 26-story building, located on Lexington Ave. at 41st St., said he noticed a rear window open. Leaning out, he saw the the tank 19 stories below. There was a jagged hole in the tank's wood and copper-sheathed top. Looking closer, he saw the man, and called police.

Our Moment of Peril

The Big Question Today: Could We Survive Attack?

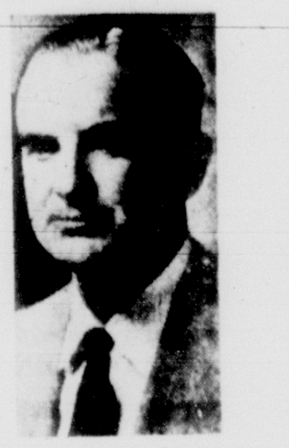
and you may receive three sharply conflicting interpretations.

Defense Secretary Neil McElroy sees no need to spend more money during this coming fiscal year than has been asked for by his department.

"The present rate of arms spending assures that essential defense needs are met," the secretary told the subcommittee under the questioning of its able counsel, Edwin L. Weisl. He called the U.S. position "satisfactory."

Sen. Stuart Symington (D., Mo.), a member of the subcommittee and secretary of air during the Truman administration, asserted at the same hearing:

"Since the United States has not kept its defense strength modernized, during the next few years adequate defense requires more money than estimated in the President's budget. The coming year may afford us our last chance to initiate any real effort to catch up with the Russians in the most important field of modern weaponry."



Stuart Symington

Neil McElroy
. . . 'needs are met'

Between McElroy's "satisfactory" and Symington's "last chance" one can find a dozen shades of opinion.

"Who's telling the truth in the Great Debate?" I asked Sen. Lyndon Johnson, the majority leader whose subcommittee is far from satisfied with what it has heard.

"They all are," he said, suddenly looking up at us.

"It reminds me of the time our little girl was born. I understand that later on some of the neighbors didn't think she was too pretty as a little baby. But to me she was the most beautiful thing I ever saw in my life." He paused, grinned and added, "Now, that was an honest difference of opinion. Maybe we were both right."

"I've heard enough in that committee room to convince me that the Defense Department's decision to go along with the President's budget is a political decision, not a military decision.

"I don't think we're moving far enough fast enough. We're getting one missiles czar stacked up on top of another missiles czar, but we're not getting any missiles. The whole program lacks oomph.

"Lord knows forty billion dollars is a terrible lot of money. That's what they've asked the Congress to give them this year. Some of them seem to think it's ridiculous to suggest that Russia might hit us. If they're that sure, then they're wasting a terrible amount of money. But others feel Russia will hit us just as soon as she's sure she can get away with it without serious retaliation by us. If that's the case, forty billion dollars isn't enough.

"These are honorable men we've had appearing before us. But they're tied up in a political decision. The joint chiefs came before us to testify after Mr. McElroy cut their original estimated needs from two to four billion dollars. He had them sign a statement that what remained was sufficient. But all these gentlemen have 'reservations.' For

"As a young fellow in this town, in the days leading up to Pearl Harbor, I had an opportunity to tell President Roosevelt that I thought we weren't going far enough fast enough. Then just before the outbreak in Korea, I told the same thing to President Truman. Now I'm going on record again, this time for the benefit of President Eisenhower.

"I just never want to be in the position that Frank Knox (F. D. R.'s secretary of Navy) found himself in the day after Pearl Harbor. The American Magazine came out with an article by him saying 'we can lick them in either ocean' while the bellies of his fleet looked up at the moon."

The now declassified statement which the joint chiefs dutifully signed reads:

"Memorandum for the secretary of defense.

"Subject: Joint chiefs of staff position on the FY (fiscal year) 1960 budget.

"The joint chiefs of staff consider that the FY 1960 proposed expenditure figure of $40,945,000,000 is adequate to provide for the essential programs necessary for the defense of the nation for the period under consideration. They find no serious gaps in the key elements of the budget in its present form, but all have reservations with respect to the funding of some segments of their respective service programs."

The statement bears the signatures of Gen. N. F. Twining, USAF, chairman, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chief of staff of the Army, Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, Gen. Thomas D. White, chief of staff of the Air Force, and Gen. Randolph McC. Pate, commandant of the Marine Corps.

A document that has aroused much more ire on Capitol Hill, however, is the following memorandum to Scretary McElroy from President Eisenhower's budget director, Maurice H. Stans:

"The President will shortly present his budget for the fiscal year 1960 to the Congress. As you know, the normal process of budgeting results in recommended amounts that in many cases are less than the agency head had requested.

"It is understandable that officials and employes will feel strongly about the importance of their own agency's work, and will sometimes believe that a larger budget might be in order. Such feelings, however, must be related to an awareness that our budget resources are not adequate to accommodate in any one year all of the things that might be desired. The President is responsible for reviewing the total needs of the executive branch in the light of tax and debt policy and for deciding among competing requests for priorities. Executive branch personnel are expected to support the President in his budget recommendations.

"As you and your staff prepare to justify your portion of the budget before Congress, you will want to observe the requirements set forth at the President's direction in Bureau of the Budget Circular No. A-10. It is expected that witnesses will carefully avoid volunteering views differing from the budget, either on the record or off the record.

"While direct questions at hearings must be answered frankly, it is expected that a witness who feels that he must set forth a personal view inconsistent with the President's budget will also point out that the President's judgment on the matter was reached from his overall perspective as the head of the government, and in the light of overriding national policy. The witness should make it clear that his personal comments are not to be construed as a request for additional funds."

A Johnson aide, reading the above commented, "The chiefs came before us handcuffed."

Chamber's Fair Hurt by Beefs, Lack of Spenders

By TOM VINCIGUERRA
Herald Staff Writer

HALLANDALE — The Chamber of Commerce-sponsored fair, dogged by complaints, closed out its six-day run Saturday night, with officials hoping the promotion will at least break even.

"The attendance was not what we expected and the people just didn't spend money," said veteran road showman R. C. McCarter, the fair director. "We might even lose money," McCarter added.

An audit is expected to be completed today.

McCarter said gate receipts for Thursday, the biggest day, were $1,100. Other days, he said, produced less than $500 daily.

Also to be counted are revenues from kiddie rides, side shows, concessions and booth rentals. McCarter listed expenses at about $18,000.

The Chamber's take was set at 25 per cent of net profits with the remainder divided among two individual investors and the show promoter.

"We didn't anticipate making anything the first year," said S. Lee Crouch, Chamber president. "The chamber hasn't lost anything, and when you consider the more than $1,000 in prize money and the car give-away, the area actually made money."

Crouch said a Chamber committee will report to the board of directors on the fair's financial condition and whether it will become an annual Chamber-sponsored event.

DE-SCOOTERED Saturday atfernoon was Joseph Alter; 54, 1115 NW 7th Ave. shown being attended by Fort Lauderdale Policeman William Hilgenfeldt near the intersection of NW 4th Ave. and Second St. Alter's left ankle was broken when his scooter fell on top of him, police said, after he swerved to miss a motorcycle ridden by John B. Herrick, 705 NE 16th St. Herrick was charged with failure to remain stopped at a stop sign.

League Demands Parley on SR 9

By ROSE ALLEGATO
Herald Staff Writer

WEST PALM BEACH — How long will Palm Beach and Broward Counties have to wait for State Rd. 9?

The road, now completed in Dade County, terminates at Hollywood in Broward County. SR 9 has been designated as the route for the federal interstate highway. There's the wrinkle.

Government leaders in Dade, Palm Beach and Broward want to see SR 9 extended through Palm Beach County in any way — as a limited access expressway or just a plain old north-south highway.

At a Tri-County Governmental League meeting here this weekend, leaders from Dade, Broward and Palm Beach Counties complained the state was giving them the run-around on SR 9.

George Peterson, chairman of Broward County commissioners, opined: "The State Road Department has two budgets — the budget named desire and the one they use to build roads."

The league is demanding a five-party meeting to ascertain the status of SR 9, which is considered vital to transportation in the tri-county area.

The meeting would include representatives from the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, the State Road Department, the Sunshine Parkway, the governor's office, and the Tri-County Governmental League.

Lake Lytal, chairman of Palm Beach County commissioners, said he has been led to believe Palm Beach County will have its first link of SR 9 in two years.

Peterson said the SRD has okayed the construction of SR 9, from its present terminus to SR 84 in Broward County. This section would be two lanes.

Peterson said he has been told SR 9 will not be extended until the turnpike proves itself a financial success. The bonds floated to finance the pike supposedly prohibit this.

Whichever is accepted, the 90-to-10 principle applies, with the federal government footing 90 per cent of the costs.

'Prosecutor' Of Mayor Volunteers

By PETER LAINE
Herald Staff Writer

WILTON MANORS — Attorney Frank Akerman will aske the city council Tuesday night to appoint him special prosecutor against Mayor Frank Starling.

Starling is due to go to trial next Saturday in Municipal Court with his partner, Lamar Braddy, accused of violating a city ordinance which prohibits specially-licensed bars from serving patrons on stools.

Starling and Braddy recently opened a bar and restaurant with a special license. Customers sit around the bar to drink.

The mayor said they sat on chairs. His competitors said they sat on stools, and took out a warrant for his arrest.

The case has caused some embarassment in the onetime village family circle. Municipal Judge William Leonard, who owes his appointment to the mayor, promptly disqualified himself.

Terminal's Ready For Business

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — The new terminal building at Broward International Airport will be in business starting at 7 a.m. today.

Two airlines now using the field moved in Saturday as did Customs, Immigration, the Public Health Service and the Department of Agriculture's plant inspector.

A third Airline, Aerovias Q, will start flying between Broward International and Havana with the opening of the new field. National Airlines has also applied for space.

The first flight carrying passengers from the new building will leave for Nassau at 9 a.m.

The control tower is still uncompleted. Lee Wagener, county aviation director, said it will take the Civil Aeronautics Administration two to three months to move in $100,000 worth of radio equipment.

The federal agencies will be quartered in a wing seperated from the main building by a patio. It was designed to speed up the clearance of inbound passengers.

For customs, there is a row of checkout counters where they will inspect baggage and hand it back to the owners, who will then have to take only a few steps to reach the taxi and limousine loading zone.

The building and divided access road leading in from Federal Hwy. still have not been landscaped. The Union News Co., which will operate the restaurant and lounge, has not completed it. Lighting has not yet been installed for the parking lot.

When all of this is completed, the building will be dedicated.

Cochrane Rites Will Be Monday

LAUDERDALE-BY-THE-SEA — Funeral services for Russell C. Cochrane; 53, who was killed in a private plane crash Wednesday near Orlando will be at 11 a.m. Monday at Kraeer Funeral Home, Pompano.

Friends may call at the home from 6 to 9 p.m. Sunday. Burial will be at Lauderdale Memorial Gardens.

Cochrane, who lived at 4445 El Mar Dr., was employed as an engineer by the Air Materiel Command at Patrick Air Force Base.

He is survived by his wife, Lucy, a son, Russell D., and a daughter, Merlyn, all of Lauderdale-by-the-Sea, and another son, Donald of Eau Gallie.

For Unincorporated Areas

Volunteer Fire Units Propose One-Mill Levy

Tax May Provide $250,000

By ART ROBINSON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Broward County Volunteer Firemen's Association wants the unincorporated areas of the county made into a taxing district to provide money for fire protection.

M. L. Lehman, president, said Saturday the proposal will be presented to the county commission Tuesday.

The association will seek legislation which would permit the levying of up to one mill in unincorporated areas for the purchase of equipment, construction of buildings and salaries of some paid firemen.

However, all volunteer companies would be retained and the bulk of the firemen would continue to be volunteers, Lehman said. He is president of the Pompano Beach Highlands Volunteer Department.

The tax money would be administered by a five-man fire commission, two of whose members would be appointed by the Volunteer Firemen's Association and the other three by the County Commission.

A one-mill levy on non-exempt property would return about $250,000 a year, Lehman said. This would be a far cry from the $15,000 which the county commission now distributes each year among 16 companies.

The association has long complained that every company in the county is short of funds and has only makeshift equipment.

"We can't go on begging for funds which are never enough," Lehman said.

The $250,000 annually is needed to obtain modern equipment, he said. He thought one paid fireman on duty around the clock in each department would be sufficient.

City fire departments have refused to answer calls outside their corporate limits. As unincorporated areas have filled up with subdivisions, the situation has become acute, Lehman said.

He feels there are now more than 75,000 homes outside city limits.

The volunteer firemen's proposal is tentative. They hope to combine it with any ideas the county commissioners may offer.

Nick Faillace of the association will meet with the legislative delegation at 9 a.m. Wednesday in the county commission room to discuss a bill authorizing the tax district.

Slightly Ahead Of Ourselves

FORT LAUDERDALE — Through a typographical error, projected population figures for Broward County were incorrectly listed in The Herald Saturday.

The figures, in Henry Kinney's column, should have recorded a prediction by a Washington analyst that Broward will have a population of 700,000 by 1969. The date was incorrectly printed as 1960.

Counts Bar Profits on the Run
. . . Morris Engle leaves Tangiers

Big-Time Gambler Has Set Up Shop

By DOM BONAFEDE
Herald Staff Writer

Morris Engle, bigtime Youngstown, Ohio, gambling operator, has joined the growing list of racketeers who now call the Gold Coast home.

Engle, with his brothers Jerry and Zollie, ruled a gambling empire in the Ohio city for more than two decades.

But since last September he has been operating the snazzy barrom at the Tangiers Motel at 18695 Collins Ave. behind a mask of relative anonymity.

The owners of the motel say even they didn't know of his background as a former Ohio gambling lord with a string of arrests reaching back to the depression days of the 1930's.

Although he has left his Youngstown haunts, Engle still maintains a home there, as well as another one at Hollywood where he lives in suburban serenity.

"A fellow is in the rackets and then goes straight but they won't leave him alone, mused Engle.

Speaking of his latest venture, he said:

"I just lease the bar. I don't have any money in the motel. I wish I did."

Irvin Pollak, who owns the Tangiers along with Bernard Becker, declared that Engle "runs the bar as a concession."

"I don't know anything about Eagle's background or that he had been a gambler," said Pollak. "He seems to be a nice guy. I first met him when he was a customer of mine."

A check with the Miami office of the State Beverage Department disclosed that Engle has neither registered nor been fingerprinted with the agency to obey Florida law.

Reported D. E. Yund, director of the Miami office:

"We have no record of Engle in our files. By law he is not allowed to work there until he has been cleared."

Yund further points out that Florida law requires a bar operator to be of "good moral character." Another provision provides that upon conviction of a felony he is prohibited from running a bar for the next 15 years.

Even in his youth, Engle hardly qualified for the Good Government Award.

A General Trades His Gun for a Shovel

Yigal Yadin once headed the general staff branch of Hagana, the Jewish underground in Palestine, in 1947. Today he is steeped in the study of archeology.

Why this successful military man switched to a completely new field makes for a fascinating story.

JERUSALEM, Israel —(AP)— A few years ago Maj. Gen. Yigal Yadin was chief of staff of the Israeli army. Today at 41 he is by choice a civilian and by accomplishment one of the world's leading archeologists.

And no one in Israel thinks it the least unusual that Yadin abandoned a brilliant military career for excavations and the study of scrolls and artifacts.

For in this land of the Bible, one of the well-trodden crossroads of human history, the remote past is as alive as the present. The events of two or three millenia ago are nearly as real as the current events in the morning paper. The archaeologist is as much a part of life as the soldier or politician.

. . . explains project to David Ben-Gurion

Yadin's change of careers widened the impact of his talents. Where once he fought for Israel, today he works for the entire world of learning. He has helped add greatly to the store of knowledge of Biblical history.

In his new work, Yadin is following in the footsteps of his father, the late professor Eliezer Sukenik, who headed the archeology department of Hebrew University in Jerusalem. (It is not uncommon for a son's name to differ from his father's in Israel, where many people have taken new Hebrew names or translated their names into Hebrew.)

During the Arab-Israeli War of 1948-49, Prof. Sukenik made perilous journeys into Arab-held territory to purchase for a few hundred dollars the first three of the now famous Dead Sea scrolls.

He made the trips against the advice of his son. But later, Yadin also played a part in the fantastic story of the scrolls. He handled negotiations in New York which led to the purchase for Israel of four more scrolls. These cost nearly a half-million dollars.

Prof. Sukenik died in 1953. His son now carries on in his place at Hebrew University.

Yadin lives in the house of his father, a house built of yellow cut stone which typifies all of new Jerusalem. It was here, in the yard, that Sukenik buried the first three scrolls for a time to protect them in case the Arabs invaded the Israeli sector of the city.

Yadin, tall, a little round at the middle, speaks fluent English. He is quite likely to deliver a visitor what amounts to an hour's lecture on current archeological work in Israel.

The Bible tells how Joshua led the Israelites in capturing and destroying Hazor, one of the Caananites' principal cities. If the date of its destruction could be pinned down, it would assist greatly in dating events described in the Bible subsequently.

For four seasons, 250 diggers and 40 to 45 archeologists worked at Hazor. They made rich finds. It turned out there had been 20 cities on the site of Hazor. The site had once housed 40,000 people on an area of 150 acres — an ancient metropolis. Yadin's group found 250,000 artifacts, 1,000 of which have considerable value.

More importantly, it was possible after studying the evidence to date Hazor's destruction by the Israelites in the 13th Century B.C. much more precisely than before.

Reports on the Hazor excavations are currently being published in scientific journals.

Another subject close to Yadin's heart are the investigations being made by him and his Israeli colleagues on the Dead Sea scrolls.

Ten years ago, Yadin was engaged in a completely different kind of work. As one of Israel's leading commanders and chief of operations of the general staff, he had much of the responsibility for the survival of the newly reborn country.

He came to his post of command as the logical result of heading the general staff branch of Hagana, the Jewish underground in Palestine, in 1947.

Yadin's abandonment of his military career for a civilian pursuit is not unusual in Israel. Maj. Gen. Yaakov Dori, chief of the general staff during the Arab-Israeli war, is now president of Israel's leading technological institute, the Technion in Haifa. Maj. Gen. Moshe Dayan, chief of staff during the Sinai campaign of 1956, has retired from Army life to take his chances on a political career.

How Not to Act Like a President's Son

How can you be the son of the President of the U.S. and act like yourself? It's a tough job, but lots of young men have done pretty well at it. Take Maj. John Eisenhower. He keeps out of the spotlight and makes no attempt to capitalize on his famous dad's name. He himself tells how in this interview.

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

Maj. Eisenhower
. . . no spotlight

WASHINGTON — It's one of life's toughest problems for a boy to grow up in the shadow of a famous father.

History is full of examples — John Quincy Adams, Robert Todd Lincoln, Robert Taft, Herbert Hoover Jr., the Roosevelt boys, Randolph Churchill. They have dealt with the problem in various ways with varying degrees of success.

John Eisenhower, a 36-year-old Army major now serving on his father's staff at the White House, has lived with the problem ever since World War II.

John's system, which he discussed in an interview, has been to keep out of the spotlight and meticulously avoid any attempt to capitalize on his father's name.

The Eisenhowers, father and son, cooperated so faithfully along this line that they did not even consider John's returning from Korea to attend his father's first inaugural.

Both took it for granted that John's place was in Korea. "A trip back for the inaugural was not even discussed," said John, when his father visited Korea after the election in 1952.

John was mystified, accordingly, when he got orders to return to Washington for the inaugural. So was his father. President-elect Ike finally raised the question with outgoing President Truman on Inaugural Day.

Ike asked Truman if he could tell him, "who ordered my boy home from Korea for this." Ike wanted to know, he said, as John had been giving him "hell" about it.

Truman, who had issued the order himself, told Ike, "Just tell him that contrary old man in the White House did it."

"It was a very kind thing for Mr. Truman to have done," John said.

Tall and dressed in a gray suit, he sat at a huge round table in the White House conference room and doodled on a yellow scratch pad during the interview. He looks a lot like his father. The two are close friends and often play golf together. But they are very different in personality. John is shy and reticent compared to his father. It was typical of John that he let his boss, Brig. Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster, do most of the talking about his White House job.

Before John came into the room, White House Press Secretary James Hagerty recalled a story he had heard from Gen. James Van Fleet. "The general said that he ordered John back to division headquarters from the Korean front line after his father became President-elect. John was really sore about this, but he eventually came to see the wisdom of it.

The general pointed out that the enemy would have risked a lot of men to capture the President-elect's son.

John does not feel sorry for himself. When asked if he feels he has missed anything in life, he answers no.

Then he adds, with refreshing candor, that he thinks he has made trips he would not have made if his father had not been in the White House. He went to the Geneva summit conference in 1955, for instance, as the President's aide.

John has been a major since August, 1951. But he said there is no foundation to a recent report that his promotion to lieutenant colonel has been held back so as to avoid any appearance of favoritism.

He said his promotions have come along about as they have for the other members of the 1944 West Point class.

John came into the White House last October and expects to remain there as assistant staff secretary under Gen. Goodpaster. An assistant was put on, said the general, because the job became too heavy for one man.

Again, speaking frankly, John said he does not think he would have been given the job if his father had not been president. But he conceded that he has the background for the job and that perhaps it was easier for him to fit into it than someone the President did not know.

"I leave home about 7:30 in the morning, pick up Gen. Goodpaster, who lives a few blocks from me in Alexandria, and we arrive here about 7:50," said John, in explanation of his daily routine. "We try to start home sometime after 6 in the evening."

There are two parts of their job — supervising the flow of staff papers, and acting as a clearing house for secret papers from the various sensitive agencies of government. They funnel these in to the President and see that replies go out from him.

Goodpaster spoke with envy about the facility with which John does the writing required on the job. This is not surprising. When John was at West Point, he thought he wanted to be a writer.

He returned after graduation, to be an English instructor. His favorite author is Shakespeare.

John is popular with the secretaries at the White House because he never throws his weight around. John and his wife, Barbara, are well liked by their neighbors in Alexandria. They live in a rented, three-bedroom rambler, with their four children — David, 10, Barbara Anne, nine, Susan, six, and Mary Jean, 3.

The President thinks the young Eisenhowers are doing an excellent job of raising the children because they do not let them put on airs over the fact that their grandfather lives in the White House.

Professor-Shy

PARIS —(AP)— The Scientific Research Association reports there is only one professor for each 269 graduate science students in Paris and for the rest of France the ratio is one to 99. Its study also shows graduate science schools provide only eight square inches of space — some even less — per student.

Answers to Last Week's Puzzle

Across

1—A jealous dog-lover often tends to resent strangers PETTING his dog (Patting). — Not PATTING: it might be no more than a few pats. Often tends accords better with PETTING, which indicates that strangers are paying a good deal of attention to the animal.

4—A man who is DUDE is often apt to be inefficient (Rude). — Normally, often apt goes too far with RUDE. It's more in character for a DUDE, or dandy, to be inefficient. He's likely to spend more attention on himself than on the job.

6—As a rule, the stricter a boss more anxious workers are that they don't GET him down (Let). — GET is better; they might well fear a very strict boss. They might LET him down, but he might not know about it.

7—When a rival's charms are more FAKED than hers, a woman is seldom charitable about it (Faded).— Not FADED: she'd have little to fear from a rival with FADED charms. When the rival's charms are more FAKED than her, that rival might put up a better apparent appearance.

10—We're usually readier to discuss our personal problems with people of our own SET (Sex). — Not SEX: a person of the opposite SEX, a close relative or friend, might well be our closest confidant. It is more reasonable to say that we're usually readier to discuss such problems with people in our own circle of acquaintances, our own SET.

11—SHAME sometimes has a beneficial effect on a naughty child (Shake). — A SHAKE seldom has a beneficial effect on a naughty child: it's so soon forgotten! SHAME is more penetrating and more lasting.

13—It often makes workers less careful when their boss doesn't FIND mistakes in their work (Mind). — Often understates with MIND: He'd be indifferent to mistakes. Often points to FIND: the mistakes might be trivial and easily overlooked, but that doesn't mean he won't find future mistakes.

14—Having a reputation for being SHORT certainly has its advantages (Sport). — If you have a reputation for being a SPORT, you might very often be imposed on. If you've a reputation for being SHORT of money, people won't ask you for a loan; they're less likely to waste your time or impose on you if you're believed to be SHORT, curt, abrupt or snappish in manner.

Down

1—There's seldom much that's exciting in the average man's POST (Past). — Seldom goes too far with PAST; the average man of today might well have had experience in a war. Less likely is there to be much that's exciting in the average man's POST, job.

2—Alas! some wives seem all too ready to ridicule their husbands' IDEAS (Ideal). — The statement read with IDEAL is simply not true; one's ideal is that which answers to one's highest conception, the highest and best conceivable. For that matter, she might be his ideal! IDEAS makes the statement true to life.

3—We're apt to be resentful when we've done a man a big favor and he doesn't show a LOT of gratitude (Jot). — When he doesn't show a JOT of gratitude, not even the slightest bit, we're more than merely apt to be resentful. The restraint of apt fits LOT: after all, we've done him a big favor.

5—It often hinders a youngster's progress when his parents' hopes for him CLASH (Crash). — Often understates with CRASH, which implies finality, with no hope of the plans being resurrected. CLASH is milder, indicating merely a difference of opinion.

8—It's often very difficult to interpret a woman's FEARS correctly (Tears). — FEARS is better; she herself might not know the basis for her FEARS. A woman's TEARS can sometimes be bewildering, but often very difficult exaggerates.

9—People are sometimes less likely to be ROWDY when they're young than when they're old (Dowdy). — They're usually, rather than sometimes, less likely to be DOWDY, shabby in appearance, when they're young. Whether people are ROWDY, rough or quarrelsome, depends on their natures. And it's only sometimes less likely they'll be ROWDY when they're young than when they're old.

11—If oten counts much against him when an applicant for a job is SHY about answering questions (Sly). — SLY is weak; if he's obviously sly, it at least usually counts much against him; if his slyness is not obvious it might not be detected. SHY is better with often: a lot depends on the job he's after.

12—A man likes to feel he is HIT in the eyes of a woman he admires (Wit). — It must be clear to many a man that he can scarcely be a WIT in the eyes of a woman he admires; he knows his limitations. That he likes to feel he is a HIT, or success, is more reasonable, more understandable.

West Can't Win, They Say

Berlin Surely Theirs, East Germans Insist

By PAUL GHALI

Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

ZURICH — Switzerland's usually placid trade unionists have had a bad scare.

GHALI

Three union leaders from East Germany recently came to visit and confer with them, fresh from a money-raising tour of Western Germany.

These East Germans—who denied being Communists — said the West can't win in the East-West tussle over Berlin.

According to information they claim is in possession of their union, the Soviets are determined to make Berlin a free city, with or without Western agreement, and to neutralize all of Germany.

No visit such as that of British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan can change this fundamental Soviet determination no matter what honeyed words are exchanged, they told the Swiss.

Here is the gist of what these union leaders fed their Swiss "friends" apparently with some propaganda success:

Soviet authorities in East Germany are certain the Western Allies will be forced to accept their demands on Berlin because of the impossibility of supplying the Western sectors of the city in case of a new blockade.

Western politicans may talk long and loud but Western experts know that in case of a strictly applied blockade the situation of the Western sectors could quickly compel the West to yield.

Puppet government officials do not think it will even be necessary to block the road to Berlin. They are convinced the West will agree to negotiate within the framework of the United Nations.

And Berlin, they hope, will finally be given a status comparable to that of Danzig before the war, with a U.N. high commissioner in charge and officials, appointed mostly by the East German government, carrying on all the work.

According to East German official thinking the West cannot supply the three Western sectors of Berlin by airlift as they did in 1949. West Berlin has developed into too huge an industrial center.

The coal, pig iron and foodstuffs that the West has been piling up for months in its sectors will dwindle much faster than Western capitals seem to expect.

Far more important, however, than this one-sided and obviously propagandistic view are the reasons the East German unionists gave their Swiss "friends" for the Soviet desire for a quick end to the present German situation.

What the Russians are after, they say, is the neutralization and demilitarization of Western Germany. They will do their best to get it even if they have to use the devious means of free elections and the reunification of the two split German territories.

Barge Capsizes On Tug, 2 Lost

MOBILE, Ala. — (AP) — A 200-foot steel barge overturned on a small tug in Mobile harbor. The captain and engineer were missing and presumed drowned. A third man swam to shore.

The 50-foot tug, the Carrie Mack, was towing the barge in Mobile River when the load of oyster shells apparently shifted. The barge capsized on top the tug, which was lashed alongside. The vessel was completely submerged beneath the barge.

The missing were Capt. J. E. Miller, Gulfport, Miss., and Engineer Johnny (Casey) Padgett, Mobile. Cecil Davis, Mobile, a deckhand, swam to shore on Blakeley Island and apparently was uninjured.

Hollywood Bench-Sitter: I'm in the Chips

Happy on $13.50 a Week

By DUANE JONES
Herald Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Think you could live on $13.50 a week?

John Bligh is doing it.

And he manages to salt away a few dollars.

The 79-year-old winter visitor's sole income is the $54 he gets each month from social security.

"Sometimes I don't understand how I do it, but I do," Bligh smiled.

* * *

THE HILLS GROVE, R.I., man retired 10 years ago and in the beginning received only $20 a month.

"That was hardly worth picking up," he said.

"But then times got better and I started getting increases. I got one $20 raise, then $10, and the last was $4. I'm in the chips now."

Bligh comes to Hollywood in December and stays until May. Then he returns to Hills Grove where he owns his home.

Here he spends $10 a week for rent, and has $3.50 left for groceries, laundry, cigarets, haircuts and entertainment.

"That's not much, is it?" he grinned.

* * *

BLIGH explained that his Social Security benefits are small because he paid into the fund only a few years — while working as a watchman at a country club.

Before that he was a street car motorman 30 years and later was a police officer 12 years. Neither job was under Social Security.

The jovial Bligh doesn't drink or gamble, and says he hasn't been to a doctor in 41 years.

He usually has a bowl of oatmeal and a cup of coffee for breakfast and doesn't eat again until about 4:30 p.m. when he dines on soup and occasionally a piece of pie.

"People eat too much," he said. "I'm never hungry and I feel fine."

* * *

MOST OF HIS daylight hours are spent in Young Circle where he's a member of the Bench Sitters Association.

He has held down several part-time jobs here, once as a theater doorman and for four years was a dime store Santa Claus.

"But not this year," he said. "Business was bad and the store couldn't afford a Santa."

Bligh admitted having to "skimp here and there," but said he doesn't budget his money. "I know about what I can afford," he added.

"Money isn't important," he said. "The main thing is to have friends and make the best of what you have."

West Hollywood Kids Happy

New Recreation Center Now Getting Big Play

By TOM VINCIGUERRA
Herald Staff Writer

WEST HOLLYWOOD — Kids here have a dandy new spot with enough room so they can romp and roam with little rein.

It's the county's newest recreation center, a seven-acre park on Hollywood Blvd. about 13 blocks west of State Rd. 7.

The place hasn't been dedicated yet, but it's already serving up to 200 kids a day, Carl Thompson, county parks director, said.

Formal dedication by the County Commission will be Saturday. Rocky Marciano is being sought as master of ceremonies.

"We think the center is going to be one of the best around," Thompson said.

West Hollywood, which has an estimated population of more than 30,000 — the county's largest unincorporated community — has about 13,500 youngsters.

The county spent $16,000 to give them this new recreation center. The brick, 2,400-square foot building has ping-pong tables, a pool table and other indoor games, rest rooms and a kitchen.

Outdoor facilities include lighted basketball courts and a lighted diamond. In addition, the kids can play tennis, horseshoes, volleyball, tether ball and croquet.

Charles Osterkamp is custodian.

Thompson said projected plans call for a dance patio, shuffleboard courts, picnic area and barbecue pits.

"If the teenagers show us they want that many, we'll hold dances at least three times a week," Thompson said.

The area's other county youth center, formerly a beehive of teenage activity, is being used primarily for a children's playground, and the building is available for adult night meetings, Thompson said. The county also maintains a youth center in Carver Ranches.

Core of Increment Plan: Cash

Broward's Polishing Apple For Exceptional Teachers

By GREG TAYLOR
Herald Staff Writer

An apple for the teacher has long been a means of letting her know she's appreciated.

A plan to coat that apple with gold for the Broward County teacher who shows "exceptional teaching ability and service to school and community" is moving toward final approval.

The plan is called the Broward County career increment program. A revised tentative draft of the program has been presented to the School Board.

And the board has set a meeting for March 11 at 4:30 p.m. with the steering committee which devised it, to discuss final county approval.

* * *

SCHOOL PERSONNEL DIRECTOR Wayne Vonarx, a member of the steering committee composed chiefly of teachers, said he thought the School Board will approve the program in principle.

"There may be some revisions but I expect board approval," he said.

After the board acts, the program will go to the State Department of Education for final approval.

"The program could be put into effect this year," he said.

* * *

TAYLOR

PURPOSE OF THE VOLUNTARY program is to keep good teachers in the classroom by giving them "excellent" salaries without going into school administration or better paying jobs outside the education field. Another chief purpose is to improve the instructional program.

"It puts a criteria, developed by her peers, in the hands of the teacher which tells her what an exceptional teacher is.

"And it provides a good guide for everyone involved in teaching our boys and girls," Vonarx said.

Under the program, a teacher may apply for the increment after 11 years of service.

She presents her application to a reviewing board composed of the superintendent, principals and teachers. The application must show that the teacher has met the criteria of exceptional achievement.

If granted, the teacher would receive an increment of $1,000 the following year.

After four years, the teacher is reappraised by the reviewing board and if this reappraisal is favorable a second increment of $1,000 would be awarded the following year.

* * *

A STATE LAW, passed in 1957, requires all counties to set up this type program.

"As it stands now, only local tax money can be used to pay for it," Vonarx said.

"The board can start the increment before the 12th year and can set any amount of increment," he added.

The criteria of what an exceptional teacher is covers teaching techniques, helping the student to grow, professional growth of teacher, personal qualities, service to the school, and contributions to the general improvement of the community.

Haywood Vernon, 'Knight of the Road'
. . . his armor: $42,000 semi-trailer truck

Trucker Helps Fill Your Market Basket

By DUANE JONES
Herald Staff Writer

POMPANO BEACH — Haywood Vernon is a fellow who gets around.

He was in Pompano Friday.

Next Wednesday you might catch him in New York, Chicago, San Francisco or Seattle.

Vernon is a truck driver . . . has been for 13 years and probably will be for as long as he can crawl up and out of a cab.

"It's like railroading or going to sea," he said while waiting for a load of produce at Pompano Farmers Market. "Gets in your blood."

* * *

"I WAS GOING TO QUIT 10 years ago but couldn't. It's a rough job at times, but it beats inside work 50 different ways."

Cross-country hops are Vernon's meat — and bread and butter.

He's been back and forth across the country more times than he can remember.

'There's more money in a long haul, and a lot of drivers, especially married men, prefer shorter trips, Vernon said.

Vernon has a helper and the two share the driving. His $42,000 semi, one of the biggest trucks built, is owned by a Fort Myers firm.

* * *

"WE USUALLY DRIVE 10 hours and sleep eight," he said. The cab has sleeping quarters and radio and is equipped for air conditioning.

A trip from Pompano to San Francisco takes four days.

Vernon says truckers are the best drivers on the road. He also has a lot of respect for women drivers.

"Men get cocky and careless after they've driven awhile," he said.

"Women don't. Some may not be good drivers but they're all careful."

Vernon said some of the best truck drivers are women, and told of several who own their own trucks.

* * *

HIS PET PEEVE are motorists who "poke along" when there's no need for it. But he's not too critical, saying he occasionally does the same.

Vernon doesn't think it's wise to pick up hitchhikers, but said he frequently gives rides to servicemen.

A truck driver can make $200 and $300 a week if he's kept busy and gets good assignments, Vernon added.

Would he recommend driving to a young person starting out in life?

"I don't know. I like it. It's hard work and long hours but it can be a good living and there's no better way to see America first."

Teacher of Yoga: You Can Breathe Fat Away

By RICK TUTTLE
Hollywood Bureau Chief

HOLLYWOOD — Tired of that message machine?

Lack willpower to stay on a diet? Pine for chocolate bars, and candied yams?

Then try yoga.

George D. Tasse claims you can eat as much of whatever you like and remain trim and healthy, if you practice yoga. Tasse teaches yoga in a studio here.

"It's all a matter of correct breathing," he said. "Turns the fat to muscle and does away with wrinkles."

A New York dentist and his wife, taking their seventh lesson, backed up Tasse.

"I had a stomach out to here," said the dentist, bowing his arms out a foot in front of his midsection.

"All the wrinkles are gone from around my neck and I don't have to wear a girdle any more," his wife — somewhere in her 40s—volunteered.

Tasse said he gave up opera for yoga.

He took voice lessons for 4½ years in New York, but decided last spring that yoga was more his line.

While taking the opera lessons, he kept alive by working as a waiter and bartender and singing in a few small New York clubs, he said.

Tasse's brand of yoga has nothing to do with the mental discipline of hinduism, but he said proper posture and breathing become natural after a yoga course.

The basic exercises are:

1. Strenuous breathing while standing. This conditions the lungs and circulates the blood so that excess fat is burned up, Tasse said.

2. Breathing and arm exercises while maintaining correct posture. This fixes the posture, eliminating slouchiness. Students have thrown away their back braces after a few lessons, he claimed.

3. Holding the breath with mouth open. This strengthens the neck muscles, doing away with wrinkles and fat around the chin, he said.

Tasse produced several letters of praise from former students in New York.

Trixie with the Light Blue Eye

. . . she's recovering, needs a home

Donations Saving Life of Trixie

HOLLYWOOD — Money left over from the treatment of another dog is being used by the Humane Society to save the life of a frisky Boston bull terrier.

The dog was presented to the society by a family which was unable to pay for the treatments to cure her of heart worms. So far, the society has spent more than $25, Mrs. Bill Coleman, wife of the manager of the society's shelter, reported.

When Trixie is cured, she will be available for adoption, Mrs. Coleman said. She's been spayed and has had all of her shots and will make someone an excellent pet, Mrs. Coleman added.

Trixie has a distinction — a light blue left eye, so light it's almost white.

Money being used to pay for her treatments was originally donated to pay for similar treatments for a Doberman pinscher. Not all of it was used.

Some Must Buy Twice

VA Warns Veterans On Home Loan Deals

FORT LAUDERDALE—Veterans who get behind in their payments on GI home loans were warned last week to check any offers of cash from strangers.

Phil Campbell, officer in charge of the Veterans Administration Office in Fort Lauderdale, said veterans should check with the mortgage holder to determine whether the offer is legitimate.

In some parts of the country, he added, the practice of "milking" has been revived.

"An offer to pay delinquent installments is made if the veteran will sign an 'acknowledgment,'" he said. "Later the veteran learns he has signed a deed and must 'buy' his property back at a higher price if he wants to keep it."

Another practice of swindlers is to canvass entire neighborhoods to find out which veterans are having trouble meeting their payments. Then a salesman will offer each a nomina amount for their equity, plus the privilege of buying other homes in lower cost developments.

The veterans are required to sign deeds giving the right of possession in 60 days. Later they find no lower cost homes are available and they face eviction.

Sharp Eyes Won Trip to Florida

MARGATE—Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Ehalt of Forest Hills, N.Y., are very observant people.

It was their close scrutinization of a display booth at the Florida Preview Exposition in New York Coliseum that enabled them to correctly answer a quiz contest and win a one-week trip for two to this community.

The contest was based on questions about the Margate community. The answers were contained in literature, movies, and photographs available at the display booth.

Ehalt, a photoengraver, applied for his vacation early to take advantage of the prize opportunity.

"We were planning a trip to Florida, anyway," Ehalt explained.

Marqusee Associates and IBEC Housing Corp. jointly sponsored the contest, which was judged by radio-TV personality John Reed King.

A straight cooling unit, installed through a wall of a Fort Lauderdale home is placed under a window, taking up very little useable wall space. This Air Conditioner is mounted flush, with decorative trim frame on the inside and protrudes only 5 inches outside. Hopkins-Smith installation men are most welcome in even the finest homes because there is no mess and dirt even on "through the wall" installations.

G-E Units were chosen by the BAREFOOT MAILMAN HOTEL right on the beach, because of their superior construction to withstand the extreme conditions of salt and moisture. Hopkins-Smith was selected as the supplier because of their experience in quality installations and their fast, reliable service.

Licensed!
Insured!
Bonded!

An ideal installation places the unit at some height from the floor. This is particularly desirable in large rooms and bedrooms since it gives better all-over circulation, cuts down noise and eliminates drafts. About 80% of Hopkins-Smith installations are through walls and are especially desirable since it eliminates the possibility of rattles or leaks caused by loose windows.

The G-E Thinline is adaptable to practically any type of installation and Hopkins-Smith installation department carries all the specialized materials necessary to complete this unusual type job. Excellent air distribution is achieved by three independent, adjustable louvres. Each job is surveyed by an experienced Hopkins-Smith sales engineer before the sale and is guaranteed not only for workmanship, but also for results that can be expected. For each particular case, there is a G-E Thinline of proper size, for any installation.

Quick to Err — 18 Years to Forgive

MY HAT IS OFF to that Miami minister who was robbed and savagely beaten by two punk kids several days ago.

He's the fellow who, while lying near death on a hospital operating table, forgave the thugs for their heinous attack.

To forgive and forget is an admirable trait—a quality that few people possess today.

I've been mad at a fellow for 18 years.

Well, that's not exactly true. I forgave him several years ago, but haven't had the courage to tell him so.

* * *

Feud Wheeled Into Gear

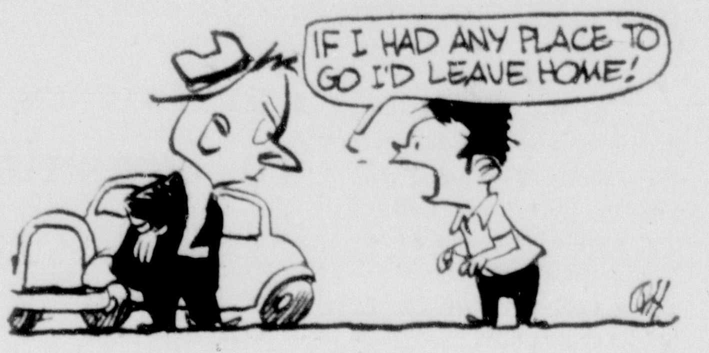
I'M GOING TO, though, next month.

I'm going to walk up to my dad, offer my hand, and say: "Dad, you were right; I was wrong. Please accept my apologies."

If he remembers the incident, he'll smile and say he's glad to learn I've finally acquired some sense.

Our argument was over a car—Dad's car.

We didn't own a car throughout the depression years, and it was quite an event when Dad came home in the spring of 1941 with a brand-new one.



IF I HAD ANY PLACE TO GO I'D LEAVE HOME!

"It's a beaut, Dad," I exclaimed. "Gimme the keys. I got a date tonight."

That was the beginning of our feud.

* * *

A Promise Broken With Speed

DAD PROMPTLY ANNOUNCED that I couldn't have the car, and I immediately threw a fit. I called him a selfish bum, threatened to disown him, and said I'd leave home if I had somewhere to go.

I didn't speak to Dad for weeks. I accepted his food and lodging, but that's all.

Then one Sunday he took me aside and said I could use the car that night IF I promised not to drive more than 45 miles an hour.

He explained that a car is expensive and dangerous if not handled properly.

Dad's words went in one ear and out the other. I took the car and in a matter of minutes was driving 70 and 80 miles an hour toward a lake resort where we kids congregated Sunday nights.

* * *

Shift in Viewpoint Complete

FORTUNATELY, I DIDN'T wreck Dad's car. I drove it two years without scratching it. But I was lucky.

The point I want to make is that I'm now beginning to realize and appreciate the responsibilities of parenthood.

Dad was right. I had no business driving that new $800 or $900 car. But I didn't realize it then.

And that's why I'm going to admit my selfishness and stupidity to him when he comes to visit us next month.

Then I'll forget the incident and concentrate on what to tell my boys when they become 18 and decide they're smarter than their pop.

Rights-of-Way Break -- and Cash -- Needed

ONE OF THE BEST THINGS that the State Legislature could do for the Florida motorist is to set up some procedure for either permitting the state to buy highway rights-of-way or giving the cities funds with which to do it.

KINNEY

The Florida League of Municipalities will ask the Legislature to give part of the state gasoline tax to the Road Department for the purchase of rights-of-way within municipalities.

On the surface this may look like an inter-governmental problem of no direct concern to the man in the street. Down deep, however, it is closely tied to the question of whether the motorist must continue to fight traffic snarls on outdated roads or have reasonably easy going when he sets out on a trip or a Sunday drive.

For several years, the City of Fort Lauderdale has wanted to make Federal Hwy. a modern divided highway south of NE Sixth St., as it is north of Sixth St. One reason why this hasn't been done is the city would have to buy the rights-of-way and it hasn't the money.

The same situation prevails in nearly every community in the most heavily populated parts of Florida. Needed highway improvements are being delayed because the State Road Department demands that the cities buy the rights-of-way and the cities haven't the money.

Several sections of A1A still are only two lanes in width for this reason. What should be the state's best highway is at some points one of the poorest.

Any persuasion that the citizen as a motorist can apply to the State Legislature in this respect might pay off in easier driving all over Florida.

* * *

School Bond Time Again

BROWARD COUNTY now must face the stark fact that it's nearly certain to need another good-sized school bond issue within the next two years.

The probability comes up for discussion now and again among school officials, but generally both they and the taxpayers have been tiptoeing around it. Now the 18.5 million dollar issue voted four years ago is about to run out and the pupil growth shows no signs of slowing down.

The State Legislature may be able to work out some school construction assistance plan when it meets this spring. The county will be able to put in some money from its own tax income, and there are other possible sources of funds. All together, however, they will be far short of the $13 million which School Planner Charles Lowery calculates will be needed.

As we come face to face with these facts, it might be well if we reminded ourselves of the difficulties of getting the first $18.5 million.

A hard campaign was necessary to picture the absolute need to the people of Broward. To their credit, they understood and gave their approval by an incontestable margin.

* * *

We Can't Stop Building

NEVERTHELESS, all sorts of reasons were put forth in opposition to the bond issue. There was no need for that much money, one cried. The School Board only wants to get its hands on a pile of money, argued another. There's too much waste in the building program, said another. School officials can't be trusted to spend the money properly, said another.

These arguments have been, by and large, proved groundless. The program was well planned, the schools were well built; construction costs were brought steadily down, and down to levels that were amazing in the light of cost increases in other kinds of building. Every bit of the money was needed and now we must have more.

There have been arguments as to whether certain schools should have additional classrooms instead of gyms or stadiums, but these could be laid largely to differences in philosophies of education rather than to suspicion of motives.

Any new bond issue plan that is produced must, of course, be scrutinized carefully and criticized constructively, as a means of making certain that it's the best that can be devised.

But let's not have another bitter fight. We can't stop building schools.

Two Dead-- One Hurt

By RICK TUTTLE
Hollywood Bureau Chief

TWO DEAD, one wounded.

This could be the toll for a running gun battle between police and bandits.

It could be a squad leader's report to his lieutenant after a skirmish with the enemy.

It could be—but it isn't.

It's the score in South Broward this year in the deadly game of children playing with loaded guns.

Six-year-old Harold White's funeral was a week ago today. He was shot by another child, who playfully tried to frighten him with a revolver.

Five-year-old John Chunn was killed Wednesday by a shotgun. John and his brothers were playing with the weapon. It went off accidentally.

Less than two months ago, Jessie Wiggins was wounded by his brother after they found a pistol under a bed.

* * *

No Law Against Carelessness

RESIDENTS DO NOT NEED permits to keep firearms in their homes.

There are no laws to punish them for carelessly leaving guns within a child's reach.

The police show concern, but can do nothing, they say.

But there is no escape from the score so far:
Two dead, one wounded.
And they were just children.

Political Gag for City Workers?

CITY MANAGER Joseph W. Watson has ordered city employes not to participate in campaign activities during municipal elections next month.

WATSON

His decision has been attacked.

"Some people have been running around, questioning whether I did the right thing," he said.

"I would be neutralized as an administrator if I took any interest in a candidate. I believe the same thing applies to all city employes, who are presumably unbiased public servants."

Watson opened his letter to city forces by pointing out it was their duty to vote and to take an interest in local, state and national elections.

* * *

To Protect Competent Employe

"THE EMPLOYES are entitled to their private opinions and of course should vote however they want to," Watson said.

There is a certain repellent timing to a city's top administrator handing down orders on campaigning just before the election.

But the employe is not being told HOW to vote.

And the theory is designed to protect competent employe from political reprisal after an election.

Judge Explains Role of Courts

CIRCUIT JUDGE RICHARD SAULS spoke to a brotherhood meeting of Temple Sinai last week.

He pointed out that courts are designed to interpret the law, not change it.

He admitted he does not always enjoy making the decisions he must in accurately interpreting the law.

"But the best way to get rid of an unpopular law is to enforce it," he said. "Then people will go to the Legislature and have it changed."

PETER LAINE

Each Man an Island Until Facing Justice?

THERE'S NOTJING so interesting as people . . . good or bad . . . you look at them and wonder what makes them tick . . . how they got to be what they are — what moves them.

Sometimes you wonder if a person is ever really known by anyone else . . . if he even knows himself . . . if the real individual doesn't get buried under outward appearances.

Some interesting people made news here last week . . . in the courthouse with the chips down and the stakes high.

William Jordan. Age 22. Strongly built. Pleasant looking. A pretty wife. Two children. Three felonies.

Three gets you a minimum life term. Jordan reached that plateau, then . . . went on a robbery, wrote a $1,300 check with $4 in the bank, possibly committed perjury last week.

Age 22 . . . a schoolboy a few short years ago. How did it happen? You wonder.

* * *

JACK FREEMAN. Age 40. Neat appearance. Quiet spoken. Wears handcuffs. A suspected killer claiming self-defense. A trail of violence splashed across half the country.

The FBI looks for a lot of people . . . public enemies . . . some small, some bigtime . . . They keep a list the way disc jockeys do . . . The top 10 . . . It's fast company.

Freeman made the list. Just before his luck ran out. He's proud of being a major leaguer. He spoke of the respect he'll get from the top dogs in Raiford.

Freeman's eyes are quick, searching, emotionless. They look for elevators, stairways, opportunities. Officers watch closely too.

Age 40 . . . half a lifetime of crime . . . an old man if and when he walks free again. How did it get started? You wonder.

* * *

JAMES GUNN. Age 28. A three-year-old daughter. An innocent man. Acquitted by a jury of his peers of receiving stolen property.

A teenage Marine sergeant . . . Purple Hearts in Korea . . . a bondsman . . . sometimes tracking fugitives . . . now may be a private detective . . . says he'll call it the Peter Gunn Agency.

Gunn worked around the courthouse . . . He's well known there . . . People say Gunn is tough . . . that nothing bothers him.

Criminal charges didn't. Gunn had a friend . . . Attorney Ray Sandstrom. "Ray won't let me go to jail," he said.

Under skillful cross-examination, Gunn needled Prosecutor Wallace Allbritton. He matched wits with Allbritton, talked him down, was ostentatiously polite.

The jury was out nearly three hours. It's the longest wait in a defendant's life. Deputies began riding Gunn about what it's like in Raiford.

"I can take anything they hand out," he retorted. "I'll do my time better than they've ever seen it."

The clerk reads the verdict. There's a long preamble. You think the words will never come . . . "Not guilty, count one . . . Not guilty, count two."

You're half expecting Gunn to reward the court with a Bronx cheer. So what happens next?

He's in tears . . . out of the courtroom, down the elevator, out of the lobby, into the free sunshine . . . choked up with emotion.

Does anyone ever know anyone else? Is every man an island? You wonder.

NORTH BROWARD

An Answer For Mayor

By CLARENCE ZAITZ
North Broward Bureau

NORTH BROWARD — Deerfield Beach Mayor Paul E. Stalter, in a speech before the Deerfield Beach Civic League, recently unleashed an attack on newspapers.

Stalter, obviously incensed at criticisms of his new administration, dwelled at length on the incompetency of the "press" in general, never naming any particular newspaper or reporter.

His comments hit all newspapers and all reporters.

Stalter told the 50 members in attendance, "You've got to learn to read between the lines, and figure for yourself what is true."

He in effect told everyone they can't believe anything they read in any newspaper. He as much as said that everytime you read a news story, you'd better form your own opinion whether it was true or not.

STALTER

Such a general attack on newspapers is a serious charge for a mayor of a municipality to make.

In the very short time Stalter has been in the mayor's chair, he has shown at times, an apparent disregard for the public's right to know what is happening in city government.

More than once he was suspected of trying to hold off a motion on a vote on a controversial subject.

Here are two examples:

That recent flareup over the resignation of the Parks and Recreation Board. Stalter was reluctant to discuss both sides of the rhubarb at a City Commission meeting. He merely explained that "there's a lot more to this, but we won't go into it here."

Then the matter of the Cove Yacht Basin rezoning recommendation that came from the Planning and Zoning Board. That board had waited a month to make the decision, and even when presented to the commission, it was not disclosed.

* * *

Triple Talk Due May 1

A WHILE BACK, the Pompano City Commission felt sympathetic to a group of northeast section duplex owners who had been "duped" into thinking they could convert their dwellings to triplexes. So the commission allowed those persons to fulfill existing lease agreements, and allow the unlawful use until May 1.

Now some of the other duplex owners in the area have converted their units to triplexes, figuring the city has sanctioned that use.

You can just imagine what the story will be, come the May 1 deadline. You can rest assured that through legal technicalities, and red-tape delays, those unlawful zoning uses will persist for quite some time.

Big Span of Time at Inlet

IN CASE YOU'RE INTERESTED, someone has reported that the Hillsboro Inlet bridge was opened 11,000 times during 1958. Of course, to any who traverse that route regularly, they must be convinced this is a typographical error, and should have read "111,000 times."

Broward Voice

Don't Let Sand Fly Fly On

EDITOR: Art Robinson's articles of Feb. 19-20 are informative an surely the most enlightened information we sufferers have ever obtained regarding the sand fly pestilence.

The most enjoyable feature is the honesty of the reports. Longtime residents, as also those engaged in the sales promotion of home building — and, to its shame, at least one office of the Chamber of Commerce — all consistently lie about the situation.

We gather from Robinson's articles that unfortunately the charter is not likely to be enforced, due to the high cost of initial financing in the event the city decided to fill the land, subsequently recovering from the owners.

But why give up that easily? Could the ciity not prosecute and, where necessary, attach the properties, later selling for the cost, including both fill and suit? On that basis, turnover should be rapid.

Something should be done. The growth and welfare of this community depends largely on the comforts of living conditions; and such conditions are nonexistent where the sand fly lives in the same area. If we continue to do nothing, we will eventually have no tourists, no homesteaders, etc., and we have authoritative records of tourists having returned North with the avowed and written intention of not coming back.

Please, Mr. Robinson, having so honestly outlined the situation and pointing to a remedy, continue your worthwhile campaign until we get some action. You'd be a hero in the minds of us suffering thousands.

He says the new group will be devoted wholly to the study and discussion of art. At the first meeting Tuesday night in the Southwest Community Building, beginning artists will be given instructions.

Let Chamber 'Sell Itself'?

A WEST HOLLYWOOD businessman has suggested that the Chamber of Commugkw "sell itself" to raise funds for three lots and a new building on Hollywood Blvd.

"By selling the land to the public at about $1.75 a square foot, we could raise about $40,000," Marvin Mondres told the Chamber of Commerce board.

The sales would be for souvenir value only, with the chamber acting as a landholding company for the shareholders.

Businessman Mondres also had another idea to keep the chamber operating in the black. He advocated constructing a four-story building and renting the upper floors as office space.

Success HAS Spoiled Rat Hunter

HOUSTON, Tex. — (UPI) — Has success already spoiled Lightning of Valgo?

That's the show name of a registered Bedlington terrier called Rebel who is owned by Mrs. Birden Wilson of Houston.

Mrs. Wilson recently took Rebel to see his veterinarian. 'She was distrubed by his diet, which had lately included a fur stole, several metal plates, the maid's earrings, a candle, two five-dollar bills, socks, stockings and even a comb or two.

Rebel was so hungry for such morsels, in fact, he'd taken to opening doors and drawers the better to serve himself.

Mrs. Wilson explained to the vet that Rebel had recently won several trophies. That was the tip-off.

The doc said dogs that are spoiled become addicted to particular foods. Rebel merely has some exotic tastes.

Bachelors, It's Time to Brighten Your Corner

WASHINGTON —(UPI)— Too many bachelors live in drab, colorless surroundings, according to a well-known decorator, A. Dudley Kelly of San Francisco, who came to this sad conclusion on the basis of his experience in supplying cheerful, homey decor to young men-about-town.

"Bachelors' living quarters lack more than the 'woman's touch,'" Kelly said. "They lack any touch at all."

He blames this on a lack of interest or knowledge among unwed males, and claims that finances cannot be blamed because wall paint costs so little.

Rejuvenation of tired-looking, depressing living quarters is getting easier and easier, Kelly maintained, offering bachelors this expert advice for doing the job themselves:

Today's new paints are self-leveling, fast drying, easy to apply, odorless and cost only about $10 a room.

A color-blind bachelor need not worry. He'll find handy paint charts to help him select contrasts or blends.

He'll also find many helpful gadgets such as paper buckets, roller sleeves and painting gloves — all disposable — plus long-handled rollers that reach ceilings and upper walls, thereby dispensing with ladders.

Kelly advised flat paints for living areas, keeping ceiling paints light in shade so they reflect more light, and reserving glossy enamels for kitchen and bathroom areas and woodwork.

Wolff Finishes Apartment Plans

FORT LAUDERDALE — Architect Louis Wolff has completed plans for a 25-unit apartment building to be erected on Nurmi Isle No. 4.

The two-story, 240-by-70 foot CBS structure will be known as the Bella Vista Terrace. All units will have one bedroom and a single bath.

He's Followed Horses For 66 Exciting Years

By DUANE JONES
Herald Staff Writer

HALLANDALE — The old man sat on a cot in an unpainted block building and clutched a picture of his late wife.

Twice he broke down and cried uncontrollably.

"My wife was a wonderful woman," sobbed George Kingscott, an 81-year-old stable boy at Gulfstream Racing Park.

"She died four years ago. But each night, just before I go to sleep, I lie on this cot and talk to her. She was my sweetheart."

Then he dried his tears and pointed to a Christmas card on a night stand.

It was from a niece in Detroit and the message read: "To an uncle who is tops with me."

Not too impressive to an outsider, perhaps, but to George Kingscott it was an expression of love and admiration from one who cared.

"She's all I have left," the old man said.

George Kingscott's life has been marked by lonely nights and disappointments.

He's also known love, excitement, and the satisfaction one derives from doing a job well.

Kingscott was born in England and left school when he was 15 to become a jockey.

"My father bred horses and I learned to love them when I was a small boy," he said. "It was a love that became stronger as I grew older."

Kingscott raced horses in England five years and then came to this country "to see if America was all that I heard it was."

He never went back.

"While my job isn't glamorous, it has given me opportunities to travel and do things money couldn't buy," he said. "It's been a wonderful life."

Kingscott's view of America has been mostly through portholes in moving vans that have carried his horses coast to coast, from Canada to Mexico.

"When I'm not on the road, my work day begins at sunup and ends when I retire about 7 p.m. When we're on the road, it's a 24-hour job."

Kingscott, who has groomed some of the world's finest thoroughbreds, considers Man O' War the greatest of all.

"I saw him run several times and he was a real champion. There's never been another like him."

Kingscott said he bets "occasionally" but only on his own horses. He told of winning $4,000 one afternoon several years ago, but said he's usually lucky to break even.

His luckiest day occurred one night several years ago when he survived a Detroit stable fire that killed 41 horses. Kingscott managed to free his horses but was overcome with smoke himself and spent several weeks in a hospital.

But he feels "like a million bucks" now and expects to be "around until I'm 90."

Referring to his 66 years in the horse racing business, Kingscott said:

"It's been a wonderful education and I wouldn't change a thing if I had it to do over."

School Planners Too Busy to Ask For More Help

By GREG TAYLOR
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — The third man theme isn't being sung at the Broward County School planning office these days. There's no time to sing it.

MEGGINSON

The theme in this case refers to what used to be a team of Charles Lowery, Richard Lemon and George Megginson, all architects who handled school planning.

Protests were raised when the third man, Megginson, was added last spring. Since then Lemon has left to become Dade County's school planner.

Lowery, the chief planner, said last week he has no plans now for replacing Lemon who left in October.

"Megginson and I have divided up the work. The office is moving rapidly under a heavy work load and no one can spare the time to train a new man," Lowery said.

He added that there's a possibility that no replacement will be hired. "We're reaching the foreseeable end of working funds, but I haven't made up my mind."

Last June, when Megginson was added, Lowery had to defend the expansion against criticism by school officials and a classroom teachers' spokesman.

They argued then that paying Lowery's assistants $11,000 was out of line with salaries of other school personnel.

The expansion was defended by other school officials and laymen as needed to complete construction programs. And they said good architects could save the county money.

Mayo Clinic Still Busy

ROCHESTER, Minn. — (UPI) — Mayo Clinic, the famous medical haven for thousands of the rich and famous, is a busier place now than it ever was in the days of Mayo brothers.

Last year, registration hit an all-time high of 159,541, more than 3,000 greater than in record-breaking 1957.

Clinic officials say patients flock to the diagnostic center from all over the world, but that most of them are from a 500-mile radius around Rochester.

Officials say the reasons for the increased use of the clinic are more families with health insurance, the growth in population and a general upswing in the economy.

Brotherhood Speaker

Judge Shows Link Of Law to Moses

By RICK TUTTLE
Hollywood Bureau Chief

HOLLYWOOD—Modern law is morally based on the Biblical 10 commandments, Circuit Judge Richard Sauls said Wednesday.

Judge Sauls

The commandments, crystalization of Moses' laws, were expanded to cover things like economics and politics, he told a brotherhood meeting at Temple Sinai.

He defined law as a rule of civil conduct prescribed by the state.

The three theories of law, he said, are: custom, or common law; religious law, the moral code; minicipal law, adopted by legislative bodies.

"Moses' laws grouped these three into one, making no distinction," Judge Sauls said.

He pointed out that the majority of Biblical commandments were in fact civil and criminal law, not moral. Among examples he cited were perjury, theft and adultery.

Modern law on negligence — damages for injury to person or property — also is based on Moses' laws, he said. So is a portion of the inheritance statute.

Moses' divorce law was much like modern ones, including a kind of alimony, he said.

Judge Sauls said the Puritans of New England were unsuccessful in putting Moses' laws into effect because the code was not designed for that age.

Although it is impossible to adopt the Mosaic code for present usage, it remains the foundation of modern law theory, he said.

Wilton's Firemen Plan Drive

WILTON MANORS — The Volunteer Fire Department's annual fund-raising drive will begin Monday.

Chief Wallace J. Wakeley said that again a directory will be sold. It lists residents and merchants of the Manors with their addresses and telephone numbers.

This third edition of the directory will be ready about May 1. Orders will be solicited in person, by telephone and mail.

Funds will go to purchase of fire equipment and to pay for equipment already acquired. In the first two years of the project, a new fire truck and other equipment were purchased.

"These important additions to our fire fighting force have helped reduce insurance rates some 50 per cent in the last three years," Wakeley said.

Assisting the chief on the fund drive committee are Charles Saxer, Clarence Sills and Harold Price.

Posse in Play Foils Bandits

HILLSBORO, Ohio — (AP) — While dress rehearsal of a play at Marshall High School was in progress, someone rushed in to report a student actor's car was being stolen.

The cast, fresh from emoting lines in an Arizona ranch mystery, gave chase — firing blank bullets as they pursued the car. It was too much for the culprits, who abandoned the car and fled.

Hartsel Wins Prize

FORT LAUDERDALE — James E. Hartsel, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hartsel, 640 NE 17th Ter., won third prize in an essay-oratorical contest at Lafayette College, Easton, Pa. He was valedictorian of last year's Fort Lauderdale High School graduating class. He is a member of the college band. He plans to major in mechanical engineering.

X-Ray Caravan Sets Up for Business in Labor Camp
. . . sheriff's deputies help out

By ART ROBINSON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Six nights a week this month a caravan consisting of two trailer trucks, police cars, civilian cars and a jeep has pulled into labor camps in the north end of the county.

In some ways its arrival was like that of an oldtime tent show. There were a couple of pitchmen who launched a spiel about the value of free X-ray examinations.

They broke out a movie projector and started a free show. Crowds gathered. After the talkers warmed them up, a doctor urged them to step right this way for their free X-ray pictures.

By the middle of the week the troupe had given 27 performances for workers from 67 camps.

More than 1,500 persons had been X-rayed. From each a blood sample was taken for a venereal disease check. By last week the reports were back on the first 300 examinations. They showed five suspected cases of tuberculosis, one definite case and eight other cases of chest diseases, including five enlarged hearts.

Out of the first 300 blood tests, 47 cases of syphilis were found, Dale Robertson of the Broward County Health Department reported.

Health cards were issued to all persons submitting to the checks. A card is withdrawn from anyone suspected of having disease.

By the time the survey was completed this weekend, about 75 per cent of the migrant workers in the county, including Puerto Ricans, had been X-rayed and undergone blood tests.

Just six years ago, when the county had more migrant workers than it now has, only about 33 persons were examined. Most were afraid to take the tests or weren't interested. Farmers also were uninterested or antagonistic.

This year workers for the most part were anxious to be tested and farmers helped round them up. In some cases, farmers provided transportation to the two mobile X-ray units, one supplied by the Broward County Tuberculosis and Health Association and the other by the State Board of Health.

Many farmers now plan to make possession of a health card a condition of employment since the workers handle produce that ends up on dining room tables.

The survey was a joint project of the tuberculosis association and County Health Department. Volunteers from the Fort Lauderdale Junior Chamber of Commerce were on hand every night to help register.

Representatives of the Social Security office also helped, as did Col. John Dewey of the Pompano Beach Housing Authority and the Rev. Julius Scipio of the National Council of Churches Ministry to Migrants. The sheriff's office and Pompano Beach police loaned men and vehicles to accompany the caravan.

Volunteers, among them Dr. Robert J. Steinborg, a radiologist who is chairman of the association's case finding committee, worked long hours every night. The caravan left the tuberculosis office at 225 S. Federal Hwy. each day shortly after 6 p.m. It usually wasn't back until after 11.

Jimmy Donn: He Battled the Odds For Gulfstream Park—and Won

By DICK MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

Broward Sports

HALLANDALE — Jimmy Donn, whose doggedness and aggressiveness ressurected Gulfstream Park from bankruptcy courts to a position of turf eminence, admits that he's not quite the battler he was in other years.

"I'm 72 now, and more of a realist," the track president sighed, explaining that he's "grown content" with the area's second best racing dates.

Hialeah has the lush mid-season racing days, a situation the transplanted Scot fought for years to change.

"I've come to live with our dates (next Wednesday through April 22)," Donn volunteered, "and must say I'm very happy with them.

"All this has been quite a struggle," he added, gesturing toward his "picture-book" thoroughbred plant from his office. "But I've enjoyed my vocation all these years, and have no thought of retiring.

* * *

"THE LATE-SEASON MEETING will be a fine one—our best, I'm sure. The people are here—the tourists are beginning to understand our climate, and know that we have our best weather at this time of the year."

He said he was proud to hear business and civic leaders say that Gulfstream's late March and April features help the Broward winter season.

"I foresee 25,000 people on opening day," Donn continued, "and a day's mutuel handle of better than two million. The machines should handle three per cent more, I figure, than in our best meeting (the $57,162,170 of '56)."

As winter seasons lengthen, racing date allocations haven't been quite the sore point at Gulfstream that they were. Now, Gulfstream is doing fine, too, but the words "Hialeah Bill" still are spoken with some irritation.

This Legislative act is founded on the theory that the track producing the most revenue for Florida gets the best racing dates. Hialeah keeps them, for no track could produce over that track's total in operating into the days of late April.

* * *

"YOU HAVE TO BECOME realistic in dealing with disturbing problems," the mellowed Gulfstream chief said. "Gulfstream used to have the opening dates, but we've outstripped Tropical, so the 'Hialeah Bill' has given us second choice . . . The bill has been good to us in a way."

Jimmy Donn allows that he can't wrestle with the trials and tribulations of running a major league track as he could a decade ago.

"Jimmy Jr. is executive vice president and general manager now and quite a help, and of course Horace Wade remains a good right hand."

Jimmy Sr. is a sentimentalist, so it's not surprising that he names Armed as his all-time favorite horse. Wednesday's handicap is named for Armed, first honoree in Gulfstream's memory lane of former turf greats.

"That swaybacked little gelding was a courageous one . . . quite a battler," Donn chuckled.

* * *

With pardonable satisfaction, Jimmy recounted the dismal days of 1955 when he took over the fledgling track, then a wilderness of weeds, its cantilever grandstand the rendezvous of nestling owls and cobwebs.

It was no snap undertaking. The racing law had to be altered to permit three operating tracks in South Florida, with adequate dates for all.

"I insisted in Tallahassee then, and continue to maintain," Donn recalled, "that horse racing has a big role in making tourism Florida's greatest single industry."

* * *

GULFSTREAM'S STORY has intrigued the sports-minded public—the people who like to see a fighter come bounding off the ropes to win, or to watch a long shot thunder off the pace to finish in front.

"We had to have fresh ideas to go major league," it was explained. "There were attempts to catch the public imagination like a race exclusively for grey horses, an introduction of champion quarterhorses, and an event for Florida-breds.

"But horsemen most appreciate that we forced Hialeah's hand in starting $100,000 races. Now they have two races, and we have two . . . but Gulfstream's Florida Derby was the first such rich race in the state."

Son of a Lanark, Scotland, smitty, Donn came to this country at 22 full of optimism. He still is optimistic.

"I'm looking for the track's greatest year," he concluded. "We're offering a new turf course, a good quality of horses will be after a $1,618,490 purse distribution, and all the comforts we can afford our patrons.

"Know why I know people are here? My florist store in Miami Beach handled twice as may wired requests for flowers this Valentine Day as it did last year.

"That's the best harbinger of a bumper tourist season I know of," Horticulturist Donn suggested.

Big League Team Soon?

AS WORKMEN LABOR to bring Lockhart Stadium into reality, the stadium advisory committee likewise will be busy.

"There's still plenty to do," remarked chairman Andy Kruse after accepting congratulations because a construction contract finally has been let.

Committee member Bill Groene has a greater incentive in going after a major league team to play "home" spring exhibition games in Fort Lauderdale each spring. Bill and Mayor Johnny Russell are confident that the big leaguers will listen now that stadium plans are not merely conjectural.

"Getting a tie-up with an American or National League club is the No. 1 thing on our minds," Kruse said. "Our committee also will recommend the addition of permanent seats for the baseball field and the building of a perimeter track around the football field."

* * *

$5,000 Needed for New Track

KRUSE FIGURES $5,000 is needed to build the quarter-mile track suggested, and cites the need for this facility.

The $385,000 the city has earmarked for the stadium must be spread too thin to pay for the track in addition to everything else there are blueprints for.

"The committee is trying to scout ways of raising a track fund," Kruse added. (He's ripe for suggestions.)

Perhaps now that the Quarterbacks' Club no longer has to dig into its treasury to keep Stranahan Field in some sort of playing trim, the group will help out on the track proposal.

Other adult booster groups of local prepsters also will recognize the need, I'm sure.

* * *

Plenty of Room for Parking

KRUSE'S ENTHUSIASM for the stadium is contagious. He envisions the 8,000-seat structure to be erected there by next football season as "the beginning of a first-class sports plant."

Committeemen are happy with the site. Only 35 acres of the 100 available will be used in the initial stage, so additional parking is no problem.

FISHING BROWARD WATERS

Fish, Yes; But Where?

GEORGE H. CROWLEY
Herald Columnist

THIS IS THE TIME of year when we receive many inquiries (phone calls and letters) from visiting fishermen wanting to know:

A. Where to go to surf-fish. B. Is fishing permitted from bridges? C. Do we need a license to fish in salt water? D. What bridges have walkyays or catwalks for fishermen?

The answers to these questions and many more are easy. But you'd be surprised how riled-up some anglers get when they see all the fishing possibilities we have and no way to enjoy same.

Our stock answers usually go like this:
water? D. What bridges have walkways or catwalks for bathers and sun-worshipers — fishing not allowed. B. Fishing from bridges (posted) is not permitted. C. Florida does not have an anglers' salt water fishing license. D. The old, old story — no money to build catwalks and walkways on bridges for fishermen.

No Room for Surfcasters

A REVIEW of the above appears to be in order so . . . away we go.

A. Up until about four years ago, local and visiting fishermen could surfcast in numerous spots along the entire coastline. Today we have large hotels, co-ops, apartments and homes occupying a great portion of the ocean front. City fathers, in their mad scramble to nail this juicy tax plum, have annexed practically every bit of oceanfront (with the exception of the beach north of Dania owned by the county). Police, armed with a city ordinance, discourage surf-fishermen from enjoying their pastime.

Question: Is it possible for angling clubs in the county to get together and present an acceptable program to the proper city and county authorities to reserve a small portion of their beach posted with signs reading "for fishermen only"?

We would certainly win the good will of visiting sportsmen and receive excellent publicity at the same time.

Statute on Bridge Fishing

B. WITH REGARD to fishing from bridges—we quote Florida Statue 339. 27:

Fishing from state road bridges; walkway authorized.—(1) The board is authorized to investigate and determine whether it is detrimental to traffic safety and dangerous to human life for any person to fish from any state road bridge. When the board, after due investigation, so determines that it is dangerous for persons to fish from any such bridge, its determination shall be reflected in its official minutes and the department shall thereupon post appropriate signs on such bridge stating that fishing therefrom is prohibited.

(2) It shall be a misdemeanor for any person to fish from any bridge which the board has determined is dangerous to fish therefrom and has posted signs as provided in subsection (1).

(3) All enforcement officers, including Florida Highway Patrol officers, shall enforce the provisions of this section.

(4) This section shall be cumulative and is not intended to repeal special laws making it unlawful to fish from any bridge.

(5) Any state, county or municipal agency or authority charged with the maintenance and construction of public roads and bridges is authorized to construct and maintain pedestrian walkways, "fishing walks" or fishing bays on public bridges under its jurisdiction whenever it is deemed necessary to do so in the interest of safety. (unquote)

Salt Water License Studied

THE ABOVE, Subsection 5, opens the door for fishing clubs to get together with the proper authorities on the building of fishing walks or fishing bays on our state, county and city bridges. The State Road Department built numerous fishing walks and bays on many bridges on the Florida keys several years ago.

C. Anglers' salt water fishing license. The Citizens Marine Fisheries Advisory Committee, Tallahassee, is now working on a bill to be introduced at the coming session (April) of our State Legislature for a S.W.F.L. Your comments on this subject will be greatly appreciated by this department.

D. In regard to this question, we refer you to the answer to B. above. Incidentally, we just received a fishing flash from a Tampa friend that CATWALK fishermen are catching loads of mackerel on the Manatee side of the Sunshine Skyway Bridge. I wonder who built the catwalk on a state toll bridge?

Club to See 'Bonefish on Fly Rod'

AN EXTRA SPECIAL entertainment program is on tap Tuesday eve. when members and guests of the Broward Rod and Gun Club assemble for their monthly meeting.

Club prexy, Jack McLeieer, announced that Bill Burnaham, mate on the Shirley Jane, and Bob Street, mate on the Sea Guy, will demonstrate how to prepare balao, mullet, also strip bait from bonito, for trolling and drift fishing.

"Bonefish on a Fly Rod" portrays 25 minutes of color and sound pictures starring noted Outdoor Writer Dave Newell and Capt. Jimmy Albright, stalking the wily ghost of the flats in the Florida Keys. The action takes place at Islamorado.

Meetings are held in the Pompano Beach Chamber of Commerce auditorium starting at 8 p.m., and all sportsmen are invited.

You Can Lead Fish to Water But . . .

DID YOU KNOW?

Fresh water fish do not drink water. The only water that goes into their stomachs is in the food. Water is constantly taken into the mouth to be forced over the gills and out again in the process of getting needed dissolved oxygen.

Restful Sleep Aided By Shaw Mattresses

Scientific tests constantly are being conducted by experts in various agencies of our government, particularly those connected with our armed forces, to determine what are the extreme limits of human endurance. One of the categories examined was that of sleep.

Commenting on the need of the average adult for sleep, Joseph A. Zeno, secretary and treasurer of Shaw Mattress Co. said: "There have been some 'stunt performances' recently in which the participants remained awake for more than 200 hours. They reached this fantastic figure with the aid of medical preparations and other stimulants, of course. Since the participants were under constant observation, it is possible that some worthwhile data was secured. Certainly the average man or woman, except in cases of emergency or danger, feels the strong urge for repose when 24 hours have elapsed.

"Sleep is a law of nature, a period of repose which restores our expended physical energy and erases for a time the mental fatigue brought by the problems faced during the day. It prepares us for the day to come. It is a vitally important part of life itself.

"Living a normal life, the average person at the age of 40 has spent at least 10 full years of that total in bed. It is a simple problem of mathematics to arrive at this figure. Based on the assumption that the very low average of six hours out of every 24 is spent in sleep, we find that answer.

"How well we sleep, that is how comfortably, without turning and tossing about, largely depends upon the bedding. The degree of firmness of the mattress and how it shapes itself to conform to the contour of the body, and yet supports it, are two factors which bring restful hours of sleep.

"We manufacture foam rubber and inner spring mattresses of every type and degree of firmness. We urge our customers to take plenty of time in making his choice by trying out various samples on hand in our salesroom.

"Foam rubber mattresses come in four and one-half and six-inch thickness. There are five different degrees of firmness in each for body support. It is of the utmost importance that the right firmness be selected for comfort-giving, restful hours of sleep. That is why we insist that the customer take time to decide what is best suited to his needs.

"We also make king-size beds which are extra wide or extra long, or both. Bahama beds are made in 30- and 33-inch widths. These provide comfortable lounges by day and a full measure of sleeping comfort at night. All of our box springs and frames are built for us to our specifications and the springs are known as the eight-way hand-tied type.

"We want all who are interested to visit our factory and see how every care is taken to custom-build every order to each customer's exact specifications, beds, mattresses, lounges and chairs which have been selected from samples in our salesroom. There are very few places in Florida where such a factory-to-consumer plan is in effect and we want every customer, as well as every visitor who is 'just shopping around,' to see for himself how work moves through our plant. All are welcome."

Factory and salesroom of the Shaw Mattress Co. are located at 720 N. Flagler Dr. and open daily until 5:30 p.m. On Monday and Friday the salesroom is open until 9 p.m.

Chiropractic Treatments Are Centered on Spinal Column

DR. S. PEROLMAN, right, and Dr. R. H. Perolman serve Fort Lauderdale and Hollywood.

In 1895 the theory was advanced that the spinal column was a major factor in the control of health and all physical energy. Further scientific study and tests led to the conclusion that misalignments in the vertebrae interfered with major never trunks often causing various illnesses.

When adjustment was made restoring the normal positon of the vertebra, health was restored in most cases. The new technique became known as chiropractic.

Shortly after the turn of the century, a school was established in the midwest to train men and women in these methods that they might practice as doctors of chiropractic and be recognized as such. Completion of a four-year course of study today is mandatory before a State license can be secured by the practitioner and open his office.

"Clinical proof of the effectiveness of this science," says Dr. S. Perolman, "is in ample volume to confirm the theory upon which our methods of treatment rests. It is a fundamental law of physics that any effect must have a cause.

"It is a premise of chiropractic that illness, 'dis-ease,' regardless of the name by which it is called, is an effect, therefore a cause exists. We believe that this cause centers in the spinal cord and the great nerve trunks leading to the various organs, muscles and tissues of the body.

"When a vertebral misalignment occurs, which can be caused even by a minor accident, an impingement upon a nerve trunk may result. This in turn interferes with the normal transmission of a vital nerve force.

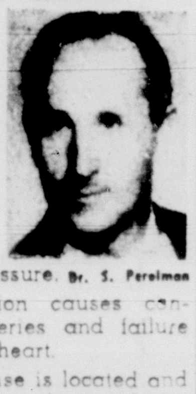
"We must first locate the exact point in the spine where this impingement exists. We then can restore the misaligned vertebra to its normal position by hand. When the interference on the nerves is released, the cause of 'dis-ease' is removed and health regained.

"There seldom are long, drawn out periods of treatment when chiropractic care is undertaken. We cannot tell with any degree of certainty how long it will take to completely effect a cure. We can and do open the door for nature to take over and carry on with the healing process."

Dr. S. Perolman and his brother Dr. Robert H. Perolman operate two offices, one in Fort Lauderdale, located at 924 NE 19th Ave., telephone number JAckson 3-7839; one in Hollywood at 2421 Hollywood Blvd., telephone number WAbash 2-1116.

High Blood Pressure A Warning Signal

By Dr. S. Perolman



Dr. S. Perolman

If you become dizzy while stooping over or while straining, have headaches, find it difficult to breathe upon exertion, you may have high blood pressure.

Nerve irritation causes constriction of arteries and failure of kidneys or heart.

The basic cause is located and corrected by your doctor of chiropractic.

Housing Boom Backs Up Growth Prediction

West Hollywood: 100,000 by 1970?

Broward County
Home Section
Real Estate—Building
10-BR THE MIAMI HERALD Sunday, March 1, 1959

By DICK MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

WEST HOLLYWOOD — Remember this dateline.

Folks out this way say that when the Legislature makes it official, their presently unincorporated area will be well on its way to becoming the largest city in Broward County in area and population.

They will try to get an incorporation bill passed at the legislative session beginning in April.

Civic leaders claim West Hollywood should have a population in excess of 100,000 by 1970.

It's estimated that 38,000 persons live in the unincorporated areas from Stirling Rd. south to the Dade line. In this reckoning, 56th Ave. generally is considered a northeast boundary and the city limits of Hollywood and Pembroke as the southeast extremities.

They put the tag "West Hollywood" on tracts stretching well west of the South Florida State Hospital. Some figure the western limit should be as far out as U.S. 27, or about 10 miles farther than Douglas Rd., which others suggest as a boundary.

* * *

38,000 Estimate Conservative

MRS. LOIS CAREY, secretary of the West Hollywood Chamber of Commerce, said the number of Florida Power and Light Co. meters indicates the 38,000 estimate is conservative.

Home construction here, particularly of dwellings in the "working man's" price range, is skyrocketing.

The 1958 building total of $20,073,700 included 2,283 residential units, and the two-month aggregate for 1959 will hit close to $4 million, representing a predominance of single-family dwellings.

Land is running out east of State Rd. 7, but the current boom is quite apparent west of that point.

"The situation in a nutshell is that this is about the last remaining really big area in the county for a housing development," one realtor explained.

* * *

Low County Taxes Spur Interest

REASONS ARE APPARENT for the emergence of West Hollywood as a new vista for home building.

County taxes are very low, and when the turnpike exposed the pretty pastures to all eyes, dairymen found it a propitious time to sell out.

Acreage rescued from the Everglades by flood control projects is bringing fantastic prices.

A pig farmer who owns a 20-acre farm west of the Seminole Indian reservation has been offered $100,000 for the spot. He turned it down.

Even the Seminoles fit into the scope of new building. They will have a modern housing community on 40 acres of reservation land west of the turnpike. The 470-acre reservation straddles Stirling Rd. west of State Rd. 7.

* * *

Real Estate Listings Doubled

REAL ESTATE OFFICES are springing up everywhere.

Realtor Jerry Tardiff reports a doubling of sales and listings out of his West Hollywood office over those of a year ago. The South Broward-Hollywood Board of Realtors has 250 homes in this area in its multiple listing lineup.

Miramar, a West Broward municipality west of Hollywood, has grown constantly since its incorporation in 1956, and now has more than 3,000 residents.

West Hollywood communities such as Driftwood Acres, Boulevard Heights, Miami Gardens and Lake Forest are building up faster than anyone would have anticipated a few years back.

Civic leaders point out that not all homes in West Hollywood are in the low and medium-priced field. Pembroke Pines residences, west of the turnpike, range up to $30,000, as do those in several other subdivisions.

* * *

Dade Developers Moving North

DADE COUNTY DEVELOPERS are moving their operations north to satisfy the demand for homes in the lower-priced scales.

Sam Rizzo, who will construct 4,500 homes and a 50-acre shopping center west of the turnpike, said he will concentrate on residences in the $8,000 range.

RIZZO

"These $8,000 homes are wanted by many people who otherwise couldn't afford a home," Rizzo explained.

He decided to buy 1,050 acres from Dairyman J. N. McArthur to do his own development work after quickly selling 200 homes he had under construction in Boulevard Heights.

Rizzo estimates his dwellings will up West Hollywood's population by 15,000.

Golden Isles in Broward Ready For More Homes, Apartments

Developer H. B. Layne Backed His Opinion

.. that more communities should have luxury residences

HALLANDALE — H. B. Layne Saturday announced completion of development work in the Broward County portion of Golden Isles, a 550-acre tract straddling the Broward-Dade line.

Water and sewage lines are laid and roads and seawalls built as far south as the Dade boundary.

Layne wants to see the waterfront subdivision covered with homes of the $45,000-$125,000 range and multi-story cooperatives and apartment buildings.

The rental units will be centered on a horseshoe-shaped island just south of Hallandale Beach Blvd. and east of Gulfstream Park.

The first co-op is completed. CMS Developers of North Miami has opened its 12-unit Golden Palm Apartments along Golden Isles Lake.

* * *

THE 34-ACRE "horseshoe island" has wide roads and is lined with royal palms.

Louis Suskin, developer of Lauderdale Golf Estates, will build two cooperatives — each costing about a million dollars — on the island. Each is to have at least 20 units, according to present thinking.

Charles Schrager of Chicago, head of a large Midwestern construction company, also plans a cooperative there. He soon is expected to announce construction details for a large shopping center on Hallandale Beach Blvd. in Golden Isles.

Golden Isles stretches from Hallandale Beach Blvd. well into Dade. Some 340 of the 550 acres are in Broward, and so far virtually all development work has centered there.

There has been a noteworthy change in this southeastern corner of the county. Three million yards of earth has been moved to sculpture a plush residential and commercial sector.

Golden Isles' eastern boundary is the Intracoastal Waterway, and its waters feed a network of canals which lace the property. There now are more than 11 miles of concrete seawalled canal frontage.

* * *

HOMESITES IN the plush community sell from $12,800 for an 85 by 150-foot site to $27,000 for corner pieces. Ground floor area of a home can't be under 1,800 square eet.

Thirty-one homes are com- leted in the 400-lot residen- ial portion of the Broward- rip.

Islands formerly were num ered, but now have nam ost of them taken fro lorida trees and flowers.

Landscaping of the islan ill produce a novel dime onal effect when view rom the Intracoasta leights of trees on islan rom east to west will h raduated, with shorter tre n the easternmost isle, tall nes on the second, and talle n the third, at the wester xtremity of the tract.

While most developers ar concentrating on subdivision with homes in the $10,000-$20,000 bracket, Layne conversely decided that there are not enough communities catering exclusively to those who can afford luxury residences. He's bankrolled Golden Isles to the tune of about four million dollars to prove his point.

BROWARD BUILDER

Royal Palm Homes To Stress Luxury

SHAPING UP as one of the most luxurious on the whole Gold Coast, the Royal Palm Yacht and Country Club subdivision will begin forming soon on the south edge of Boca Raton. It will have its own yacht club and golf course; homes will have estate-size grounds and will be in the $50,000-and-up range.

This is one of the several Arvida enterprises being assembled by President M. N. Weir and his organization. Weir mentioned it briefly in a statement made recently concerning the 200 million dollar city or Arvida to be built west of Boca Raton.

I'M RUNNING OVER TO THE NEIGHBORS FOR A CUP OF FLOUR!
FOUR MILES?
GH

It will reach from Federal Hwy. to the Intracoastal Waterway, with the golf course as a buffer between the highway and the residences.

Nine of the course's projected 18 holes already exist, part of the onetime south course of the Boca Raton Club.

The Weirs feel that there's something of a pent-up demand for truly luxury residences with plenty of space between, and in this immediate area they're not exactly easy to find.

* * *

With View . . . of Course

THE SOUTH FLORIDA home buyer of the near future may feel that he has a right to demand a golf course in his subdivision as well as such accepted improvements as road and street lights.

Developer Bob Sullivan is encouraging the trend with his Cooper Colony Estates in Davie. There the 18-hole course already is open for play, although the first home has not been completed.

Cooper Colony's first residence, now going up, is priced at about $12,000, yet is only a block or two from the course, which gives an idea of how much convenience a golfer can buy for a comparatively small investment. It sits near the edge of a recreational area which will embrace a swimming pool, play field and other facilities.

Each resident will receive a year's free membership in the country club. Thereafter he may retain his membership for what the developers describe as a moderate fee.

The course is something less than full length, 3,735 yards compared with the usual 6,000, more or less, but the preponderance of water holes makes it tricky. Par is 60.

* * *

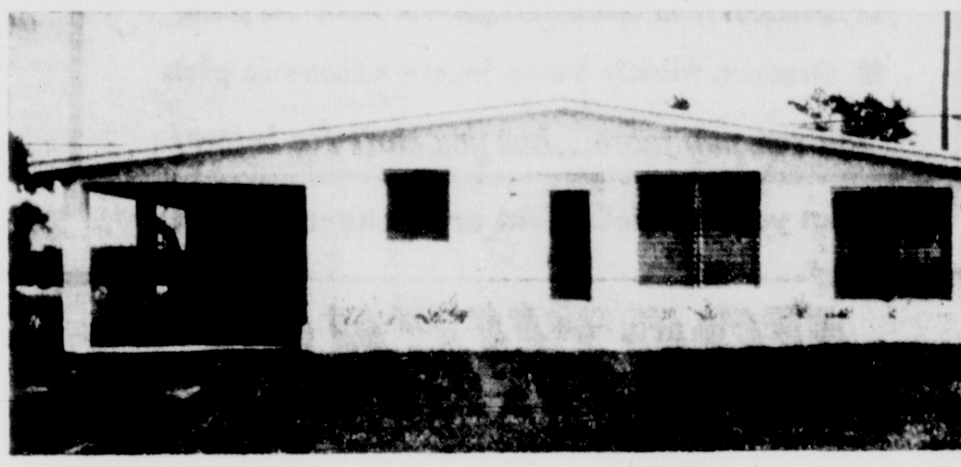
Coral Ridge a Leader

CORAL RIDGE Country Club subdivision was one of the first to use a golf course as lure to the lot buyer, and the formula worked there quite well, although membership in the club is in no way related to the purchase of a lot.

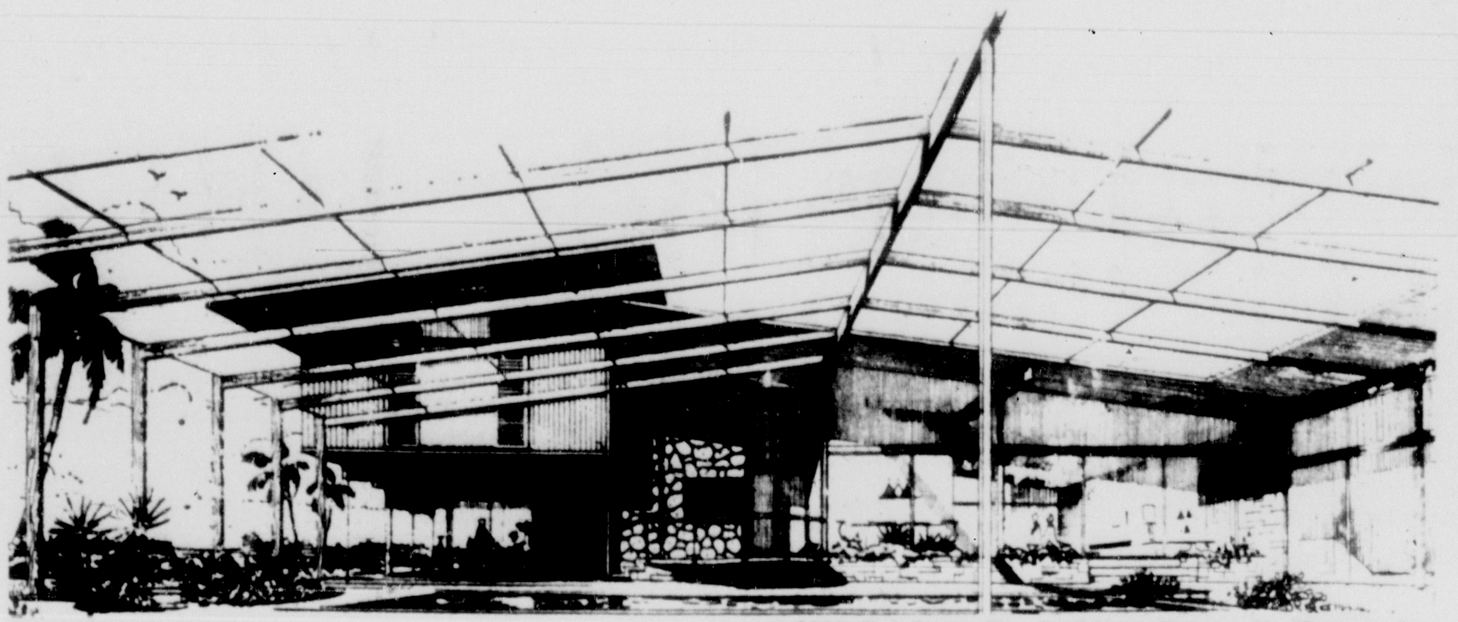
Sullivan got into the field early, with a par three course in his Hidden Valley development south of Delray Beach. There, too, the buyer received a free membership for the first year.

Cypress Creek Country Club, scheduled to be ready for play by August, will be ringed by a subdivision, but in this case the members were enlisted independent of any real estate purchases.

Plantation Golf Club undoubtedly helped to build up the community of Plantation. In this respect, original Developer Fred Peters may claim to be first in this area in modern real estate history to utilize the attraction of a course for this purpose. Plantation is a public course, however, and membership in it is incidental to being a resident.



DEAUVILLE STYLE residence, at 1612 NW 58th Ave., Margate, is offered by Margate Homes, Inc. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Root purchased this three-bedroom dwelling for $10,900. It has a tile bath and a Florida-living room. The couple is from Gallipolis, Ohio.



Lanai Look

A 63 by 30-foot lanai dominates the east side of the John B. Kirder home being built by Collins and Hall at 2410 Dei Lago Dr. Architect Robert E. Hansen designed the $75,000 residence to have a unique prestressed concrete roof comprised of four-foot-wide slabs. All rooms of the T-shaped structure offer a view of adjacent waterways and the lanai leads into a cabana area.

Developers Seek Hollywood OK

Housing Sites Planned For Sheridan St. Area

By STAN JOHNSON
Herald Staff Writer

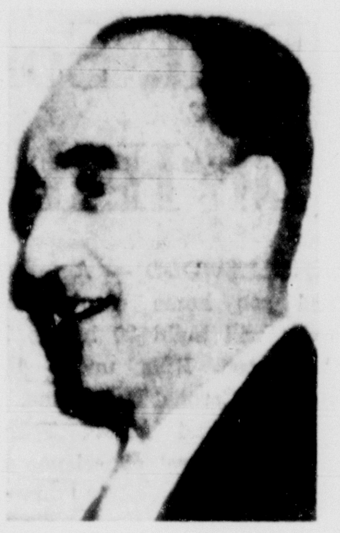
HOLLYWOOD — Development may soon begin in the low-lying northeastern section of Hollywood where a scattering of boomtime subdivisions and former tomato fields contain 4,000 homesites.

A group of developers represented by John T. Black of Fort Lauderdale has approached city officials about the development of a 90-acre tract stretching from Sheridan St. to Johnson St. east of 14th Ave.

City officials said the development plans include a large lake and a series of canals which would run from the new subdivision to West Lake over municipal street and alley rights-of-way.

The tract, with a potential 350 homesites, is immediately west of the Central Beach Subdivision, a 2,500-lot residential area which was platted during the 1920s but has never been developed.

Most of the lots in the Central Beach area are held by Hollywood Inc., local landholding firm which controls about 60 per cent of Hollywood's undeveloped real estate.



Stanley Beckerman
. . . waiting on bridge

Stanley Beckerman, president of Hollywood Inc., said he had not been approached about the proposed development adjoining the Central Beach area.

His firm, which has a proprietary interest in most of Hollywood's streets, would have to give its approval before any Central Beach rights-of-way could be turned into canals.

Heckerman said Hollywood Inc. has "no immediate plans" for the development of its holdings in the Central Beach subdivision.

"We feel that any development in that area cannot take place until the Sheridan St. bridge has been built," he said.

Money and plans for the bridge are available, but the city has not yet acquired all the right-of-way needed for an access road to Federal Hwy.

Garage Owners To Meet Tuesday

HOLLYWOOD — The Independent Garage Owners Association of Hollywood, which obtained its charter last week, will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Judy Hollywood Motors.

Officers are: Al Hainel, president; Paul Long, vice president; Red Musal, secretary; and Irving Thal, treasurer.

Concord's 'Going' American

PLANTATION — Concord Homes, new Plantation subdivision, will use "typically American" names for its models.

Furnished homes to be shown this weekend include the Minute Man, the Paul Revere and the Lexington.

Concord principals are Milton and Bernard Epstein and Howard Drusin.

FHA financing is offered on the dwellings. Prices on two-bedroom styles begin at $11,500.

Jax Mayor To Explain Urban Plan

HOLLYWOOD — Jacksonville's urban redevelopment program will be explained by its mayor, Haydon Burns, to members of the Chamber of Commerce.

Occasion will be a May 13 C of C Coffee Club meeting.

Maynard Abrams, president of the Hollywood Downtown Association, invited Mayor Bruns, whose thinking on urban planning frequently is sought by real estate groups throughout the state.

Burns recently spoke on the subject before the Miami Board of Realtors.

Road Beauty Plan Ready

POMPANO BEACH—Beautification of the Federal Hwy., center strip at the north end of Pompano Beach is near reality, said R. Jay Kraeer and France S. Newton, co-chairmen of the Chamber of Commerce beautification committee.

They reported that a fund solicitation is still in progress, including coin containers displayed in some business establishments.

The City Commission has approved a $500 expenditure to hire a landscape architect to plan the beautification program.

Cosmetics Firm Plans National Distribution

COSMETICS produced by a Fort Lauderdale company have begun to appear in consumer test markets in Texas and the Chicago area.

Within six months a nationwide distribution network will be functioning, if all goes according to plan, and three other items will be added to the line, among them a lipstick.

The company is Aloe Creme Laboratories, which drew some local attention when it was established in 1953 to utilize the transparent medicinal gelatin that oozes from the leaves of South Florida's aloe vera plant. Its first product was an ointment for sunburn, other burns, insect bites and skin irritations.

Since then the founder, onetime Sales Engineer Rodney Stockton, and his staff have quietly added more products, won the interest of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration in the gel's healing qualities and effectiveness on radiation burns, and prepared for the establishment of a national distribution system.

Twelve persons work in its offices at 1612 E. Sunrise Blvd. and there are nine salesmen scattered here and there. A medical director conducts constant experiments with the gel. The aloe vera is cultivated on two secretly located plantations, one near Fort Lauderdale and the other in the Miami area, with a total of 57 acres.

The long, spiny leaves of the plants are shipped from here in refrigerated trucks to Kolmar, Wis., where the Kolmar Laboratories processes the gel into the Aloe Creme products according to a closely guarded formula perfected by Stockton. The products are then shipped back to Fort Lauderdale and sent to the markets from here.

In addition to the original ointment, the products include lotions for the face, hands and body, a skin cleanser, a suntan lotion, an after-tan, and a spray for sunburn relief.

Stockton is a former Chicagoan who as a youth intended to study medicine. Instead he became a chemical sales and packaging engineer. He became interested in the healing properties of the aloe vera after suffering a severe Florida sunburn, resigned his job in Chicago and operated a beach supply business in Miami Beach while he experimented for five years with the gel of the plant.

A formula for stabilizing it for commercial use, which had once eluded a previous investor who spent $66,000 trying to find it, finally was developed by Stockton in the kitchen of a home he occupied in Hollywood.

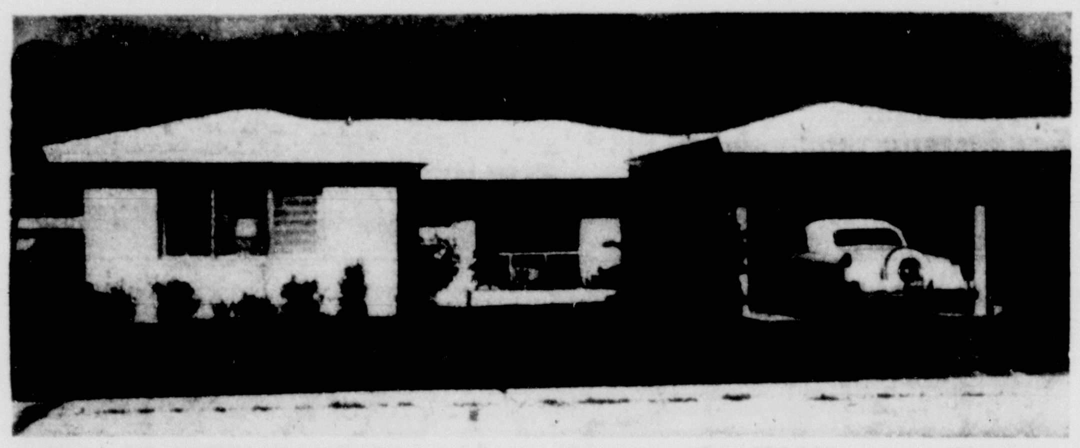
Durham Heads New Agency

THE EASTERN Insurance Agency has been formed in Fort Lauderdale with Richard C. Durham as president and Jerry L. McBreen as general manager. Offices have been established at 21 SW 40th Ave.

NICE SCENERY is admired by Ginger Dunning from a private balcony of the Ever April Apartments, at Briny Ave. and Atlantic Blvd. in Pompano Beach. The White Development Corp. used jalousie windows with screens to enclose balconies of seven apartments offered for sale in the resident ownership building. Idea is to provide an ocean view without too brisk breezes.



2007 N. VICTORIA PARK RD. is the address of this two-bedroom, two-bath home, sold by Florida Classic Homes Inc., the builder, to Mr. and Mrs. James J. Rossello. The $23,900 transaction was negotiated by C. R. Eshelman of Weber Realty.

Coronet Homes in Hollywood

Dad, Son Building 20 'Hills' Homes

HOLLYWOOD — A father and son home construction team will build 20 homes in Hollywood Hills under the name of Coronet Homes Inc.

Frank and Albert Forno have 50 years' experience in home building. They have built 80 residences in Broward County in the last three years.

The Fornos are showing two-bedroom, two-bath models, at 3902 and 3910 Johnson St. and 3910 and 3919 Grant St.

The homes feature central heating, Florida rooms, tile roofs, planters, patios and colored tile baths. They are priced at $17,500.

Yacht Club To Let Bids This Month

LIGHTHOUSE POINT — A yacht basin, cabanas, pool and tennis courts are to be in operation "within a few months" at Venetian Isles Yacht Club, E. A. McDonnell, president of the Yacht Center Development Co., said Saturday.

Contractors will be asked this week to bid on providing complete facilities for the club. Bids are to be let in late March.

Architect Joseph Romano said redwood and coral rock facings are to be used extensively in the exterior as well as the interior of the clubhouse.

Advertising Club to Hear Graphic Arts Expert

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Advertising Club of Fort Lauderdale will hear Howard N. King, noted graphic arts authority, at its Monday luncheon meeting at the Pier 66 Yacht Club.

King is vice president of the Maple Press Co. of York, Pa., vice president of Graphic Services Inc. and consultant for the Intertype Co.

Co-Op Officers Work For Homestead Rule

MANAGEMENT OFFICERS of the Riverview Garden Cooperative Apartments are pledged to work for homestead exemption on co-op units.

Other objective of the newly elected group include additions of a shuffleboard court and a putting green.

White Development Corp. principals propose a gradual transfer of management responsibility to the apartment owners toward the day when all apartments will be sold.

Resident officers include Edward Roll, president; George Emrich, vice president; William Maynard, treasurer, and Richard B. Kemper, secretary.

The Riverview cooperative, at 1000 SE Fourth St., has been fully managed by the development concern.

Commuting Next From N.Y.?

EDUCATIONAL TOPICS of a general nature are being added at the monthly meetings of the Fort Lauderdale Board of Realtors.

Tony D'Azzo

Airline officials spoke to the group last week in a long distance telephone hookup arranged by local Southern Bell Telephone heads. The next confab will be addressed by Col. Clifton A. McClelland, research and development administrator at Patrick AFB Missile Test Center.

Col. McClelland will narrate a film on missile operation.

Col. M. M. Frost, vice president of Eastern Airlines, spoke from New York. His remarks were of particular interest to realtors, for he stressed that business leaders now can literally commute from Northern cities to Florida.

"With travel times cut to what they are," the colonel said, "a businessman can leave his Northern office at 4 p.m. Friday and be in his Florida home for an early dinner and a pleasant and sunny weekend."

The jet age also will bring an influx of Latin Americans to South Florida, it was predicted.

Layne Trying Term Buying

H. B. LAYNE has introduced term buying at his Golden Isles subdivision in Hallandale.

Home and apartment sites may be purchased for 15 per cent down, the remainder to be paid in 20 installments over a five-year period.

Layne said that while such terms are unusual on a custom development, he is in a position to make the offer because "our work is virtually finished there."

Atoms to Harden Soft Pine Next?

DENVER — (UPI) — The research laboratory of the Denver & Rio Grand Railroad is conducting a series of experiments aimed at changing Colorado soft pine into hardwood by atomic radiation.

Ray McBrian, engineer in charge, said the railroad's interest is in tougher, cheaper, longer-lasting railroad ties. But successful culmination of the experiments would be a boon to all industries using wood.

McBrian explained that researchers are looking for a chemical that will penetrate the soft pine and then harden when irradiated to the strength and durability of oak, maple and hickory.

Such impregnated wood hardened under atomic radiation would produce timber that would not warp, crack or rot under most extreme conditions.

Initial experiments have made use of waste materials from atomic reactors as the source of radiation for the hardening process. The impregnating liquid has been urea and formaldehyde.

Pompano Building Pace Jumps

POMPANO BEACH — Private construction in Pompano druing February totaled almost $200,000 more than for the same month in 1958.

But the over-all construction total, which puts the city's building activity way over 1958, is swelled by more than $1 million of public buildings.

In Februry 79 building permits were issued for $1,668,383 worth of construction. In February, 1958, only $309,073 worth of construction was authorized.

Here's how the building for February shaped up:

Single family dwellings, 20, totaling $318,408; one duplex, $22,000; one apartment, $19,000; three business buildings, $45,000; one public buildings (school) $1,214,820; one industrial building, $16,000; 11 additions, $21,595; 22 miscellaneous permits, $11,560.

New Bedside Burglar Alarm
... it baffles intruders

SOUTH BROWARD BUILDING

Davids Build Land Empire

By TOM VINCIGUERRA
Herald Staff Writer

A GROUP OF SOUTH BROWARD men are spinning one of the most dramatic stories of corporate real estate growth in Florida.

Playing prominent roles in the story is Hollywood's David family — Ted, former speaker of the Florida House of Representatives, B. L., Hollywood city commissioner, and Robert, Billy and Sam, who is a horse trainer.

Bob and B. L. have teamed up with Warren Linnell, Robert Fox and the principal owners of Western Water Corp. in West Hollywood, Larry Nausbaum and Martin Blate, in the latest venture, development of Driftwood Plaza.

Organized as Easter Projects Inc., the group purchased a 150-acre tract for homes near Driftwood Acres, for about $600,000 from Dairyman R. C. Goolsby. Food Fair Properties has purchased a three-acre tract from Eastern Inc. for a food store.

Fox was president, Bob and B. L. David were vice presidents and Linnell secretary-treasurer of the West Hollywood Development Corp. original builders of the sprawling Driftwood Acres in West Hollywood.

The corporation recently sold out to Heritage Development Corp., headed by William Shanbrun, Albert Reibel and Morris Lazarus, North Dade builders. Price was about $887,000, with $500,000 in two payments and the balance spread over four years. The transaction included some 400 acres.

Fox, Bob and Bill David, Linnell and Richard Cobourn, Hollywood city judge, individually own a total of 400 acres straddling Davie Rd. extension in West Hollywood. Linnell, largest of the land owners, has the Lyn-Mar development well under way. The 400 acres also was sold by the Goolsby family.

In Palm Beach County, Sam, Bob, Ted and B. L. David joined Jerry Glick, Dave Oliver, Fort Lauderdale, Decker Lee, Hollywood, and Bernard Zimmerman, local furniture dealer, in purchasing a 2,200-acre tract near U. S. 441 for 10-acre horse farms.

Their organization is Heritage Farms Inc. Stockholders include former Gov. Fuller Warren, Fox, and Ted, Bob and B. L. David also are corporate owners of a large tract near Titusville in Brevard County. Four New York men also are investors.

The Davids also have minority interests in the Western Water Corp., which serves the Driftwood Acres area and will service the large new subdivisions going up to the east and west.

The Davids' corporate empire has been built in just three years.

Burglars Can't Fool Small Radar Alarm

By PAT MANGAN
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — A burglar creeps stealthily up to a house, pries open a jalousie, enters. Suddenly lights flash on, bells start to ring and a camera takes his picture.

It's all done by radar. All that police have to do is find the man who matches the picture.

A number of local stores are using radar to protect their valuables. In Fort Lauderdale the Florida Cleaners and Laundry, Lane Bryant and Burdine's are using the installation. There's one in the Conion Insurance Agency in Hollywood and in Kasdin Drugs, Belks department store, the Condas Corp. and other Miami concerns.

Even an orchid grower is using radar waves to guard his blossoms.

To a burglar, radar must seem like black magic. He can't see anything. There are no wires, no visible evidence of the alarm — just those lights and bells.

Even if the electricity is cut off, it works. A battery automatically takes over and, if the burglar approaches the control box to put the unit out of order, his approach sets off the alarm.

Keith Miller of Hopkins Smith tells of the two burglars who attempted to break into a California bar protected by radar. Their first attempt set off the alarm and they ran. The alarm stopped and they went back to try another entrance.

RING!
RING
GH

Meanwhile, the alarm had reset itself and started to ring again. They disconnected the plug, but the bell just kept on ringing. Next they smashed the antenna, bent it and kicked the casing. The bell still rang. They fled, frustrated. By that time an awakened neighbor had called police.

The radar unit is just as adaptable for homes. Control switches are installed in a master bedroom and the garage, the latter to be used as the home owner leaves.

The invisible waves work while he's gone. They can be adjusted to flash a signal in a neighbor's home or the police station if an entry is made. No wiring is needed.

Shipments Of Lead Dropping

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Lead shipments by primary domestic refineries dropped to a nine-year low in 1958, according to a report released by the American Bureau of Metal Statistics.

Shipments last year totaled 380,359 tons, down 18 per cent from the year before, and the lowest on record since 355,905 tons were moved in the recession year of 1949, the Bureau said.

Home Market? It's Moving

CHICAGO — (UPI) — The U.S. Savings & Loan League reports the market for both new and existing homes is "currently healthy," with both types moving nicely in contrast to last spring when existing homes especially were a "serious drag" on the market.

81 Pct of Firms OK Coffee Break

WILLOW GROVE, Pa. — (UPI) — The "coffee break" not only has become generally accepted in U.S. business operations, according to a recent survey, but more often than not there's more than one a day.

The National Office Management Association surveyed nearly 2,000 firms in the U.S. and Canada! it reports, and found that coffee breaks in the working day most of them now permit two, one in the morning and one in the afternoon, normally of 15 minutes each.

Western America is more generous with coffee breaks than the East the survey showed. In the West, 93 per cent of businesses checked allow two breaks; the Canadian average was 80 per cent.

For all firms checked in Canada and this country, the average was 81 per cent with regularly scheduled breaks. Fourteen per cent of the employers said they allowed workers to have coffee or other refreshment on a nonscheduled basis.

Major benefit reported: the breaks served as morale boosters. Major complaint: Workers did not get back to work promptly afterwards.

'Gold' Reunion

HOLLYWOOD — (UPI) — Guy Williams, Tom Tryon and Robert Loggia, each of whom has won fame on the Walt Disney television shows, will be together for Disney Studio's new high-budget epic, "Gold."

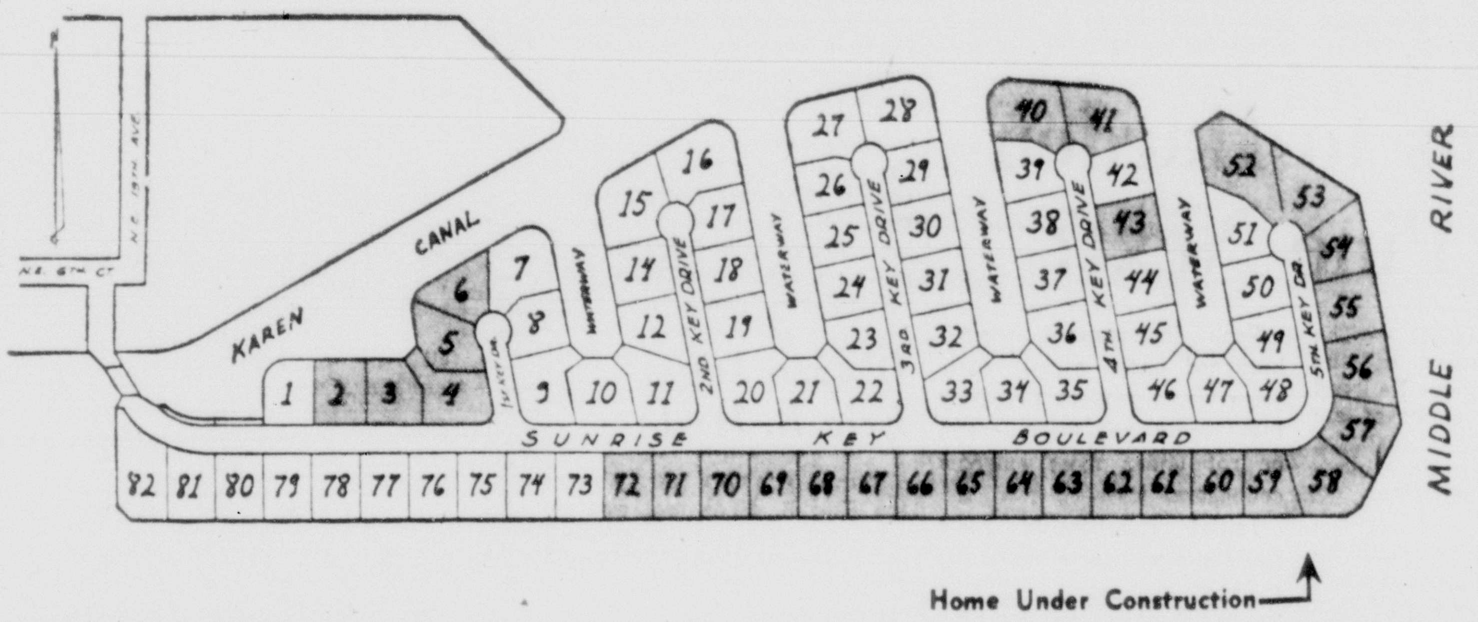
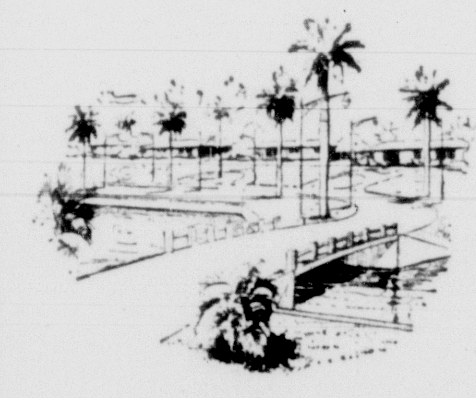
SUNRISE KEY

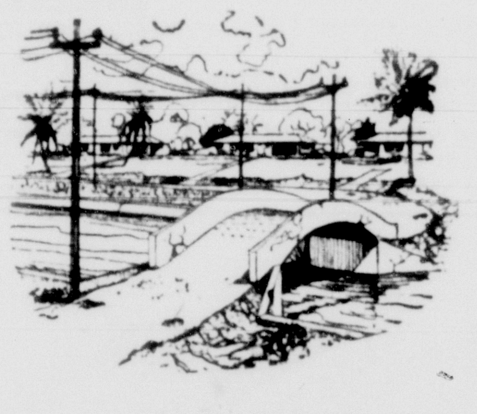


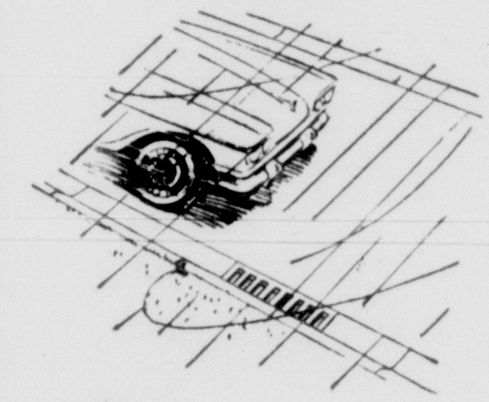
Sunrise Key
Other Waterfront Developments



Sunrise Key has one private, beautifully landscaped entrance, approached by a wide, low-level bridge. New city requirements made it necessary to bring the island to a minimum of 6.25' above mean low tide, higher than ever required previously.

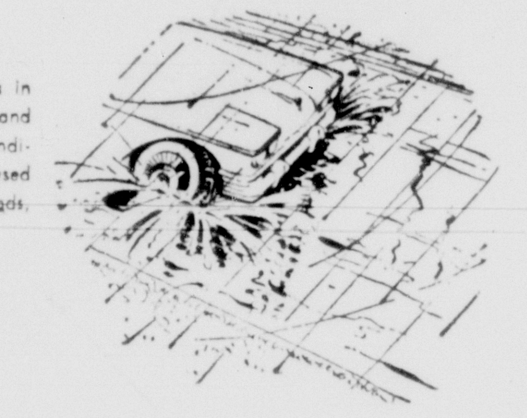
Many other island developments have narrow hump bridges, with solid guard rails which restrict observation of approaching traffic as well as passage of fire trucks and moving vans.





Sunrise Key will be completely equipped with water, storm drains, curbs and sanitary sewer systems already connected to each lot eliminating future street excavation and assuring storm drainage.

Unsatisfactory drainage results in standing pools of water during and after rains. Installation of individual lot service lines have caused bumps and blemishes in the roads, destroying good drainage.



Royal Palms and ultra modern street lamps will beautify the broad boulevards of Sunrise Key. The streets will be 36 feet from curb to curb and back filled with rock to a depth of 5 feet. There will always be smooth streets on Sunrise Key. Note the newly designed runover curbs.

Often lacking in most islands are wide smooth roads, street lamps, and majestic Royal Palm trees. Lack of curbs destroy the beautiful symmetry obtained by well defined street borders. On Sunrise Key all lots will be covered with grass to the curb lines.

Wednesday's Big Day at Track by the Sea

They're Ready for Gulfstream Opening

Mrs. Louisa Carpenter Has 10 Horses in Training
. . . with Phil Goodwin, her trainer, and Jockey Billy Hartack

By MARGARET WALKER

Broward Society Editor

HALLANDALE — It's just a colt's jump from Hollywood, where Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Sharp dock their yacht, to Hallandale, where their horses are in training at Gulfstream Park.

By Wednesday, big opening day at the track by the sea, the Sharps will have some keen competition ready for the races. Three of their horses are in training — Pine Valley, Troilus and Camp Follower. The latter was bred by Sharp at his 600-acre farm in Middletown, Del., where he maintains a superb three-quarter mile training track.

This marks the first season Mr. and Mrs. Sharp have campaigned at Gulfstream. They cruised south in their yacht, Galpo, and tied up at Hollywood early this winter.

As a fox hunting enthusiast in his native Delaware, Mr. Sharp went naturally into the field of racing. In 1941 he purchased his first race horses, one of which won the Grand National Steeplechase at Belmont Park that year.

This year his hopes are pinned on Troilus, a leading contender among the three-year-olds nominated for the $100,000 classic which will be run April 4 at Gulfstream. Troilus gained the winner's circle with an impressive two-length victory in the Bahamas Stakes at Hialeah recently.

* * *

ANOTHER "NAME" in the racing world, Louisa Carpenter of Fort Lauderdale and Rock Hall, Md., is an all-round sportswoman. She and Mr. Sharp, both members of the duPont clan, are first cousins, incidentally.

She won many honors in the show ring with her horses prior to starting her stable of racing thoroughbreds in Maryland. She's a crack shot, goes hunting in South Carolina every season before opening her home in Fort Lauderdale. Adept at big game fishing, she's also an experienced pilot of her own plane.

"My main interest now is horse breeding," says Mrs. Carpenter, whose Springfield Stable bears the name of her Maryland farm. Formerly she and Eugenia Bankhead raced the same colors. Mrs. Bankhead's stable bears her own name.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. George Cavanaugh, winter residents of Fort Lauderdale, have their home stable in Bloomfield Hills, Mich., their breeding farm in Ocala.

Out of their 500-acre Florida farm may spring a spectacular horse if blood lines are any indication. Cavanaugh's outstanding sprinter, Blue Violin, is being bred to Needles, the Kentucky Derby winner and Florida-bred owned by Mr. and Mrs. Bonnie Heath, former Lauderdaleans. The Heaths maintain a huge farm in Ocala.

Several of the Cavanaugh horses are in training at Gulfstream, where Mr. Cavanaugh races under his name.

His son, George Cavanaugh Jr., has an outstanding filly there, Pinecrest Miss, which may be out in the lead this season.

THE MOON IS OUT

Higgins Reporting: Yes, I'd Do It Again

By BEVERLY PAULSON

Broward Women's Editor

FORT LAUDERDALE — Marguerite Higgins seemed almost embarrassed to be on the question-answering side of the working press.

She squirmed and fidgeted and her answers were brief.

Yes, covering two shooting wars and a cold war on the front lines had been exciting, she said. But yes, she liked her present assignment as well.

—Herald Photos by Gene Hyde

Marguerite Higgins
. . . 'no more book writing'

After 15 Years Overseas
. . . glad to push suitcases away

Miss Higgins is now diplomatic correspondent for The New York Herald Tribune in Washington, D. C., where her husband, Gen. William E. Hall, is commanding general of the Continental Air Command.

"After 15 years overseas, it's kind of nice to push my suitcase away," she said. "But yes, I'd do it again."

* * *

THE BLONDE, outdoorsy looking reporter was barely in her 20s when she took her first World War II assignment overseas.

Her no-holds-barred reporting during the Korean conflict earned her almost as much fame as the Pulitzer Prize-winning stories she wrote. After that war she covered Russia for The Herald Tribune for five years.

Miss Higgins filled in her background with nonchalance.

The way she told it, she became interested in journalism because of $60 a month.

"I was working my way through college (University of California) and the editor of the school paper got $60 a month. I aimed for that $60," she said.

After graduation, she continued, "I looked for a job for three months. When I couldn't find one, I headed East."

* * *

ONCE IN NEW YORK, she took a scholarship at Columbia University ("I eventually got my masters") and a job as correspondent for The Herald Tribune.

Finally she was hired by that newspaper as a reporter because "there was a war on, you know—shortage of men."

And she was sent overseas as a war correspondent because "I speak a couple of languages."

Which languages? "French fluently, German badly and Russian boldly," she laughed.

She studied Russian, she said, as a dodge when she was writing her book, "News Is a Singular Thing," published in 1955.

"I hate — absolutely hate — writing books," she declared. "I have to have a deadline to write. I did everything to avoid writing the book — cleaned the closets, mended my clothes and finally studied Russian.

* * *

"THEN THE PUBLISHER threatened to take back my advance. So I had a deadline of sorts and I wrote the book."

But no more books, she said.

With her hair pulled back and her face slightly burned, Miss Higgins looked a little younger than her 36 years as she sat by the pool of the Jolly Roger Hotel.

She was serious and spoke quietly except when the interview turned to shop talk. Then she relaxed and smiled.

"You know, there's one assignment I'm not going to take. I'm going to leave it to a younger generation of reporters to cover the moon," she laughed.

Have a Heart—Save Your Husband

By BEVERLY PAULSON
Broward Women's Editor

FORT LAUDERDALE — Is you home-cooking a calorie loaded booby trap that may claim your husband's life?

Heart Specialist Dr. Paul Dudley White says it could be.

Overeating and underexercising are two hazards of living in America, President Eisenhower's personal physician declared in Fort Lauderdale last week. They take their toll in heart attacks.

"Once upon a time it was felt that coronary thrombosis was a businessman's ailment, he said. "Now it's anybody's disease.

"Perhaps it's because all men are now fairly prosperous. There is no starvation in the U. S. — all are overnourished or on the edge of it.

"Calories, the fat in calories or the automobile and television" are now thought to be the reasons for thrombosis, he said. "It's my feeling that it's a combination of these." TV and the automobile conspire to deprive a man of the exercise he needs.

The effects of malnutrition caused by starvation diets in underfed areas of the world are known, the slender 73-year-old Boston physician pointed out.

Overeating Is a Hazard
... of living in America

"What we need is a study of another kind of malnutrition. We have got to find out the effects of overeating."

Such a study is "in the works," he hopes. On Tuesday he appeared before Congress in behalf of a world institute through which such research could be done.

Through the institute, underfed residents of Southern Italy, Crete and Spain could be compared with their relatives who came as immigrants to the U. S. and may now be prosperous and overfed, he explained.

"The hazards of living in the U. S." could be learned from such a study.

Dr. White also hopes that research will show the way to prevent heart attacks in younger men. "We are not sure what we can do to protect them," he said. "That's why we need research."

The goals of the research would be:

1. To identify the candidates for heart attacks by studying their family histories.

2. To learn eventually the way they can be protected from heart weaknesses discovered in their families.

"In the meanwhile, a lot of people will have died, since it's horse sense to go on as we are," he declared.

Since heart trouble in younger men is increasing, the doctor said "it would be very wise" for a man to protect himself at 25.

His answers: more regular exercise and cutting down on fatty foods.

To wives on the care of husbands, he gave this advice:

"Don't let them sink on the couch and watch television when they get home from work. Make sure they don't get surplus overweight from too much food."

MARCH 14 SHOW AT YACHT CLUB

East to Meet West in Fashions

By MARGARET WALKER
Broward Society Editor

FORT LAUDERDALE — Pagodas, Japanese kimonos and the Arabian Nights are strong fashion influences from the Far East.

They are seen in the latest New York collections from which fashions are being culled for a March 14 showing at the Lauderdale Yacht Club.

Romola Metzner, fashion editor of The New York Journal American, will fly down to be commentator. The show, to be presented by Bettye McGarvey, will feature a leading Japanese model.

The cocktail showing will begin at 6:30 p.m. Dinner guests will dance afterward at the club's annual St. Patrick's Day party.

East will meet West that evening and honor Erin with a specially designed costume by Bonnie Cashin. She calls it "Salute to Ireland," fashions it of green and white checks.

Exotic trends will be dramatized in kimono coats of brushed mohair worn over leather jump suits, in pagoda hats worn with kimono-sleeved leather coats.

Cashin's interesting global collection is touched with humor. Because of her world travels, the designer has accessorized each ensemble with amusing hats identified in some way with each country represented in her designs.

Mrs. Metzner, one of New York's leading fashion experts, has reported many separate "looks" this season. She will show them and discuss the latest, leading trends.

Mrs. Metzner has reported first-hand from such fashion outposts as Hong Kong, Tokyo, Manila and Athens. She has made side sorties to island countries off American shores and gone around the world to write about fashions everywhere.

Flower Show Set In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD—The Hollywood Garden Club will hold is annual flower show at the Parish hall, 1900 Van Buren St., March 13-14.

Show theme will be "World of Flowers." General co-chairmen are Mrs. John Harvey and Mrs. Bruce Dodds.

POTPOURRI

Ritchey Named Vice Commodore By Cat Cay Club

By GRIFF PRESTON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE—That swank new Cat Cay Yacht Club has just named their flag officers with Fort Lauderdale Yachtsman John D. Ritchey chosen as vice commodore.

John D. Ritchey

The Who's Who of the club also includes Palm Beach's Charles F. Johnson as commodore and Rear Commodore Julio Sanchez of Miami Beach.

The Ritcheys, aboard their Samaki, will go over for the CCYC Flag Officers Week at the club, with installation ceremonies, parties and all the fancy and fun celebrations which start April 6.

Publishers Party

HOUSE GUESTS of the Ormond Goulds are Mr. and Mrs. Madison Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Z. Gray and Ludlow S. Fowler, all of New York.

Mr. Gray is president of the venerable Street and Smith Publishing Co. (This is the firm owned by the Gould family since 1854. Publications include Mademoiselle, Living and Charm.)

Between publishing talk and agenda consulting, Mrs. Gould whisked the New Yorkers down for a dinner party Friday night to the Indian Creek Club for their gala "Hialeah Night" fete.

Swedish Designer and Tahiti Green

THAT BIG FASHION FIESTA at the Lauderdale Yacht Club had a big crowd that oohed and aahed at the colorful clever cottons of Swedish Designer Katja—a young artist who is a new bright light on the resort fashion front.

The show, masterminded by Burdine's, went all out for the "simple cotton." Colors were gay and sun-bright with names like Coral Sea, Siamese pink, Tahiti green and cordon bleu. Katja is a coordinator par excellence—from the little cotton ruffled-brim hats to the soft shoes and jewelry of tropical "pea-pods" you can mix or match to your heart's delight with colors that sing together in happy dissonance.

Glimpsed at the show among the coral sea and the cordon bleu were Mrs. Henry Wenger, Mrs. Harold Kramer, Mrs. Loren Cluster and Mrs. E. G. Williams of Pompano Beach. More localities were Mrs. Gordon Zellers, Mrs. E. J. Richardson, Mrs. Edward Whiteman and Mrs. Wynn Casteel.

Something for Everyone at Center

THAT NEW SHOW, which opened at the Fort Lauderdale Art Center had a jammed-packed crowd of members turning out for the cocktail preview.

The 20 paintings of Philip Hicken, New England abstractionist, drew the inevitable comment—"colorful." But if you are of the "old school," it is probable that you will enjoy them more if you have a patient "modernist" along to gently guide you through the sight-barrier of all that vivid pigment to the subject matter.

The work of Coconut Grove Sculptor Albert Vrana drew excited knots of viewers. It is explicit and compelling, particularly the mango wood piece of two figures titled "Saved," and the large vermiculite figure "John Henry," a serene and powerful work.

The drawings of Peter Takal, which complete the exhibition, are jewels of draftsmanship — imaginative, sensitive and utterly delightful. It is a revelation to witness what this artist can do with pencil, pen and ink. Many of the Takals being shown are on loan from private owners and galleries throughout the country.

The current exhibition will run through March 21. The center is open to the public Tuesday through Fridays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturdays and Sundays from 2 to 5 p.m.

She Wants the Best For Service League

By BEVERLY PAULSON
Broward Women's Editor

FORT LAUDERDALE — Miss Ethel McLane is saying goodbye to a job she loves.

The tiny, white-haired social worker has resigned as executive director of the Community Service League.

"I can't give the job what it needs," she said. "Maybe another person can."

Her decision to step down from her job is the result of impaired eyesight from a detached retina suffered in a car accident. "I can't see well enough to drive, and I'm even a little afraid to ride in cars now," she explained.

"I feel Broward County needs the best — someone who can help apply the services of the council to all the county."

* * *

Miss McLANE'S resignation is effective July 1, or earlier. In the meanwhile the council's founder is carrying on business as usual in her apartment, where she is recuperating from major surgery.

In the 10 years Miss McLane has served as head of the council, she has seen community services expand to take in dozens of phases of social, health and recreational work.

She was directly responsible for the organization of many of the services, including the organization of the Visiting Nurse Association, Sun Dial School, Family Service Agency and Mental Health Association for Broward County.

SHE EMPHASIZED that she has never done the work alone. In each case, she said, the actual results were accomplished by citizens who used their knowledge to get the work done while she used her know-how in showing the way.

"I have never taken credit," she said.

After her work with the council is finished, Miss McLane thinks she may still be of help in advisory ways. She says she has no plans to leave the county.

Though she has no definite plans at present, she is considering several ideas, she said. "I am not retiring. But I am finished with social work."

The wedding was at 10:30 a.m. in the chapel of Park Temple Methodist Church. The Rev. George A. Foster officiated.

The bride was graduated from Fort Lauderdale High School and attended Florida Southern College.

Mr. Tavlin attended Fort Lauderdale High School and was graduated from the Air Force Jet Aircraft Technical School in Amarillo, Tex.

He is associated with Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Research and Development Center in Indiantown, where he and his bride will live.

They'll Pick Doll For Queen

HOLLYWOOD — Who'll be the dolly queen of the Irish Fair?

The Pilot Club, sponsors of a colleen doll show to be held at the Fair March 14, will select a queen by popular vote on opening day of the fair.

Details can be obtained from Mrs. Daniel Krumm, WA 2-4027.

Cake Bakers To Compete

HOLLYWOOD — Here's a chance to demonstrate your culinary arts.

Judging in the annual cake bake of the Irish Fair will be held at 11 a. m. March 14 at Young Circle.

Those interested in entering the contest can register and obtain details from Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Johnston after 6:30 p.m. at WA 3-6878.

Prices? Higher

NEW YORK — (UPI) — The prices of things consumers buy will average from 1 to 2 per cent higher in 1959 than they did in 1958, according to agricultural economists at Michigan State University.

Some Don't Wear Out Welcome

By Science Service

CHICAGO — Some foods, no matter how frequently they are served, do not become tiresome.

This was found when a group of 86 soldiers was kept for 35 days on a monotonous, restricted diet of four daily menus made up from only 41 foods.

Although the men were in good physical condition and on a program of high physical activity in a cold environment and so presumably hungry, they did get "fed up" to the point of nausea with some foods, especially canned meat.

Bread and butter and milk, by contrast, retained their palatability for the men, regardless of the number of times they showed up on the table.

In general, meats and vegetables tended to drop in preferance with repeated serving, cereals went up. But beans and franks were exceptions which went up and so also was pineapple which went down.

With time, eating monotony dissipates very slowly or not at all, it was found.

The soldiers were military personnel employed at an Army hospital in various technical capacities. The study is reported in Psychological Reports by Drs. Howard G. Schutz and Francis J. Pilgrim of the Quartermaster Food and Container Institute for the Armed Forces, Chicago. Dr. Schutz is now at Battelle Memorial Institute, Columbus, Ohio.

Nelsons to Honor Bay State Couple At Party Tonight

By ALICE FOSTER
Herald Writer

THE COCKTAIL FLAG will be flying tonight at Don and Monkey Nelson's Tyler St. home.

Many of their Hollywood friends will gather to meet Walter and Joan Brown of Fall River, Mass.

A LUNCHEON in honor of Mrs. Alfon Zimber of Sao Paulo, Brazil, and Georgeanne (Mrs. Robert) Leeds of Richmond, Ky., was an occasion last Friday as Ella Jo Stollberg (Mrs. Ray) Wilcox played hostess at Sea Crest Manor.

Mrs. Zimber is visiting her sister, Mrs. Rosa Deutsch of Hollywood, and plans to return to Brazil early in March. Her husband is a research chemist at Sao Paulo. Although of German descent, his family has lived in Brazil for 100 years.

The Leeds returned to Richmond today after a week of partying with their Hollywood friends.

It Was a VIP Party at Weigle Home

A group of VIP's (very important people) made it a party last Tuesday at Betty and Elmer Weigel's home.

The Weigles entertained Mr. and Mrs. Winston Schear (he's president of Peoples Federal Savings and Loan Association of Monroe, Mich.); Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Drier (president of Union Federal Savings and Loan of Evansville and past president of the U.S. Savings ings and Loan League); and Mr. and Mrs. Leo Wittgen (vice president and director of the Union Federal Savings).

The party of 20 started with cocktails at the Weigles, followed by dinner at Sea Crest Manor.

Mrs. Tobin Surprises Newlyweds

TAKE BLUE RIBBONS for good luck, add pink carnations for sweetness in marriage, and orange blossoms for purity, and you have some of the lovely decor planned by Iris (Mrs. Ben) Tobin for a surprise wedding shower honoring Didi Rossheim of Hollywood and Lewis Reich of Buffalo last Tuesday night.

The Tobins' Hollywood Beach Hotel penthouse apartment glistened in its wedding finery as pink plastic rain dropped from a white umbrella, and white hearts and orchids dressed each table. Even the buffet table was unique as pineapple centerpieces (for Lewis) took the shape of the three monkeys—hear, speak and see no evil—and another pineapple centerpiece for Dide was a beautiful swan.

In the group of 35 were Didi's mother, Mrs. Sally Rossheim, and her brother and sister-in-law, Rufus and Connie Rossheim, all of Hollywood. Didi and Lewis, who were married last week, will live in Buffalo, but Iris says "they will spend their winters in H.B.H."

Campus Romance Summer Wedding

A CAMPUS ROMANCE will become a summer wedding for pretty Mary Ann Markham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Markham of Hollywood, and Terry A. Travis, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Travis of Merriam, Kan.

The Markhams have announced the engagement of Mary Ann, who is a junior in the school of fine arts at the University of Kansas at Lawrence. She was graduated from South Broward in 1956.

Her fiance, 1958 graduate of Kansas Pre-Medical School, is at Kiel, Germany, taking a liberal arts course on an exchange scholarship and a Fulbright travel grant.

To the delight of Mary Ann, who is a major in interior design, Terry has collected beautiful crystal stemware at Copenhagen and Swedish modern silverware in Sweden. They will be married here late summer and plan to return to the university in the fall.

Stork Busy in Hollywood

Marianna says that young David Christopher makes it No. 4 in their household of young men, with Paul Jr. 5, Monty 4, and Tom, 2, completing the picture.

She received an amusing note in the hospital from a friend having five girls and boys, which read "your four of a kind beats my full house."

PEOPLE IN OUR TOWN

"IT IS MOST INSPIRING to work with crippled children and see them respond to treatment," says blonde and attractive Gene Ryan of Dania, physical therapist at the Easter Seal Clinic at Fort Lauderdale.

"The clinic is a particularly happy place," says Gene. "The children have no false pains and do not feel sorry for themselves, but instead are eager to get started with their therapeutic exercises."

Gene became interested in physical therapy when she was graduated from Florida State University at Tallahassee. It was a new and rewarding field, she was told, and basically required that "you like people." At present there are few physical therapists in South Broward.

Ten years ago, Gene took a post graduate course at the State University of Iowa where she received her certificate of physical therapy. She later took a course at the University of Southern California in the treatment of polio patients. An epidemic of polio broke out at that time and she stayed there for 2½ years.

Gene returned to her Dania home and joined the staff at the Easter Seal Clinic where she has been for five years. Last summer she took a course at Southern California for the treatment of cerebral palsy.

"We primarily treat children at the clinic," says Gene, "for arthritic, polio, palsy, orthopedic and neurological cases, and all polio adults. As schedule permits, we also treat adults for the other disabling diseases. We handle 50 patients a day ('we' meaning the three physical, one occupational and one speech therapist."

Gene reminds us that the clinic is supported entirely by voluntary contribution and that the Easter Seal drive is now in progress.

Gene is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Ryan, pioneer residents of Dania. She has two brothers, Jim, and State Representative A. J. Ryan Jr.

Mrs. J. A. Coletti Serves Buffet Luncheon
. . . to houseguests, the William Gregors

Entertaining on Patio Treat for Hostess Too

By MARGARET WALKER
Broward Society Editor
(Another in a series)

FORT LAUDERDALE — Mrs. J. A. Coletti takes as much delight in planning her parties as her guests do in coming.

Her Mediterranean-style home is perfect for entertaining, indoors or out, formally or informally. The entire house opens to the ocean, with a graceful balustrade along the beach separating sand from terrace.

Because the Colettis have many house guests during the season, they entertain mostly in their spacious oceanfront patio, a particular treat for the fugitives from Northern winters.

By way of introducing their guests to their Fort Lauderdale friends, they have many small dinner parties rather than one or two large cocktail parties. They wait to give a few large parties later in the season.

Mrs. Coletti is an able and thoughtful hostess, who arranges guest lists as carefully as she mixes menus and drinks.

* * *

"WE PREFER HAVING eight or 10 people at a time, never more than 12," says Mrs. Coletti. Luncheons are served at tables set on the patio overlooking the ocean.

At night, buffet dinners are set up on the terrace, where guests serve themselves, and then are seated at a patio table lighted by hurricane lamps.

During chilly weather, dinner is often served in the garden room on the first floor, which is served via a dumbwaiter from the upstairs kitchen. Food is conveniently conveyed from kitchen to bar, which is concealed by a bamboo screen when not in use.

With more people and on a more formal occasion, Mrs. Coletti serves dinner in the upstairs dining room.

* * *

WHEREVER the couple travels, in this country or abroad, Mrs. Coletti collects cookbooks, selects the most unusual recipes. "I'm always looking for something different," she said, "but my favorite remains the same. It's chicken livers cooked in a madeira wine sauce."

To Stage Party

FORT LAUDERDALE — The first monthly card party staged by the Republican Women's Club of Broward will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Edward H. Jones, 115 SE 13th St. Mrs. Betty Chambers Brooks is chairman.

Holy Cross Unit Elects Officers

FORT LAUDERDALE — Mrs. Edward Froelich, 4621 Bougainvillea Dr., Lauderdale-By-The-Sea, is new chairman of Circle 11 of the Holy Cross Hospital Women's Auxiliary.

Other new officers are Mrs. Melvin Rice, co-chairman; Mrs. William S. Ross, treasurer, and Mrs. Mary Kiernan, secretary.

BROWARD NIGHTBEAT

Deedy, Bill: Solid Senders

By PATRICIA BROWN
Herald Columnist

Tempo on the nightbeat continues to increase as the season advances with a slew of openings last week and more coming up.

Marlin Beach released a small depth bomb in its Two Fathoms Down Lounge by booking in Deedy and Bill for a refreshing show with a clever format. Sum total is solid entertainment which can be classed as top caliber.

This is a comedy act with musical counterpoint, with Bill playing straight man on piano, sax and clarinet to Deedy's whirlwind antics on bass and drums, not to mention a breakaway trombone.

Deedy and Bill

Bill, however, manages to hold his own with the distaff member of the team — a cute trick with a pixie personality and more bounce to the ounce than you've been exposed to for some time.

Two combine for a surefire routine including a double drum bit which brings down the house. Deedy, incidentally, plays a full set of drums and is one of the few gals in that department who looks like she knows what she's doing.

She also breaks through with some straight torchy numbers which indicate that under the fluff lurks a pretty fair songstress.

* * *

JIMMY FAZIO'S jazz emporium has a new crew called the Car-Tunes in for a limited engagement. Hep trio, strong instrumentally, also turns up with vocals and comedy business. Latter calls for costume props and some occasional meandering through the audience.

Car-Tunes, led by Max Horton who was formerly with the well-known group called the Three Characters is spelled by that Dixie kiddo, Marie Marcus, and her two sidemen.

Marie appears to have established squatters' rights back of the big piano bar and it's a good deal for all concerned. Gal, a disciple of Fats Waller, keyboards a cool piano which is steadily netting her a solid army of aficionados.

* * *

Lou Durkee is the latest single to bow in at Jim O'Hares' Lorelei Room. Lous' played the circuit before — two years ago was hopping between Danny's, Fazio's, Bahia-mar and the Town House with a trio called the Bon-Airs.

Gent covers the field from cha-cha to boogie on piano and accordion, one of his best offerings being a Russian medley.

Lou tosses in a few vocals here and there; also accompanies Eleanor Carline, pretty thrush — a holdover who sounds better and better as the weeks progress.

Marge Hilton and Dorothy de Winter as rumored two weeks ago in this corner, have whipped up a new duo — the togetherness now on display in the Harbor Lounge at Bahia-mar.

Marge works piano; Dottie, who minds the drums, has improved considerably in that direction since we caught her earlier in the season at the Golden Falcon as half of the Stan Nelson Duo.

Gals also warble, solo and together. They're individualists as to style but make for a good blend.

* * *

ANYTHING TO THE RUMOR that Galt Ocean Mile Hotel may be leased by a Southwest hotel chain? Mebbe soon as the season is over? And that there's trouble brewing at the Diplomat?

* * *

UPCOMING: Mark Twain Quartet, musical and comedy group, en route from Vegas for their opening Tuesday at the Four O'Clock Club . . . Jan August, Mercury recording artist, to Marie Antoinette March 10; Lenny Herman returns March 31 . . . Tommy Dorsey's band starring Warren Covington skedded for a one-night stand at War Memorial Auditorium March 28.

PIERRE PAGE packing 'em in at the Red Coach with his piano and accordion divertisements but Manager Jo Gregg now schedules a new bit — a candlelight rendezvous in the lounge from 9:30 to past midnight.

Spot features subdued lighting and a supper menu, not to mention a new dais for Pierre. Entertainer projects the best of Gershwin, Kern and Rodgers and Hart for late-hour listening; also has a repertoire of offbeat French numbers in his musical bag of tricks. Ask for the lovely and haunting "Merry-Go-Round."

* * *

MEANEST TRICK OF THE WEEK: Local nightspot operator first romanced his gal singer and then paid off her warbling stint with a $520 check which bounced.

* * *

BARBERSHOPPERS' 10th annual Festival of Harmony in War Memorial Auditorium Tuesday will have the Dixie District champions and former champions of the national organization on hand for some close harmony.

Two Lauderdale chapter quartets, the Presidents and the Dial-Tones, will also participate, as well as the local chapter of Sweet Adalines representing the distaff division.

* * *

VISITING FIREMEN include Bonnie Baker's mother, Dorothy. Mom is helping daughter and son-in-law move into their Wilton Manors home. Bonnie says she's thrilled to have a roof over her head — "I've been living out of a suitcase for the last five years. And about 80 before that."

Eddie de Santis' (Marksmen) pop is also a visitor. Marksmen have an injunction against their former boss at Sarasota's Mardi Gras. "He was a good boss," says Eddie, "only he forgot to pay us."

* * *

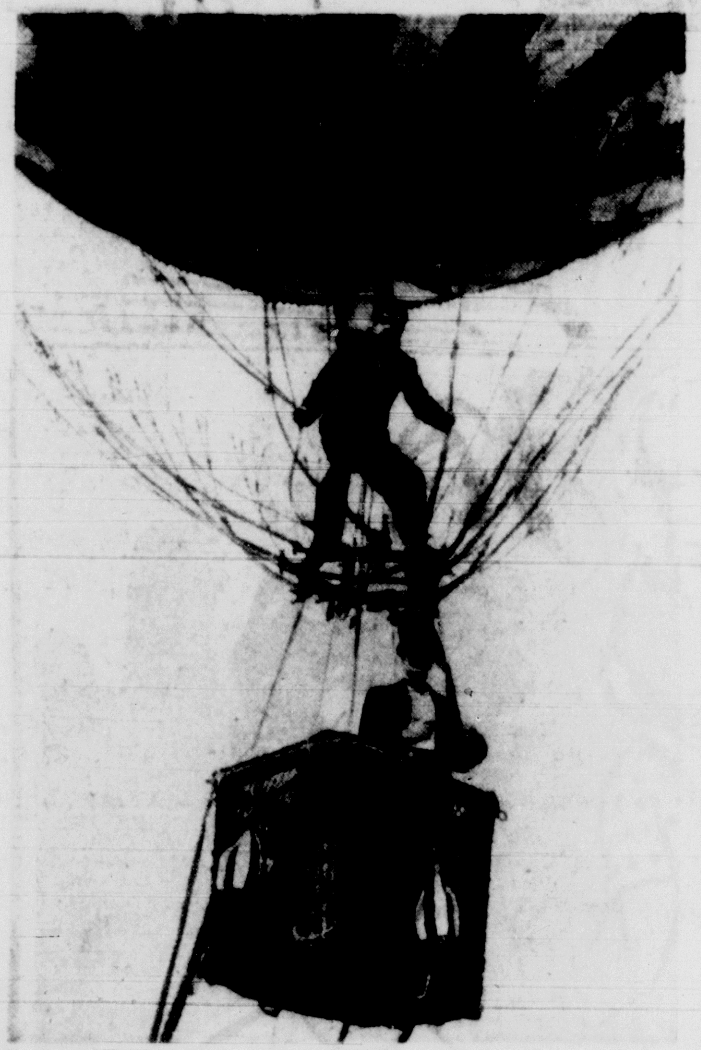
PIT, intimate little hideaway on Sunrise Lane, spots a cool group — Nat Jones, piano, Alan Wiley, bass, and Shirley Ellison, vocals. Kids deliver the kind of beat that could easily become a habit.

Nat formerly headed a quartet, the Jim-Jams; he's also negotiating with Capitol for a record deal. Shirley's got hers made. Sepia thrush authored rock number "Ten Again" for the Vik label which was recorded by the Heartbreaks.

* * *

Here and There

Gene Sheldon, his piano and songs, back for a stand at Holywood's Stage Door, Bill White is also on hand with guitar and satire . . . The Presidents, local barbershop quartet, harmonize Monday nights in the Bait Bar at the Hotel Escape . . . Johnny Leighton Trio moves into the Rum House at Galt from 6 to 9 nightly for a spot of dance music . . . Tonettes, distaff musical trio, replaced the McCormick's at Barefoot Mailman, the latter now at Miami Beach's Kenilworth . . . The Bernards, Ben and Ruth, now a duo at Tale O'the Tiger.



FIRST DAY OUT on their record shattering trip, David Niven and Cantinflas sight the Alps, in "Around the World in 80 Days," which opens Wednesday at the Hollywood.

Star-Studded Show

Benefit to Aid Widow of Tusi

Entertainers from both Broward and Dade combine talents next Sunday for a star-studded show benefiting the widow of Tusi, popular singer-dancer who died suddenly week before last of a heart attack.

Benefit, to be emceed by Woody Woodbury in the armory on Rt. 84 from 7 to 10 p.m., will spotlight Manu, Teva, Greta and the Tahitianaures from the Yankee Clipper's South Seas Revue in which Tusi was featured for more than two years before making his final appearance Feb. 7.

Other local talent scheduled includes Ben Morely, Bonnie Baker, Tunesmen, Punchinellos, Romer and Howard, and the Car-Tunes, plus Polynesian performers Rita, Ninoa, Pualani and Ihilani, Nani and Kimo Lee.

Ticket arrangements for the event are being handled by Pat Stroehle at JA 4-6347. Donations to the "Tusi Fund" may be made through the First National Bank of Fort Lauderdale.

Tops in Tunes

Champion harmonizers, the Mid-States Four of Chicago, will be among quartets which will sing at the 10th annual Festival of Harmony Tuesday at War Memorial Auditorium. The champion chorus of the Fort Lauderdale chapter of the SPEBSQSA also will appear.

To Aid Children's Theatre

Suzari Marionettes To Dance 'Red Shoes'

FORT LAUDERDALE — "The Red Shoes" will be danced by the Suzari Marionettes Saturday for the benefit of the Children's Theatre.

Performances will be at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. at Sunrise Junior High School, 1750 NE 14th St.

The famous marionettes' presentation of the ballet fantasy is offered in celebration of their 20th anniversary. This marks their fifth annual appearance here under sponsorship of the children's theatre.

The story, adapted from the classic by Hans Christian Andersen, has lilting folk songs and dances from Denmark. Starring role will be taken by the winsome puppet Karen.

Masters of modern puppetry, the Suzari group is making a nationwide tour.

Tickets for Saturday's performances are on sale at Marjory Ott for the Younger Set, 821 E. Las Olas Blvd., and Lauray's, 700 E. Las Olas Blvd. In Pompano Beach they may be obtained at 36 Ocean Side Center or at 3206 E. Atlantic Blvd.

Tickets may also be had ham, president of the Childrens' Theatre.

Gary Cooper Sure of Seat

HOLLYWOOD — (UPI) — Gary Cooper uses his own special saddle for his role in Warner's "The Hanging Tree" because of a trick hip he broke when he was a Montana cowboy.

It is an Australian stockman's saddle which is almost as light as an English saddle but reinforced with steel strips to support a horn.

Fiesta Tropicale Activities to Begin March 30

By RICK TUTTLE
Hollywood Bureau Chief

HOLLYWOOD — Fiesta Tropicale will be getting off to a late start this year but spokesmen predict it will live up to its recognition as "America's newest major mardi gras."

The week of activities will begin March 30, instead of March 18, the Chamber of Commerce said.

It has been rescheduled because Easter Week falls during the period it is traditionally held.

The opening event will be the crowning of a fiesta queen in the Young Circle amphitheater Monday.

Fiesta Tropicale Blind Bogey Golf Tournament will be held at Orange Brook Golf Course the next day. Fiesta Tennis Tournament at municipal courts will also start Tuesday.

On Wednesday the accent will be on racing with special Fiesta stake races at Gulfstream Park in the afternoon and at Hollywood Kennel Club at night.

Thursday the Hollywood Shuffleboard Club will conduct semi-finals in its annual championship Fiesta Tropicale Tourney during the day and after dark Hollywood's newly-formed symphony "pops" orchestra will present a special program in the amphitheater.

The Fiesta will climax with a mammoth parade which winds its way through the streets of downtown Hollywood April 3 on the eve of the $100,000 Florida Derby at Gulfstream.

Last year's parade, one of the largest ever staged in Florida, was witnessed by more than 75,000 persons, the chamber said.

Nearly 100,000 are expected to line the march route this year.

The parade will pass beneath a two-mile long canopy of color street lights.

A number of pre-Fiesta sporting events have been scheduled.

Top among them is the Men's Invitational Amateur Four-Ball Golf Tournament at Orange Brook March 18-22.

CLIFFORD NYSEWANDER of Indianapolis will give a public lecture on Christian Science Tuesday night at 8:15 in South Broward High auditorium.

Dinner Date Not Set

Broward Sports Greeters To Honor Rocky Marciano

FORT LAUDERDALE — A testimonial dinner welcoming Rocky Marciano as a new Fort Lauderdale resident will be held about April 1.

The Broward Sports Greeters, a group of all-sports fans, will arrange a date after checking with the ex-heavyweight champion on his business and speaking commitments.

Marciano is understood to be in the process of entering into additional business ventures in this and other areas. He recently began operation of a West Hollywood bowling establishment.

The Greeters previously honored baseball's Phil Cavaretta and Ed Walsh and pro football's Pete Brewster.

Joe Doumar, a BSG spokesman, said additional meetings to plan the Marciano dinner are being arranged. He predicts a "packed house" for the affair, "for everybody wants to greet the Rock and hear what he has to say."

The dinner will be held at the Governors' Club Hotel.

Cruiser Rescued by Whitmer

POMPANO BEACH—Capt. Johnny Whitmer has another rescue to his credit.

He took his Miss Jeane in close to shore a half-mile south of the Deerfield Beach fishing pier to toss a line to an 18-foot cruiser owned by C. J. Frederick of Boca Raton which was washed ashore.

The Miss Jeane pulled Frederick's boat off and back to Hillsboro Inlet. Assisting Whitmer was his mate, Andre Pelanger.

The rescue was made at the end of a successful day's fishing. Whitmer was carrying a party that included Mr. and Mrs. Donald Winter and Mrs. Donna Gier, Holland, Mich.; William De Haan, Grand Rapids, Mich.; L. G. Purmort, Van Werp, Ohio; and Phillips Brooks, Pompano Beach. They brought home six kings weighing between 25 and 30 pounds.

TESTIMONIAL

February 5, 1959

Al Lloyd Motors, Inc.
1812 So. Andrews Ave.,
Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Dear Al:

I have intended to write this letter for quite some time, but wanted to wait until my Lloyd had sufficient mileage on it to convince the tougbest skeptic.

We have had our Lloyd since June, 1958. In that time we have driven some 13,000 miles, under all kinds of conditions, on all kinds of roads, and found that our Lloyd performed as well as any car we have ever owned.

In the month of July, 1958, we made a round trip from Fort Lauderdale to Jacksonville. The cost was just under $5.00 for gasoline. The mileage was approximately 700. In September we made a round trip from Fort Lauderdale to Hendersonville, North Carolina, a distance of 1,694 miles for $15.88. We got as high as 40 miles to the gallon, at 60 miles an hour, on flat highway and averaged 32 miles to the gallon in the mountains of North Carolina.

I use my Lloyd on company business and average approximately 2,000 miles a month. Thus far, in the line of mechanical work, I have had a piece of dust removed from the carburetor, replaced two spark plugs, and one blown out fuse.

It is my opinion that the Lloyd lives up to advertising claims. My wife and I both find that we enjoy driving more since we purchased the Lloyd, than we did when we were driving our previous car.

If you wish, you may refer any prospective Lloyd buyers to me for personal verification of this letter.

Sincerely yours,

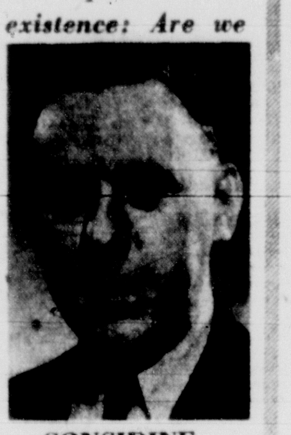
A Close Look at Our Moment of Peril

We'll Let Russia Strike First—Then What?

The Great Debate

The "Great Debate" rages over a question that could determine our national existence: Are we building modern weapons of war fast enough and good enough to meet an ominous Russian threat? No one man has the answer. But in the provocative series of articles that starts today one of America's great reporters presents facts and opinions that can help all Americans to a clearer realization of the life-or-death problem.



CONSIDINE

By BOB CONSIDINE
Herald Columnist

FOR THE FIRST time since the War of 1812 there is genuine concern in Washington over the ability of the U. S. to survive an enemy attack.

It is not a general concern. There are elements of the military and officialdom which see little chance of a nuclear war with the Soviet Union. Others, including key figures in the Eisenhower administration, feel no apprehension over the lead which the U.S.S.R. apparently has taken in the field of the ultimate weapon — the intercontinental ballistic missile. They see no need to increase the 40 billion dollar arms budget.

Yet despite this pacifying atmosphere in several high and influential quarters, responsible Americans of all political shades go to bed these nights haunted by such bugaboos as these:

A prospectus drawn up in the Defense Department, and kept under lock and key, states that if the Soviet Union has the long-range weapons delivery system it boasts about, a salvo of its nuclear-tipped missiles would kill 10,000,000 Americans and virtually or entirely demolish our means of retaliation.

Another Defense Department estimate is that by the end of 1960 the U.S.S.R. will have a 3-1 edge over the U.S. in ICBMs. But no speed-up program to close the gap is now planned.

A prominent senator known for his advocacy of the U.S. Air Force states that 75 per cent of the Strategic Air Command's striking force is obsolescent. He questions whether more than a handful of SAC's hundreds of big manned bombers could survive Soviet air defense and reach their assigned targets in any retaliatory raid.

The Distant Early Warning line of radar sites, built across the Arctic from Alaska to Greenland at a cost of hundreds of millions, to detect a Red air force manned bomber fleet which may or may not exist, cannot spot Soviet ICBMs. A crash program to "raise the sights" of our polar detection system is only now getting under way.

The Navy's Polaris missile, submarine-based, will not be ready for another year. Its critics say that it will have only half the predicted 1,500-mile range. But the sea service has stopped production of an excellent interim missile, the air-breathing Regulus II, after spending about 250 million dollars.

The Air Force's solid fuel ICBM, "Minuteman," will not be ready until perhaps 1965. In the interim, it must depend on the complex and immobile liquid-fueled Atlas and Titan which require hours, if not days, to prepare for launching. Flying time of a Russian ICBM from its Soviet base to any U. S. target: 25 minutes.

The Army, with the most notable record in the missile field, has been generally thwarted in its efforts to build bigger and better weapons, including the Nike Zeus, anti-missile missile believed capable of knocking out enemy ICBMs flying in space at 15 times the speed of sound.

The Defense Department, Central Intelligence Agency and White House firmly rule out all attempts to change the country's traditional outlook on war. In an age of superweapons development wherein a great war might be decided in minutes rather than years, we still concede to the enemy the initial blow. A big question in Washington today is, "But will we be able to get off the floor and fight back after being hit?"

This and subsequent articles will attempt to illuminate some of the problems confronting military and political leaders and print the answers as those experts see them. Independent observation will be included.

The answers of the principals involved do not always coincide. The thousands of pages of testimony taken by the preparedness investigating subcommittee of the Senate's Armed Services, Missile and Space Activities Committee, as well as other fact-seeking probes, are laced with differences and contradictions. Ask the same question of any three men involved in Washington's latest Great Debate

Asks for Leadership

Collins Says Politicos Fear Rights Issue

EXCLUSIVE

By DAVID J. KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The civil rights controversy has the nation's leaders "quaking in their political boots," Gov. LeRoy Collins told leading U.S. Democrats Saturday.

Collins, addressing a $100-a-plate dinner honoring newly elected Democrat governors, charged the nation's leadership with being "fearful even to seek honorable, sensible adjustments" to the hot race problems.

He said the whole rights issue left the nation "badly divided" in facing the outside world.

Then leveling a blast at the Republicans, the Florida governor said:

"Our national administration, at a crucial time in history, is not measuring up to changing responsibilities. This is the basis for the uneasiness which stirs Americans these days."

He called on Democrats to choose as a Presidential candidate "an uncommon man with a common touch . . . a man of progressive outlook with a solid record of achievement."

The governor, mentioned frequently as a possible Democratic candidate for president or vice president in 1960 shared top billing before some 2,000 guests at the dinner with Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, the powerful Democratic majority leader.

Capital Will Be 'Jumping'

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Official Washington, long attuned to the spoken political word as a kind of music, is going to try its ear on some jazz starting today.

Patrons of the Washington Jazz Jubilee include some names you wouldn't think of as cool cats:

Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, Mrs. Earl Warren, Mrs. John Foster Dulles, 22 ambassadors and their wives, seven cabinet officers and their wives, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and his wife, Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.).

Mrs. Eisenhower Mrs. Nixon

Washington's first jazz concert with such prominent backing is being arranged by a group of congressional wives raising money for Friendship House, a settlement house on Capitol Hill. The jubilee chairman is Mrs. Richard Bolling, wife of the Democratic representative from Missouri.

A band of jazz greats will shake the rafters of a Washington hotel ballroom on the night of March 16. What Mrs. Bolling calls "an uptown level" will be supplied by the Library of Congress and the National Gallery of Art.

Marshall Stearns, literature professor at Hunter College and writer on jazz, will lecture on the subject at the Art Gallery today.

On Monday the Library of Congress will open an exhibit, "Seven Ages of Jazz," to trace its course from the early folk music to the Carnegie Hall.

Why jazz jubilee in Washington?

"We wanted something new — the benefit circuit has been so overdone," Mrs. Bolling said. "The patrons aren't jazz buffs, but they're really glad to know what it's all about."

Today's Chuckle

"I'll carry this case to the highest court in the land," said the lawyer to the prisoner, "but in the meantime you'd better try to escape." —Citadel

Pan-Am Strike Averted

Sides Agree At Meeting

By TOM LOWNES
Herald Staff Writer

Threat of a systemwide strike against Pan American Airways by its 7,000 Transport Workers Union employes was lifted early Saturday as both sides came out of an all-night meeting with an agreement "in principle."

The threatened strike, which had been set for midnight Monday, would have affected some 3,000 PAA workers in Miami and another 1,500 at the strategic Cape Canaveral Missile Test Center.

Federal Mediator Frances A. O'Neill, who several times prevented hot-tempered union and company leaders from stalking out of the night-long meeting in New York, said the agreement was reached at 6 a.m.

Both company and union officials refused to outline terms of the tentative settlement, but Miamian William Grogan, international vice president of TWU, said, "It's a good contract which we can submit with honor to our members."

The union's 20-member negotiating committee will meet in New York at 7 p.m Monday to hear terms of the contract. If they accept the plan, it will be submitted for a TWU general membership vote later in the week.

There were strong indications Saturday that the union did not succeed in pushing through its major demand — a 37½-hour week for all members.

The word "hours" was conspicuously missing from O'Neill's only comment on terms of the agreement: "It concerned wages, rules and working conditions."

In Miami, Bernard H. Diesen, president of TWU Local 500, pointed out that the union's wage demands had been added only three months ago after TWU leaders reported that hour negotiations were deadlocked.

U.S. Laying Plans For Berlin Crisis

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The U.S. has decided on a series of moves to prepare for the expected May 27 showdown with Russia over Berlin.

The Defense and State Departments are now planning precise steps, officials reported Saturday. These are said to fall into two categories—measures to reinforce the Western military-political position on a long-range basis and measures concerned directly with the Berlin crisis.

In connection with the first type, the U.S. has decided to go ahead on an early agreement with Italy to base intermediate range (1,500-mile) ballistic missiles on Italian territory. Now that the new government of Antonio Segni is firmly established in Rome the IRBM pact is expected to be quickly arranged.

After review of the problem within the State and Defense Departments it has also been decided, officials said, to continue replacing F100 jet fighter aircraft with the latest very high speed F101s. Apart from this, West Germany is reported interested in buying some F104s and the U.S. may be willing to sell them in the present circumstances.

Informants said any failure of the U.S. at this point to go forward with plans to strengthen its own bases and its allies overseas would be construed by the Soviets as a sign of weakness. They said that from President Eisenhower down the intention now is to avoid giving Moscow reason for any such miscalculation.

As far as measures aimed specifically at Berlin and Germany are concerned, inquiry in official quarters indicated that as Russia's deadline for abandonment of its occupation role in East Berlin approaches, the U.S. Strategic Air Command will be put in a fully alert status and the Strategic Army Command with its highly mobile force of four divisions may be made ready for quick action.

At the moment, however, the best-informed officials discount talk of any large-scale mobilization.

Concern with military moves increased inside the administration — as well as in Congress — after Soviet Premier Nikita Khurshchev Tuesday assailed Western proposals for negotiation on Germany and Berlin issues. His attack was delivered in such a way as to embarrass and rebuff the visiting British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

* * *

Nikita's Going to Germany

MOSCOW — (AP) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev is making a surprise trip to East Germany, possibly foreshadowing the next Soviet move in the Berlin crisis.

The official Tass News Agency Saturday said tersely that Khrushchev will visit the International Trade Fair at Leipzig. It did not say when, nor would the foreign ministry give a date. The fair opens today.

The press chief of the Soviet embassy in East Berlin, V. M. Beburov, said Khrushchev is expected to arrive in Leipzig Wednesday.

This will be after a closing meeting with visiting British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in the Kremlin Monday. Macmillan will leave for home Tuesday.

There was speculation that Khrushchev might use the visit to discuss a separate peace treaty with East Germany, following the failure to make any progress on the German question in talks with Macmillan.

The government newspaper Izvestia quoted Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan as saying a separate peace treaty for East Germany may be in the wind.

34,425 See Troilus Win

The largest Hialeah Park crowd in two seasons — 34,425 — watched second-choice Troilus win the $135,800 Flamingo Stakes Saturday.

Troilus took the lead on the final turn and finished three lengths ahead of Open View. The favored First Landing finished third. Troilus paid $6.90, $4.70 and $3.10.

Suicides Fail

OSAKA, Japan — (UPI) — Sanji Ito, a 53-year-old high school principal, and School Clerk Nariko Suzuki, 21, are recovering from poison taken in a suicide pact. They decided to kill themselves because their May and December romance was "impossible."

Mack Gordon, Lyricist, Dies

NEW YORK — (AP) — Mack Gordon, 54, who wrote the lyrics for many hit tunes, died Saturday after a brief illness.

He wrote the words for such hits as "Time On My Hands," "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking," "Chattanooga Choo-Choo," "Love Thy Neighbor," "You'll Never Know," and "Stay as Sweet as You Are."

Prior to his songwriting career, he was a vaudeville comedian and singer.

7 Hockey Players Die as Roof Falls

LISTOWEL, Ont. — (AP) — Seven Peewee League hockey players—all of them 12 or under—were killed Saturday when the snow-burdened roof of the Listowel Memorial Arena collapsed. Their recreation director also died in the thundering collapse.

Nineteen others were hurt. Nine of them were treated at the hospital for minor injuries and sent home.

Rescue workers dug frantically through the debris for other possible victims but police said later all the missing had been accounted for.

Listowel is in Ontario's snowbelt and there is about 25 inches of snow on the ground in the area.

The adult victim was Kenneth McLeod, 35, recreation director for this town of 3,530 population 25 miles northeast of Kitchener.

The only other adult in the arena, Norman Stirling, 32, was taken to a hospital. He is coach of the team and assistant recreation director.

The manager of the arena, Percy Knoblaugh, said he was standing at the entrance when the walls buckled. Then the roof crashed.

Police said it was difficult to determine just who was in the arena when the roof fell.

Twenty-two boys' coats were found in the cloak room near the entrance.

Canaveral Bird Set For Its Space Probe

CAPE CANAVERAL — (UPI) — A dense, lingering overcast closed in on the cape Saturday and it appeared highly unlikely the Army would try to launch its new space probe rocket before today.

The tall Juno II moon bird, designed to hurl its gold-plated payload past the lunar sphere and into orbit around the sun, was ready for firing.

But the forecast gave the cape area only a 50-50 chance for the 2,000-foot ceiling necessary for a launching, odds too short for the Army rocketeers to gamble on.

A top project official said that "as far as we can see now, everything about the bird itself looks perfect — the telemetry (radio reporting setup), the mechanics, all that's important."

The Army plans to aim the stately four-stage rocket directly at the moon and has estimated it will take 34 hours for the 13-pound Pioneer IV probe vehicle to reach the lunar sphere.

The overcast did not, however, halt an Air Force attempt to test a futuristic nose cone over intercontinental range early Saturday.

A Thor-Able test rocket fired at 2:48 a.m. knifed through several layers of clouds to start its mission to the South Atlantic.

But the Defense Department said 11 hours later it was not sure what happened to the rocket.

Hopes Dim Of Rocket Orbiting

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — (UPI) — The Air Force Saturday fired the first satellite-carrying rocket in the "Project Discoverer" program, but nearly four hours after the launching no signals had been received from the 1,300-pound artificial moon.

When the 78.2-foot long rocket-satellite blasted off at 4:49 p.m. Miami time, controlling Air Force officers said orbiting should be achieved in "two to three hours."

But Saturday night, hopes dimmed. The Air Force still held out a slim hope of successful orbiting.

The planned orbit would be like a hoop around the earth, passing over the North and South Poles. Achievement of the orbit would be a step toward the creation of reconnaissance satellites, which could scan the whole earth as it revolved below.

Air Force officials said the launching was "a success" regardless of success or failure of the orbit. The primary goal had been accomplished, the testing of the second stage vehicle.

The satellite-bearing rocket lunged from its launch pad and headed straight up into a cloudless blue sky, leaving a bright yellow tail of fire clearly visible from the press observation center nearly two miles away.

After the Discoverer — the first attempt to launch a satellite from the Pacific Coast — reached an altitude of between 10,000 to 15,000 feet, it arched into a horizontal flight, leaving a long vapor trail. It appeared that the rocket was heading south in the general direction of Los Angeles, but the shot was designed to send it southwest over the Pacific.

The Air Force confirmed five minutes after the firing that telemetry data showed the 18.8-foot long satellite stage had separated from the Thor booster and was continuing its spaceward climb.

It was estimated that the second stage of the rocket required a speed of approximately 25,000 miles an hour to place it in orbit.

The satellite — which weighs 1,300 pounds — carried a 40-pound payload of telemetry equipment, but no animals. The first shot is mainly to test the vehicle.

But mice and monkeys soon will ride the moons into orbit as scientists probe "environmental conditions" of space in research aimed at developing a manned satellite.

Two earlier attempts to fire the Discoverer literally never got off the ground. Technical difficulties were blamed for scrubbing the shot both Jan. 21 and Wednesday.

Reds Accidentally Cut Cable, Navy Man Thinks

'That's My Personal Opinion'

WASHINGTON —(UPI)— The U.S. naval officer who led a boarding party onto a Soviet fishing trawler said Saturday he believed the Russian ship accidentally cut a transatlantic cable.

SHEELY

Lt. Donald Martin Sheely of Fairmont, Minn., said the cable "was most probably accidentally cut by them. That's my personal opinion."

He said there was no evidence that it was cut deliberately but "I am not convinced they didn't cut it deliberately."

Sheely said the Russians took the attitude that their fishing equipment was new and they did not think they could have cut the cable.

Sheely and two other members of the boarding party were flown here to report to the Navy.

They also were questioned at the State Department before meeting newsmen at the Pentagon.

Sheely said he was "somewhat nervous" about boarding the Russian trawler Novorossisk but he and other members of the party went unarmed.

The Soviet ship responded, Sheely said, when the U.S. destroyer Roy O. Hale hoisted an international flag signal to heave to for a boarding party.

He said the Russians were "not social. They accepted us but were not overly friendly." Sheely said he believed there was more electronic equipment aboard the Soviet vessel "than we would expect to see on one of our own fishing vessels."

The party boarded the Soviet craft under terms of an 1884 treaty permitting inspection of documents of ships suspected of damaging oceanic cables. Five cable breaks had been reported.

The Navy had announced Thursday night that Sheely's party found no intent on the part of the trawler to do anything but fish.

Air Crash Kills Five Navy Men

PRESCOTT, Ariz. —(UPI)— Five Navy crewmen were killed Saturday when their Military Air Transport Service Superconstellation crashed, exploded an burned at the edge of a busy highway.

There were no survivors. The craft was assigned to Transport Squadron 7 of the Naval Air Station at Moffatt Field, Calif. It was on a routine training flight from Litchfield Naval Air Facility near Phoenix.

Names of victims were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Teamsters Bare Plan For Public Workers

By TOM LOWNES
Herald Staff Writer

Out-of-town Teamsters organizers set up headquarters in a Miami Beach councilman's law office Saturday and announced demands for a $12,500,000 wage increase for Dade's municipal and county employes.

Henry Feinstein, president of the Public Employes Local 237 of New York Teamsters, revealed his sweeping short-range plans after moving into the office of Councilman Harold Shapiro, Teamster attorney here.

Feinstein, who is doing double duty as a Teamster organizer, said his group will seek $500-a-year increase for all 25,000 county and municipal workers in Dade.

Other Feinstein plans for courting the county's unorganized workers: "a 40-hour week; time-and-a-half in cash for work over 40 hours; bonus pay for Saturday, Sunday and holidays; and a compulsary merit system."

"I was shocked to learn that men at hard labor are forced to put in as many as 54 hours a week in some municipal jobs here to earn as little as $60.84," Feinstein said.

"This is the sort of thing you hear about Russia — I had assumed that such working conditions had disappeared in the dark age in our country."

"I wonder if Gov. Collins is aware of such conditions in Florida and if so, why he hasn't taken corrective steps," said Feinstein in a sharp dig at Florida's chief Hoffa foe.

"As for the Teamsters Union," said Feinstein, "we most certainly intend to correct this situation immediately."

The New York Teamster said he had already organized a band of 60 municipal and county employes here to work behind William Huet, 1673 Bay Rd., Miami Beach, business agent for the new drive.

Feinstein said he was also "interested" in meeting with Dade's school teachers, firemen, and hospital employes to see what Jimmy Hoffa's Teamster Union could do for them.

Thirty thousand puzzle fans can be wrong.

This was proved again last week when not a single entry came close to winning the Sunny Fortune jackpot. But cheer up, that old jackpot is sunnier than ever. It now contains 900 dollars which, if laid end to end, would make the prettiest green carpet you ever saw.

SUNNY

"Any prize for getting them all wrong?" asks one fan. "I have a sneaking idea I might win."

Sorry. All you get for missing all the words is a cold, fishy stare.

Another fan writes that on the new-type puzzle "my 10-year-old son in grade five can come closer than his Phi Beta Kappa father. My five-year-old son, who can't read at all, can pick letters closer than either of us to your published solutions. Which group do you want to cultivate?"

We've Had It--Hottest February

Miami closed out the hottest February on Weather Bureau records Saturday with promises of more nicer-than-usual conditions in March.

Forecaster Sanford Neuman added up the February readings recorded at the Weather Bureau's airport station — where Miami's official readings are taken — and found the average was 75.4 degrees.

That's 6.7 degrees higher than the 68.7 "normal" average for the month — and a whopping 17 degrees warmer than the 59.4 average of February of 1958, when all South Florida suffered in one economy smashing cold spell after another.

Figures for Miami Beach haven't been compiled by the Weather Bureau, but Neuman said "there's no doubt this will be the hottest February on record."

The second hottest February since the Weather Bureau started keeping records in 1939 was in 1957, when the average was 72.7.

What about March?

"Our 30-day outlook calls for normal to slightly above normal temperatures in March," Neuman said.

Maxwell Anderson
. . . dead after stroke

Writer Anderson, 70, Dies

STAMFORD, Conn. — (AP) — Maxwell Anderson, 70, one of America's most respected playwrights, died Saturday night. He suffered a stroke at his home here Thursday.

The Pulitzer prize-winning author died at Stamford Hospital, where he had been partially paralyzed since the stroke.

When he was stricken, Anderson was working on a new musical play to be called "Madonna and Child."

Anderson won the Pulitzer prize in 1933 for his play, "Both Your Houses," and was given a number of other awards for various of his more than 30 plays.

Among those works were "What Price Glory?", (written with Laurence Stallings), "Winterset," "High Tor," "Knickerbocker Holiday," "Key Largo," and "Barefoot in Athens."

Younger persons, though, perhaps know Anderson best of all for the lyrics of "September Song," which he wrote for "Knickerbocker Holiday."

Youth Falls 19 Floors --And Lives

NEW YORK—(AP)—A young man plunged 19 floors Saturday but crashed through the top of a huge water tank and floated semi-conscious to the surface.

Police found him clutching the rim of the 10,000 gallon, two-story-high tank. They strapped him to a plank and maneuvered him through a seventh floor window level with the tank roof.

Identified as Emil A. Swiezy, 23, of Flushing, Queens, N.Y., he was taken to Beth David Hospital in critical condition with head and internal injuries.

The superintendent of the 26-story building, located on Lexington Ave. at 41st St., said he noticed a rear window open. Leaning out, he saw the the tank 19 stories below. There was a jagged hole in the tank's wood and copper-sheathed top. Looking closer, he saw the man, and called police.

Our Moment of Peril

The Big Question Today: Could We Survive Attack?

and you may receive three sharply conflicting interpretations.

Defense Secretary Neil McElroy sees no need to spend more money during this coming fiscal year than has been asked for by his department.

"The present rate of arms spending assures that essential defense needs are met," the secretary told the subcommittee under the questioning of its able counsel, Edwin L. Weisl. He called the U.S. position "satisfactory."

Sen. Stuart Symington (D., Mo.), a member of the subcommittee and secretary of air during the Truman administration, asserted at the same hearing:

"Since the United States has not kept its defense strength modernized, during the next few years adequate defense requires more money than estimated in the President's budget. The coming year may afford us our last chance to initiate any real effort to catch up with the Russians in the most important field of modern weaponry."

"Who's telling the truth in the Great Debate?" I asked Sen. Lyndon Johnson, the majority leader whose subcommittee is far from satisfied with what it has heard.

"They all are," he said, suddenly looking up at us.

"It reminds me of the time our little girl was born. I understand that later on some of the neighbors didn't think she was too pretty as a little baby. But to me she was the most beautiful thing I ever saw in my life." He paused, grinned and added, "Now, that was an honest difference of opinion. Maybe we were both right."

"I've heard enough in that committee room to convince me that the Defense Department's decision to go along with the President's budget is a political decision, not a military decision.

"I don't think we're moving far enough fast enough. We're getting one missiles czar stacked up on top of another missiles czar, but we're not getting any missiles. The whole program lacks oomph.

"Lord knows forty billion dollars is a terrible lot of money. That's what they've asked the Congress to give them this year. Some of them seem to think it's ridiculous to suggest that Russia might hit us. If they're that sure, then they're wasting a terrible amount of money. But others feel Russia will hit us just as soon as she's sure she can get away with it without serious retaliation by us. If that's the case, forty billion dollars isn't enough.

"These are honorable men we've had appearing before us. But they're tied up in a political decision. The joint chiefs came before us to testify after Mr. McElroy cut their original estimated needs from two to four billion dollars. He had them sign a statement that what remained was sufficient. But all these gentlemen have 'reservations.' For

"As a young fellow in this town, in the days leading up to Pearl Harbor, I had an opportunity to tell President Roosevelt that I thought we weren't going far enough fast enough. Then just before the outbreak in Korea, I told the same thing to President Truman. Now I'm going on record again, this time for the benefit of President Eisenhower.

"I just never want to be in the position that Frank Knox (F. D. R.'s secretary of Navy) found himself in the day after Pearl Harbor. The American Magazine came out with an article by him saying 'we can lick them in either ocean' while the bellies of his fleet looked up at the moon."

The now declassified statement which the joint chiefs dutifully signed reads:

"Memorandum for the secretary of defense.

"Subject: Joint chiefs of staff position on the FY (fiscal year) 1960 budget.

"The joint chiefs of staff consider that the FY 1960 proposed expenditure figure of $40,945,000,000 is adequate to provide for the essential programs necessary for the defense of the nation for the period under consideration. They find no serious gaps in the key elements of the budget in its present form, but all have reservations with respect to the funding of some segments of their respective service programs."

The statement bears the signatures of Gen. N. F. Twining, USAF, chairman, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chief of staff of the Army, Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, Gen. Thomas D. White, chief of staff of the Air Force, and Gen. Randolph McC. Pate, commandant of the Marine Corps.

A document that has aroused much more ire on Capitol Hill, however, is the following memorandum to Scretary McElroy from President Eisenhower's budget director, Maurice H. Stans:

"The President will shortly present his budget for the fiscal year 1960 to the Congress. As you know, the normal process of budgeting results in recommended amounts that in many cases are less than the agency head had requested.

"It is understandable that officials and employes will feel strongly about the importance of their own agency's work, and will sometimes believe that a larger budget might be in order. Such feelings, however, must be related to an awareness that our budget resources are not adequate to accommodate in any one year all of the things that might be desired. The President is responsible for reviewing the total needs of the executive branch in the light of tax and debt policy and for deciding among competing requests for priorities. Executive branch personnel are expected to support the President in his budget recommendations.

"As you and your staff prepare to justify your portion of the budget before Congress, you will want to observe the requirements set forth at the President's direction in Bureau of the Budget Circular No. A-10. It is expected that witnesses will carefully avoid volunteering views differing from the budget, either on the record or off the record.

"While direct questions at hearings must be answered frankly, it is expected that a witness who feels that he must set forth a personal view inconsistent with the President's budget will also point out that the President's judgment on the matter was reached from his overall perspective as the head of the government, and in the light of overriding national policy. The witness should make it clear that his personal comments are not to be construed as a request for additional funds."

A Johnson aide, reading the above commented, "The chiefs came before us handcuffed."

Murder Rate a Record?

By ED PFISTER
Herald Bureau Chief

PFISTER

Palm Beach County might not have the largest population in Florida, but per capita it is probably setting some kind of a record for murders.

There probably has been a time or two in the last decade that a grand jury has met without any murder cases to consider, but such instances are a rarity.

Last Thursday a call for the spring grand jury was issued. At the time there were two or three rape cases on the books.

Before the day was over one suspected killer was captured and held for the new grand jury.

Friday, before the ink on the grand jury call had a chance to dry, another murder was put on the records.

2nd Mixing Bid

THERE ARE HINTS that the Palm Beach County School Board — already involved in one integration case — is about to be confronted with another. Members of the board probably won't admit it, but there is some anxiety now about Palm Beach Junior College.

The first integration case—which has had the School Board in and out of the courts for over a year — had to do with an elementary school.

Reports are that a new integration case will develop over an application from a Delray Beach girl to enter junior college. As of now, indications are that this one will also find its way into the courts.

The Hard Core

DESPITE all the uproar over juvenile delinquency, only a comparatively small segment of adolescents are seriously involved in the situation.

The Parent-Teachers Association estimated that the number of actual jevenile delinquents amount to about 1 or 2 per cent of the children.

There are an estimated 10,000 children in Palm Beach County between the ages of 10 and 17. Last year new cases in Juvenile Court totaled 826, which illustrates the small portion.

Privately some enforcement officers who are distrubed by the juveniles they have to handle, agree that the number of delinquents is probably small — but they also contend it consists of a small core of young hoods who are so tough that it's going to take more than kid glove tactics to turn them into good citizens.

QUEEN HOPEFUL who'll vie with 10 other candidates to reign over the Fiesta Del Sol is Bonnie Lee Cornish, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Cornish, 610 Wright Dr., Lake Worth. Queen will be chosen March 7 when the Junior Woman's Club, contest sponsor, will also select four attendants. —Photo by Sam Orvis

WPB Fathers View 'Estate'

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — City fathers made like flying feudal barons Friday.

Mayor Horace E. Miller and city commissioners got a bird's-eye view of "their estate" — the big "city within a city" Westward Expansion which they launched two years ago.

City officials took their turns in the air for the helicopter inspection tour of the 9-square mile area now being developed by Perini-Westward Developers, Inc.

Then, along with City Manager James J. Mott, they were treated to lunch served in a colorful striped tent pitched near the Westward office building.

Finally, city officials got a preview peek behind the white wood "fence of mystery" which closes off a tract of land adjoining the Westward office.

Westward officials were mum on the mystery. Their only comment: "It will be an attraction that will bring thousands of tourists to Palm Beach County."

Some 119 homes of the Negro residential area are already complete.

The first site for white housing construction is near Lake Mangonia in the northeast section of Westward Expansion. Streets are already under construction and houses will go up shortly.

Westward will have over 100 miles of roads, 300 miles of water, sewerage, and drainage pipes—all to serve the 10,000 homes planned in the "city within a city."

Jupiter Gets Set For Fete

Herald Bureau

JUPITER — Jupiter will be jumping this week. No wonder, what with alligator wrestlers, fire dancers, and about 100,000 folks flocking into town.

It's all for the 100th birthday of the old red Jupiter Lighthouse. The festive five-day centennial with its midway of fun opens Wednesday, and Ronald E. Olson, general chairman, said 100,000 people will come to whoop it up.

Chief "Mike" Osceola, great-grandson of the mighty warrior who defied federal troops 100 years ago, will swoop into Jupiter with his braves and maidens. The braves will prove their prowness by wrestling alligators.

Osceola, head of the counsel of the Seminole tribes in Florida, will also judge a kid's fishing contest Saturday at 2 p.m. Crowning highlight of the five-day celebration will be a past-to-present pageant.

Scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday, the historical show employs original music, seven major scenes and full costume of the century.

The centennial closes Sunday with a mammoth marathon boat race. There'll also be a queen contest and a king beard competition plus public barbecues, water ski exhibtions and variety shows.

The town is ready to start jumping.

Deliveryman Struck, Robbed

WEST PALM BEACH — The Sheriff's Department Saturday was investigating an attack on a banana deliveryman and the theft of about $100 from his wallet, in the area of the Farmer's Market on Congress Ave.

Deputy Harold Hodges identified the victim as Pete Ostrun, 27, of this city. Hodges said Ostrun was struck on the head from behind and had to be treated at a hospital.

'More Dignified'

'Palm Beach City' Name for WPB?

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH—Change the name of West Palm Beach? You can bet your life the numbers of the West Palm Beach City Commission are thinking about it.

It came out this way:

The city fathers visited Westward Expansion development here Friday and some of the developers thought it would be a good idea to call the new subdivision "Palm Beach West."

That gave Commissioner L. W. Kelloway the idea it would be just right to get a legislative act changing the name of West Palm Beach to "Palm Beach City." He opined that the "West" lowers the dignity of the name.

But later the idea appeared to surprise Mayor Horace S. Miller and Commissioners Sylvan Burdick and W. P. Holland when a reporter asked about the change.

They practically said, in chorus, "this is all news to us," and then, after a few seconds of study, thought it might not be a bad idea after all.

The mayor said, "We will have to give this some study." Holland said; "Want to sleep on it." Burdick was equally receptive.

Maybe you'll be hearing more about "Palm Beach City."

Commissioners Go Artistic

Some Doodle and Some Don't

ART EXHIBIT?
NAW.... CITY COMISH MEETING !!
DAVE CROSS

WEST PALM BEACH — City Commissioner Sylvan Burdick is a dandy doodler.

Mayor Horace E. Miller and Commissioner W. P. Holland dabble in doodles too.

With pencil and pen, the three city fathers doodled their way through a recent conference with the Advertising Commission.

Burdick, an attorney, emerged as the doodle artisan of the lot. His scribbles were fancy with flourishes and circles. He used the whole backside of the 8 by 11 inch Ad Commission agenda for a doodle masterpiece.

Miller, an abstractor, took to neat, meticulous squares, checks, and a triangle. He limited his art work to one small patch of the paper sheet.

Commissioners L. W. Kelloway and Perry McCampbell kept their hands idle. No doodlers, they. Kelloway is an electrical contractor, and McCampbell works for a large downtown department store.

Do doodles tell you oodles about a person?

Some psychologists and psychiatrists say "yes;" others "no." None locally would take on the doodles of city commissioners. But they offered comments.

Dr. Edgar Kellerman, West Palm Beach psychiatrist, remarked: "Doodles are a sign of boredom. An expression of restlessness. Something to do with your hands."

Hmmmm, commissioners, you remember, were at a City Advertising Commission session—that one when they were last on a 10-item agenda.

Dr. Johanna Byers, a psychologist, offered this curbstone opinion: "You find people doodle when they can't talk back. Self-expression is denied or repressed."

Hmmmm, again.

Cool, Clear Water

Plant to Open At Lake Worth

Herald Bureau

LAKE WORTH — Water—that country highball—will be tastier to the tongue in this city soon.

Lake Worth's new 1.6-million-dollar water treatment plant will go into operation early in March, eliminating practically all of the "undesirable elements" of the city's water supply.

Now the city's water literally smells. It discolors plumbing fixtures and it is unpleasant to the palate.

All the raw water comes from the Tamiami aquifer through 12 wells. The aquifer's porous limestone formation produces water that is potable but hard and sometimes discolored.

The new water treatment plant will fix all that. But not overnight, city officials warn.

It will take six weeks to months before the city's mains are flushed of debris and foreign matter that has accumulated over the years. Eventually, though, residents will get cool, clear water.

Thirsty Lake Worth now consumes an average of 3.5 million gallons of water daily. On peak days, it takes 8 million gallons to quench the city's thirst.

The new plant is designed to supply 12 million gallons of water each day. It also includes a raw water line from Lake Osborne.

Chlorine is the only chemical used now to purify the city's water. In the new plant, the city will combine carbon, lime, alum, silica, and chlorine to make for softer, purer H2O.

City officials commented: "The new water supply, a definite need in the community for many years, will attract more residents and newer industries that contribute to the progressive expansion of any area."

Tri-County League Urges Parley on SR 9

Road Now Ends at Hollywood

By ROSE ALLEGATO
Herald Staff Writer

WEST PALM BEACH — How long will Palm Beach and Broward Counties have to wait for State Rd. 9?

The road, now completed in Dade County, terminates at Hollywood in Broward County. SR 9 has been designated as the route for the federal interstate highway. There's the wrinkle.

Government leaders in Dade, Palm Beach and Broward want to see SR 9 extended through Palm Beach County in any way — as a limited access expressway or just a plain old north-south highway.

At a Tri-County Governmental League meeting here this weekend, leaders from Dade, Broward and Palm Beach Counties complained the state was giving them the run-around on SR 9.

George Peterson, chairman of Broward County commissioners, opined: "The State Road Department has two budgets — the budget named desire and the one they use to build roads."

The league is demanding a five-party meeting to ascertain the status of SR 9, which is considered vital to transportation in the tri-county area.

The meeting would include representatives from the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, the State Road Department, the Sunshine Parkway, the governor's office, and the Tri-County Governmental League.

Lake Lytal, chairman of Palm Beach County commissioners, said he has been led to believe Palm Beach County will have its first link of SR 9 in two years.

Peterson said the SRD has okayed the construction of SR 9, from its present terminus to SR 84 in Broward County. This section would be two lanes.

Peterson said he has been told SR 9 will not be extended until the turnpike proves itself a financial success. The bonds floated to finance the pike supposedly prohibit this.

Whichever is accepted, the 90-to-10 principle applies, with the federal government footing 90 per cent of the costs.

'1959 Is Going to Be a Big Year for Me'
. . . Stanton Griffis relaxes with pet basset and scottie

Diplomat to Dirt Farmer --Ex-Envoy Griffis' Career

By HELEN VAN HOY SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

PALM BEACH—Pipe smoking former ambassador Stanton Griffis (to Poland, Egypt, Argentina, Spain) didn't buy the Brooklyn Bridge, but he did sell the Venetian Causeway—"the biggest mistake of my business life." He sold it in 1945 before it became a seasonable operation.

He considers his Palm Beach investments among the best he ever made. On his farm on Military Trail he raises figs, citrus fruits, papayas, and flowers both for his home on El Vedada Way and for the market. His orchids are becoming famous.

Just now he is especially interested in "fraises du bois," delicious, delectable, desirably small French strawberries, the sort you heap with whipped cream and to heck with calories.

Chairman of the board of Paramount Pictures, banker, and chairman also of Brentanos, this diplomat-turned-dirt-farmer says:

"Nineteen fifty nine is going to be a big year for me. I'll be eligible for social security on May 2, and I've already filled out my application. You see, at 72 you can make all the money you can and still get that social security check. It'll help out with all those experiments I'm making at the ranch, and besides I've paid in ten times more than I will ever get."

He's through with politics. Won't make any comments, except to say that he's a Democrat. "I'm just a broken down old diplomat."

"I'm not in politics," and he puffed thoughtfully on his pipe, "Now I'm a sage."

He had just been entertaining members of the Cornell University (his Alma Mater) Investment committee.

"They played gold, cussed the Democrats, and also decided on a few investments for the university."

He admits he's a gourmet, and one reason he likes Florida so much is that he's fond of the foods.

One thing he doesn't like about Florida is the horse racing.

"The economy of the nation would be wonderfully bettered if there were no horse racing or horse betting. Educational and living standards would improve; there would be more money for hospitals and other needed institutions and research.

"The people who bet on the races are usually the very one who can't afford to.

"Call it a sport. It's bunk. —Nothing but a big gambling house."

Stanton Griffis is a bachelor host in Palm Beach. Chairmain of the lecture committee of the Society of the Four Arts, his introductions of speakers are brief and pungent. He will give a cocktail party for Author Philip Wylie after his talk on Tuesday and will be host to Katherine Cornell and Brian Aherne, who appear at the Four Arts March 14-16.

Regarding his own single state (he's been married and has grandchildren) he quoted: "High hopes fade on the warm hearth stone, he travels fastest who travels alone."

'Guys and Dolls' To Bow Tuesday

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom will be a special guest star with "Guys and Dolls," which bows in for a two weeks run Tuesday night at the Palm Beach Musicarnival here.

Heading a large cast will be Joan Bentley, Lawrence Brooks, Tim Herbert and Peggy Alderman.

"Guys and Dolls" is a fable of fabulous Broadway characters based on short stories by Damon Runyan, with such hit tunes as "Sit Down, You're Rocking the Boat," "I Love You a Bushel and a Peck," and "Luck, Be a Lady Tonight."

Boat Ramp Issue Comes Up Monday

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — City Commission plans to build small boat ramps in exclusive neighborhoods at the foot of Summa St. and north of Southern Blvd. bridge may cause some fireworks Monday.

The commission has already run into opposition, but since last week Summa St. residents have held a meeting to crystalize the opposition and are circulating petitions.

Commissioner Perry McCampbell is scheduled to bring up the ramp question at the regular Monday board meeting.

Residents claim the noise caused by boat launching would disrupt the quiet atmosphere of their neighborhoods.

It is understood, however, that some members of the board intend to answer the complaints with threats that lakefront fills may deprive the Summa and Southern Blvd. waterfront residents of their advantageous locations, unless the city goes ahead with the ramps.

The ramps, it may be argued, would offer assurance of no further encroachment on the lake bottoms.

Music Club Leader Dies

WEST PALM BEACH—Mrs. Mabel Barco, of 427 Iris St., a leader in church and club work here for years, died Saturday in a local hospital.

She held many state offices with the Florida Federation of Music Clubs. At the time of her death she was state chairman of a special membership committee. She was also a past president of the Music Study Club and a member of the DAR.

A resident here since 1911, she is survived by her husband, George C.; and two sisters. Mizell-Simon-Faville Funeral Home said rites will be held in Holy Trinity Episcopal Church at 2 p.m. Monday. Burial will be in Hillcrest Cemetery.

Earl Rumsey To Retire

WEST PALM BEACH — Earl C. Rumsey, for 22 years chief deputy tax collector, today will go on the list of retired Palm Beach County employes.

Rumsey, who took over his post in 1937 soon after Stetson Sproul, tax collector, was first elected to office, spent his last work day in the courthouse Friday.

He set up and has been in complete charge of financial records under Sproul and has frequently been complimented by the State Auditing Department for his systematic records.

A General Trades His Gun for a Shovel

Yigal Yadin once headed the general staff branch of Hagana, the Jewish underground in Palestine, in 1947. Today he is steeped in the study of archeology.

Why this successful military man switched to a completely new field makes for a fascinating story.

JERUSALEM, Israel —(AP)— A few years ago Maj. Gen. Yigal Yadin was chief of staff of the Israeli army. Today at 41 he is by choice a civilian and by accomplishment one of the world's leading archeologists.

And no one in Israel thinks it the least unusual that Yadin abandoned a brilliant military career for excavations and the study of scrolls and artifacts.

For in this land of the Bible, one of the well-trodden crossroads of human history, the remote past is as alive as the present. The events of two or three millenia ago are nearly as real as the current events in the morning paper. The archaeologist is as much a part of life as the soldier or politician.

Yadin's change of careers widened the impact of his talents. Where once he fought for Israel, today he works for the entire world of learning. He has helped add greatly to the store of knowledge of Biblical history.

. . . explains project to David Ben-Gurion

In his new work, Yadin is following in the footsteps of his father, the late professor Eliezer Sukenik, who headed the archeology department of Hebrew University in Jerusalem. (It is not uncommon for a son's name to differ from his father's in Israel, where many people have taken new Hebrew names or translated their names into Hebrew.)

During the Arab-Israeli War of 1948-49, Prof. Sukenik made perilous journeys into Arab-held territory to purchase for a few hundred dollars the first three of the now famous Dead Sea scrolls.

He made the trips against the advice of his son. But later, Yadin also played a part in the fantastic story of the scrolls. He handled negotiations in New York which led to the purchase for Israel of four more scrolls. These cost nearly a half-million dollars.

Prof. Sukenik died in 1953. His son now carries on in his place at Hebrew University.

Yadin lives in the house of his father, a house built of yellow cut stone which typifies all of new Jerusalem. It was here, in the yard, that Sukenik buried the first three scrolls for a time to protect them in case the Arabs invaded the Israeli sector of the city.

Yadin, tall, a little round at the middle, speaks fluent English. He is quite likely to deliver a visitor what amounts to an hour's lecture on current archeological work in Israel.

The Bible tells how Joshua led the Israelites in capturing and destroying Hazor, one of the Caananites' principal cities. If the date of its destruction could be pinned down, it would assist greatly in dating events described in the Bible subsequently.

For four seasons, 250 diggers and 40 to 45 archeologists worked at Hazor. They made rich finds. It turned out there had been 20 cities on the site of Hazor. The site had once housed 40,000 people on an area of 150 acres — an ancient metropolis. Yadin's group found 250,000 artifacts, 1,000 of which have considerable value.

More importantly, it was possible after studying the evidence to date Hazor's destruction by the Israelites in the 13th Century B.C. much more precisely than before.

Reports on the Hazor excavations are currently being published in scientific journals.

Another subject close to Yadin's heart are the investigations being made by him and his Israeli colleagues on the Dead Sea scrolls.

Ten years ago, Yadin was engaged in a completely different kind of work. As one of Israel's leading commanders and chief of operations of the general staff, he had much of the responsibility for the survival of the newly reborn country.

He came to his post of command as the logical result of heading the general staff branch of Hagana, the Jewish underground in Palestine, in 1947.

Yadin's abandonment of his military career for a civilian pursuit is not unusual in Israel. Maj. Gen. Yaakov Dori, chief of the general staff during the Arab-Israeli war, is now president of Israel's leading technological institute, the Technion in Haifa. Maj. Gen. Moshe Dayan, chief of staff during the Sinai campaign of 1956, has retired from Army life to take his chances on a political career.
